MARK CHICAGO EPOCH AS LIVE STOCK CAPITAL

Yards to Celebrate 75th Birthday.

Christmas day is the 75th anniversary of the opening of the Union Stock Yards, the world's largest cash market for selling live stock in open competition. To Chicago, as the world's greatest purveyor of meat, it is the birthday of an epoch in Chicago's greatest industry and in the development of the agricultural midwest.

Since the "yards" were opened Dec. 25, 1865, a total of 896 million animals—cattle, sheep, hogs, and horses—have been sold in its confines for 21½ billion dollars.

Thru three-quarters of a century animals have been coming to market at an average of 1 million head a month with an average value of 24 million dollars a month.

Cornerstone of City.

At the crossroads of the continent, Chicago, greatest railroad center on earth, has been a natural outlet for meat animals from the great producing areas of the west, and the meat industry has been one of Chicago's great economic cornerstones. Flocks and herds are turned into cash as they arrive and are sold. Ownership changes at the weighing scales.

As the animals stream in over 28 railroad lines the cash rolls back to the farmers and stockmen. The yards have long been rated as one of the great builders of the agricultural midwest on which the prosperity of Chicago depends.

Old timers at the yards emphasize the continuity of the market. Business today is done on the same methods that were laid down in 1865. The stockyards are an open, free and public market. Any owner of live stock may send it in and sell it himself or employ anybody he chooses to sell for him. Anybody with money can buy. The management of the market neither buys, sells nor kills live stock. The buyers and sellers themselves operate by a simple word of mouth method and one boast of the yards is that never has a farmer failed to receive payment.

Huge Live Stock Hotel.

A huge live stock hotel that furnishes room, board, and services for animals is one way the management is fond of describing the yards. It receives for the railroads, counts, feeds, waters, weighs and delivers the animals for slaughter or reshipment, but it takes no part in the transactions on the market.

Betterment of agriculture has been one of the aims of the yards. Forty years ago, in 1900, the world famous International Live Stock exposition was founded and given a permanent home. It is one of the greatest of all shows and has a profound influence on farming practices.

The exposition has expanded with new departments such as the International Grain and Hay show and has furnished national headquarters for the boys' and girls' 4-H Club congress.

Packing Houses Move In.

Soon after the stockyards, as the first great centralized live stock market in history, was opened in 1865, in a half section of swamp land that stretched for a mile along Halsted street south of 39th, the meat packing houses began to move in alongside, to the west of the yards.

This mile square live stock and meat city is split, the eastern half being the yards, the western half Packingtown. Here is the great meat market of the planet; a city within the city, with its own bank, the largest branch postoffice in the country, a daily newspaper, its own hotel.

It's an industry noted for initiative and for the old pioneer spirit. In May, 1934, on a Saturday, the yards were swept by an $8,000,000 fire. It was announced business would go on as usual and on Monday normal receipts were reported. The destroyed property was rebuilt, and a larger and better amphitheater arose in time for the greatest show held up to that year by the International Live Stock exposition.

Refrigerator Car Invented.

Chicago gave the refrigerator car to modern civilization. Leading packers were its pioneers and refrigeration revolutionized the industry. In the '70s packing was seasonal and could not be operated in warm weather. Insulated cars with ice bunkers solved the problem of shipping fresh meats

EVEN THO WE WOULDN'T NEED THEM

The two robbers who walked into the office of the Leading Wet Wash laundry at 2420 South Western avenue late yesterday were nervous and far less accurate in their shooting than the manager, Dominic Cicero, who had a new shotgun at hand. One of the pair fell, fatally wounded, and was captured. The other, also believed to have been hit, staggered out and escaped.

Miss Marie Krol, cashier, was receiving $80 from Alexander Kraveter, a driver, when the two men marched up. One confronted her and the other stepped behind Kraveter in the cashier's cage.

Coat Pierced by Bullet.

No. 1 said: "This is a stickup."

No. 2 took the $80 and handed it to his companion. At this juncture the man behind the counter, apparently by accident, fired his pistol, which was held almost against Kraveter. The driver's coat and shirt were pierced by the bullet but he suffered no wound.

The sound of the shot reached Cicero in a rear room and he seized the new shotgun, which had been kept handy since the place was robbed several weeks ago. He stepped into the office, firing as he did so.

The man in front of the cage whirled about, not toward the manager but toward the door. Cicero, who was then about 40 feet from the man, was sure he had been struck in the chest. This man continued his flight.

No. 2 Shot in Back.

Robber No. 2 then emerged from the cage and ran toward the door. Cicero, closer now, fired again from the five shot hunting gun. The charge struck the fleeing man in the back and he spun about, dropped his pistol and then went on. He collapsed a few seconds later on the sidewalk.

Frank Kostka, another driver for the laundry, picked up the pistol and pursued the first bandit, but was distanced.

The captured robber identified himself, shortly before his death in the Bridewell hospital, as Chester Janiszewski, 26 years old, 4942 South Justine street. Police records showed that he was sentenced to the Bridewell in 1934, 1935, and 1937 on larceny charges. He said his companion was John Gatt, living in the 5700 block of South Wood street. Policemen were sent to search for him.

In front of the laundry investigators found the car in which the robbers had driven up. Less than an hour before the gunmen had taken it, and a small sum of money, from Tony Ignatowicz of 4433 South Wolcott avenue at 47th and Justine streets.

Cicero, who is 40 years old and lives at 1015 Almond street, said the gun was one that he used in hunting. He is a crack shot.

Lobbyists War on Rivals

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The 18 billion dollar defense program, which has made this city a boom town, has given the national capital an "okie" and "native son" problem all its own.

[Okie, a word first used to describe needy Oklahomans who migrated to California, has become by usage a term for any other migratory job hunter.]

In the capital the "okies" are the swarm of lobbyists that has decended on every government procurement office, like a plague of locusts, in search of whatever they can get from the lush defense billions.

The "native sons" are the old established lobbyists who have been here for years, buying lunches and pumping up little and big egos in the strata of Washington officialdom, in the interests of various employers.

Today the "native sons" moved to divert the migratory "okies" from their preserves by filing papers of incorporation in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Aimed at "War Peddlers."

The papers would organize the old line lobbyists under the name of "The Manufacturers Representatives association." The avowed purpose of the organization is to provide for mutual, ethical, coöperation of members against what they term "war peddling parasites." [Many manufacturers have complained of paying fees to be introduced to the "right" officials only to learn they have been duped.]

However, the actual purpose of the organization, according to government sources, is to attempt to escape the ban which various government offices are planning to impose against all lobbyists.

By incorporation the "old settlers" hope to win official recognition of their membership cards, in much the same manner as press cards are recognized thruout the capital. The incorporators declare they are willing to be fingerprinted and have offered other pledges and concessions.

Operate in Hotel Lobbies.

The "okie" lobbyists operate chiefly in the lobbies of hotels and government buildings, in contrast to the "Native sons" who operate in the lobbies of congress and in the offices of major and minor officials.

Small manufacturers have reported that on their arrival here for the purpose of selling goods to the government, they are beseiged by the "okie" lobbyists. The manufacturers report that they are button-holed on signing hotel registers, subjected to endless phone call persuasion and hounded into their rooms. One manufacturer reported he was accosted by a lobbyist as he stepped from his train in the Washington Union station.

Use Race Track Methods.

The new lobbyists appear from their technique to be graduate race track touts. They offer to introduce the manufacturer to a close friend of the White House, or to an intimate of William S. Knudsen of the defense commission. Some, after inquiring casually whether their prospect knows Knudsen, offer to introduce him.

The prospect is regarded as an unweaned infant if he admits that he thought he could sell his product to the government on its merits.

"Why, everybody knows you must know the right people to get anywhere in Washington," the lobbyists say. "Where were you born?"

The question of a fee is injected early into the conversation and demand made for a substantial retainer.

SANTA GOES BACK TO THE MINES TO KEEP A TRADITION

Ishpeming, Mich., Dec. 21 (AP).—A Christmas tradition born seven years ago as the result of a prank was observed today by miners far below the earth's surface.

A brightly lighted Christmas tree, 1,300 feet down a shaft of the Greenwood mine of the Inland Steel company, beckoned to miners, who gathered around it at 6 a. m. for a half-hour program of gift exchanging.

The tradition was born in 1933. Timber haulers of the way to a mine found a small Christmass tree which had fallen from a truckload. They tossed the tree onto the pile of timber and sent it down into the mine. A miner set it up in a corner. Others pitched paper scraps from their lunch kits onto the tree for ornaments.

"Let's do this every Christmas," suggested Charles Miron, and they did.

FOOLING NO ONE BUT OURSELVES, SAYS SENATOR

Hails Knudsen in His New Role.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] tonight called for an end to secrecy on America's rearmament, which, he said, serves only to deceive the American people and hides no military secrets from possible enemies.

William S. Knudsen.

Byrd made this plea in hailing the appointment of William S. Knudsen as director of the new four man defense control body, created yesterday by President Roosevelt as signifying the end to the haphazard floundering which has characterized the rearmament program.

Cites Secrecy in France.

"I, of course, would not advocate making public military secrets," Byrd said in a statement, "but the American people today are entitled to know the basic facts regarding their mechanized military equipment—the number of fighting planes suitable for front line combat on hand today; the number of such planes to be delivered in the months ahead; the number of tanks, antiaircraft guns and other equipment.

"We should not delude ourselves in the thought that Germany, Japan and Italy have not already obtained these facts, which are being kept secret and withheld from our own people. The ambassadors, agents and diplomats of these governments are today free residents in America. In the effort to keep these facts secret, we merely are deceiving ourselves and denying the people of America information of vital importance to their security.

"The people of France were not informed as to the military preparedness of that nation, neither were the people of Great Britain, and we today see the consequences of such unwise action."

Calls Delay "Tragic."

"It is tragic that this action [the Knudsen appointment] was not taken months ago," Byrd said. "No one who knows the facts can deny that our national defense program has bogged down to such an extent as to constitute a menace to our own national security, and seriously to interfere with our effective aid to Great Britain.

"We have been floundering along in haphazard fashion during the critical days when the map of Europe was reshaped by Hitler's conquests, and only now, 16 months after the beginning of the European war, we appear to have awakened to the fact that notwithstanding the enormous appropriations made by congress, our production of essential military equipment is in very meager amounts."

Appeals for Coöperation.

Byrd's praise of the Knudsen appointment came after the new defense group held its first organizational meeting, which closed with the issuance of an appeal by Knudsen for all Americans "to pull off their coats and roll up their sleeves" to speed the rearmament program.

Knudsen met with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, and Sidney Hillman, labor leader, who like himself was a member of the seven man defense advisory commission.

Washington circles were stirred by Knudsen's statement airing his views on the war situation. Speaking of the new defense setup, Knudsen's statement said:

"It is born out of a consciousness of the heightened gravity of the world situation and a recognition that the contest which produced this crisis is irreconcilable in character and cannot be terminated by any methods of appeasement."

The statement concluded:

"We call upon the people to give their concentrated, undivided attention to one thing—the swiftest possible production of the means of defense. To this end we invite the coöperation of every element in the American community."

TAX RISE NEAR; STEEPER IF U. S. ENGAGES IN WAR

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—A staggering price must be paid by the American citizen if the United States is plunged into war.

The huge defense spending program has already made great increases in taxes inevitable in the near future. Prices of consumer goods will rise accordingly. Involvement in war would, of course, impose even greater burdens upon the ordinary man in the street.

Light was shed today upon the probable American tax picture of the future when Thomas R. Wilson, expert in the European section of the finance division of the department of commerce, completed a study on the subject of Britain's war finances.

British Spending Mounts.

"The gradual spread and intensity of military activities in Europe has raised the question of how the United Kingdom is financing her war efforts," Wilson wrote. He then went into great technical detail, describing how Great Britain is raising money to carry on the war.

Great Britain's estimated war expenditures for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1941, will be approximately 11 billion 300 million dollars, according to a report by the chancellor of the exchequer. Total expenditures will be 13 billions 868 millions.

Ordinary British revenues were estimated to be only 5 billion 444 million, leaving a deficit to be raised in extraordinary ways of 8 billion 424 million dollars.

Heavier Income Levies.

To obtain additional revenue Great Britain has imposed backbreaking income taxes, made great increases in customs duties and excise taxes, and has imposed a "national defense contribution" or "excess profits tax."

The largest source of tax revenues for Great Britain has long been the customs duties and excise taxes, Wilson reported. He estimated that more than two billion dollars would be collected from this source in the current year.

Important increases have been made in the duties on tea, tobacco, cigarets, sugar, hydrocarbon oils, and many other items in the tariff schedules. These increases are reflected in a higher cost to the consumer.

The second largest source of tax revenues is the income tax. It will add another two billion dollars plus to the British income this year.

Exemptions Are Reduced.

The basic rate of the income tax is now 8 shillings 6 pence on the pound, Wilson wrote. This figure is equal to 42.5 per cent.

A 25 per cent rate is imposed on income up to $800 a year and the 42.5 per cent rate is imposed on all income above that.

If a comparable income tax rate were imposed in the United States the $22 a week clerk would have to lay aside about $5 a week for income tax alone. The $50 a week man would donate some $21 a week to the government. The $5,000 a year man would pay more than $2,000 in income tax.

Surtaxes on individual incomes in excess of 2,000 pounds [$8,080 at the present exchange rate] have been increased from 5.5 to 10 per cent on the first 500 pounds excess income and from 42.5 per cent on all over 5,000 pounds [approximately $20,000] to 47.5 per cent on all over 20,000 pounds [approximately $80,000].

Profits Tax Increased.

The "national defense contribution" tax levies a tax of 5 per cent on companies. There is also an excess profits tax where the profits arising in any trade or business exceed the standard profits. The excess profits tax was 60 per cent in 1939 but was raised to 100 per cent this year.

Another new tax placed in operation on Oct. 21, 1940, Wilson reported, was the tax of 33⅓ per cent on the wholesale price [amounting to 24 per cent on retail prices] of specified luxuries such as furs, silk, lace, china, toilet preparations, etc., and 16⅔ per cent on the wholesale price [amounting to 12 per cent on retail prices] of such goods as clothing, footwear, etc. The cost to the taxpayer will be about 450 million dollars a year.

Briton Works Too Fast, So Union Calls a Strike

LONDON, Dec. 21 (AP).—Workers in a factory turning out uniforms for the British Tommies struck today because of continued employment of a cutter whom their union expelled on a charge of working too fast. The National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers said the man violated union rules by cutting too many pairs of khaki pants an hour. The union took the view this endangered its standards of "output and craftsmanship."

BRITISH INCITE WARLIKE ACTS, NAZIS WARN U. S.

Assail Plea to Seize Axis Ships.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—Is the United States prepared to commit an open act of belligerency by turning over German and Italian ships in American ports to England? This is the question agitating German official circles as revealed by statements of a foreign office spokesman at a press conference today.

The spokesman also voiced German resentment at the discussion between the United States and England "about the help America is to grant England." His statement was made in connection with the assertion by Ronald Cross, British shipping minister, in an interview with American correspondents in London yesterday that England needed the enemy ships now tied up in American ports.

Charges "Warlike Act."

The spokesman charged that Cross was "inciting America to commit a warlike act" and asserted that the reaction of the United States "is being awaited by Germany with extraordinary interest."

[Informed but unofficial political sources in Rome said delivery of axis ships to Britain by the United States would be "unfriendly" and "unneutral" and expressed confidence it would not happen.]

During the next few weeks Germany will make strong attempts to gain the widest publicity for her interpretation of the situation because she wants to impress American public opinion before the Presidential inauguration and before the new congress meets.

Asks Recall of Embassy Workers.

Coincident with the foreign office spokesman's statement, it was announced officially that the German government has asked the United States state department to recall three members of the staff of the American embassy in Paris. It was charged that they helped a British officer to escape and had coöperated with British secret service men.

The three are Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, formerly of Asheville, N. C., a receptionist who recently was detained for several days by German military occupation authorities in Paris; Cecil M. P. Cross, first secretary and consul at the embassy, and Leigh W. Hunt, a second secretary and consul.

[In Washington, D. C., Secretary of State Hull said the three would be sent elsewhere; that the charges would be investigated, altho a preliminary investigation does not support them. Hull declined to discuss the statement by British Shipping Minister Cross.]

Spokesman Tells Stand.

At the press conference, the question of further American aid to Britain as suggested by British Minister Cross was brought up after interviewers were told that no extraordinary importance should be attached to the press campaign being waged against Switzerland in official Nazi organs.

To the question, "Any comment on Cross' statement?" the spokesman replied earnestly, as follows:

"The British blockade minister, according to reports received here, said among other things: 'Possibly the United States can spare some ships for us of those used for normal existing services. Also a certain number of enemy ships are lying at anchor in the United States and, of course, I am eager for these. These constitute the only possibility for a reasonably effective replenishment of our tonnage so far as I can see.'

Calls It Incitement.

"The statement by Cross to American press representatives means nothing other than an incitement to America to commit a warlike act which, naturally, can also be called merely 'support of England.'

"We are extremely curious to know how America will reply to this brazen request for a warlike action.

"We have got used in recent times to the fact that certain circles in the United States, in formulating action that from the viewpoint of international law can have but one meaning, are being guided by rabulistic reasoning, according to which in formulating their actions they try to give a slant to them which is calculated to

CONGRESSMEN ASSAIL BID FOR SHIP SEIZURES

Strong Opposition to Idea of Briton Seen.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 (AP).—Congressional reaction to the idea that axis ships in American ports be turned over to Great Britain indicated today that any formal proposal of that nature would encounter determined opposition.

Ronald H. Cross, British minister of shipping, advanced the suggestion yesterday in London, asserting that he saw no hope of immediate replenishments to the British merchant marine except by action of this nature or addition of United States ships to the British service. United States officials are known to be studying the possibility of acquiring some of the 140 foreign flag vessels tied up in American ports, altho no definite announcement has been made. Among such vessels are two German and 27 Italian.

Proposal Is Assailed.

At the capitol many immediately criticized Cross' proposal, which was denounced in Berlin as "inciting America to commit a warlike act."

Senator Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] said, "legislation would be necessary before any such step could be taken, and I do not believe congress would enact it."

Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.] said, "we haven't any right to take foreign ships in time of peace for our own or anybody else's use. I don't think we ought to become pirates and confiscate ships of friendly nations."

Senator William J. Bulow [D., S. D.] said, "at first blush I think it would lead us two steps nearer war instead of one."

Fish Is Opposed.

Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] said he thought congress would be unwilling "to destroy the last vestiges of international law by seizing either German or Italian vessels in the United States and selling them to a belligerent nation while we are at peace."

"The Norwegian, Danish, Dutch, and Belgian merchant ships," he added, "come under a different category and we might be able to buy these ships and release them to the British."

The state department, officials said tonight, will transfer to Lisbon, Portugal, the three members of the American embassy staff in Paris who Germany charged assisted a British officer to escape from German-occupied France.

No Admission of Guilt.

Secretary Cordell Hull emphasized that withdrawal of the three, Cecil M. P. Cross, Leigh W. Hunt, and Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, in compliance with the German request in no way implied admission of guilt.

Cross, Hunt, and Mrs. Deegan are expected to be assigned temporarily to Lisbon with the possibility they will later be sent to other posts abroad or recalled to Washington. Mrs. Deegan, a former resident of Asheville, N. C., was held in Paris for several days by German occupation authorities.

GREEN CONFERS WITH LEADERS IN LEGISLATURE

Governor Elect Dwight H. Green discussed state problems and the forthcoming session of the general assembly with Republican legislative leaders yesterday at a luncheon in the Union League club. The governor said the talk was general and no decisions were reached. He may ask the group for a second conference before the session opens on Jan. 8. Green will be inducted into office on Jan. 13.

Meeting with the next chief executive were Lieutenant Governor Elect Hugh Cross, Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, slated for the speakership of the house; Senator Arnold P. Benson, Batavia, scheduled for election as president pro tempore of the senate; Senator Earl B. Searcy, Springfield; and Representatives Robert J. Branson, Centralia; Reed F. Cutler, Lewistown; Hugh Green, Jacksonville, and C. A. Bruer, Pontiac.

Florida Train Derailed; Elderly Woman Injured

Norwood, Mo., Dec. 21 (AP).—Six cars of the Florida Special, speedy Frisco Lines passenger train eastbound for Memphis, were derailed but not overturned three miles west of Norwood early today. C. O. Massey, station agent, said an elderly woman suffered a broken leg. Other passengers were shaken up but not seriously injured. J. B. Hilton of Springfield, assistant to the general manager, blamed a broken rail. He estimated 500 yards of track were torn up.

Defense Commission Adds Cooking Experts to Staff

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 (AP).—The defense commission added two experienced restaurant men to its staff today to advise on problems of feeding the expanding army and navy. Horace L. Gardner of New York City and Clyde Davis, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., were appointed to the staff of George M. Moffett, director of the food and food products section. They will help select cooks and aid the Quartermaster corps in the design and construction of mess facilities.

Aroused Over London Plea to Seize Ships.

inculcate the impression that they are a measure solely of a kind that is beyond criticism from the viewpoint of international law.

[Webster defines rabulistic as "characterized by railing." The German word "rabulisterei" means pettifogging, and a "rabulist" is a pettifogging lawyer.]

"It will be extraordinarily interesting to us to observe the reaction on the part of the United States to this unmistakable demand by the English blockade minister.

"The argument which is in progress between England and America concerning support on the part of the United States for an England that is breaking down more and more constantly evokes interest in an increasing manner.

"Our interest is increasing because it is not tenable in the long run that in a discussion—be it in only the press—concerning questions which are of vital significance for political relations between two nations, that one nation continually observe a restraint onto self-effacement while the other permits a policy from morn until night of pinpricks, injury, insult, challenge, and moral aggression.

"I say with all the earnestness that is proper before this group, as your informer, that this demand by the English minister draws our attention to the manner by which England is to be supported in its death struggle."

CHARGES CANAL ZONE IS LACKING IN AIR DEFENSES

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Rep. Fred Bradley [R., Mich.], one of 12 congressmen returning from a trip to the Panama canal, declared today that there "was not a modern bomber in the zone."

"If the administration considers it such a vital place to guard," he said, "why doesn't it do something to protect the zone with up-to-date aircraft? If there are any modern bombers there, they are so pitifully few that we didn't see them. I was told the fastest airplane there was capable of only 140 miles an hour."

Asked about leaving the country after voting that congress should stay in session, Rep. Ben F. Jensen [R., Iowa] remarked: "Well, the President left, didn't he?"

COLLEGE HEAD NAMED TO DIRECT ACTIVITY OF DRAFT OBJECTORS

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 21 (AP).—Thomas E. Jones, president of Fisk university, Nashville, Tenn., has been appointed to direct activities of conscientious draft objectors who are to be assigned to special work by the national selective service, the American Friends [Quaker] Service committee announced today.

Clarence A. Dykstra, selective service director, disclosed in Washington this week that Quakers, Mennonites, Brethren and the Fellowship of Reconciliation have been designated to organize suitable work projects for conscientious objectors. He said it was planned to use abandoned CCC camps and camps in state and national forests on an experimental basis.

Trustees of Fisk university, the Friends committee said, have granted Dr. Jones leave of absence to supervise this service which may enroll 2,000 to 3,000 men within a year.

With the approval of the Selective Service administration, he will set up camps for reforestation, soil erosion control, slum clearance, and rural rehousing programs.

SHIP BUILDING SCHEDULES ARE STOLEN IN N. Y.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 21 (AP).—The New York Shipbuilding corporation announced today that a brief case containing production schedules was stolen Thursday from one of its employés, Walter Keefer, in a restaurant near Schenectady, N. Y.

Fred Cornell, the corporation's public relations representative, said the brief case did not contain any blue prints, ship construction plans or other matter of military value. The corporation holds more than 500 million dollars worth of navy contracts.

Cornell said Keefer was employed as an expediter to speed production of materials needed for ship construction and was returning from a conference with General Electric officials.

Italian Prisoners, Captured in Libya, Reach Palestine

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Dec. 21 (AP).—Several thousand Italian prisoners taken in Britain's Libyan offensive arrived today at a Palestine internment camp.

CIVIC GROUPS' AID WILL BE URGED IN ANTI-WAR FIGHT

America First Crusade Maps Expansion.

All civic, patriotic and women's groups whose members believe in building an adequate national defense and in keeping the United States out of the European war will be invited to join the fight for these aims thru representation on the general committee of the Chicago chapter of the America First committee, Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chairman, said yesterday.

The organization, formed to combat activities of such groups as the William Allen White Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, maintains that American democracy can be preserved only by keeping out of foreign wars.

Urges Strong U. S. Defenses.

The America First group contends that "aid short of war" which goes beyond the limitations of cash and carry weakens national defense and threatens immediate involvement in the European conflict. It advocates an impregnable defense so that no foreign power or group of powers can successfully attack the United States.

Expansion of the general committee will be the first step of an intensive campaign to acquaint residents of the Chicago area with the work of the America First group, Gen. Hammond said.

Arrangements are being made for the opening of loop headquarters and for the distribution of literature to persons interested in the work of the committee. Offices are maintained at present in the Board of Trade building.

Gen. Wood Heads Group.

The general committee now includes, besides Gen. Hammond, Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of the National America First committee; Mrs. Janet Ayer Fairbank, vice chairman of general committee here; Dr. Fred L. Adair, Dr. Anton J. Carlson, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Alfred Carton, James Jenkins, Kent Clow, Kellogg Fairbank Jr., Ellsworth Faris, Wade Fetzer, Duncan Hodges, Dr. Arthur E. Holt, Clay Judson, Herbert Kennedy, Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, Florence Lowden Miller, Dr. C. Phillip Miller, Sterling Morton, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, George F. Ranney Jr., George Richardson, Edward L. Ryerson, Mrs. O. H. Robertson, Mrs. Paul S. Russell, H. L. Stuart, Louis L. Thurstone, Arthur McD. Wood, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Jessamine G. Hoagland, J. Sanford Otis, and Miss Harriet Vittum.

Winter Makes an Official Bow, but Is Mild About It

According to the almanac, yesterday was the first day of winter. It was the day of the winter solstice, when the sun stood at the farthest point south of the equator that it reaches during the year. It was the shortest day of the year. The sun rose at 7:15 a. m. and set at 4:22 p. m. But, despite the almanac, it was a mild day for Chicago, with the temperature reaching 45 degrees, 18 above normal. Mild temperatures prevailed over most of the country. Today's forecast is for continued mild weather.

From 3:45 to 4 p. m. tomorrow the Good Fellow chorus, singing carols about the Christmas tree in Nathan Hale court of W-G-N, will be heard over W-G-N and on the loudspeaker system.

CHRISTMAS RUSH BOOSTS RAIL, AIR AND BUS TRAFFIC

Railroads, air lines, and bus companies operating from Chicago reported yesterday that holiday traffic increases ranged from 10 per cent to 50 per cent compared with last year. Railroad passenger volume was up 10 per cent to 30 per cent, with all roads running extra sections or extra cars. One line's leading trains were running in four sections. Ticket queues were long, despite the addition of supplementary agents.

Air lines said they were using all available equipment and still were compelled to turn away applicants for tickets. Increases in passenger traffic were between 25 per cent and 50 per cent. Demand for express space exceeds capacity, altho some planes were assigned to express duty exclusively. Waiting room seating capacity was being exceeded at Chicago airport.

Bus operators also have placed extra equipment in service to meet the holiday rush. The Chicago Motor club estimated that 20 per cent to 25 per cent of all passenger cars in the city will be on the highways over the week-end.

GOOD FELLOWS GO ON ERRAND OF JOY TOMORROW

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Good Fellows were waiting eagerly last night for the go signal to start them on their annual errand of Christmas cheer—the delivery of hundreds of bulging baskets of food, toys, and candy to the homes of Chicago unfortunates.

Button worn by Good Fellows.

Tomorrow's the day. It's a tremendous as well as a happy task, and an early start and a Christmas eve finish usually is the rule. Delivery will start tomorrow, continue thru Christmas eve, and, in some instances, carry over into Christmas day.

Act in Time for Christmas.

Being practical as well as sentimental, the Good Fellows realize the importance of getting the baskets into the designated homes in time, so that when Christmas day comes around, dinner tables that otherwise might be barren will be laden with wholesome foods. For the youngsters there will be the candy and toys, and in many cases clothing.

The baskets will be distributed from more than 20 centers serving those areas where the need of Good Fellow assistance is greatest.

In 1939, the best year since 1929, 10,000 Good Fellows participated, delivering baskets to 2,900 families and presenting toys, candies, clothing, and other Yule remembrances to approximately 14,500 youngsters.

But as good as was the 1939 record, it will have to yield to 1940. This year 12,000 Good Fellows are working, baskets will go into 3,100 homes, and an estimated 15,500 children will be made happy.

Many Fields Represented.

Approximately 30 large organizations—five more than last year—are helping in the Good Fellow movement. They represent many fields of endeavor, among them athletics, aviation, business, society and fraternal, civic and neighborhood activities. Among the larger groups are the Traffic Club of Chicago, the Aviation Good Fellows, and the Chicago Rotary club. These three are providing more than 1,000 baskets.

Sometimes the Good Fellows bring more than food, clothing, and toys. Sometimes they bring jobs.

The Good Fellow editor will tell of the progress thus far in a talk entitled "Your Report—Mr. Good Fellow," to be heard over W-G-N at 1:35 p. m. today.

You can do your bit toward helping in the Good Fellow work even now by sending a contribution or offering your services. Just call Superior 0200. Contributions will be accepted up to Christmas eve.

[A partial list of donors to the Good Fellow fund and a coupon which any one can use and become a Good Fellow will be found in the Metropolitan section of today's Tribune. The names of additional donors will be printed next Sunday in the Metropolitan section.]

Christmas Tree Fire Routs Three and Damages Home

The first serious damage from a 1940 Christmas tree fire in Chicago was reported yesterday. John Reinish of 6510 South Artesian avenue, his wife, and their son John Jr., 3 years old, had just finished decorating their tree when some of its ornaments began to blaze. The family was unable to stop the fire and fled to the street. Firemen extinguished the flames. Damage to the flat was estimated at $500.

Granted Divorce

MARGO.

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 21 (AP).—Margo, stage and screen actress, was granted a divorce from Actor Francis Lederer today. She obtained the decree on her cross-complaint after Lederer filed the original action. District Judge Roger Foley conducted a private hearing and testimony was sealed. Lederer's complaint, charging desertion, showed the couple wed here Oct. 16, 1937, have no children and no community property. Margo's cross-complaint charged cruelty. She won restoration of her maiden name, Margarita Bolado.

CHARGES BRITAIN HAS MORE SHIPS THAN SHE NEEDS

Marine Union Leader Offers Figures.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Great Britain has more merchant shipping under her control today than ever before in her long maritime history, according to a survey by the National Maritime union [C. I. O.], which placed the figure at nearly 17,000,000 tons.

The survey was described today by National Organizer Howard McKenzie, who conducted it as proof that "the cry 'all aid to Britain' is little less than outright duplicity."

Much Nondefense Trade.

A union statement summarizing the survey said at least 8,300,000 tons of this shipping was engaged in nondefense trade and "in no way connected with British war efforts.

"Some of it is actually engaged in carrying oil, copper, and other war supplies from South America to Spain for transshipment to Italy and Germany to be used against the British people," the statement added.

"In addition to her own merchant fleet, the largest in the world, the British ministry of shipping now controls fleets totaling 9,000,000 tons formerly operated by countries now in German hands.

Transfers from U. S.

"Nevertheless, the United States Maritime commission has approved the transfer or sale to foreign countries of American vessels aggregating more than 1,000,000 tons, of which the British got almost half."

The statement said England had lost 3,000,000 tons of shipping by submarines and mines since the start of present war, but that she had acquired 3,500,000 tons of Norwegian shipping; 83 per cent of the 3,000,000 ton Dutch fleet, and about a third of Denmark's 1,200,000 tons.

"If the British are so hard up for ships," McKenzie asked, "why don't they withdraw some of this foreign shipping, now operating under their control, from trade with neutrals and put it into defense trade?"

Action at Conference.

Meanwhile at Buffalo, N. Y., the Great Lakes conference of the Maritime union adopted a six-point program stressing opposition to transfer of United States ships to any foreign power and charging that ship transfers to Great Britain had deprived American seamen of jobs.

The delegates heard Organizer Frederick N. Myers charge that "the new defense setup is designed to protect big business and to plunge the country into war—in the interests of big business."

ALL IN A DITHER AT WHITE HOUSE TO GREET SANTA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 (AP).—Just as in homes from Maine to California, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt are in that last minute dither getting ready for Christmas.

The White House, redecorated this summer, was being decked out in holly, mistletoe and poinsettas. A tall all-white Christmas tree—with white lights, white streamers and artificial snow—was set up in the east room.

Gaily wrapped packages were stacking up under the less formal family Christmas tree [it has multicolored lights] on the second floor. Mrs. Roosevelt is an early shopper. This year she had most of it done right after the election.

Christmas morning in the Roosevelt family belongs to the children. Grown-ups have to wait until after the midday turkey dinner—carved by the Presidential hand—to see what Santy brought them.

ADOPTION PLEAS EXCEED BABIES AT ST. VINCENT'S

There is a shortage of blue-eyed baby girls at St. Vincent's Infant and Maternity hospital.

In the last year the hospital received more than 700 adoption requests, Sister Mary Alice, supervisor of adoptions, reported yesterday. Only 215 were available for adoption. Twenty children entered foster homes in December as Christmas babies, she said, but 35 eligible couples still seek children.

Since Jan. 1, she reported, 879 babies, ranging from the newly born to those 3 years old, entered the hospital. At present 150 live there, cared for by a staff of 26 doctors, 75 nurses and 25 volunteer workers.

GREEKS CAPTURE NEW HEIGHTS IN TEPELENI SECTOR

Take 300 Prisoners and War Materials.

ATHENS, Dec. 21 (AP).—Greek forces pushing deeper into Albania have captured new fortified heights and two villages in the Tepeleni-Klisura sector and have taken 300 prisoners and a quantity of war material, a government spokesman reported tonight. An Italian colonel was among those seized in the fighting, which raged despite intensely cold weather.

The spokesman declared the Greeks also were continuing their advance in other sectors, especially in the coastal region toward Chimara.

Important Italian positions also were taken in the north beyond Pogradetz, he said. "Conditions are just the same as in past days," he commented. "The initiative belongs to us and all efforts by the Italians to counterattack have been crushed. Fascist positions on the mountain heights naturally are strong, but these machine gun nests have been abandoned under the bayonets of charging Greeks."

Strike Other Blows.

British-Greek forces in close collaboration were reported to have struck other blows from the air and sea. These developments were outlined as follows:

By air—R. A. F. bombers based in Greece were said to have bombed oil tanks and railways overnight at the Italian port of Brindisi, across the Adriatic sea from Albania, dropping all their bombs in the target area and setting off "large fires" and "several explosions."

Also the R. A. F. reported attacks yesterday on Berat, at a vital road junction on the Albanian front, and on an Italian air field.

Penetrate Adriatic Sea.

By sea—A naval communique today said a Greek destroyer force had penetrated the Adriatic as far as the island of Saseno, at the entrance to Valona harbor, on the night of Dec. 15-16 "without encountering any signs of the enemy."

Air Vice Marshal John Henry d'Albiac, commander of the R. A. F. in Greece, expressed satisfaction with the progress of the air war. He summarized the R. A. F. record as follows:

Fighters—39 Italian craft destroyed and 12 probably destroyed; one R. A. F. pilot killed and one missing.

Bombers—70 raids carried out, 120 tons of bombs dropped, nine aircraft lost. On Valona alone, he said, the R. A. F. has made 18 attacks and dropped 94,000 pounds of explosives. On Durazzo, another of Italy's main Albanian ports, he said there had been eight raids in which 63,000 pounds of bombs were dropped.

Italian aviation raided points within Greece today, causing casualties in the cities of Larissa and Leucas, and attacking rural areas near Janina and Patras.

Italian Warships Shell Greeks.

ROME, Dec. 21 (AP).—Italy's high command declared today that its fleet had gone into action against Greece.

"Our naval units bombarded enemy positions along the Ionian [southwest Greek] coast effectively, hitting preëstablished targets," a communique stated.

[The British claim that their own fleet on Thursday morning steamed up the Ionian sea and penetrated the Adriatic, shelling the Albanian port of Valona. The Italian high command said nothing about this claim, however.]

Take "Important Position."

On the Albanian land front the Italians reported winning an "important position," not identified, in a raid.

All Greek attacks were reported repulsed, and the newspaper Il Popolo di Roma said Italian bombers hemmed in and hammered Greek units falling back along the coast north of Porto Edda.

Bomb Dodecanese Cities.

LONDON, Dec. 21 (AP).—The admiralty announced today that the fleet air arm had attacked Rhodes, Stampalia, and Scarpanto Dec. 17. The report said "fires were seen to have been started" in the three cities, in the Italian Dodecanese Islands off the Turkish coast, but added that weather conditions made observation of bombing results difficult.

Athens Claims New Gains in Albania

(Story in adjoining column.)

Principal claims of both sides in the Italian-Greek warfare in Albania are told on the map. British bombing planes aided the Greeks' campaign.

British planes have bombed the Italian Dodecanese islands whose names appear on the map, according to an announcement in London.

ITALIANS BOMB ARGYROKASTRON; PERIL AMERICANS

ARGYROKASTRON, Albania, Dec. 18 [Delayed] (AP).—Italian bombers attacked Argyrokastron in three waves today, dropping explosives in the heart of this medieval fortress town which the Greeks won from the Italian army less than two weeks ago. Edmund Stevens, correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, was hurled thru a shop door by the force of one of the explosions but escaped unhurt. Leland Stowe of the Chicago Daily News crouched in the basement of the shop while little stores on both sides of the street near by were blasted to fragments.

At least 30 Albanians were killed and an undetermined number of others were buried in the ruins. The town was defenseless. Not a shot was fired at the Fascist planes.

Canadian Training Planes Collide in Midair; 1 Killed

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 21 (AP).—Aircraftsman C. R. Dickie of Canning, N. S., was killed and Temporary Sergeant R. T. Jewitt of Bondhead, Ont., was seriously injured today in a mid-air collision of their royal Canadian air force training machines over Malton airport, nine miles northwest of Toronto.

SABOTAGE GROWS IN BELGIUM, SAYS UNION OFFICIAL

New York, Dec. 21.—More than 250 trade union men and about 65 political leaders have been arrested for sabotage in Belgium, where resistance to German occupation exceeds that of the first world war, Jef Rens, general secretary of the Belgian federation of labor, said today.

Rens, a former cabinet minister, sailed for Lisbon, Portugal, on the liner Excalibur. At Lisbon he will board a plane for London to join the Belgian government in exile. He said he had been in the United States on a secret mission "which has been successfully concluded."

King Leopold, he said, considers himself a prisoner and "accepts the Belgian government in London as the only legal and free Belgian authority." He added that in London, "we are directing the sabotage activities against the Germans. The working class is giving us every support."

France Will Get a Little More Food for Christmas

VICHY, France, Dec. 21.—A few changes will be made in food restrictions in the unoccupied zone for the Christmas season, it was announced today. Consumers will be able to purchase an extra two ounces of cheese and flour, or rice. In addition, permission is given to purchase, on the same day, both meat and poultry, and also jam. After the first of the year, however, cakes and pastry may be sold only against bread tickets because a shortage of flour threatens.

Mexican Police Protect Meetings of Anti-Nazis

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21 (AP).—Police assigned special guards today to all theaters showing anti-Nazi films and to all meetings of an anti-Nazi nature in an effort to halt a series of organized disturbances by groups crying "heil Hitler" and throwing stench bombs, tear gas, and itch powder.

HEADS OF BRITISH CHURCHES OFFER 5 PEACE POINTS

Suggest World Resources Be Divided.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 21.—While Britons have been eagerly awaiting a clarification of government peace aims as promised by Maj. Clement R. Attlee, deputy leader, in the house of commons a month ago, newspapers are filled with letters from readers, as well as editorials, devoted to the subject.

Cardinal Arthur Hinsley.

Today's London Times published a joint letter signed by the heads of the Anglican church, free churches and the Roman Catholic church of the United Kingdom, in which they not only indorsed Pope Pius XII.'s five peace points, issued last Christmas eve, but supplemented them with five points of their own.

List Their Program.

The five points, as enunciated by the church heads, are:

1. Extreme inequality in wealth and possessions should be abolished.
2. Every child is suitable for the development of his peculiar capacities.
3. The family as a social unit must be safeguarded.
4. Sense of a divine vocation must be restored to man's daily work.
5. The resources of the earth should be used as God's gifts to the whole human race and used with due consideration.

Signed by Leaders.

The letter was signed by the archbishop of Canterbury, Cardinal Arthur Hinsley, archbishop of Westminster; Walter H. Armstrong, moderator, Free Church Federal council, and the archbishop of York.

The London Times itself ran a long editorial in which it stated that, altho there was no desire to exact specific commitments from Prime Minister Winston Churchill owing to the "disastrous results of promises and declarations of this nature" at Versailles, public interest in the war aim "certainly has not slackened."

New York, Dec. 21 [Special].—The Finnish freighter Carolina Thorden, 27 days out of Gothenburg, Sweden, reached here today after a thrilling crossing. She was pockmarked with machine-gun fire from a German plane, dodged as many as 54 free floating mines in one day, rescued the crew of a mined Greek freighter, and in one day picked up signals from 13 other ships that had been attacked by air or sea raiders.

Crew members said a warplane fired on the Carolina Thorden six times while the ship was moving out of the Baltic sea, altho German authorities had given the vessel permission to sail. In the Kattegat, they said, they counted the 54 floating mines between sunrise and sundown.

The Carolina Thorden saved Capt. Efftimios Vallianos and his crew of 32 from the 5,168 ton Greek freighter Dionssios Stathaos soon after the North Sea had been passed.

BRITISH TROOPS BATTLE BEYOND BESIEGED BARDIA

Others Re-enforce Units Attacking Town.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 21 (AP).—The British moved more reënforcements today to Bardia, besieged Libyan port where the Italians are making their first real stand against Britain's 13 day old North African campaign.

The town now has been cut off for two days with the best part of two Italian divisions inside and British guns turned on it from land and sea. Field forces are reported officially to be striking beyond that smoking stronghold toward the important Fascist base of Tobruk, clearing areas to the west and northwest.

In these areas the British command reported capture of 900 more prisoners, along with four guns, added to more than 30,000 already taken captive. The only road out of Bardia—that westward toward Tobruk—was commanded not only by the guns of the British fleet but by raiding British bombers.

Ponder Italian Strategy.

Whether Bardia's beleaguered Italians intend to fight to the finish or surrender is a question to which there was no answer so far from British military sources. The Fascists, it was said, may have instructions to hold on as long as possible to give Marshal Rodolfo Graziani time to reorganize his scattered forces farther west—at Tobruk, for instance, which has strong defenes.

Bardia also is strongly defended and British headquarters indicated today it would take considerable more artillery shelling and aerial bombardment before a ground assault can be launched. The British hold that the final outcome is not in doubt.

Striking far in advance of the land forces, the R. A. F. last night was reported to have carried out a heavy raid on the Castel Benito airdrome, near Tripoli on the coast, almost all the way across Libya to the Tunisian frontier.

Score Hits on Hangars.

The first of two waves of bombers scored four direct hits on three hangars, a special communique said, causing several fires and an explosion in which 11 airplanes were destroyed and several others damaged. It said the second formation laid seven direct hits on or near the hangars. In this attack, it said, eight more planes were destroyed.

The Berka, Libya airdrome likewise was bombed and two more Fascist planes destroyed on the ground. Five Italian craft were reported shot down in air battles.

In a dispatch direct from the British armies near Bardia, Edward Kennedy, Associated Press correspondent, said Italian aircraft have been more active in that region than at any other place or time since the British drive began.

Artillery Active, Italians Say.

ROME, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Italian high command in its communique today reported artillery activity in the Libyan frontier zone of the British-Fascist battle in North Africa.

PRINCESS JULIANA VISITS SEAMEN; HEARS OF DISASTER TO SHIP

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—In a room rdolent of cigar smoke and the aroma of coffee, Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands—a royal refugee in a foreign land—was reunited with her countrymen today.

For nearly an hour she sat in a small room in the seaman's institute as two scor Dutch men of the sea—some who had served their nation for 30 years—told her tales of their adventures.

Sipping coffee, and smoking a cigaret, the princess listened as Maarte Van Der Zwan told her how 20 of a crew of 32 died in the explosion of a time bomb which sank the steamer Stat Schiedam last Sept. 16.

Th seaman cheered as she left to attend a luncheon given by John D. Rockefeller Jr., and later a reception at the Netherlands club.

Convict 16 Hungarian Nazis of Plot to Kidnap Horthy

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 21 (AP).—Sixteen members of the Nazi Arrow Cross party, including Deputy Karoly Wirth, were convicted today of plotting to kidnap Regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy and install a Nazi régime for Hungary. They were sentenced to prison terms, Wirth receiving the greatest—four and a half years. The formal charge was lese majesty, a crime against the sovereign.

Einstein Cousin Reported in Labor Camp in France

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Martin Baer, American painter who recently returned from Europe, said tonight that Hans Heller, a composer and a cousin of Albert Einstein, is confined to a concentration camp in France and had been assigned to work battalions. He said Heller had received uncensored letters from Einstein but had not been permitted to answer them.

U. S. DELIVERS FIRM SLAP TO N. J. GOVERNOR

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 21 [Special].—The United States civil service commission today did what Gov. A. Harry Moore refused to do, revoked an order naming Michael [Curly] Andolino, Democratic leader of Montclair, to the post of selective service coordinator for the state of New Jersey. Andolino has a criminal record.

The commission refused to approve the appointments of all nine of the coördinators selected by the governor, and new names will have to be submitted. The action was looked on as a severe rebuke to the governor, who became a target for much criticism after he announced the appointments.

Andolino made no bones about his bad record. He admitted serving three months in a penitentiary for receiving stolen goods and admitted being fined after being seized in a lottery hangout.

BRITISH AIR BLITZ IN DESERT KNOCKS OUT 144 PLANES

Many Italian Machines Destroyed on Ground.

LONDON, Dec. 21 (AP).—The British, using Adolf Hitler's own blitzkrieg tactics, knocked out "at least" 144 Italian planes in the first twelve days of their North African offensive while losing only 13 of their own, the air ministry news service reported tonight.

Eighty-eight of the Fascist planes, the news service said, were shot down in the air and 56 destroyed on the ground or captured.

Coöperation between ground, sea, and air forces in the attack which drove the Fascists out of Egypt was described.

"British [air] fighters maintained continuous contact with our advancing troops," the news service declared.

Hunt Out Italian Troops.

While battleships and destroyers bombarded the Italians from the Mediterranean and tanks and infantry trucks advanced, British planes sought out Italian planes or exposed Italian troops.

Bombers, the news service continued, battered forts and airdromes, transport parks, troop concentrations, and munition and gasoline dumps. On Dec. 9, the news service said, every Italian airdrome "from Derna to Sidi Barrani" was heavily raided.

"Eighteen enemy aircraft were destroyed. Two of our aircraft were lost, but the pilots escaped."

The air bombardment continued all that night and the following day as the Italians retreated toward the frontier city of Sollum, it was said.

Continue Harassing Tactics.

"For the next 72 hours the same harassing tactics were employed, bombing and machine gunning being almost continuous from dawn to dusk. Italian troops and motor transport were relentlessly attacked and became increasingly demoralized," according to the news service. "A particularly heavy attack was made on Tobruk [Libya], where gasoline stores were set on fire and ammunition dumps blown up. Heavy raids also were made on Bardia, where a large dump of stores was destroyed."

At Sollum, 15 planes were reported captured on the ground because "airdromes had been rendered unserviceable by low flying attacks during the previous week."

On the night of Dec. 17, the Benina airdrome received "the heaviest attack yet launched since the beginning of the offensive" and 18 planes were destroyed on the ground, the news service said. On the following night the barracks, motor transport parks and garages at Derna were reported set on fire and on Dec. 19 troop concentrations and motor transport northwest of Bardia were attacked.

SPAIN BOOSTS TAXES; LEVIES ON SOAP, SALT SALES

MADRID, Spain, Dec. 21 (AP).—A new law boosting taxes for Spaniards in practically all fields and creating new taxes on the purchase of such articles as salt and soap will be published in the official bulletin tomorrow. Taxes on industry will be increased 75 per cent in some cases. Taxes on property, income, transport, and public utilities are raised. The new taxation also will apply to the use of the telephone and to the purchase of metals, cloth, paper, and higher priced shoes and hats. There will be a big boost in the tax on liquors, electricity, and automobiles.

BLAST SMASHES GAS STATION WINDOWS.

An explosion of undetermined origin yesterday blew out two windows and pushed out the brick wall of a filling station and currency exchange at 4759 63d street.

ClipperPlanes Leave Lisbon for New York After Delay

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Atlantic and the Dixie Clippers left today for New York, by way of Horta and Bermuda, carrying about 9,920 pounds of mail and 18 passengers, including 10 for Horta. Both Clippers departed Monday for New York, but turned back because of bad weather over the Atlantic.

YULE PRAYER FOR WAR SUFFERERS URGED BY POPE

Asks All to Provide Aid to Children.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 21 (AP).—Pope Pius XII. asked the world's Catholics today to pray at Christmas time for the sufferers of war and remember in charity these "little brothers who are without bread, without clothing, and without family."

In a letter to Cardinal Luigi Maglione, the papal secretary of state, the pontiff expressed special concern for the children and urged that "every one do what he can, where he can, how he can."

He expressed once again the hope that the warring countries would "do honor to the good traditions of civilized life by not permitting the children of belligerent countries, or those in any way involved in the war, to suffer unmerited pain."

American Bishops Thanked.

He had done all he could, he said, to avert the ills of war, but he had met "difficulties at all times more serious still than those in the past world war—some of them inherent to the very nature of the scourge which is raging; others, we must also say, interposed by the will of men."

Thus, he went on, "armed only with the arms of truth, justice and Christian charity, that which we can do still once more is to invite all propitiating prayer and significant beneficent action."

The pope expressed "especial gratitude to the American bishops who, altho far from the horrors of war, have shown once more their full comprehension of the needs of the suffering church. . . . To it [the American episcopacy] goes out our full and entire gratitude and also goes our benediction. . . ."

Appealing for prayer and for charity—charity "without relaxation and without discouragement"—he observed:

"Prayer is a force which acts softly and irresistibly on the human will."

The pontiff said "the sad echoes of the devastating war come from all sides, even in the great festival of peace—the nativity of Our Lord—and they are the voices of our sons who are struggling in grave suffering and imploring aid." He added:

"Such a large sum of ills and sufferings, which are growing worse and spreading more every day, cannot fail to find a most sad echo in our fatherly heart, which gathers the sorrows and tears of all our sons without distinction, so that we can desire nothing greater in such an upset of things than to relieve bodies and raise the spirits.

Nothing Left Untried, He Says.

"Toward this we have turned all our possibilities and have left nothing untried in order that in such a great accumulation of miseries the pity of that Jesus whose part we unworthily play on earth can express itself sowing its good and reaping its fruit.

"Among all the sufferers we point out the children—those who in these days bring to mind the Child of Bethlehem, friend of the small and innocent.

"He who defends them from evil rose up severely against all forms of dishonor toward them and becomes thru our voice their defense against earthly evil, extending a hand for them and repeating for those who are first among his smallest brothers, 'I was hungry and you gave me food. . . . I was without home and you took me in. . . . I was naked and you clothed me.'"

BULGARIA VOTES WIDE CURB ON RIGHTS OF JEWS

Bars Free Masons, Other Secret Orders.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Dec. 21.—The sobranye [parliament] today passed a "law for the defense of the nation." It stringently limits the rights of Bulgaria's 50,000 Jews, bans the Free Masons and other international or secret societies, and outlaws all anti-national propaganda.

This is the first law of its kind in Bulgaria's history, and the first time the Jewish question was raised. Political circles regard it as unexpectedly severe.

The act has caused consternation among the Jews, who represent only seven tenths of 1 per cent of the population. Already a large group of Bulgarian and foreign Jews has quit the country, altho the recent Black sea disaster, in which 200 Jews from Bulgaria were drowned when their derelict boat sank, is still fresh in every one's mind.

Act Based on Religion.

Jews are rendered second class citizens with many limitations. The law defines a Jew as a person who had one Jewish parent. The principle of the measure is, however, religious rather than racial. Jews who became members of the Bulgarian orthodox church before Dec. 1 are not affected.

As soon as the law becomes operative, which probably will be tomorrow, Jews will no longer be permitted to use Bulgarian endings for their names. No more Jews will be permitted to become Bulgarian subjects. Jews cannot be elected to state institutions or private societies with idealistic aims. They cannot be employed in clerical positions in state or municipal institutions. They cannot sign in the army, and must do forced labor instead.

Raise Barrier at Sofia.

Jews cannot marry Bulgarians nor can they employ Bulgarian domestic servants. Their attendance at school is limited, and no more Jews will be allowed to take up residence in Sofia. Jews are not permitted to own or rent rural properties or to own houses in summer resorts. They cannot own banks, cinemas or newspapers, or be directors of such ventures.

Within a month of the day when the law becomes effective, all Jews must register their property with the national bank.

Altho Free Masons are banned, it is understood the premier, Bagden Philov, and the foreign minister, Ivan Popov, belong to the Masonic order.

Anti-national propagandists will be prosecuted as criminals.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP).—Facing deportation next month to Martinique and fearful of death before a firing squad, seven escapees from France's Devil's Island prison renewed their pleas today for freedom and a chance to fight in the forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The men, with a companion who is in the United States hospital at Key West, Fla., made their way here Aug. 24 in a 30 foot sloop after a perilous voyage thru the Caribbean. They have been in jail ever since.

Yesterday they received the news that the coast guard cutter Unalga would take them in January, with 20 other escaped prisoners now in Puerto Rico, back to French Martinique.

"We are being sent to our deaths by a firing squad," said Jean Touzin, 43 years old, of Vichy. "We didn't intend to enter the United States. We were arrested and held here."

Honor Duke of Gloucester for His Work in France

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The duke of Gloucester was included in a long list of staff officers commended today for their work in France. Many awards were announced for gallantry and an even larger number of individuals were "brought to notice in recognition of distinguished service in the field."

TENSION EASED IN LAVAL OUSTER, FRENCH BELIEVE

Expect Nazis to Uphold Present Lineup.

VICHY, France, Dec. 21 (AP).—Despite continued silence about what clearly were parleys with Germany over France's policy of collaboration, the impression grew tonight that tension, evident since Pierre Laval was ousted as France's vice premier and foreign minister, has relaxed.

A communique after a cabinet meeting made no mention of French-German relations and no more meetings were scheduled until the end of next week.

Informed circles expressed belief the government had taken the stand that it was ready to continue collaborating with Germany with no further changes in the cabinet. Pierre Etienne Flandin has replaced Laval as foreign minister.

There were indications that no precipitous action to upset the status quo was expected from Germany, either thru total occupation of France or a request for permission to send troops thru the unoccupied area.

Ouster Final, French Hear.

Fernand de Brinon, French ambassador in German occupied Paris, was reported by informed sources to have told the Germans that Laval would not be reinstated. These sources said Brinon acted on the orders of chief of state Philippe Petain.

There was considerable telephone activity between Paris and Vichy this afternoon and informed persons expressed the opinion a meeting between Petain and the German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, was under discussion.

Weygand May Visit Vichy.

The presence in Vichy of Gen. Auguste Nogues, former supreme commander of the French defense forces in North Africa, gave rise to a belief that Petain will extend the scope of the present interviews with leading French figures to include the empire, and that Gen. Maxime Weygand, new chief in North Africa, may also come to Vichy for a conference.

French officials made it clear the government would go more than halfway to strengthen French-American relations. Official spokesmen said the French government was impressed by the United States gesture of sending its new ambassador, William D. Leahy, in a cruiser.

Dutch Tanker, Reported Torpedoed, Reaches Britain

LONDON, Dec. 21 (AP).—The 10,746 ton Dutch tanker Pendrecht, reported by Mackay radio in New York Wednesday as having radioed that she was torpedoed by a submarine in the Atlantic, has arrived safely at a British port, official Dutch circles in London said tonight.

FRUIT CAKE RETURNS HOME AFTER ROAMING FOR YEAR IN EUROPE

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 21 (AP).—A wandering fruit cake is home again after a tour of Europe.

Mailed Dec. 1, 1939, by Frank Bennett as a Christmas present to his son, Ernest, engaged in war relief work abroad, the cake arrived at Valencia, Spain, after Ernest had left for France. It arrived in several French twons one bite behind Ernest and reached Paris a few days after Ernest moved out before the German occupation.

Unbitten, the cake came back after 383 days to father Frank. "A wee bid dry but improved with age," Bennett said after sampling it.

ALSACE-LORRAINE NATIVES CALMED ON NEW CENSUS

VICHY, France, Dec. 21 (AP).—Paris newspapers published a note today advising natives of Alsace and Lorraine not be disturbed by a new census of all people from these provinces who now are in the German occupied zone.

The purpose of the census is to learn the movement of the population in recent years and to determine the wishes of Alsatians and Lorrainers of German origin on the question of returning to German territory.

"There is no intention on the part of the occupying authorities to exercise any pressure upon the free decision or form any prejudice against them because of any position they take," the announcement said.

PRINCESS, TOLD TO GET OUT OF U. S., VANISHES

Deadline Has Passed for Friend of Hitler.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 21 [Special].—The whereabouts of Princess Stephanie Hohenlohe-Waldenburg, friend of Adolf Hitler and reputed Nazi propaganda agent, was enveloped in mystery tonight with only a few hours remaining before the midnight deadline for her ordered departure from the country under threat of deportation.

Immigration officials served notice on the Hungarian noblewoman last Tuesday that she would not be granted an extension of her six months visitor's permit. She was ordered to leave the United States by tonight.

It was privately explained that her presence was considered "inimical" to this country's best interests because of her close association with Nazis. She was described in the British house of commons as a "notorious member of Hitler's spy organization" and is said to have been involved in European intrigue for the last 15 years.

The Present Mystery.

But as the time approached for her enforced departure, no one seemed to know where she was, whether she already had left the country, or when she planned to do so. Federal agents who advised her of the immigration authorities' decision found her here last Tuesday with Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, aid of Hitler and present German consul at San Francisco.

The princess arrived in the United States from England on Dec. 22, 1939, crossing on the S. S. Veendam. Her visitor's visa was extended once, but her request on Nov. 18 for a second extension was denied.

Meantime, in New York, a mink coat and ermine cape owned by the princess were attached at a fur refurbishing shop by the Mme. Suzy millinery shop which contended she left New York last May without paying a $100 hat bill. The milliner tried to collect the bill by tieing up the noblewoman's funds at the Swiss Bank corporation here but found her balance to be only $50.

Leads Adventurous Life.

She was born in Hungary in 1891 of common, and some say Jewish, parentage. Her father was Dr. Rudolph Richter. Stephanie wasn't a beauty, even in her youth, but she could dance and she had personality. Her appearance in the cabarets of gay pre-war Vienna won the attention of gallant sprigs of noble houses.

It was there she met Prince Frederic Francis von Hohenlohe-Waldenburg, of a vigorous line that had been noble and powerful for 700 years. Her marriage to him in 1914 made her a princess in title even tho the Almanach de Gotha refused to recognize the union as conforming "with the law of the princely house."

However, the marriage was not a happy one and six years later Stephanie obtained a divorce. Their son, Francis, who was refused recognition as a prince in the peerage almanac, has spent most of his time with his mother.

Moves with Gay Set.

The princess' life of adventure opened in full flower after her divorce. She moved to Paris, where she associated with the gayest and least conventional of the wealthy international set. Her apartment was the gathering place for cosmopolitans, Jews, Germans, American, and Englishmen, some titled and some not, but all with money.

Among her close friends at this time were Solly Joel, a British sportsman and owner of South American diamond mines, and John B. Warden, oil millionaire and noted spender from Pittsburgh, Pa.

Most of the international intrigue attributed to her was said to have been woven during the roaring '20s. At one time she tried to persuade the British to give the Polish corridor back to Germany, it was reported. She also was said to have worked for the restoration of the Hohenzollern and Hapsburg dynasties. But the most prodigious of these reported ventures was her help in "laying the groundwork for the Munich pact."

French Are Suspicious.

Being an intriguer in France wasn't easy, however. The French secret police kept close watch on her, suspecting her of being a spy for Germany. In January, 1933, she was arrested at Biarritz and expelled from France. But later she went back there on her Hungarian passport, flitting often between Paris and London.

Her association with the late Lord Rothermere, British peer and owner of the London Daily Mail, from 1932 to 1938 was disclosed in a breach of contract suit against him which she lost in London courts a year ago. She claimed he had broken an agreement to pay her $20,000 annually for life to act as his foreign political representative.

For six years, the princess testified, she acted as a sort of personal ambassadress and messenger between the British press lord and important political figures of Europe, including Chancellor Hitler. She said she carried a $6,000 tapestry to Hitler as a present from the Briton.

Interested in Hungary.

Rothermere at that time was said to have been interested in Hungary and to be toying with the idea that his son, Edmund, should occupy the Hungarian throne. Princess Stephanie said she arranged a meeting between Hitler and Rothermere in Berlin in 1934 and four years later the Englishman sent her to see Hitler to discuss Hungarian affairs and the possible return of Germany's colonies.

She said that at the coronation of King George VI. of England in 1937 she royally entertained the German delegation in London on Rothermere's instructions and expense. The press lord told her, she said, that she was one of the most important women in Europe and that Hitler should make her a duchess.

In addition to her monetary interest in the suit, the princess complained that Lord Rothermere did not fulfill his pledge to vindicate her when she was described in certain continental newspapers as a "spy or vamp and immoral woman."

Story of Rothermere.

Rothermere, 71 years old at the time of the suit, admitted he had given the princess about $250,000 in six years, but denounced as preposterous her claim that he had agreed to keep her for life. The court sustained this latter contention.

During those six years, Princess Stephanie was associating with Capt. Wiedemann, in allegedly setting the stage for the Nazi conquest of middle Europe. She was in Czecho-Slovakia before its fall and at Munich, laying the groundwork at this latter point, according to Wiedemann, for England's appeasement pact.

Two years ago she was esconced in the château of Leopoldskron in Austria, which the Nazis seized from Max Reinhardt, the Jewish drama producer. Hitler was said to have commissioned her to restore the glories of the Salzburg music festival, one of the most noted of Europe's opera seasons. Temporarily laying aside her diplomatic work, she concentrated on the festival, inviting her influential friends from France and England, but it was reported the affair was a failure.

Germans in Nicaragua Transfer Their Property

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 21.—Several German merchants here are transferring their property to other nationals. It is believed Germans here have received instructions from Berlin to make the transfer, fearing that if the United States should enter the war they will be put on a blacklist.

NAZI BOMB ENDS TENEMENT YULE PARTY IN DEATH

Christmas Trinkets Lie Among Bodies of Dead.

LONDON, Dec. 22 Sunday (AP).—An undetermined number of Londoners who had been holding parties to celebrate the coming of Christmas were killed last night in a tenement house smashed by a German bomb.

In the street outside lay bits of tinsel and a star from atop a Christmas tree. Amidst the rubble of furniture, bricks, children's toys, and Christmas decorations lay bodies in their respectable "Sunday best." Men and women who a little while before had been singing carols and exchanging Christmas puddings and candy stood about the ruins.

There had been parties all around the district, some in air raid shelters and others in homes. When the sirens sounded most of the people stayed in their houses, believing it would be just another "light night."

Other Areas Raided.

Then they were dead on the pavements, or peering sadly into wrecked homes. There probably were 150 people in the tenement at the time the bomb fell. The number of dead cannot now be disclosed.

The Nazi attacks extended from the English channel to the Irish sea. Liverpool and other Merseyside towns were assaulted for the second successive night. German planes darted over the Liverpool area at the rate of one a minute.

Occasional bombs fell in London but as the night wore on there was a lull. During the day three Nazi craft were officially reported shot down.

On the offensive side, the British reported a successful Friday night bombing campaign which was declared to have caused "many explosions and fires" in a Berlin airplane motor factory; brought "particularly good results" in raids on the invasion ports of Ostend, Antwerp, Le Havre, Amsterdam, and Flushing, and in the industrial Ruhr.

Hit, too, said the air ministry, were the Nazi gun emplacements across the channel. A 5,000 ton German supply ship was declared apparently smashed to "bits and pieces" by a salvo of four bombs which struck the vessel in Boulogne harbor.

Nazis Strike with Strong Forces.

BERLIN, Dec. 22, Sunday (AP).—Strong Nazi air formations swept over Britain overnight and, according to authorized sources, had excellent weather to aid them in smashing at military objectives and supply centers.

British flyers struck twice at Berlin Friday night in a major raid, the Nazi high command announced yesterday. It said the British flew over the center of this capital and dropped both explosive and fire bombs.

Six persons were killed and 17 injured, a communique reported, and the Dom [Protestant] cathedral was hit and damaged—to the extent of 1,500,000 marks [about $600,000], said the reich church ministry.

Reports from the historic town of Potsdam, west of the capital, said three civilians were killed there by a single British plane which dropped explosives and incendiaries.

TAYLOR, VATICAN ENVOY, TAKEN TO BOSTON HOSPITAL

Boston, Mass., Dec. 21 [Special].—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's special envoy to the Vatican, who has been convalescing from an illness since his return from Rome, arrived here tonight and was taken to a hospital.

Apparently wishing to keep his visit secret, Taylor left the train on which he had arrived from New York at the Back Bay station and was taken to the hospital in a special automobile. At the hospital he was met by Dr. Frank H. Lahey, noted Boston specialist. Taylor declined to discuss either his condition or foreign affairs. It is not known whether he intends to undergo an operation.

Last June he was operated on for the removal of gall stones and an obstruction in the bile duct. In Italy Taylor had need to call in specialists.

Greek Prince to Join British Fleet on Christmas

VALLETTA, Malta, Dec. 21 (AP).—Prince Philip, first member of the Greek royal family to join Britain's forces, will take a place as midshipman in the British Mediterranean fleet on Christmas, it was disclosed today. The 19 year old prince, son of Prince Andrew and grandson of the assassinated King George I., has been assigned to active duty on a battleship. He is a cousin of the present King George II.

JAPAN SHAKES UP CABINET; PUBLIC UNEASINESS SEEN

Premier Names New Home and Justice Chiefs.

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 21 (AP).—Japanese Premier Prince Konoe's appointment today of new Japanese ministers of justice and home affairs is believed by Shanghai observers to have been motivated largely by the Japanese people's increasing uneasiness over their government's military alliance with Italy and Germany.

Baron Hiranuma.

Dissatisfaction with Japan's commitments has been gaining momentum since early this month, and reports were current two weeks ago that the Konoe government might fall as a result.

However, it was understood political leaders were loath to permit a complete change in government because of a fear this would accentuate the public's misgivings. Therefore, it was decided to "strengthen" the present cabinet thru the addition of Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma as home minister and Lieut Gen. Heisuke Yanagawa as minister of justice.

See Trade Cuts as Factor.

The further addition of Gen. Baron Sadao Araki as minister without portfolio appeared probable since he, like Hiranuma, commands considerable political influence. Araki is a former war minister. The fiery general recently conferred at length with Prince Konoe.

Stricter enforcement of economic restrictions was seen by observers as a further factor in the cabinet changes.

Baron Hiranuma, premier for several months in 1939 and recently a minister without portfolio in the Konoe cabinet, succeeds Eija Yasui as head of the vital department controling the nation-wide police system and prefectural, municipal, and village authorities.

Adds Army Strength.

Gen. Yanagawa, a former vice minister of war and one time commander of the Japanese garrison at Formosa, replaces Akira Kazami as minister of justice, and adds military strength to the cabinet, altho he is a retired officer. His new post demands close coöperation with the army and also with the home ministry in the prosecution of law violators.

Reports of widespread complaints and numerous violations of the government's low price policy have appeared recently in the Japanese press.

Economic police recently announced that rice hoarders and foodstuff profiteers would be "vigorously prosecuted," but the press complained that no concerted action had been taken yet.

The army was said to be pushing vigorously a low price, antiluxury policy in an attempt to "induce the people to share the hardships of the battlefront and stabilize the domestic economy."

NEW FINN CHIEF TO SEEK RUSSIAN, NAZI FRIENDSHIP

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 21 (AP).—Risto Ryti, newly elected president of Finland, pledged himself to improvement of relations with Russia, Germany, and Sweden as he took the oath of office before parliament today. While the nation mourned the death of Kyosti Kallio, his predecessor, Ryti outlined in his presidential address a program designed to:

Continue to strengthen the country's defenses, restore security to refugees, improve relations with Russia, Germany, and Sweden, keep out of war, complete reconstruction necessitated by the war with Russia, and carry on the traditions of the Kallio administration, which was praised in a commemorative introduction.

Parliament Speaker Hakkila read Kallio's posthumous farewell address, in which he wished the new president success and closed with:

"May God grant our people peace abroad and unity at home to build a safe future."

On Honeymoon

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Mary Healy and Peter Lind Hayes.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 21.—Mary Healy, young film actress and Peter Lind Hayes, musician, were married in a surprise elopement to Yuma, Ariz., several days ago after announcing plans for a Christmas wedding. They left for Del Monte today on their honeymoon. Hayes is the son of the former musical comedy actress Grace Hayes.

CLAIM JAPS HOLD UP U. S. GOODS IN INDO-CHINA

Report Pressure Is Put on French.

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 21 (AP).—United States Consul Charles Reed has spent the past 10 days in a vain effort to obtain release of some $10,000,000 in American merchandise held here and at Haiphong since Japan's entry into Indo-China, it was learned today from authoritative sources.

Charles Reed.

Reed has urged French authorities to grant permission to reëxport the cargoes, but these sources stated emphatically that the French refusal was due to pressure from Japanese military officials.

The cargo, the majority of which was assigned to Chinese purchasers in west China, now is piled in warehouses here and at Haiphong and guarded by Japanese soldiers altho American flags are flown from the buildings. Shipment to west China became impossible when Japanese entry into Indo-China disrupted service on the Haiphong-Kunming railway.

Grew Also Fails.

It also was learned that United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew at Tokio also has been attempting to obtain release of this American property, apparently without success.

Hostilities in the Thailand and Indo-China border war continue spasmodically. In the last 24 hours French have fired intermittently on Thai planes, while along the lower Mekong river there have been several clashes between French and Siamese scouting patrols.

The French announced continued progress in the suppression of Japanese-armed native "rebels" in the vicinity of Langson, on the northeast border, with 100 surrounded and facing annihilation. Chinese reports said 300 more had entered southern Kwangsi province and immediately were disarmed by Chinese border forces.

Siam Issues Warning.

BANGKOK, Thailand, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Thailand [Siam] radio broadcast a warning today that the Thai airforce would bomb Dalat, Pnompenh, and Saigon, all in French Indo-China, if French forces attempted to attack Bangkok.

The warning was in reply, the broadcast said, to a Saigon radio report that French planes had dropped bombs on Korat, in Thailand, and approached Bangkok.

Border clashes between forces of the two nations have been reported for several months.

HIT BY STREET CAR; DIES.

Matthew Jurewicz, 79 years old, 3928 Cornelia avenue, a retired tavern owner, died Friday night in Belmont hospital of injuries incurred Dec. 11 when he was hit by a street car at Pulaski road and Cornelia avenue.

WORK OF TRIBUNE CAMERA STAFF TO BE EXHIBITED

300 News Photos to Go on Display Dec. 29.

Three hundred news photographs in one showing, and the public as the only jury to decide which are the best—that, in brief, is the story of the first Chicago Tribune News Cameramen's Photographic exhibit to be held Dec. 29 to Jan. 4 on the first floor of Tribune Tower.

All the pictures to be displayed were taken in recent years by staff cameramen in the regular course of their duties. The pictures cover the entire field of news photography: aerial views, action shots of sports heroes, tidbits of human interest, scenes on the beaches in summer and in the still woods in winter, disasters and crowds and pretty girls.

Exhibit Free to All.

The exhibit will be free to all visitors. The pictures will be numbered. Each spectator will be asked to vote for the ones he considers first, second and third best, and the public's decision will be final.

To the photographers who took the winning pictures will go prizes provided by THE TRIBUNE. These prizes will be on display in the windows of the Public Service office in the tower, a short distance from the room where the pictures will be hung.

Equipment to Be Shown.

With them will be some of the modern equipment of the photographer—the giant cameras, nicknamed big and little Berthas, which enable him to take his pictures at long range, the new speed lamps that catch action at 1-30,000th of a second, and other valuable developments unknown a few years ago.

Parties visiting The Tribune plant will be taken to the exhibit at the conclusion of their tours. After they have seen the pictures and voted their choices, they may view the exhibit of natural color photographs made by The Tribune's color studio.

FARMER QUIZZED IN FATAL BLAZE ASKS BOND SLASH

George Klitzke, 43 years old, farmer who has been held in jail at Geneva on a charge of rape during an investigation of the death of Mrs. Barbara Dahlquist, petitioned the Kane county Circuit court yesterday to reduce his bonds of $3,000. A hearing on the matter will be held tomorrow.

Mrs. Dahlquist, 29 years old, was found dead Dec. 1 in the burned ruins of a small house east of Geneva which she and her husband, Norman, had rented from Klitzke. Klitzke has denied knowing anything about the fire or her death. The complainant in the rape case was a girl 15 years old, who was formerly his housekeeper.

ROBBED OF JEWELS, CASH.

Mrs. Catherine Schmit, owner of a flower shop at 5515 North Ashland avenue, was robbed of her wedding and engagement rings, valued at $350, and $11 yesterday by two bandits who bound her hands and feet.

College Beauty

BARBARA M. SMITH.

Miss Barbara Mary Smith, 2033 Jarvis avenue, has been chosen one of eight beauty queens whose pictures will be published in the 1941 yearbook of The Citadel, the military college of South Carolina in Charleston, S. C., according to an announcement by college authorities yesterday.

Each cadet annually submits the photograph of a girl friend for the competition. Miss Smith's picture was entered by Herbert Stauber, 1850 Bryon street, a freshman. Both were schoolmates here at North Park academy. Miss Smith is 17 years old and a first year journalism student at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo. She is the daughter of George Smith, an executive of the Continental Casualty company.

ASK MORE POLICE AID IN C. I. O. DIE CASTERS' STRIKE

Officials of the Chicago Molded Products corporation, 1020 North Kolmar avenue, where members of local 48 of the National Association of Die Casting Workers [C. I. O.] have been on strike since Nov. 8, asked Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office yesterday to provide additional police protection for the plant.

E. C. Maiwald, executive secretary of the company, told Capt. Gilbert that 14 windows at the rear of the plant were broken Friday night while 150 strikers were staging a demonstration and keeping police busy in front of the building.

Five policemen under Sergt. Thomas Martin of the Austin station were maintaining order when the demonstration started. They arrested Michael Stevens, 2017 Dickens avenue, a striker, when he picked up a brick. Alex Fetzler, 1826 Rice street, and his wife, Jean, were arrested when they became involved in a fight with Policeman Michael Doyle. Fetzler worked at the company only three days before the strike started.

ARMY TESTS TINY TRUCK IN PLACE OF MOTORCYCLE

Designed to Serve Three Functions in Field.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The war department today announced that tests are being conducted in the field to determine whether it will be practical to replace motorcycle units with the newly developed "bantam car"—known officially as the quarter ton truck.

This new type of vehicle is a small, low-silhouette, narrow-tread, 4-wheel-drive car without armor protection. It is designed to carry three men and their individual weapons. It also can be used as a weapon or ammunition carrier. It is not contemplated that the vehicle itself will be armed.

Normal Usage Outlined.

If this vehicle proves satisfactory under the exhaustive tests now in progress, its place in the cavalry team will be to furnish road and cross country transportation for small rifle units whose normal function would include reconnaissance, security, and dismounted combat.

Frequently these rifle units will be employed with mechanized cavalry elements, such as scout car platoons, to extend the reconnaissance and to supplement the fire power of larger units.

There are a number of motorcycle elements within the cavalry structure: One motorcycle platoon in a horse cavalry regiment and one motorcycle troop in each of the nine corps reconnaissance regiments [horse-mechanized] and in each cavalry division reconnaissance squadron. The reconnaissance troop organically assigned to triangular divisions, of which there are nine within the four field armies, contain three motorcycle squads.

Six Men in Basic Unit.

The motorcycle squad, the basic unit of all cavalry motorcycle organizations, consists of a corporal and five men armed with six pistols, four rifles, and two submachine guns, caliber .45. Existing tables of organization provide that this combat group be mounted on two motor tricycles, three men and their equipment to each vehicle. So far the cavalry has no motor tricycles, the motorcycle with side car being used as substitute equipment.

Motorcycles with side cars are low in silhouette, they can be made handled by their crew, they have ample road speed, but they are not designed for carrying three men. They are noisy, and for tactical use in cavalry operations they lack ruggedness and adequate cross country ability.

Three Functions Envisioned.

The newly developed quarter-ton truck seems to answer some of these deficiencies: It is relatively quiet and its light weight permits man handling. It can be employed to carry three men, a cargo of weapons, or ammunition. The low silhouette permits concealment.

It is believed that the tests now in progress will demonstrate whether this car has the desired qualifications of real cross country ability combined with high road speed and other essential features which will make it a more efficient and powerful substitute for motorcycles with side cars in cavalry tactical operations, the war department said

WARNS OF MOSQUITO PERIL IN MARSHES AT TROOP TRAINING AREAS

Malaria and sleeping sickness will menace soldiers and sailors at Fort Sheridan, Camp Logan, and the Great Lakes naval training station next summer unless steps are taken to drain mosquito breeding marshes near these training centers. This warning was issued yesterday by Dr. Spencer S. Fuller, chairman of the Tri-County Mosquito Control Survey project.

Dr. Fuller said J. Lyell Clarke, chief engineer of the project, last week inspected the marsh areas, which lie along the lake front from Waukegan north to the Wisconsin line. He said Clarke found evidence that the marshes were the breeding places of malarial mosquitoes, the far flying flood water mosquitoes which carry encephalomyelitis [sleeping sickness] germs, and common giant mosquitoes.

Dr. Fuller said a report listing the breeding places of the mosquitoes, together with a drainage plan designed to eliminate the dangerous marshes, will be turned over soon to army and navy health officers.

Rockford Husband Slayer Asks State for Pardon

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 21 [Special].—State's Attorney Max Weston said today he has received word that Helen Clark has asked the state board of pardons and paroles for an absolute pardon or commutation of her 14 year sentence for the slaying of her husband, Richard. Clark was shot to death April 6, 1937, when asleep in his home on Colman avenue. Mrs. Clark has repudiated a confession.

HUNT NITTI AIDS AS TERRORISTS IN UNION VOTE DRIVE

Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office sent police squads to canvass taverns yesterday and arrest hoodlums reported to be using threats in campaigning against a slate of independent candidates in the Jan. 6 election of officers of the bartenders' union. The election is to be held under the personal supervision and jurisdiction of Circuit Judge Robert Jerome Dunne, who appointed a receiver for the union last August.

Gilbert said the hoodlums were spreading a false report that Judge Dunne would find it convenient to be out of town on the day of election. He said the gangsters led by Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti were responsible for warnings given to tavern owners as well as bartenders that the election would not be secret but that the ballots would be so marked that later an examination would disclose how any individual voted.

Gilbert said the anti-Nitti candidates were the object of annoyance and attempted intimidation by the Nitti followers. They are to be given all possible protection by the prosecutor's staff, and their election is believed to be certain, Gilbert said. The candidates, backed by many prominent union leaders, are: For president, Austin Steeves; for vice president, Russell Briggs; for secretary treasurer, Albert Reynolds; for recording secretary, John Nagle; for chaplain, Tony Bastone, and for trustees, Richard Nugent, John McLaughlin, and Martin Jirgal.

A Serious Matter, Even if They Were Only Skidding

Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 21 [Special].—Earl Rapp, 16 years old, and Clarence Lutgen, 19, will spend the next 30 days thinking of all the fun they had. This wouldn't have happened if their automobile hadn't skidded down Dubuque's steepest and iciest hill, obliging two city street workers to flee for their lives. What particularly irritated Judge Louis Fautsch, who gave them the 30 days, was the fact that the boys did it on purpose, slamming on the brakes so that the car would skid all the way down in circles.

ARMY OF 70,000 BEING ORGANIZED IN NEW ZEALAND

Train Expeditionary Unit, Home Guard, 'Guerrillas.'

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 11.—[By Mail.]—New Zealand, which had a regular army of only a few hundred men 15 months ago, will have a home defense army of 40,000 men by next year, it has been revealed here, as well as an expeditionary force of up to 30,000 men.

Of this home army 25,000 men will have been trained as an expeditionary force, with three months' intensive schooling in military camps. Officers and noncommissioned officers will receive still longer courses. Nine thousand men will be in the national military reserve, formed from world war veterans and men trained under the system of compulsory service which operated here until 12 years ago. More than 9,000 men will be in various other units, such as special fortress troops, port defense battalions, and other guard units.

Plan "Guerrilla" Force.

In addition, there will be three divisions of the home guard, a semi-military organization which would be used in a guerrilla rôle against an invader, cutting railroads, blasting bridges, building tank traps, and laying land mines in the invader's path. This force will be a volunteer group.

The territorial force [militia], built from its prewar strength of 16,000 men, almost 26,000 by application of the draft under the new universal military service law, is being steadily trained thruout the southern summer. Observers were impressed with the Wellington regiment, which after its camp training held war games in which it repulsed an enemy landing.

Units formed from veterans are given facilities for training limited only by their enthusiasm. Mostly they parade at least twice a week and are paid at the rate of $1.40 for each parade of six hours. They are issued uniforms, army boots, and rifles and are like the world war regiments. They do not wear battle dress.

Home Guard Improves.

The home guard, which got off to a slow start because the government failed to make clear what obligations would be assumed by enlisted men, and by a waiver of rights to claim compensation or pensions in case of accident or illness, is rapidly improving and is expected to become a powerful force. It is being divided into classes, the first of which will be available for immediate reënforcement of first line troops. This class will be formed of men between 16 and 30 years of age, who will be given special physical training. The second division, drawn from men of 30 and over, will be the main body of the guard. The third division will be those men who are capable of restricted duty.

The army department is moving to train enough men for six new infantry battalions, for a second battalion of the new Scottish regiment, and another artillery regiment.

With the completion of the first series of territorial camps, men who began their training last June have returned to civil life, ready for any rôle in home defense.

More Equipment Needed.

A shortage of equipment continued to be the most serious disadvantage suffered by the training scheme, but this is being overcome.

In the training program the accent will continue to be on the expeditionary force, modern equipment for which at last is available in quantity. As the international situation in the Pacific sharpens, improvement in the arming of the home defense forces may be expected.

Back of these army preparations, undercover plans for civil defense are being laid. There is a skeleton organization for dealing with enemy air raids, hospitals have been chosen, fire chiefs have conferred, and soon air raid workers may be selected and trained.

FARM BOY HELD IN SLAYING OF GAME WARDEN

Richwood, W. Va., Dec. 21 (AP).—Fred Hobart, a game warden, 44 years old, was shot and killed today when he sought to question a farm boy, 16, about his hunting license, State Trooper B. F. McLaughlin reported. Herbert Milam has been placed in the Nicholas county jail in Summersville pending investigation of the slaying.

The trooper said he happened upon the scene of the shooting near Persinger when the warden staggered from the brush. From Hobart, the trooper said he learned that the warden had seen Milam hunting on a physician's estate and had gone to question him about his license. The warden died en route to hospital.

DEADLINE NEAR ON REGISTRATION OF NONCITIZENS

Federal Action Discloses 235,000 in Chicago.

The nation's first registration of aliens will close Thursday. All aliens, 14 years old and older, must answer questionnaires and be fingerprinted before that time or face heavy penalties, federal officials warned yesterday. This includes those who have first naturalization papers.

Parents or guardians of alien children less than 14 years old must appear for their charges. Fingerprints will not be taken until after the children reach 14.

Total Exceeds Estimates.

With the deadline still several days away, it was learned, there are already 30 per cent more aliens registered in Chicago than were believed to live in the city.

The total at the close of business yesterday was 235,000, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen said. The city's alien population was estimated at 180,000 when registration started last August.

The avowed object of the registration, ordered by congress, is to provide the government with confidential information regarding the identities and whereabouts of all noncitizens.

Conducted at Postoffice.

Aliens have been permitted to keep their status a secret if they so desire. Under the law, the lists cannot be examined without the approval of the attorney general. If the alien changes his address he is required to notify the immigration department within five days.

Registration was conducted thru first and second class postoffices. In Chicago, 41 postoffices, covering all parts of the city, were used for this purpose until after the peak was passed. Then the number was reduced to seven.

PASS 4 MILLION MARK.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 [Special].—Attorney General Jackson said today that registration of aliens has passed the 4,200,000 mark with five days remaining before the registration ends. He urged, particularly, that aliens register who entered the country illegally, promising them a "square deal."

"Whatever the illegality or irregularity connected with their entry into this country, aliens should not be so foolish as to add a second violation of the law," he asserted. "They should not risk a deliberate law violation to cover up an unintentional one."

He said the government will locate and apprehend those who do not register and that the machinery for this program is now being set up.

GETS 30 DAYS IN GUARDHOUSE FOR KILLING PAL

Fort Dix, Dec. 21 (AP).—Private Victor A. Pirelli, 22 years old of Conshocken, Pa., was sentenced by a summary court martial today to 30 days' confinement and loss of two-thirds of one month's pay after a military inquiry into the fatal shooting of Pirelli's chum, Private Edward A. Zenobi, 19, of Woodlynne, N. J.

Pirelli was acquitted of one military charge of killing Zenobi, and convicted of carelessly discharging a revolver and disregard of an order that no enlisted man is permitted private ammunition.

LIQUOR STORE BANDITS GET $177.

Henry Karlson, clerk in a liquor store at 6021 North Cicero avenue, reported to police yesterday that three bandits, one armed, took $177 from the store's cash register and two cases of whisky Friday night.

Map indicates wards which have had increases in population in the last ten years, and those which have lost population. The comparative figures, which are estimates, also are given.

Fifth Ward Largest

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt announced yesterday that, according to unofficial estimates, 24 wards in the city have had a population increase since the census of 1930 and the rest have had decreases. Hewitt said the estimates were made in connection with planning the cleaning of streets and alleys and other ward activities for next year.

Hewitt said he used the estimates of the Chicago Census Advisory committee, a group sponsored by utilities for estimating city population trends.

The figures showed one ward, the 5th, to have more than 90,000 residents. It is estimated to have 91,778. The 1st ward is listed as smallest with 32,499 residents. The estimates give a total population of Chicago in 1940 at 3,391,256 compared with 3,376,438 in 1930.

WPA Workers to Receive Checks Before Christmas

All WPA workers in Illinois who would normally receive their pay checks by Dec. 26 will receive them by Dec. 23 this year, Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, said yesterday. Checks which normally would be received by Jan. 2 will be received by Dec. 30. Miner also sent instructions to district managers that workers should be given every opportunity to make up lost time in order to receive the wages for that time prior to Christmas and New Year's.

SEIZE CON GAME FUGITIVE AFTER CHICAGO FLIGHT

Authorities in Washington, D. C., reported to Chicago police yesterday the seizure of James George Fuller, 39 years old, wanted here on a charge of forfeiting a $2,500 bond which he posted in June, 1938, when arraigned before Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan on a confidence game charge. Walter McCoy, assistant state's attorney, started extradition proceedings.

The confidence game complaint was made by Oscar W. Carlson, president of the Reliance Mutual Life Insurance company, 105 West Madison street, who said Fuller obtained $1,170 from the company.

The complaint charged that Fuller, who has a police record extending from 1923 to 1938, purchased a $3,000 life insurance policy with stock which later proved worthless, and then borrowed the $1,170 on the policy.

Bandit Robs Tavern, Locks Bartender in Ice Box

An armed robber who took $150 from a tavern at 1103 Bryn Mawr avenue yesterday forced the bartender, John Morrisey, to enter a large ice box at the rear of the tavern. There Morrisey encountered Frank Rutzich, the porter, who was chipping ice. They pounded on the door for 15 minutes before a mail carrier released them.

TWO FOOD STORES ROBBED.

Two groceries, at 949 Orleans street and 1704 Glenlake avenue, were robbed last night. A bandit obtained $158 in the first while the robber in the second store fled with $50.

ADMITS RAIDING BARBER SHOP OF NONUNION OWNER

Tells Conflicting Stories About Vandalism.

George Arger, 32 years old, a bartender, was arrested last night and identified as one of the two terrorists who wrecked a nonunion barber shop at 2003 Sedgwick street last Wednesday. He admitted committing the vandalism, but told several conflicting stories about his motive and about the identity of his companion.

Arger was arrested in his home at 2054 Lincoln avenue by Sergt. George Barnes, chief investigator of labor rackets, and Sergt. Frank Perkins, of the Hudson aveneu police station. They took him to the state's attorney's office where he was identified by Emil Erickson, the barber shop owner.

Doubt Robbery Story.

The prisoner was questioned by Leslie Curtis, assistant state's attorney, and Lieut. Thomas Kelly. He first told a story of invading the barber shop with the intention to rob it. He had been told, Arger said, that Erickson kept large sums of money hidden between the towels in the shop.

Asked why he and his companion had smashed the mirrors and slashed the leather barber chairs in the shop, Arger said they had done it in anger when they found no money. Barnes and Kelly expressed disbelief in this story, and got several other accounts of what happened.

Vague on Companion.

At first Arger denied he had any companion in the attack on the shop. Then he named a man who was taken into custody but could not be identified by Erickson. Finally, Arger said he had been accompanied by a man whom he served while working at the bar in a saloon at 502 South State street. This was the man who gave him the information that Erickson kept money hidden in the shop, Arger said.

Lieut. Kelly said he had not abandoned belief that labor trouble was responsible for the vandalism, and declared he would continue searching for Arger's companion.

PICK CHICAGOAN TO HEAD LIQUOR WORKERS' UNION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 [Special].—A new international union named the Wine, Liquor and Distillery Workers' International union, was chartered by the American Federation of Labor today. The union, 106th in the A. F. of L., will include workers in wineries, distillery and rectifying plants, and wholesale liquor salesmen.

It was formed at the conclusion of a two day conference attended by 33 delegates representing local unions in 10 states. Joseph O'Neil of Chicago was elected president. A warning against exploiters, by which it was concluded he meant racketeers, was given to the officers by William Green, president of the A. F. of L.

Gunman Flees and Leaves His $4 at Gas Station

While William Rossner, attendant in a gasoline station at 7559 S. Loomis street, was making change for a $1 sale out of a $5 bill last night, he noticed that his customer had a revolver in his lap. Rossner, fearing a holdup, rushed up the street crying for aid. The gunman drove away, leaving his $4 in change.

Vote Fraud Grand Jury to Recess for One Week

The federal grand jury investigating alleged vote frauds in Chicago in the Nov. 5 election will begin a week's recess tomorrow, United States Attorney J. Albert Woll said yesterday. The jury will reconvene Dec. 30 to begin hearing testimony from 50 more witnesses.

ASCAP REFUSES TO COMPROMISE WAR FOR MUSIC

Broadcasters Also Are Adamant on Pay.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 21.—Radio broadcasters and professional songwriters, entrenched in tin pan alley, are vowing today there will be no settlement of their warfare over the amount of fees paid for the use of broadcast music.

Because of this deadlock in the musical monopoly field the owners of 28,500,000 radio sets in the United States will get a new bill of fare in music after Jan. 1. Many of the old favorites will be barred from radio networks and a majority of stations.

Radio is at loggerheads with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, known as ASCAP. The society repesents a copyright pool for 1,170 melody makers, lyricists and music publishing houses. The society controls 1,270,000 musical compositions and arrangements, 40,000 of which are in active use.

Five Million Dollar Boost.

Stripped of complicated technicalities, the situation boils down to the question whether radio will sign new contracts with ASCAP providing increased payments for the performing rights to use the society's vast reservoir of music. The broadcasters have defied ASCAP and are preparing for a last ditch fight.

Radio broadcasters charge ASCAP is boosting the ante by 5 million dollars on a yearly basis over and above the 4 millions they are paying the society this year. ASCAP admits an increase of 3 millions, but justifies its stand on the grounds that music is the backbone of radio.

542 Stations Fight Boost.

Radio's aims, in the view of ASCAP, were shown plainly with the creation of a rival music creating and publishing organization called Broadcast Music, Inc., or BMI, into which the industry has poured nearly 2 million dollars. A total of 542 of the nation's 750 commercial stations have pledged themselves to go along with BMI.

Since its start in April of this year, BMI has turned out 420 popular numbers of the conventional 32 measure, break in the middle, chorus type which the jitterbugs demand. These will be available for radio to draw from after New Year's eve.

BMI has a reservoir of 200,000 selections as compared with Ascap's 1,270,000. There are an additional 100,000 musical compositions in the public domain from which radio may extract selections.

Santa Claus Has Railroad Party

Some of the 2,200 children of employes of the Milwaukee road who were greeted by Santa Claus yesterday at party in the Union station.

Hundreds of children of employés of the Milwaukee railroad gathered in the Union station yesterday for their annual Christmas party, sponsored by the road's Booster club. Their Santa Claus, loaded with gifts, arrived in a steam locomotive and was assisted in the distribution of gifts by members of the Pioneer post of the American Legion. The entertainment included a program of Christmas music and the pranks of six clowns.

New Musical Fare for 1941

Unless agreement over pay for use is reached within 10 days, New Year's eve will be the last time radio listeners will hear many favorite tunes on the air. Instead bands will have to play from a limited list controled by Broadcast Music, Inc. The favorites belong to the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers.

These tunes will be barred:

A Nightingale Sang in Berkeley Square.
Trade Winds.

THREE OFFICERS OF YOUNG G. O. P. GET RECOGNITION

Madison, Wis., Dec. 21 [Special].—The executive committee of the Wisconsin Republican organization today officially recognized three officers elected last summer during the organization's convenion at EauClaire.

The committee's action, delayed by factional disputes, approved election of Edgar H. Goode, Minocqua, and Florence Sherbarth, Hales Corners, as national committeeman and committeewoman, and Oliver Brown, Sheboygan, as executive secretary.

Stanley Jarz, Milwaukee, regional director of the Young G. O. P., recommended recognition of the new officers. The committee also authorized William McEwen, River Falls, state Young Republican chairman, to appoint a group of five to ask the state Republican leadership for financial aid. McEwen called today's meeting to perfect a "better Young Republican organization by 1942."

State and district officers will divide the state among them in an effort to strengthen county Young Republican groups, according to McEwen.

Loop Yule Broadcasts Extended to Two Hours

David Mayer Jr., president of the State Street council, announced yesterday that the daily noon hour Christmas music programs for downtown shoppers will be lengthened an hour, beginning tomorrow. The programs, broadcast thru loudspeakers, will be heard from noon to 2 p. m.

FEDERAL JURY MAY PROBE BUND ACTIVITIES HERE

A federal grand jury investigation of the German American bund and allegations that many bund members are in the United States armed services was indicated yesterday when it was learned that suppressed subpenas has been served on one or more bund leaders. One subpena was said to name Dr. Otto Willumeit, Chicago bund leader.

The bund list of members, including those who may be in the services, were being checked by the federal bureau of investigation, which has consulted the sixth corps army headquarters to determine whether bundsmen are on the army or navy rosters. It was believed that notations of military service entered against the names of bundsmen applied in most cases to service in the German army.

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, and William H. McDonnell, marshal, refused to comment on the subpenas. It was believed, however, that Dr. Willumeit and other leaders were being summoned in an attempt to obtain information upon which a search warrant could be issued to gain entry into a safe in bund headquarters at 3855 North Western avenue which bundsmen slammed shut when a raid was made on the offices Thursday on a warrant issued by Municipal Judge Oscar S. Caplan.

ROBERT ARMSTRONG DIES.

Winnebago, Ill., Dec. 21 [Special].—Robert S. Armstrong, 75 years old, who was in business here for 30 years, died yesterday. In 1890 he and Elmer Mellen established the Mellen and Armstrong general store. In 1920 he left the firm to become cashier of the Winnebago State bank, retiring in 1926.

FIRST DEATH PENALTY IN 70 YEARS DECREED AT NEW ALBANY, IND.

New Albany, Ind., Dec. 21 [Special].—For the first time in 70 years a Floyd county jury decreed capital punishment as Milton Hawkins, 24 years old, of Cub Run, Ky., was found guilty of the murder of Edmund Davis, 36, a Jeffersonville, Ind., taxi driver, during a holdup last May.

County Prosecutor Frank E. Worch denounced Hawkins as a "mean, rotten, damnable, spineless yellow coward" whose escape from the electric chair would be "telling the world that you can get by with murder in Floyd county if you smoke a muggles [marijuana cigaret] first."

Clark County Prosecutor Homer D. Smith, in whose province the crime was committed, warned the jury against a life sentence because "a life sentence under the Indiana parole system means his release in 18 or 20 years to prey upon society again."

Charles R. Turner, chief of defense counsel, pleaded that Hawkins, a former convict, was a victim of a share cropper's environment and that his mother started him smoking marijuana 13 years ago.

3 Little Pigs with Nazi Flags Stir Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 21 (AP).—Three pigs flying Swastika flags were set loose on elegant Florida street today, causing a mild panic. Police rounded up the pigs but could not learn who loosed them.

POSSE FOLLOWS BLOOD TRAIL OF POLICE SLAYER

Officer Shot Down as He Inspects Stolen Car.

Ringgold, Ga., Dec. 21 (AP).—Bloodhounds followed a trail thru mountainous north Georgia and southern Tennessee today in search of a fugitive motorist who last night shot and killed Corp. W. F. Black of the Georgia highway patrol when stopped for reckless driving.

Arrow locates scene of manhunt.

Late tonight the search narrowed to a strip of woodland along Chickamauga lake, 30 miles north of Chattanooga, Tenn., where Chief Dick Webb of the Tennessee state highway patrol said a man believed to be the slayer had abandoned an automobile stolen at the Chattanooga airport a few hours earlier.

Lon Sullivan, public safety commissioner of Georgia, said repeated traces of blood were found on leaves and rocks, indicating the fugitive had been wounded by Black's fellow officer, Patrolman B. R. Farr, as he disappeared in underbrush alongside the road.

Sullivan said Black was shot when the troopers stopped a speeding car and asked to see the drivers' license. Sullivan said Black walked in front of the machine to make penciled note of its Oklahoma license number. When he moved to the side of the car the driver stepped to the ground and opened fire. Black fell without drawing his gun. Farr emptied his weapon as the killer fled.

Corporal Black died en route to a Chattanooga hospital. Bullets from the fugitive's .38 calibre pistol struck him in the chest, chin and leg.

Commissioner Sullivan said a woman in the car, about 21 years old, Identified the fugitive as Charles Butler. He quoted her as saying she had married him in Memphis three days ago. The commissioner said the car was reported stolen in Miami, Okla., on Dec. 10.

Inquiry at Oklahoma City disclosed that two men by the name of Butler were wanted in that state, the commissioner said, but there were no details in either case.

Ringgold is located near the Geogia-Tennessee state line. Highway traffic in that section was halted for examination thruout today.

TRIBUNE AIR THEATER PRESENTS ROSE MARIE AS WEEKLY OFFERING

"Rose Marie," Rudolph Friml's romantic tale of the great love of a French-Indian girl and a dashing Canadian miner, was heard last night over station W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network in a Chicago Tribune Theater of the Air production. Singing leads were taken by Marion Claire and Robert Weede, while the corresponding speaking rôles were handled by Betty Winkler and Bob Bailey.

Among the songs heard were "My Jeem," "Rose Marie," "Song of the Mounties," and the haunting "Indian Love Call." Other speaking parts were taken by Marvin Mueller, Donna Reade, Bret Morrison, Al Halus, Willard Waterman, Bob Jellison, and Fran Carlon.

At the end of the operetta Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, addressed the Tribune family at Baie Comeau, Shelter Bay, Franquelin, and Outarde in Quebec and Thorold and Heron Bay, Ontario. Speaking in French, Col. McCormick said the program was dedicated to them, and wished them all a merry Christmas and happy New Year.

The production was directed by William A. Bacher. The W-G-N Concert orchestra and ensemble was conducted by Henry Weber.

Union of Bakery Drivers Fills Offices at Election

Two business agents and three trustees were chosen last night by the Bakery Drivers' union, local 734, meeting at 220 South Asland boulevard. The business agents named were Edward Healey and Harry Nelson. D. J. Collins, Jack Drew, and Marty Gentleman defeated four other candidates for trusteeships.

DRAFT LAW REVISIONS.

The commission on world peace of the Methodist church has called for repeal of the draft law. The law is seen as an affront to the Christian doctrine of the dignity of the human personality and, in addition, a menace to democratic life.

To these large considerations, about which opinion will not be unanimous, other more immediate ones can be added which argue if not for the outright repeal of the act, then for its drastic amendment.

The conscription law was passed as an emergency measure. The country was told that it was in imminent danger of invasion by a victorious Germany in alliance with Italy, Japan, and perhaps Russia as well. The British navy was about to be surrendered. Britain was about to be overrun. To meet this threat we must instantly prepare a mighty army to repel the assault upon our continent.

None of these midsummer nightmares has been realized in the intervening months. Britain is holding out and some of her statesmen are talking of the moment when they can invade the continent. The British navy remains afloat and there is no reason to suppose that it will be surrendered to the Germans in the foreseeable future. Italy is being pushed around. All the arguments which were used to justify the hurried passage of the draft law were false. Only a few thousand conscripts have been called to the colors. If the danger were really grave they would have been called by the hundreds of thousands whether the cantonments were ready or not and whether an adequate supply of uniforms and weapons was on hand or not.

The next congress may not go the whole length desired by the Methodist spokesmen, but can hardly avoid making changes in the act, particularly if the draft is to become a permanent institution in American life. It is absurd to include in the draft men of 30 and 35. If we are to use conscription to obtain a large force of trained reserves it would be much better to take men as they come of age.

The drafting of the older men can only serve to disorganize industry by threatening to take some of its highly skilled key men away. At a time when every effort is being made to increase industrial production it is stupid to add any avoidable difficulties to those inherent in the job. Men of 20 or 21 are just starting to earn a living, have relatively few family responsibilities, relatively little skill in industry, and will suffer relatively slight loss if they are drafted. The older men are needed at home and in the factories.

When a man gets to be 40 he can no longer be counted upon for strenuous service in the field. There are exceptions, of course, but as a rule the man of 40 can't take it as a younger man can. That means that when the army drafts a man of 35 it is training him for not more than four or five years in the reserve. When it takes a man of 20 it can count upon useful service from him at any time within 20 years.

The present draft law is uneconomical. It is wasteful of men, inconsiderate of their families, lacking in forethought. If the draft is to be continued it should be applied each year to all able-bodied men coming of age that year, with the provision that younger men wishing to discharge their obligation may do so at 19 or 20.

Recent dispatches from Washington suggest that an amendment along this line is likely to be taken up at the forthcoming session of congress and that the administration will support it. If so, the long campaign of this newspaper for universal military training in this country may be crowned with success. Had the plan been adopted when it was proposed 20 years or so ago there would have been no need for the enactment in haste of an ill-considered draft law last summer. The country would have had an adequate reserve of trained men. This should have been obvious to any one in 1920, but it took the events of 1939 and 1940 to bring home the truth of our unpreparedness in a world of rivalry and greed.

A newspaper is in a fortunate position. It can keep on arguing its case, in and out of season, until events force acceptance of the soundness of its position. The acquisition of the West Indian bases offers another illustration. THE TRIBUNE was thought to be a crank on the subject. As recently as a few weeks before the leases were arranged the President referred to the proposal as silly. It has now been adopted, not, to be sure, in a wholly satisfactory fashion, but the principle has been accepted just as the principle of universal military training may now be accepted. It is interesting and instructive to observe that many of those who were most vehement in opposing these projects when they were first put forward are now shouting the loudest from their seats on the band wagon. That suits us fine.

VOLTAIRE'S TANK.

Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller, Britain's tank-minded soldier, recently wrote an article for the London Spectator relating the story of Voltaire and his war cart, or battle chariot. The idea was offered to the French minister of war at the outbreak of the Seven Years' war as an "elegant method of how to destroy the human species." Voltaire, as a "peaceful scribbler," was ashamed to be thinking of destructive machines, but "they are intended to protect honest people who fire badly against dishonest ones who fire too well." The dishonest who fired too well were the Prussians.

Not much is known of Voltaire's contraption, but Gen. Fuller thinks that it resembled a Scottish war cart of 1456 and was moved by two horses and had a crew of two men. It carried cannon, apparently, because Voltaire speaks of the future possibility of gaining battles by means of cannon alone. He had drawings of the machine and a model of it. He was persuaded that it would require 50 well aimed guns to stop his tank, and he was convinced that two of his machines could operate successfully against a battalion.

In pressing his invention upon the war minister and the army he said: "A man possessed of a routine type of mind, a man obsessed by the ancient prejudices customary to sharpshooting and ordinary methods is not for us. We require a man of imagination and genius—with him all is found." Altho Voltaire won some converts, he never got the right ones. He perceived that the military people not only were prejudiced against new ideas but that they were afraid of being found ridiculous if they used his "petite drôlerie." He lamented that his war carts had not been used at the battle of Rossbach, where it would have been better to have used them "than to have allowed oneself to be slaughtered between two hills."

Nothing came of it, the Seven Years' war was fought without the carts, and nine years later Catherine of Russia was at war with the Turks. Voltaire, still plugging for his chariots, wrote to the empress, attaching descriptions and commendations of his chariot. Two months later he had a reply from her, a letter demonstrating, if any proof were needed, that Catherine knew her business and knew the soldier mind. "Nothing," she said, "proves to me so fully your sincerity toward myself as what you tell me of your newly invented war carts. But our warriors here are the same as in other countries: all untested novelties appear to them to be of doubtful value."

That should have been conclusive, but Voltaire did not give up. He replied to the empress: "In no way do I belong to the homicide business; but yesterday two most excellent German murderers assured me that the effect of these chariots would be unquestionable in the initial battle and that it would be impossible for a battalion or squadron to resist the force and novelty of such an attack."

THE FUTURE OF FRANCE AND GERMANY.

Just what has occurred in the German intervention in the Petain-Laval controversy and the affairs of the Vichy government has not been made altogether clear. Even unoccupied France is a country under compulsion, with many hostages in Hitler's hands. The shadow of those hands is over many unoccupied countries.

The old French marshal is supposed to be taking a long view of the position of France in the future of Europe. There also is an important short view in which the eye is upon the peace terms. They may be moderate or harsh. An accord with the Nazis is one French idea of seeking better immediate fortune. Petain seems to have some ideas of his own about building up an agricultural economy with a religiously devout peasantry while diminishing the power of the bourgeois industrialists and financiers.

At present there is talk of a place in Hitler's united Europe for France, but that united Europe is as yet in dreamland, and the Nazis have not found a formula for it. In 1918 the then dominant powers of Europe undertook to hold Germany down and build their peace upon prostrate enemies. They did not succeed. Is Germany, now on top, to try this in reverse if the war should give the opportunity? How long could Germany hold down the rest of Europe? The Germans themselves would weary of it. They themselves want a normal life, not one of mobilization and garrison duty from the Bay of Biscay to the Russian frontier, or beyond. They have been told that the war was forced upon them. That will serve to fight a war. It is not an excuse for a peace nor will it serve for a generation.

If Hitler or his successor cannot find a way to put the people or Europe back in normal living, with peaceable pursuits and pleasures and without the armies of occupation and the secret police, there will be another overturn on the continent. It will not come in six months. It may not come in six years. But such a German empire cannot exist 20 years. Whatever the outcome of the war and whatever may be expected of new arrangements, the French must reconsider their expectations.

France in defeat is different from Germany in defeat. It is the smaller of the two nations. Even before Hitler annexed territory and added new Germanic stock to what had been the kaiserland, France was the lesser nation numerically.

All sensible people knew that Germany could not be held down indefinitely, because its latent forces were too great, but France hasn't that great reserve of power. Its position in Europe has been precarious ever since Napoleon's days and, altho its empire has grown, its insecurity in the face of German power has been manifest. It couldn't resist Bismarck. It couldn't have resisted the kaiser's government without allies, and with them it had a narrow escape. The collapse last June was just a continuation of these experiences.

These facts have oppressed perceiving Frenchmen of this generation, who knew that France, in the position of a dominating European power, was badly founded and much overstrained. It is easy to understand why Frenchmen now think that the future must bring a readjustment in which pretensions are abandoned and realities recognized. Even if Germany should be defeated, there would be no guarantee which would be worth 20 years' reliance.

France cannot aspire to be the great military power of Europe. It cannot dominate the continent. In this war its scheme of alliances failed completely. Even with its alliances the fear of war had poisoned the life of the country for 10 years. The Maginot line was a moral escape—and proved to be a moral defeat. Even if Britain won, and temporarily dictated terms, no permanent security for France would be found in that. Its security will be found in a change in its national aspirations and in its escape from imperialistic politicians. Ambitious men cannot protect it.

The United States cannot change the realities. We cannot support delusions of grandeur with an overseas police force. Europe may not be able to find its angle of repose. It hasn't yet, and this country cannot help by getting caught in each successive avalanche.

FELIX MORLEY'S OBSERVATIONS.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Felix Morley, new president of Haverford college and recently editor of the Washington Post editorial page, says that entry of the United States into the war would have "the most serious repercussions on our political, social, and economic structure—win, lose, or draw."

Unassailable as that observation is, Mr. Morley actually stands on even sounder ground. He says:

> The real destiny of the United States is to maintain a continent of peace, not for the negative reason that we may thereby escape the physical destruction of war, but for the positive purpose of a vital and universally helpful leadership in the establishment of world peace.

Here is an idealist who is also a tough-minded tester of practicality. The United States needs a lot of such thinkers these days.

AMERICAN POLICY AND EUROPE

[From the Arizona Daily Star, Tucson.]

As Great Britain heroically resists German attacks from the air and under the seas, as her demands for credits and supplies are made upon our government, confusion as to our national policy in relation to the war in Europe increases. On the one hand President Roosevelt is urged to do "everything short of war" by granting credits to Britain to pay for supplies in unprecedented amounts. On the other hand those who fear that extensive aid will take us into war, or who are unconcerned as to the outcome of the war, oppose such help. Meanwhile the President goes as far as he can in helping Britain while he waits for public opinion to support a more vigorous policy. Briefly stated, our policy is one of helping victims of aggressors without going to war ourselves.

That the outcome of the war in Europe is of direct concern to America the record of our conscription act and unprecedented armament expenditures verifies. Upon that one policy there is nearly unanimous agreement among the people of the country. Otherwise the expenditures would not be accepted without resistance. There is even general agreement that we should help Britain. The big point of difference is how far we should go.

At its best the policy of "everything short of war" is ambiguous and indecisive. It is manifestly impossible to draw a clear line between what is "short of war" and what is not. Moreover, it is a policy almost identical with the one enunciated by Premier Baldwin in 1935, which proved so disastrous for Great Britain. Just as Great Britain offered aid to "victims of aggressors" without making the aid effective, so do we. We are making permanent enemies of Japan, Germany, and Italy without aiding decisively that one remaining great power which stands in their way.

The time has surely come when we should formulate a definite and effective policy to replace our present condescending, patronizing, Baldwin-Chamberlain policy which, while making mortal enemies, does not support effectively those who are our friends. The formulation of a definite and effective policy must look to our self-interest as a basis, and upon that interest build a general policy wide enough in scope to give long term protection to that self-interest. It is to our self-interest, for example, to see that the British empire is not destroyed, but it is also to our self-interest to see that a just peace be made in order that it may be lasting. Where British policy prevents such a peace we must impose our opposition. We do not want to run the risk of war or go to war to restore many of the causes of the present conflict. Consequently, before embarking on a policy which definitely carries the risks of war, we should enunciate a clear policy which would include a possible just peace settlement.

Fundamentally a possible peace settlement should be made a part of our aims as a matter of common justice, but at this time such a peace settlement also stands a good chance of fitting into the general military situation in a decisive manner. Great Britain cannot alone conquer Germany. Even with our aid as a direct belligerent a military campaign to conquer Germany would have to begin in Africa. We cannot land troops in France this time. Nor can Germany be captured by air attacks alone. Germany can be conquered only by breaking or changing her morale. German morale stands the best chance of being broken by America [1] proclaiming unreservedly that she will not permit the British empire to be destroyed; [2] supplying aviation in such quantities that Britain can carry heavy bombing attacks into Germany on an unprecedented scale; and [3] offering to make a generous and just peace, the details of which would be outlined, with the German army as distinguished from the Nazi-Hitler régime.

Therefore the possible peace terms become a matter of first importance not only as a matter of common justice and as a means of instigating an overthrow of the Nazi régime, but also in building our own morale. Those Americans who fought in the last war are too suspicious to be carried away by vague platitudes. They want to know in definite terms for what they are fighting. They would like to see every effort made for a peaceful settlement before embarking on an unknown adventure. As a basis of a peaceful settlement the Balkanization of Europe, as established by the peace treaties of 1919, must be avoided. To this end the possible peace terms which would break German resistance should include:

[1] Restoration of Germany's 1914 frontiers in the east with the creation of an autonomous but not sovereign Poland and Czecho-Slovakia within a German customs and currency union. Poland to have the port of Gdynia with a corridor to it;

[2] Alsace and Lorraine to be restored to France. Holland, Belgium, and Scandinavian countries to have their independence restored;

[3] Baltic nations [excepting Finland] and Bessarabia to be restored to the soviet union;

[4] Former German colonies returned to Germany;

[5] Italy to have Ethiopia, Jibuti, and Somaliland;

[6] Internationalization of the Suez canal;

[7] End of all Jewish discrimination;

[8] No indemnities or reparations;

[9] Permission for small nations like Hungary, Rumania, Greece, Jugo-Slavia, Belgium, Holland, and the Scandinavian countries to set up customs and currency unions or join any other such union as may be formed by Germany, France, Italy, Britain, or Russia;

[10] Limitation of armaments with creation of an international police force to impose peace. America to participate in this police force.

[11] No dealing with Hitler or the Nazi régime, but recognition of the German army as the responsible government of Germany.

While of course these peace terms appear most generous to Germany, they go to the root of the causes which created a Nazi Germany. They offer hope to those civilized elements within Germany that ask only that Germany enter the international community on a basis of equality. Any American foreign policy that does not recognize the existence of 80,000,000 homogeneous Germans in central Europe, that does not recognize the futility of attempting to maintain petty and artificial sovereign states without an economic background for their existence, will lead our country to disaster and bitter disillusionment. To plan merely for the breaking of German power and the saving of Britain without planning for what is to follow would accomplish nothing of permanent value, but would promote an eventual revolution that would set back civilization for centuries.

In the last analysis this matter resolves itself down to an attempt to restore reason to an embittered and bewildered world, to accomplish by reason and peaceful means what ultimately will be done by force, and to save ourselves and the world from the ruin that follows when the Four Horsemen ride unchecked.

At this critical hour when the President, as the leader of our country, seeks to formulate an American policy which will carry in it the destinies of our nation, the American people have a right to ask that before he draws the sword or creates a situation where the sword will have to be drawn, that he inform them fully on ultimate objectives, that he seek to bring about a just peace which will remove or temper the causes of the present war. When he does this he will have a right to the united support of all Americans that he may use their united power as a force, should reason be rejected by the warring nations.

WINTER SKIN IRRITANTS.

To some of us winter brings skin conditions that are anything but pleasant. Perhaps the drying effect of the air has something to do with their occurrence, as most of our homes during the cold season lack humidity [moisture]. Older people particularly observe more itching and cracking and, for this reason, oily preparations are frequently advised.

The most common type of blemish falls within the group of maladies termed "eczema" or "eczematous dermatitis." Under these cloaklike labels practically all outbreaks that cannot otherwise be identified are included. Of course, the specialist is able to name scores of lesions that appear identical to us. But those who are bothered care little about the classification. What is wanted is a remedy.

Unfortunately, there is no universal treatment that will be effective. For example, ringworm may be responsible for numerous and varied symptoms. It may simulate poison ivy or the rash brought on by primroses. It becomes necessary, then, to "spot" all eruptions as accurately as possible so that healing may be brought about. In other words, we must try to find the cause.

Irritants such as clothing, the dye of furs or gloves, or even certain kinds of dust may be at fault. Curiously enough, the more angry the appearance of the epidermis the milder must be the corrective. Weeping, oozing areas, in most instances, demand wet dressings, and a saturated solution of boric acid is nearly always safe. But some cuticles are so sensitive that even this chemical will prove too strong, whereupon a light coating of zinc oxide powder may be applied.

A starch bath is helpful, as a rule, and one may remain immersed for 20 to 30 minutes. A pound of soluble starch and a half cup of baking soda added to a half tub of water will relieve discomfort if the involved parts are extensive. Ointments are useful, especially when there is dryness and scaliness.

There are more people with delicate body covering than we realize and prevention is far wiser and cheaper than cure. If we will take the precaution to use mild soap and to dry the hands thoroly after washing we will be far less likely to encounter trouble.

As we know, the diet can influence health—profoundly. In fact, eczema may be due to some edible. Of course, the physician can make food tests in an attempt to find the offender and, in many cases, the elimination of eggs, wheat products, and milk, or the banishing of wool and feathers may bring about complete recovery. A simple regimen of fruits and vegetables can be undertaken for a few days—meanwhile watching for signs of improvement. If it comes, other items may be added—one at a time—until an acute "flareup" establishes the culprit.

The question has been asked often—will X-ray be of value? Many authorities have reported excellent results. It should be emphasized, however, that the dose must be very small indeed if more harm than good is not to follow.

Naturally, we must not forget that bacteria, always present on the surface, may complicate any skin disease. Pus organisms may change not only the appearance of the lesions but their character. Then it is that some antiseptic sufficiently potent to destroy the germs will be needed in addition to much desired soothing preparations.

HE'S TONGUE-TIED.

G. S. writes: I am very self-conscious because I am tongue-tied. My father also had this trouble. I am 21 years old. Is it too late to have something done?

REPLY.

In some cases the tissue which attaches the tongue to the floor of the mouth extends too far forward. A slight surgical operation may be helpful, permitting greater freedom of movement. Speech retraining is also of value. I would advise both procedures. Be sure you are in skilled hands.

APOPLEXY.

E. R. writes: A few years ago, when my blood pressure was high, I had a stroke. The level is now normal. My friends tell me I may expect another. What is your advice?

REPLY.

CHEST BLOW.

S. A. writes: Could pulmonary tuberculosis recur after a blow on the chest?

REPLY.

Extremely unlikely.

A PRESENT FOR MOTHER.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 18.—When was the last time you wrote your mother? A week ago, or was it two weeks? Maybe you spent your time dancing with a girl friend and said, "O well, mother can wait a few more days."

I think the greatest present you could give any mother for Christmas is this: Write and tell her you will write her every week during the coming year and stick to your promise. I think she would appreciate the letters more than all the gifts you could send her. Think it over!

W. L. B.

HIS WPA WORK A BAR.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—A news item in your paper says that altho employment figures are reaching 1929 levels, the relief rolls remain about as they have been. To this writer the explanation is clear. For some unexplicable reason employers simply will not hire people who have ever been associated with WPA, to wit:

Having applied for a clerical position I took in turn a work test and an I. Q. test, both of which I passed with an admittedly high rating, and was hired by the office manager. The following Monday I reported for work and was told by the manager that he was sorry, he could not use me. Pressed for an explanation he reluctantly informed me that a high executive of the firm could not countenance my record of WPA employment. Bear in mind this gentleman had barred me without even the courtesy of an interview.

On the project I am associated with, college degrees [Ph. D. included] are a dime a dozen, but our workers cannot get $18 a week jobs in private enterprise. Sweet land of liberty.

SIXTH GENERATION AMERICAN.

SHOULDN'T CALL HER "WALLY."

Chicago, Dec. 17.—To this impartial observer, the Tribune's headline writers' persistent reference to the duchess of Windsor as "Wally," seems so far beneath the standards of courtesy expected of "The World's Greatest Newspaper" as to be pettiness personified. If President and Mrs. Roosevelt were to visit Great Britain and a leading newspaper referred to our first lady as "Nelly," we would quickly voice our resentment at such impertinence.

The duke of Windsor is governor of a British colony, as well as a royal highness by birth; and he insists upon equal recognition of rank for his American born wife, a courtesy that is accorded her in full measure by his constituents. It ill becomes an American newspaper to attempt to belittle a countrywoman by refusing to use her proper name.

FAIR PLAY.

MR. BOGUSLAWSKI'S CONCERT.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—I attended the Boguslawski recital yesterday and noticed your stingy review of it. For a man who is one of the five greatest living pianists, who has devoted practically his life to teaching and to making Chicago a great art center, I feel that you have treated him shabbily. He was in magnificent form and had an enthusiastic audience. I do not presume to run or know how to run your paper, but it seems to me that if a critic can't attend a full performance the paper should put on one more.

ROY I. DANIELS.

CHILDREN'S CHORUS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Pardon me, but isn't there a slight oversight in the articles about the Christmas cantata to be given this week by Dr. Stock and our school children? No mention is made of the names of the conscientious teachers of the various schools who have done the real work in developing these children groups so that they come as finished artists to take part in this cantata. The teachers I am referring to are the ones who have played the piano in accompaniment by the hour, taught the children the songs, stood around in the cold while checking them into buses, giving up their time taking them downtown for rehearsal, and then being left in the background when credit was given. Let's have their names and the identity of their schools.

FAIR PLAY.

GENESIS OF THE "TEDDY BEAR."

Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., Dec. 16.—Recently there appeared an article in your paper headed: "Who Invented Teddy Bear?" It is a good article if it was only correct. The fact is the writer was interested in a rubber store in Detroit, jobbing and retail. We sold large quantities of toys and each summer I went to New York and bought toys from the large importers. In 1900 I visited several toy importers there. After finishing my buying I went to Atlantic City with my wife to spend the Fourth. There I saw some toy bears on the stands and inquired of whom they could be secured. I was directed to two importers in Philadelphia who told me they had none in stock but that they had a shipment due the next day on a steamer from Germany, and I placed an order for two gross to be shipped to our store, the Goodyear Rubber store at Detroit.

When I reached home I had the show windows cleared and displayed the toys as soon as they arrived and sold them all the same afternoon.

We had them as tall as three feet and sold them at $10. They were a perfect toy and it was two years later that they were made here, and those were roughly made and sold for much less, as they were inferior.

When they began to make them in this country they gave them the name of "Teddy Bear" [after Teddy Roosevelt?]. They originated in Germany and this is a fact, tho I would like to give our country the credit.

HOW ABOUT ONE SANTA CLAUS?

Chicago, Dec. 17.—Every year at Christmastime the city is overrun by a thousand and one "Santa Clauses." On every corner you see them shivering in their baggy cheesecloth costumes, waving at little children who probably wonder who the heck they are supposed to be. You find them in all department stores grinning and scaring the poor kids to whom they must look like a bewhiskered nightmare in red flannels.

Now, why can't we have just one Santa for the whole city? A real Santa Claus who looks and acts like the one in story books. Appointed and paid by the city each year, he could bustle from one store in the loop to another like the busy little fellow he is supposed to be. Thus he would create a truly joyous spirit instead of getting in the shoppers' way and frightening little kids out of 10 years' growth.

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

ESTATE DIVISION.

Gary, Ind., Dec. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise on the following question of disposition of estate: Three brothers by one father; two brothers by first wife; one brother by second wife. One of the brothers by first wife is a widower and never had any children.

1. How will his estate be legally disposed of in absence of a will?
2. Will the estate pass to his full brother?
3. Will it be divided evenly between his full brother and his half brother?
4. All three brothers were born in Vermont and the two full brothers have their legal residence in Vermont. The half brother's residence is in Indiana. H. W.

1. His half brother will share equally with his full brother.
2. No.
3. Yes.
4. The foregoing answers relate the Illinois law. It would have been a convenience if you had stated at the start the fact that the question arises under Vermont law. If Vermont real estate is involved it would be controled by Vermont law which would be like Illinois law on this point. If the estate includes personal property, that would depend on the law of the jurisdiction in which the deceased resided at the time of his death.

Degrees of kindred are computed according to rules of civil law, and the half blood inherit equally with whole blood in same degree. [2967].

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SALES TAX.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Will you kindly advise thru your column if there is a sales tax on foods and other personal requisites in the state of Illinois?

2. I've been paying a sales tax for years, but received no benefit thru it during several years while [4] unemployed.

R. D.

1. There is a tax on retailers dealing in such goods.
2. You are not subject to the tax. What you have been paying is an addition to your purchase price.
3. You are mistaken in the sense that the money has gone to general state purposes.
4. The Illinois Retailers Occupation Tax has no special connection with unemployment. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 7, part 2.

1. The chief metal in fool's gold is Iron Copper Silver Zinc.
2. Tho few birds can see an object with both eyes at the same time, which of the following can do so? Quail Dove Parrot Owl.
3. Hunters used to catch rabbits by sending which of the following down the holes in which the rabbits were hiding? Cats Guinea Pigs Ferrets Muskrats.
4. A housewife would most likely employ kapok For the Meat Course For Dish Towels For Stuffing Pillows As a Water Softener.
5. Which bird is considered to be the harbinger of spring? Dove Robin Sparrow Wren.
6. You deserve one point for each correct matching of the Biblical characters below with their attributes in the left hand column.

[b] The original suffragette.	[w] Samson.
[c] The first drunkard.	[x] Vashti.
[d] The conscientious housekeeper.	[y] Noah.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

HURT IN CRASH, BAND LEADER HAL KEMP DIES

Victim of Pneumonia at Age of 36.

Madera, Cal., Dec. 21 (AP).—Hal Kemp, 36 years old, internationally known orchestra leader, died today of complications that developed from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Wednesday.

Hal Kemp.

One of Kemp's lungs was punctured and several ribs were broken when his car and another collided near here. Yesterday pneumonia developed in the injured lung, and Kemp was placed in the oxygen tent.

Wife at Bedside.

Kemp married Martha Stephenson, then a 19 year old New York debutante, at Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 13, 1939. She was at his bedside when he died. She was his second wife. A daughter was born to them in New York last July. Kemp's first wife was the former Bessie Slaughter of Houston, Tex. They were married about nine years ago and divorced in Chicago in 1938.

A native of Marion, Ala., Kemp's early interest in music—he began playing the clarinet when he was 6 years old—developed so that even in his twenties he had attracted wide attention in this country and Europe.

His band was a favorite of the duke of Windsor, then prince of Wales, who often visited London clubs where Kemp was playing and once substituted at the drums in Kemp's band.

Career at University.

From high school orchestras Kemp went to the University of North Caroline campus bands. In 1925 he organized his own orchestra at the university and surrounded himself with musicians who later became successful on their own—John Scott Trotter, Skinny Ennis, and Saxie Dowell.

Kemp was closely identified with suave, sophisticated modern music and was particularly respected by musicians for his clean, smooth style in the saxophone and brass sections. Friends said he had a secret aspiration to become a symphony conductor. He had been studying symphony daily for three years and was welcomed by symphony conductors thruout the nation who permitted him to study their styles at rehearsals.

IRON LUNG SAVES YOUNG WOMAN'S LIFE SECOND TIME

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 21 [Special].—Mrs. Ruby Cook, 19 year old Darlington infantile paralysis victim, was back in Robert Long hospital here today—her life saved a second time by an "iron lung" and the efforts of two Crawfordsville firemen.

An emergency operation was performed today at the hospital after particles of candy had lodged in the trachea, commonly known as the "windpipe."

Mrs. Cook spent several months in an iron lung at the hospital here during the summer and autumn. She gave birth to a child there on Aug. 26. The infant died next day.

Mrs. Cook never fully recovered from the paralysis, but was released on Oct. 31 to go to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Surface, near Lodoga, where she was stricken yesterday. Raymond Harris and Claude Hankins, Crawfordsville firemen, administered oxygen with an inhalator while an ambulance brought her here.

ARCOLA COUPLE FOUND DEAD IN TOURIST CABIN

Arcola, Ill., Dec. 21 [Special].—W. Leroy Collins, 65 years old, and his bride of six months were found dead yesterday in a tourist camp cabin at Roswell, N. M., according to word received here. Collins was a former newspaper publisher. His wife, the former Edith Wilson, until her marriage on June 15 was secretary of the placement bureau at Eastern Illinois State Teachers' college at Charleston.

Collins, who retired in 1932, maintained a financial interest in the Arcola Record until 1936. He also was interested in the Broom and Broom Corn News until he disposed of his interest to his brother early this year.

The couple left here Dec. 13 for California. They rented the cabin Thursday afternoon. All windows were closed and the gas was burning when the bodies were found.

Edward T. Horna Jr. Dies; Department Store Operator

Allegan, Mich., Dec. 21 [Special].—Edward T. Horna Jr., 56, joint owner with his brother George of the Grange store, largest department store in Allegan, died last night of a heart attack. He had worked in the store until 6 p. m. He is survived by his widow Doris, two sons and the brother.

Park Flowers Shown

Joan Roper, 9, admires the poinsettias in the Garfield park conservatory.

Thousands of spectators are expected to visit the 28th annual Christmas flower shows of the Chicago park district at Garfield and Lincoln park conservatories today. The shows, which opened yesterday and will close Jan. 5 are featuring 4,000 poinsettias ranging from snow white to pink and scarlet blossoms.

Twenty-six thousand other flowers, including a dozen specimens of the rare Star of Bethlehem orchid, myriad begonia plants and the first of the spring tulips, will also be on display. The conservatories will be open from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily, including Sundays and holidays. The shows are free to the public.

Maj. Lachlin T. Burwash.

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 21 (AP).—Maj. Lachlin Taylor Burwash, 66 years old, who flew to the magnetic pole in 1931, died of pneumonia at his home near Cobourg today. He was one of Canada's foremost authorities on the arctic region.

Deer Hunter Finds Child's Body; Missing Since July

Beachwood, N. J., Dec. 21 (AP).—A deer hunter today stumbled on the skeleton of three year old Craig Bender two miles from the parents' summer home from which the child disappeared July 18. Identification was made by the father, Alfred W. Bender of Elizabeth, after he examined clothing found near the skeleton. Hundreds of volunteer searchers, assisted by police, and a navy blimp, pressed a two week search for the child after his disappearance.

ELEVATOR BANDITS GET $94.

Two armed bandits entered the Buena Park hotel, 4145 Broadway, and forced the night clerk, Edward Kovats, to turn over $94 early yesterday. The robbers then forced Kovats and Ray Watson, a bell boy, to take an elevator ride while they fled.

DEWEY ASSAILS HIGH QUOTA FOR CCC IN JANUARY

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission announced yesterday that Illinois' quota of Civilian Conservation corps enrollees for January has been set at 2,963. The relief commission certifies the eligibility of enrollees. The announcement promptly brought an assertion from Congressman Elect Charles S. Dewey of the 9th district in Chicago that the quota was too high. He said it was evidence of a lack of coördination between the CCC, the national defense commission and the draft boards.

"The CCC headquarters in Washington should not fix such a high figure," Dewey said. "It should be realized that private industry in the expanding defense program, and the draft, are taking many young men.

Enrollees Dropping Out.

"Enrollees in the CCC are dropping out as they find themselves fitted for private industry and specialization in the army, navy, and marines thru trade training received in the camps. The national defense commission and the draft boards should coöperate with the CCC to prevent fixing needlessly high quotas."

Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC and city relief administrator, said there is no expectation of filling the January quota.

"This large number of CCC vacancies shows that young men are finding places in private industry or entering the armed forces in preference to seeking government by joining the camps," he said. "CCC enrollees are from 17 to 24 years old and those between 21 and 24 are not exempt from the draft."

There were 11,343 young men in the Illinois camps at the end of November. This is a decrease of more than 2,000 from the figure a year ago, according to Carl H. Martini, director of the certification and service division of the IERC.

Military Enlistments Grow.

Recruiting stations for the army, navy, and marines in the Chicago area reported yesterday that there have been 454 men enrolled so far this month. Since the draft began two months ago, another 430 have been inducted into the army from this area.

The army recruiting office has taken 145 men since Dec. 1 and still has a few openings under this month's quota for the medical and signal corps. The navy's December quota for the Chicago district is 440. Up to yesterday, 292 men had enlisted. Recruiting officials believe they may fall about 100 short of their quota because of the holiday season, but expected a boom immediately afterward. The marine December quota for the district—17—has been filled.

THREE STUDENTS KILLED IN CRASH; ONE CHICAGOAN

Lawrence Ross, 19 years old, 7106 Stewart avenue, was one of three Miami university students killed yesterday in a head-on automobile-truck collision near Hamilton, O. Charles Roberts, 19, of 411 Blackstone street, La Grange, was seriously injured. All the students were homeward bound for Christmas vacation from the university at Oxford, O.

The other fatally injured youths were Charles W. Irion, 19, and William C. Burkhardt, 18, both of Cincinnati, O. The two Illinois youths were being taken to catch a train when the accident occurred.

Wally Firszt, 27 years old, 4855 Winthrop avenue, a radio assembler, died in Alexian Brothers hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Friday night in a collision at Ashland and Wellington avenues. John Slawek, 29, of 1741 Potomac avenue, driver of the car in which Firszt was riding, and Seebert Sutton, 47, of 1928 Barry avenue, driver of the second auto, were injured.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 862 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 633 were killed in Chicago, where 23,158 were injured during the same period.

"Peace on Earth . . ."

But this Christmas there will be no peace in Greece

No, not even though you are a very little girl in a tiny village, tucked away on a remote mountain . . . not even though you've always been a very good little girl and minded the sheep ever so carefully, or helped Papa in the vineyard and the olive grove.

Even though you didn't cry when Papa went away wearing the strange-looking clothes and carrying a gun . . . even though you were brave and helped keep the other children quiet when the bombs turned half the village into smoking pits . . . there is no peace for you.

Now it's winter and the worst of all possible kinds . . . a war winter. Not enough clothes, not enough fuel, not enough food . . . long cold, bitter nights . . . terrible days, with the planes snarling high above—and bombs in the village street. The younger children to look out for. And never any Papa, now, to make things easier.

We in America didn't want this thing to happen to you. We have no respect for "sawdust caesars," building their shiny tin empires on tears and terror and treachery . . . paving roads to shabby glory on little people's broken hearts. We couldn't prevent it . . . But we can, and will help you now.

We're well-fed . . . well-housed . . . comfortably clothed. Our youngsters this year are going to have the kind of Christmas European children have forgotten all about. Compared to you in war-stricken Greece, we're fabulously wealthy . . . richer, even, than Croesus.

Do you think we're going to forget you? You bet your worn-out little boots we're not!

Keep your chin up, desolate daughter of Hellas . . . our hearts are with you. More than that, our pocketbooks are, too!

THE GREEK WAR RELIEF ASSOCIATION ...headed by a group of men representative of many industries and creeds . . . asks you to assist the work of sending direly needed supplies to stricken Greece. Any amount of money you can spare will be gratefully received . . . a dime . . . a dollar . . . a hundred or a thousand dollars. The need is great . . . more than words can convey. Use the coupon below . . . now!

FIGURES PROVE WHY 1940 CUBS WERE TERRIFIC

They Rank 7th in Team Fielding.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The secret of the 1940 Cubs, who flopped into fifth place as the result of the season's happenings in the National league, is hereby revealed. The Cubs couldn't field, at least not very well, a paucity of skill that marked them as next to the weakest defensive team in the league. According to the official averages announced yesterday, the Chicago entry nosed out only the Pittsburgh Pirates, who were guilty of 216 errors to 199 by the Cubs.

Just why the Cubs burrowed themselves into seventh place as fielders is easily explained by pointing to the mistakes made by some members of the ensemble. Shortstop Bob Mattick, since traded to Cincinnati, was charged with 38 errors. Billy Herman contributed 22 and Stan Hack 23. Twenty-one mistakes were recorded by the various fellows who tried to play first base. Billy Nicholson blundered 13 times, a somewhat high total for an outfielder.

Cincinnati's world champion Reds led the league in team fielding with a .981 average. They were followed by New York with .977, St. Louis with .972, Philadelphia and Brooklyn with .970, and Boston with .969. Then came the Cubs with .968 and the Pirates with .966.

Set New Record.

Cincinnati's fielding mark was a new record, displacing the .978 standard set by Boston in 1933 and tied by the Cubs in 1938. Likewise the Reds' 117 errors were a new National league low, 18 less than the Cubs' record low in 1938.

Billy Myers, the lad the Cubs took from the Reds for Mattick and two others because of a belief that the shortstop post was a glaring weakness, shows up fairly well in the department in which Eddie Miller of the Boston Bees was far ahead of the field. On the other hand Mattick, by the averages, isn't proved a flop. With allowances for the difference in the number of games played, Mattick did better than his successor in the daily number of chances handled successfully.

Frank McCormick of the Reds paced the league's first sackers for the second consecutive season. Bill Werber, also of the Reds, had the leading percentage of the third base guardians. Ernie Lombardi, another Red, outpointed the catchers. The Reds had another leader in Outfielder Harry Craft, whose .997 established a league record. Miller of the Bees took the shortstopping honors with ease. He erred 28 times out of 920 chances and, was high among shortstops in double plays, with 122.

Hartnett Improves Record.

Gabby Hartnett, recently discharged as Cub manager and since signed by the Giants as a player-coach, was in 22 games last season, raising his lifetime total to 1,756. Gabby expects to add a few more during the 1941 season.

Myers, the new Cub, backed into a freak record. He was among the Reds who played a 10 inning game with the Pirates on Sept. 27 but Myers wasn't offered a fielding chance.

Whereas the Detroit Tigers won their American league pennant without a double play combination, the Reds had one to win their National league flag. The Reds produced 158 twin killings, but even then didn't equal Boston's 169 or the Pirates' 161. The entire Red team made only 117 errors all season, this low total explaining why they had fielding leaders in four different positions.

SOUTHWORTH'S SON GIVES UP GAME FOR ARMY

Columbus, O., Dec. 21 (AP).—Billy Southworth, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, today wished happy landings to his son who has decided to give up a baseball career to become an army air corps flying cadet.

"It looks to me like he's passing up a swell chance to go places with the Toronto club of the International league next season. But I'm pretty much sold on army aviation myself now," the father said.

And William Brooks Southworth Jr. declared: "I'm certain I've made the wisest choice. I'm rarin' to start army flying."

Young Billy, 24 years old, will report at Fort Hayes here Dec. 30 and will be sent to Parks Air college, East St. Louis, Ill. He won the Baseball Writers' association most valuable player award as an outfielder for Rome, N. Y., in the Canadian-American league in 1939.

Red Sox Trade Pitcher for Louisville Fielder

Boston, Mass., Dec. 21 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox today acquired Outfielder John Barrett from the Louisville club of the American association in exchange for Pitcher Alex Mustaikis and an unannounced sum. Barrett, whose home is in Lowell, Mass., was on option last season to the San Francisco Seals.

Conn Signs with Jacobs to Meet Louis

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Billy Conn of Pittsburgh, light heavyweight champion, signed today for a crack at the heavyweight crown of Joe Louis in a bout to be promoted by Mike Jacobs next June.

It was a goal for which the Irish youngster had been aiming for a couple of years and culminated two days of almost continual haggling between Jacobs and Conn's manager, Johnny Ray, over conditions of the contract.

Jacobs Wins Argument.

In the end Jacobs won, as he usually does, and Ray agreed to the same percentages offered him yesterday and to a stipulation that should Conn win the title, he would defend it exclusively for Jacobs for the next five years.

Louis will receive 40 per cent of the purse and Conn 20. If Conn should win, he is obliged to give Louis a return match within 90 days and their shares of the proceeds then would be 30 per cent apiece. Ray had held out for the champion's customary cut of 37½ per cent.

No site was designated for the bout, altho it generally was expected to be put on in one of New York's baseball parks. The Pennsylvania Athletic commission has been trying to obtain it for Pittsburgh.

N. B. A. PLANS ACTION

Joe Triner, president of the National Boxing association, and Fred Saddy, chairman of the N. B. A. championship rating committee, will confer tomorrow on what action the association will take against Billy Conn, whose six months' period to defend his light heavyweight title expired on June 17. Altho Conn signed yesterday to meet Joe Louis in a heavyweight title contest next June, he failed to go thru with plans to renounce his 175 pound championship.

In the event the N. B. A. declares Conn's title vacant, Triner and Saddy will recommend that an elimination tournament be ordered held to name a new champion. Six men, listed as outstanding contenders in the next quarterly ratings of the association, to be released on Christmas day, will be named as contestants. They include Mello Bettina, Beacon, N. Y.; Anton Christoforidis, Greece; Gus Lesnevich, Union City, N. J.; Jimmy Webb, St. Louis; Turkey Thompson, Los Angeles, and Tommy Tucker, East Rockaway, Long Island.

The winner of the meet will be requested to defend his newly won laurels against Len Harvey when the British empire standard bearer's war duties are ended.

Indiana Victor Over Stanford Five, 60 to 59

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 21 [Special].—Indiana university's basketball team opened its Pacific coast invasion tonight with an overtime victory over Stanford, 60 to 59. And thus the pupil outwitted the master, for the Hoosiers are coached by Branch McCracken, who played on Indiana's squad when it was tutored by Everett Dean, now the Indians' mentor.

Don Williams, Stanford forward, who was high scorer with 20 points, led the Indians to a 10 point lead early in the game, but by half time Indiana had cut down the margin to 22 to 21, and with two minutes to go was in front, 54 to 52. The Hoosiers dropped back to a control game, but Bill Cowden, Stanford guard, stole the ball, dribbled under the goal and dropped in the tying basket to send the game into overtime.

Andrew Zimmer, Indiana forward, opened the extra time with two beautiful long shots, and Center Bob Menke added two more points with a tip-in, giving the Hoosiers working margin to ward off a Stanford rally that followed. Lineups:

WILDCATS SHOW DAZZLING SPEED IN ROUTING PITT

Panthers Helpless in Second Half.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern called a halt last night on Pittsburgh's victory march thru the Western conference. Forewarned by the Panthers' triumphs this week over Wisconsin and Illinois, the Wildcats came up with a sparkling game in Evanston Township High school gymnasium to subdue the visitors 48 to 28.

Perhaps the Pitt players were a bit travel worn, but the fact remains that the Wildcats put out the type of fast running, sharpshooting attack which presages they will have something to say about the 1941 conference championship. Burly Don Clawson, whom many foes remember as a smashing full back, sparked the Northwestern attack in the first half. Three fouls in this period curbed Clawson somewhat in the second half but Henry Clason, starting forward, and a pair of sophomores, Russ Wendland and Clarence Hasse, carried on in splendid style.

The Wildcats Are Clever.

The entire Northwestern personnel had more snap and speed than recent teams despite the excellent records of these players. The fast breaking attack brought results particularly because of the clever and accurate ball handling of Hasse, Al Butherus, Clason and Wendland. Northwestern hasn't had as smooth a dribbling team in a decade.

Altho Butherus scored the first point and Northwestern later led, 5 to 4, after a cautious start, it was a ding-dong affair for 16 minutes. The score was deadlocked at 8 and again at 13. After this last tie, however, the Wildcats smoothed out their attack. Clawson broke the tie with a free throw, which immediately was duplicated by Clason. Butherus then went under the backboard for a field goal and Clason dropped in a long shot for a half time advantage of 19 to 13.

This Clinches It.

Northwestern clinched the decision in the first three minutes of the second half with three consecutive field goals on three shots. Wendland scored from far out. Clason dribbled in for another, and then Hasse's goal marked up a 12 point lead at 25 to 13. With this margin the Wildcats coasted along carefully until they led, 28 to 19, and then they broke loose with an incredible string of follow up shots.

Five times the Northwestern boys ganged up under the board and batted the ball for goals. Wendland, Clason, Wendland, Hasse, and again Clason was the order of the scoring. This drive sent the Wildcats to the front, 38 to 19, and Pitt abandoned all hope.

Claire Malarkey paced Pitt's futile scoring in the second half with three field goals and one penalty shot. He was the only Panther to get more than one goal in this period. Ed. Straloski of Pitt, who had electrified the Wisconsin crowd Wednesday night with 19 points, was only an average marksman. He finally finished with five points. Lineups:

ILLINOIS NORMAL QUINTET BEATS U. C. L. A., 37 TO 21

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 21 [Special].—Illinois State Normal defeated the University of California of Los Angeles, 37 to 21, here tonight. It was Normal's fourth triumph in five starts this season.

Jackie Robinson, U. C. L. A.'s star forward was held to two field goals. John Scott, Normal center, made nine field goals and three free throws for 21 points.

Normal moved quickly into a 15 to 2 lead. During the first half Scott sank seven baskets and two free throws, and when the two teams left at the intermission, Normal was ahead 22 to 6.

Sharing honors with Scott were the Redbird guards, Capt. Leroy Brandt, Dane Walker, and Jim McBride. Their defensive work held U. C. L. A. to a minimum of shots, the majority of them from midcourt.

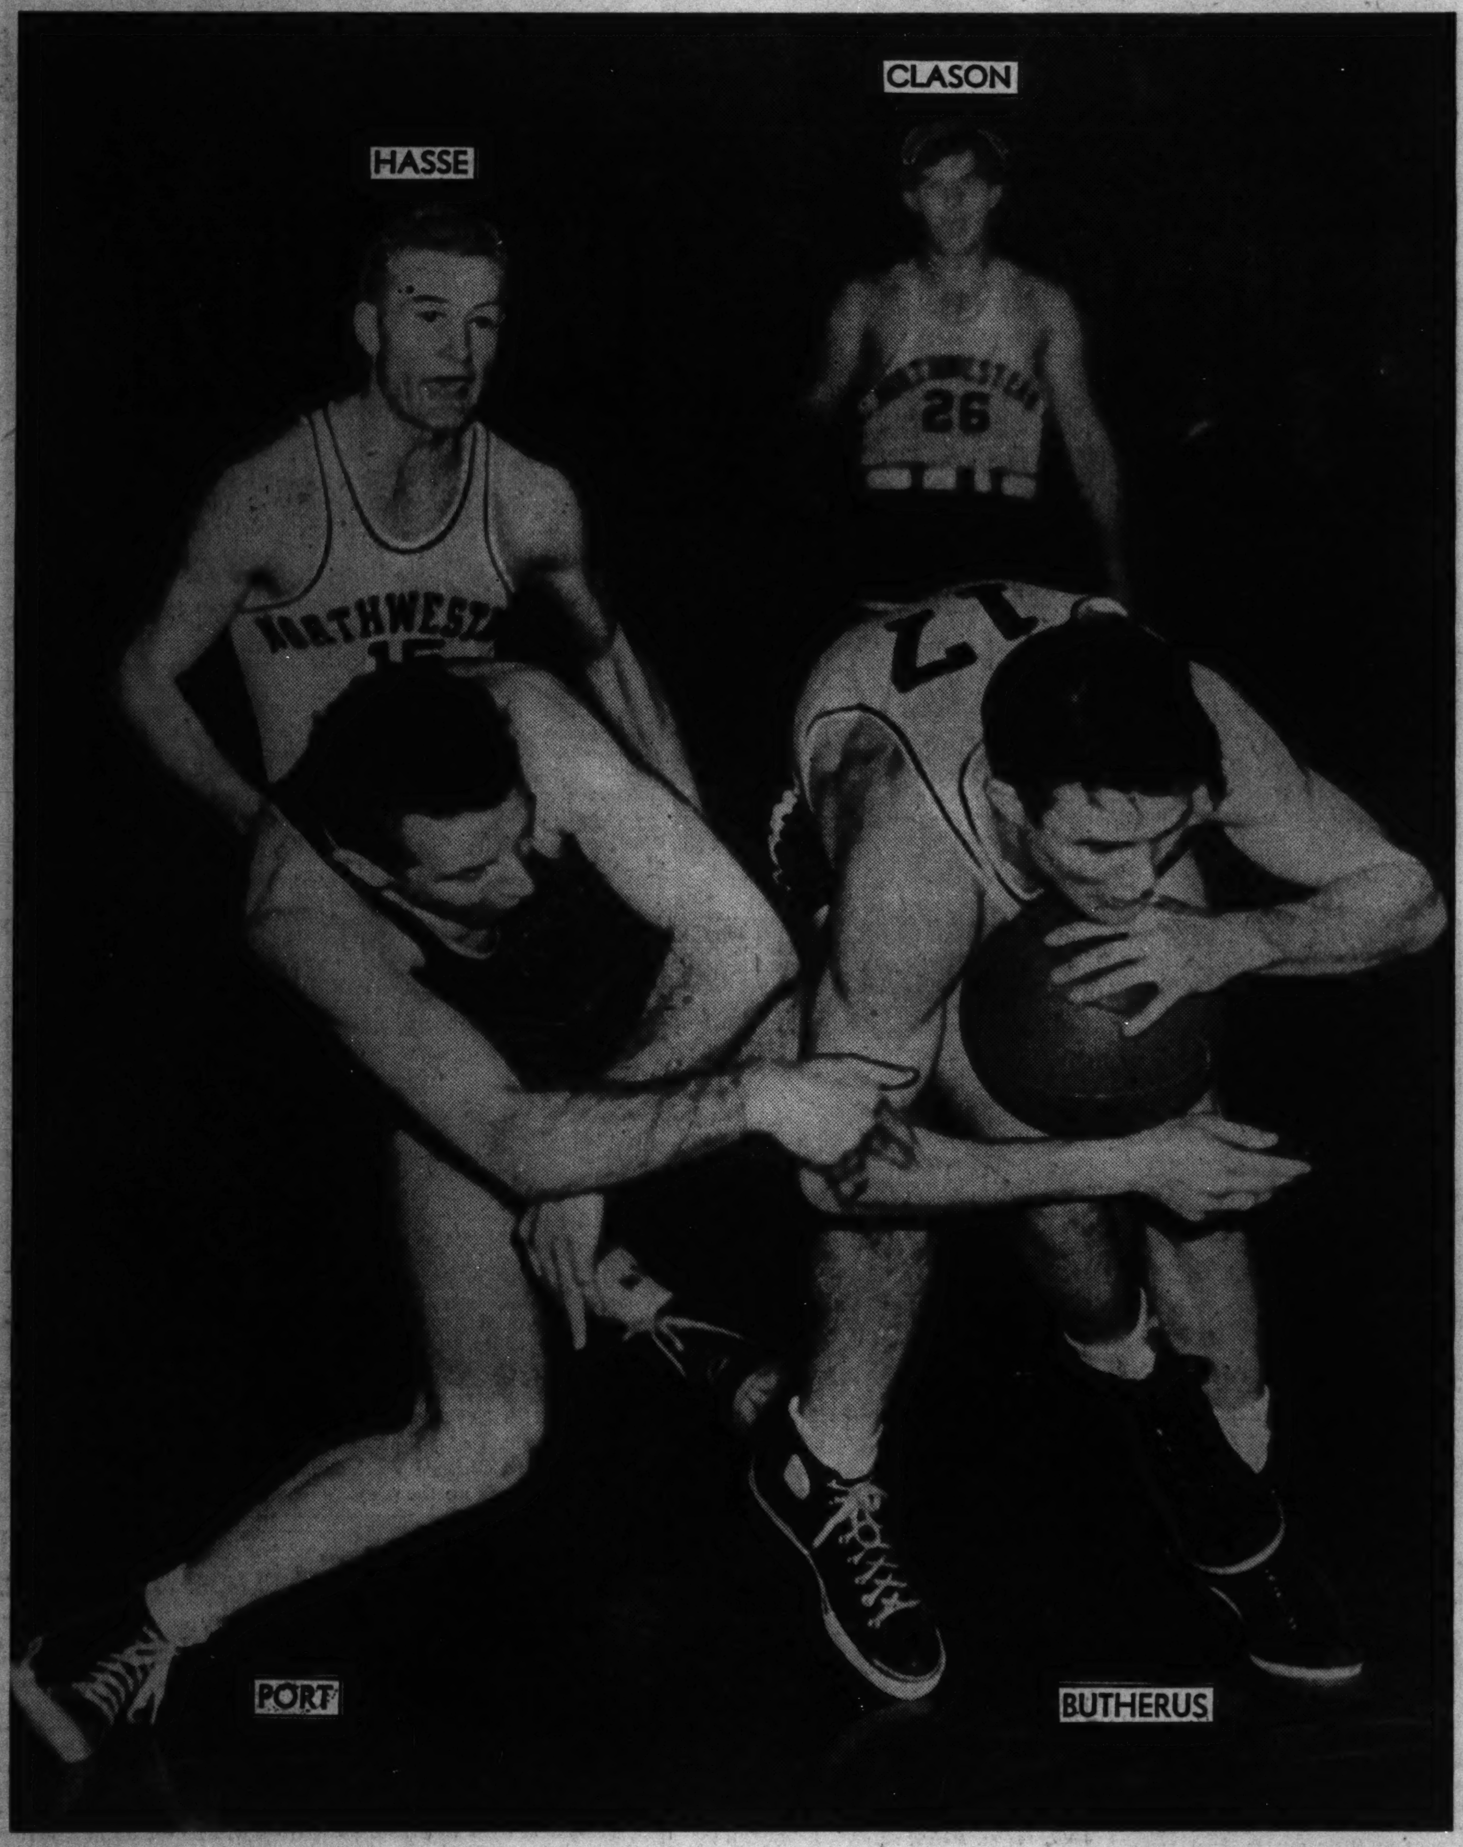
THOSE WILDCATS FINALLY GET WILD



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Northwestern's basketball team, unawed by Pittsburgh's record against other midwestern schools, turns on the power to crush the startled Panthers, 48 to 28, in the Evanston High school gymnasium last night. Capt. Al Butherus defies Melvin Port's efforts to take over the ball in a first-half scrimmage. Clarence Hasse, N. U. guard, is ready to lend a hand while Henry Clason waits his chance in the background.

Race Betters Get Dope Hot from Crooner

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 (AP).—The communications commission said today that two men had been arrested and that illegal broadcasting apparatus had been seized at the Charles Town, W. Va., track following an investigation of broadcasts of sure tips on horse races while the races were being run.

The commission said the arrests were made last night with the cooperation of West Virginia state police.

Use Portable Transmitters.

The commission contended that a man in the grandstand at the Charles Town track employed a portable transmitter to send racing information to a companion in a tourist cabin near by. The latter, the commission said, employed another transmitter to broadcast illegally, sending the information to some outside receiving stations and enabling bets to be made before the results of the races were known generally.

The commission, in a statement, gave this account of the method of operation:

At the start of a race a person could be heard whistling on a certain radio frequency. Then the words "O Johnny" would be repeated several times, followed by the singing of a few bars from such songs as "Beer Barrel Polka" or "Maryland, My Maryland." As the horses neared the finish line the voice suddenly would cut in with a number, repeated until the race was completed.

Number Is Repeated.

Immediately after this number was spoken a stronger signal on another frequency would repeat the same number perhaps 10 or 15 times, followed by such commonplace expressions as "testing" or "testing for modulation," and finally the words "that is all." A check of the race results showed that numbers in question were the numbers of the winning horses.

SNEAD FAVORITE TO DEFEAT CUBAN IN $5,000 MATCH

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 21—Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., who ranks among the leading American professional golfers of 1940, and Rufino Gonzalez, considered the best Cuban golfer of all time, will meet tomorrow in a 36 hole medal play match on Havana's Country club course to decide a $15,000 private wager. The first 18 hole round starts at 10 a. m. and the second at 2:30 p. m.

The match is the result of a bet recently made in New York City between Thorwald Sanchez Batista, wealthy Cuban, and Thomas Shevlin, New York sportsman. Previous accounts had described the event as a $10,000 match. Batista contended the Cuban could not be beaten on his home course, which is 6,300 yards long with 18 holes and a par 72.

Hundreds Make Wagers.

It is understood the winner of the match will receive half the winnings of his sponsor. Hundreds of other fans also are wagering on the outcome. Bets made today were reported to be at even money or at odds slightly favoring Snead.

Gonzalez played in the 1938 National Open tournament in Birmingham, Mich., qualifying in Jacksonville, Fla. He established a course record of 67 in Havana in February, 1939, during an exhibition match with Ralph Guldahl and Denny Shute. His unofficial record is 63, the lowest in the 28 years of the Cuban club's existence.

Snead Shoots 67 Round.

Snead arrived here on Tuesday and has been practicing daily at the club, making scores of 67 on Tuesday, 65 on Wednesday, 72 on Thursday, and 71 on Friday. Gonzalez's practice rounds were well below his course average of 68.

Wisconsin Is Upset, 40-30, by Marquette

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 21—[Special].—Led by Bill Komenich, senior guard who scored 15 points in a second half rally, the Marquette university basketball team came from behind tonight to hand the University of Wisconsin a 40 to 30 defeat before 5,300 fans in the Milwaukee auditorium.

The Marquette victory, coming as an upset after the Hilltoppers' poor showing on the road last week-end, enabled them to even the series for the year with Wisconsin. The Badgers won the first game at Madison two weeks ago.

Komenich Leads Scoring.

Komenich's 17 points were high for the night, but he had scoring help from Bill Rogers, Marquette center, who tallied 13 points. Gene Englund, center, was high for Wisconsin with 12. The

The Badgers, with Ted Strain leading the way, took an early 9 to 1 lead, but Rogers, Marquette center, found the hoop and sparked a rally that brought the Hilltoppers up so that they trailed only 16 to 12 at the intermission.

Marquette Ties Score.

Strain scored again for Wisconsin as the second half opened, but Marquette quickly tied the score, 18 to 18, on two baskets by Mike Poja and one by Komenich, and then went ahead on the latter's free throw. Strain tied the score again with a free throw that made it, 19 to 19, but Komenich's follow up put the Hilltoppers in front for keeps. The big guard turned tributions. Lineups:

BOILERMAKERS RUN UP 29 TO 19 EDGE AT HALF

Fifth Triumph for Big 10 Champions.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Purdue's Boilermakers last night experienced difficulty against another Chicago quintet, but the Western conference champions finally found the range and headed home for Lafayette with a 50 to 35 victory over Loyola university, accomplished before 3,200 in Loyola gymnasium.

Purdue, which suffered its first defeat of the season against De Paul's Demons Friday night, did not demonstrate its superiority over the Ramblers until only four minutes remained in the first half. Loyola's George Wenskus flipped in two field goals to tie the score, 19 to 19, but the Boilermakers came back with five baskets in the final minutes of the half to lead, 29 to 19.

Fifth Victory for Purdue.

Don Blanken and Don Blemker were Purdue's leaders in the victory, the fifth of the season. Blanken contributed three baskets and six free throws, while Blemker added four field goals. Mickey Rottner was Loyola's individual star with six baskets and two free throws. Wenskus collected four field goals and four free throws.

The Boilermakers' triumph was never in doubt after they had gained the 10 point advantage. From the time the Ramblers tied the score with four minutes to go in the first half until the last four minutes of the game, a 20 minute period, Loyola scored only 10 points on 3 baskets and 4 free throws.

Galvin Stays on Bench.

Johnny Galvin and Mickey Tierney, former stars of the Chicago Catholic High School league and Loyola's national interscholastic tournament, did not have a part in the victory. Galvin spent the entire game on the bench while Tierney entered the contest in the second half and remained long enough to commit three fouls. Lineups:

MICHIGAN UPSETS BUTLER

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 21 [Special].—Showing a remarkable reversal of form, Michigan's basketball team, expected to be a more or less easy victim of Butler's strong five, won from the Bulldogs tonight, 32 to 25. Michigan led all the way, having a half time margin of 16 to 9.

Hamilton scored from far out and Dietz added a basket from the corner at the start of the game. Mandler made two free throws and Brogan added a field goal to tie it, 4 to 4. Hamilton made a free throw and Mandler added a point from the foul line, then netted a push in, and another from farther out. Dietz scored a spot shot, but Mandler canceled it with a beautiful field goal pushed back over his head. Cartmill's free toss and Sofiak's basket from a corner ran the Michigan advantage up to 14 to 7. Hamilton's tip in and Mandler's fourth basket completed the first half scoring with Michigan leading, 16 to 9.

Mandler Scores Again.

Mandler scored his fifth basket to start the second half. Dietz connected from far out and added two from the foul line, but Mandler made his sixth on a pivot and Sofiak broke fast under the basket to make it Michigan, 22 to 13.

Butler rallied soon after as McCray, Dietz, and Hamilton scored field goals to whittle Michigan's lead to 24 to 22. Michigan then pulled away again, Mandler featuring the final Michigan drive with his seventh basket.

Notre Dame Basket Coach to Visit Mayo Clinic

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 21 [Special].—George Keogan, who is in his 18th year as University of Notre Dame basketball coach, will go to the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., Wednesday night for a complete physical checkup, it was announced today. Notre Dame faces Illinois Monday night in its last game before the New Year's eve contest with Northwestern in Evanston. The squad will disband after Monday's contest, returning Friday to prepare for the game with the Wildcats.

IOWA BREAKS TIE IN LAST MINUTE; BEATS DETROIT

Chapman's Goal Clinches 37-35 Victory.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 21 [Special].—The University of Iowa basketball team had to depend on an unheralded substitute for the winning basket in the last 80 seconds tonight as the Hawkeyes squeezed thru with a 37 to 35 victory over the University of Detroit before barely 1,200 spectators.

Tom Chapman supplied the winning field goal after Detroit overcame an 11 point lead to tie the score, 35 to 35.

Iowa breezed to a 24 to 13 lead in the first half, but started coasting too early in the second period. Detroit tied the score with 70 seconds to play on John Gedda's long one handed shot while being fouled. He made the free throw for the tying point. Chapman followed quickly with his winning shot.

Iowa never trailed in registering its fourth straight triumph of the season, but were far from impressive. The Hawkeyes tried a fast breaking attack thruout, but missed shots galore. They were so erratic in the last half that they played thru a 10-minute stretch without scoring a field goal.

Chapman's winning basket was made possible by Milt Kuhl, six foot six inch center. Kuhl beat half a dozen players to the ball in a wild scramble and whipped a pass to Chapman who was standing unguarded under the basket. Lineups:

OHIO LOSES, 46-38

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 21 [Special].—Michigan State displayed a complete reversal of form tonight to beat Ohio State, 46 to 38. Ability to take advantage of their opportunities from the free throw line gave the Spartans victory.

Ohio State grabbed a two point lead at the start of the game but its advantage was short lived. Joe Gerard and Max Hindman started the Spartans on their way and after five minutes of play they led, 6 to 3. The Buckeyes then encountered trouble in locating the basket and midway in the half State led, 16 to 10.

Joe Graf came into the Buckeye lineup at this point and the team started to function smoothly for the first time. Graf rolled up five points during the remainder of the first half. Michigan State maintained its advantage however and at half time was leading, 22 to 13. Lineups:

GOPHERS, 43; HUSKERS, 36

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 21 [Special].—Minnesota defeated the University of Nebraska basketball team here tonight, 43 to 36, before 1,700.

Nebraska's offense was ragged and failed to score a field goal in the first eight minutes. The Cornhuskers were caught flatfooted on defense, too.

Les Livingston of Nebraska led the individual scoring with 15 points, 12 of them in a futile one man second half rally. Don Carlson scored 12 for Minnesota. Two long field goals from midcourt by Stuart MacDonald just before the half time gun sounded gave the Gophers a 22 to 11 lead at the intermission.

Nebraska was unable to close the gap to less than eight points during the second half. Lineups:

MARGO G WINS CHARLES TOWN'S FINAL FEATURE

Charles Towns, W. Va., Dec. 21 (AP).—Margo G, 6 year old mare owned by the Hopeful Stock farm, drove to a one length victory today in the Waterford handicap before a closing day crowd of 8,000.

A. S. Hamilton Jr.'s Asterisk finished second and A. R. Cremen's Martha's Queen, another length and a half farther back, was third in the field of 10. Margo G was clocked in 2:08 for the mile and an eighth over a deep, holding track.

All of the first three horses were longshots. Margo G paid $24.60, $12.80 and $7.40; Asterisk, $18.20 and $9.40, and Martha Queen's, $11.40.

Jean C set the early pace but faded when Asterisk took command on the back stretch. Then Margo G, Martha's Queen and Somali began moving up from the rear.

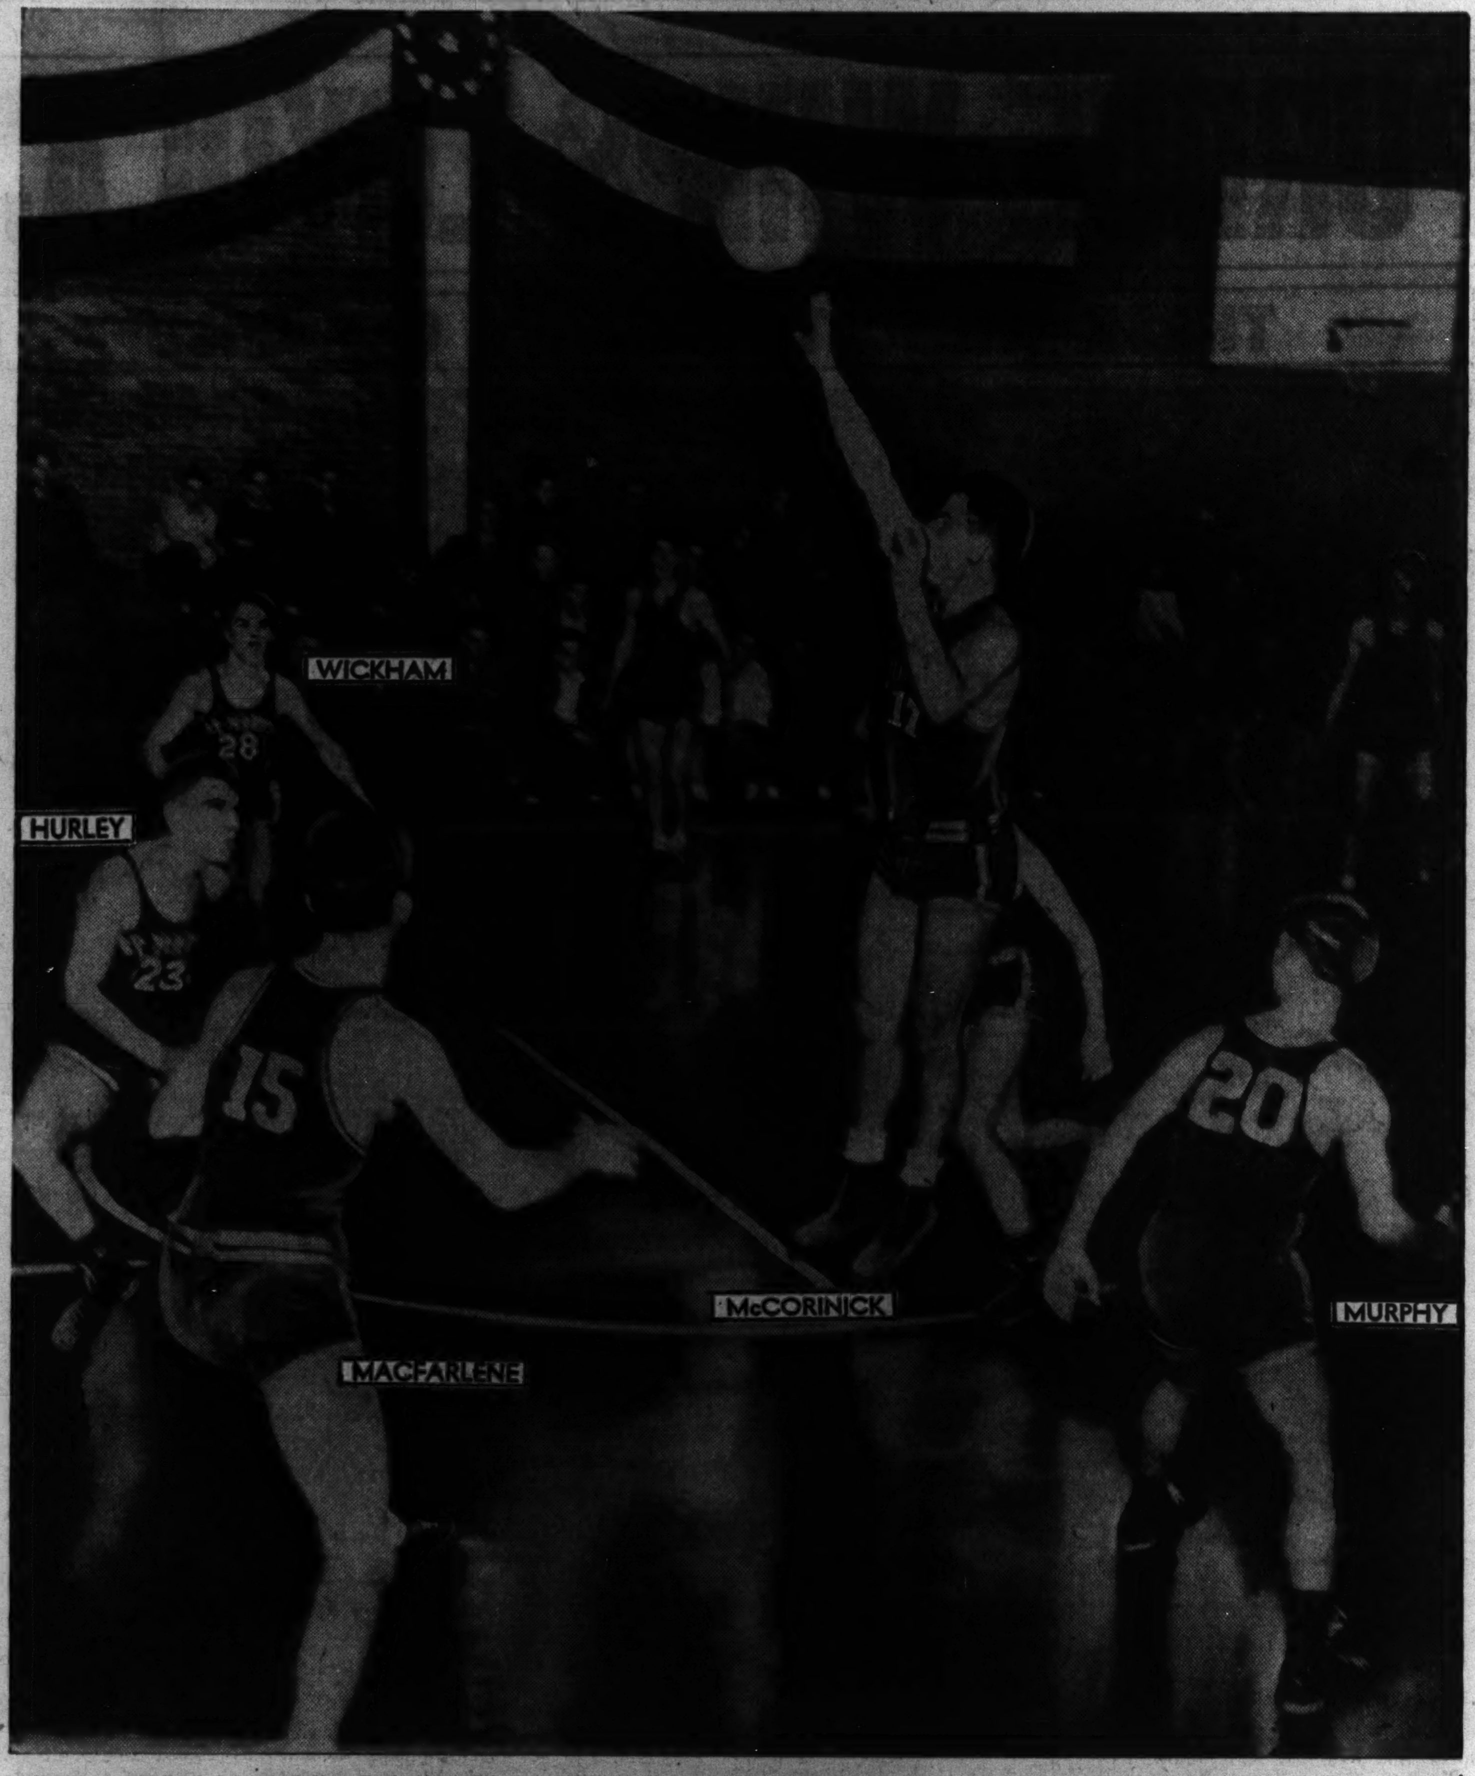
KEEPING JOLIET IN HOLIDAY TOURNEY



William McCorinick of Joliet Catholic High school leaps high to fire a long shot against St. Mary's of Woodstock in yesterday's quarter-finals of the holiday basketball tournament in St. George's gymnasium in Evanston. Bill and his helpers eked out a 30 to 25 victory to enter the semi-finals along with Loyola academy, which defeated St. Patrick's, 35 to 25. John Macfarlene of Joliet is ready to take care of the rebound while Richard Hurley, Clifford Wickham, and Clinton Murphy, all of St. Mary's, attempt to break up the play. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Loyola, Joliet, Mount Carmel, Fenwick Gain Prep Semi-Final

Semi-finals in the seventh annual St. George pre-season Catholic high school basketball tournament will be played tonight in the St. George gym, Evanston.

Fenwick, the defending champion, and Mount Carmel will meet in the second semi-final game at 9 o'clock. Mount Carmel won from De La Salle last night, 29 to 23.

Fenwick eliminated Lewis Holy Name of Lockport, 47 to 20, running up the highest score of the tournament.

Mount Carmel Takes Lead.

Mount Carmel got off to a running start against De La Salle in the opening game of the evening card, holding an edge of 12 to 7 in the first period, 20 to 14 at the half, and 24 to 16 at the end of the third period. Dave Wilson was high point man with seven field goals and one free throw for Mount Carmel while George Connor, with nine points, was best for the Meteors.

Fenwick's Jack Payette and Bill Doherty tallied 29 points together in the final game of the evening. Hal Blouin was the only member of the Holy Name team who was hitting with any degree of consistency and his nine points didn't even make a dent in the Fenwick efforts.

The Joliet team advanced by defeating St. Mary's of Woodstock, 30 to 25, in the first afternoon game, while Loyola defeated St. Patrick's, 35 to 25. Joliet had to battle every minute of the way to turn back the hard fighting St. Mary team, which led, 10 to 9, at the end of the first period. The score was tied, 15 to 15, at the end of the half, but Joliet forged ahead in the final period after the teams were still deadlocked, 23-all, at the end of the third period.

Joliet Reserves Factors.

The scoring was split up among the five starting regulars, but it was reserve strength that resulted in Joliet's victory inasmuch as the substitutions gave the regulars an opportunity to rest. Jim Kuppe, Woodstock center and captain, counted four field goals and six free shots to lead both teams in scoring.

Loyola had things more its own way, outclassing Coach Barney Varnes' Shamrocks in the second period and holding the margin the rest of the way. Loyola led 14 to 10 at the end of the first period; jumped out in front to a 24 to 11 lead at the half and had a 29 to 21 edge at the end of the third period.

Charles Kemen, forward, and Jack Dee, a guard, scored more than half of their team's points while Mariano La Rocco, St. Patrick forward, led his mates with four field goals and one free throw.

Spruce, Balsam Stir Memories of Northland

BY BOB BECKER.

In just a few days millions of Christmas trees will be set up in American homes. These little trees from the north country always play an important part in the celebration of Christmas, for they contribute to the beauty and atmosphere of this deeply religious holiday. They come from the frozen north where they have felt the stern touch of winter. But this wintry touch is gone when we put them up in our homes, for a lighted Christmas tree seems to generate warmth and friendship at this time of the year.

And because it stays alive and green during the freezing cold days of winter, a little balsam or spruce tree also serves as a symbol of the eternal significance of Christmas.

A Custom Centuries Old.

There is another reason why all of us associate Christmas with the dark green spruces, the trim balsams, and the pungent wreaths of cedar and long leafed pine. We like to have something green in our homes during the Christmas holidays . . . a custom and a desire so old that it is lost in the religious observance of the Christian era.

Altho bringing a Christmas tree into the home delights both young and old, we have the feeling that a real outdoorsman gets more enjoyment out of a little spruce or balsam than any one. To one who has portaged trails thru the quiet woods of the north country, watched the flickering light of a campfire far from noisy motor roads, slept on a bed of balsam boughs, and watched the deer yard up in a cedar swamp, a Christmas tree is more than a delightful symbol of the holiday season.

A Delight to Sportsmen.

It also is a messenger from the great outdoors. . . . A messenger that brings reminders of unforgettable trips to unknown lakes, secluded camp sites and hushed woodlands which are the delight of the man who really loves the outdoors.

When we bring a small balsam tree into our home tomorrow it will be decorated with tinsel, flashing ornaments and colored lights in the usual Christmas manner. But the tree will need no such decorations to enhance its value and symbolism to us.

The rich fragrance of its tiny needles is going to bring memories of our old camps in the Ontario trout country when we slept on balsam boughs . . . of snowblown trails in the caribou country of Yukon territory . . . of lonely cabins in the far north where the snow drifted deep and the wolves harassed the deer . . . and our hidden bass lake in Ontario, a peaceful fishing spot fringed by the tall spruces and fluttering birches.

GAMES TONIGHT.

Boston at Detroit.
Toronto at New York Americans.
New Rangers at Chicago.

The New York Rangers and the Chicago Blackhawks, only one point apart in the National Hockey league standings, clash tonight in the Chicago Stadium for the second time this season. The Rangers hope to gain revenge for a 4 to 1 defeat earlier in the month. By so doing, they could trade places with the Hawks in the league race.

Each team will go into action after two nights of rest following victories on Thursday when the Hawks defeated Montreal, 2 to 0, and the Rangers won from Boston, 5 to 3.

Last spring the Rangers became the first club in history to win the Stanley cup three times under the playoff system now in vogue. They played 19 games without suffering a defeat. This season, however, the New Yorkers have won only six, while losing seven and tieing two. This was due partially to injuries to Art Coulter and Alex Shibicky. Coulter still is unavailable, altho Shibicky was in action against Boston Thursday.

Manager Paul Thompson of the Hawks plans to start a lineup composed of Goodman, Seibert, Wiebe, Bill Carse, March, and Allen. Lester Patrick of the Rangers probably will counter with Kerr, M. Patrick, Pratt, Watson, Hextall, and Miller.

LEAFS, AMERICAN3 TIE

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 21 (AP).—The Toronto Maple Leafs, leaders of the National Hockey league, engaged in their first tie game of the season tonight, a 2 to 2 battle with the New York Americans.

Toronto went ahead at 14:53 of the second period on Nick Metz's backhand shot. The Americans tied it in the last five seconds of the period on a tally by Lorne Carr.

In the third period Tommy Anderson sent New York to the front, but Sweeney Schriner tied the count again with his 11th goal of the season. Lineups:

CANADIENS WIN, 3-1

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 21 (AP).—Backed by the steady performance of Goalie Bert Gardiner, the Montreal Canadiens scored two goals late in the third period for a 3 to 1 victory over the Boston Bruins before a crowd of 5,000. The victory gave Montreal a tie with the New York Americans for sixth place in the National Hockey league standing.

The teams scored a goal apiece in the second period. With about seven minutes to play in the third, a pretty play by Center Elmer Lach put Montreal ahead and Ray Getliffe clinched the decision by scoring on a breakaway play less than a minute later.

TAYLOR'S THREE WINNERS REDUCE LEAD OF RIVAL

Miami, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP).—Walter Lee Taylor, who came to Tropical Park from Charles Town, W. Va., for a shot at the jockey honors of the year, rode one winner yesterday and three more today and thus pulled within easy striking distance of his rival, Earl Dew.

Taylor's spectacular surge forward gave him 274 winners for the year, only six behind Dew, a recent arrival from California. Taylor scored a major triumph in today's feature, the $2,000 added Miami handicap, when he rode E. K. Bryson's Clyde Tolson to victory. Dew's horse was fourth in the field of seven. The following event produced an even more smashing victory when Taylor brought in Talent, a $90.40 for 2 shot, and Dew was 12th and last aboard Pari-Ernest.

Taylor's first victory of the day was with Bell Tower, a favorite, who broke last and won by a nose.

Corby Davis and His Bride

Illini, Gopher Teams Start on Eastern Trips

Games This Week

TOMORROW.

Illinois at Notre Dame.
Iowa at Michigan State.
Minnesota at Creighton.
Indiana at California.
Pittsburgh at Butler.
William and Mary at Bradley.

WEDNESDAY.

Yale at Bradley.

THURSDAY.

Illinois vs. Manhattan, in New York.
Nebraska at California.

FRIDAY.

Indiana at Southern California.
Cornell at Bradley.
Yale vs. Loyola, in Chicago Coliseum.
Butler vs. De Paul, in Chicago Coliseum.
Nebraska at Stanford.

SATURDAY.

Minnesota vs. N. Y. U., in New York.
Kansas vs. Fordham in New York.
Illinois at Temple.
Indiana at U. C. L. A.
Michigan vs. Pittsburgh, in Columbus, O.
Princeton at Ohio State.

Beginning with Illinois' invasion of Notre Dame tomorrow night, this week in basketball will be as busy as any this month, altho interrupted by the observance of Christmas on Wednesday. Headlining the Chicago activity is the double header in the Coliseum which pits Yale university against Loyola and Butler against De Paul. These games will be played Friday.

Four conference quintets also are booked in double headers in Columbus, O., and in New York. The Illini go east for a Thursday game in Madison Square Garden with Manhattan college. They are followed by Minnesota which meets New York university Saturday night on the same court.

On the same evening in Columbus, O., Michigan plays Pittsburgh and Princeton meets Ohio State in a double header. The Big Ten teams then will change partners for another double header two days later.

Trip to Pacific and Gulf.

Indiana university covers the most ground, however, of any quintet. The Hoosiers meet California tomorrow night, the second opponent on their western trip. On Friday Indiana engages Southern California in Los Angeles and on the following night faces U. C. L. A. That same night the Indiana squad leaves by air for Memphis by way of Fort Worth, Tex., and then continues by rail to New Orleans to play Kentucky on Dec. 30 in the annual Sugar bowl game.

Illinois will attempt to preserve its 1.000 rating in the Madison Square Garden. In previous games there, the Illini defeated St. John's, 60 to 45, in 1937; and whipped Manhattan, 60 to 41, in 1938.

Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., has three games at home this week. William and Mary is Bradley's opponent tomorrow night. Yale at Bradley is the only Christmas night game in the midwest, and on Friday Cornell university faces Bradley.

Four Big Ten Teams Idle.

Minnesota's first game of the week comes tomorrow night when the Gophers go to Omaha, Neb., to engage Creighton. Iowa is Michigan State's guest in East Lansing tomorrow.

Northwestern, Chicago, Wisconsin, and Purdue are not scheduled this week. The Wildcats' next game is the annual New Year's eve battle with Notre Dame. Wisconsin and Pitt will meet on the same date in Milwaukee. Chicago's next game is at Western State [Mich.] on New Year's night.

The Boilermakers, defending Big Ten champions, play Indiana State Teachers on their home court Jan. 2 and this is the last preliminary contest before the initial conference battle with Illinois in Champaign.

16,500 See St. John's Five Defeat Oklahoma, 45 to 41

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—St. John's college of Brooklyn, defeated the Oklahoma basketball team tonight, 45 to 41, before some 16,500 fans in the first game of a Madison Square Garden double header. After getting off to a slow start, St. John's pulled out in front after pint-sized Tom Baer entered the game, and never was headed thereafter. The half score was 21 to 18.

Wilmette Girl Becomes Bride of Corby Davis

Miss Margaret Ann Johnston and Corby Davis, former Indiana university football back field star, were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Johnston, in Wilmette.

Dr. Hubert Carleton, pastor of the Wilmette Episcopal church, officiated. Seventy-five friends and relatives attended.

Davis, 26 years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nate Davis of Lowell, Ind. In 1936, Davis was chosen the most valuable player in the Big Ten conference, and received the Chicago Tribune Silver Football trophy. He played with the professional Cleveland Rams for two years and last year became athletic director of the St. Charles High school.

The 21 year old bride was graduated from Indiana university, in June with highest honors. She was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic society, and was a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Davis was a member of Delta Chi fraternity.

The couple plan a two weeks' honeymoon in Florida.

Sonja Henie's 1941 Revue to Open Thursday

The 1941 Hollywood Ice Revue, starring Sonja Henie, and regarded as the most elaborate presentation of its type offered in Chicago since Miss Henie turned professional in 1936, will open in the Chicago Stadium Thursday night for the first of 10 performances. The show will run nightly thru Jan. 5, except New Year's night, when it will be interrupted for a hockey game.

The new revue is expected to attract a record attendance, according to Arthur Wirtz, head of the Stadium interests which own and are producing the revue. A total of 200,000 may see the 10 performances. The ticket sales already indicates that the record of 150,000 set in eight performances last year, is certain to be passed.

More Variety and Comedy.

The 1941 revue differs from past shows starring Miss Henie in several respects. It has more variety and more comedy. The supporting cast also is said to be superior to those of past shows and the ballet and chorus of 60 boys and girls, which has been in rehearsal or on tour since September, is said to be well trained.

Listed as featured skaters are Harrison Thomson of Montreal, Miss Henie's partner in five appearances; Eugen Mikeler of Vienna, who has replaced Stewart Raeburn as Miss Henie's tango partner; Fritz Dietl, also a Viennese, whose specialty in skating on stilts; Freddie Trenkler, also of Vienna, Dietl's partner in a comedy routine and the troupe's star comedian as the "bouncing ball of the ice"; and Tommy Lee and Charlie Slagle, Californians whose routine is similar to that of the well known Swiss duo, Frick and Frack.

Two Ballet Routines.

Other skaters featured are Amanda Dietrich, Iris Gordon, Grace Gale, Marianna Tucker, and Matt Farrell. The girls of the ballet are presented in two routines entitled "Reverie in White" and "The Glow Worm." Miss Henie appears seven times, skating a total of 40 minutes during the two and one-half hour show.

The revue is staged in two acts and 20 scenes, settings and costumes for which cost more than $60,000. William H. Burke is general manager of the show for the fourth successive season.

MINNESOTA, BIG 9 DOMINATE 1940 GRIDIRON SEASON

Ohio State, Notre Dame, Cornell Hit Skids.

1940 Champions

Big Nine—Minnesota.
Pacific Coast—Stanford.
East—Boston college.
Southern—Clemson.
Southeastern—Tennessee.
Southwest—Texas A. & M. and Southern Methodist.
Big Six—Nebraska.
Big Seven—Utah.
Missouri Valley—Tulsa.
Illinois college conference—Illinois Wesleyan and Lake Forest.
Little 19—Illinois Normal.
Midwest—Beloit.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Minnesota's return to the championship rung of the Western conference ladder is the salient fact in the football campaign just ended. And the Gophers' victories over Michigan and Northwestern, which finished second and third, respectively, were the feature games of the conference season.

The collapse of Ohio State, 1939 champion; Wisconsin's rally to tie for fourth place in the standings after early defeats, and Iowa's upset of Notre Dame were subsidiary features of the 1940 race. In general, however, the outstanding accomplishment was the intersectional and nonconference record set by Big Nine teams. Once more the Big Nine asserted its right to lead the football parade.

Minnesota's undefeated record in the conference was not entirely unexpected but Michigan probably had been rated higher in advance guesses. Yet the Gophers survived the test by beating Northwestern, 13 to 12, and following a week later with a 7 to 6 conquest of Michigan, handing the Wolverines their only defeat. Minnesota's difficult schedule also served to give the Gophers the No. 1 rating in the nation.

Beat Washington, Nebraska.

That national title might easily have been lost in either of the first two games, but, like real champions, the Gophers came from behind to whip the University of Washington, 19 to 14, and then defeated Nebraska, which later won the Big Six title and an invitation to the Rose bowl. George Franck and Bruce Smith, brilliant half backs, were mainsprings of the Gopher attack. Smith won the Michigan game with his eighty yard run and Franck, chosen the most valuable player by his teammates, returned a kickoff to whip Washington. Each had other remarkable achievements.

The story of Michigan largely was a story of the superlative playing of Tom Harmon, winner of the Chicago Tribune trophy awarded to the player most valuable to his team in the Western conference. Harmon turned back the pages of gridiron history to the days of Red Grange. Certainly in between there has been no figure of such stature.

Backing Harmon, of course, was a spirited Wolverine squad, carefully drilled, and brilliantly led by Forest Evashevski, the best blocking back in the conference. Harmon could not do the job alone, but with Harmon a better than average Michigan eleven became a great eleven. California, Harvard, Pennsylvania, and Michigan State were beaten in nonconference games.

Harmon Sets a Record.

Illinois was walloped, 28 to 0, in payment for the 1939 upset by the Illini and then came the decisive battle with Minnesota. On the next Saturday Michigan's first half overbalanced Northwestern's rally and the Wolverines won the game for second place in the conference, 20 to 13. Ohio State was crushed, 40 to 0, and with three touchdowns in this game Harmon set up a new Big Nine season's scoring record of 33 touchdowns.

While Michigan and Minnesota had been tabbed as contenders, Northwestern's drive was an agreeable surprise to many Wildcat alumni. From the remnants of a disappointing 1939 campaign, Coach Lynn Waldorf put together an enthusiastic and a loyal eleven. Veteran backs, including burly Don Clawson, Red Hahnenstein, and Bill De Correvont, operated behind a sturdy altho light line.

Burt Ingwersen, line coach, gets credit for an incredible job and while the line lacked replacements, it did not lack spirit. Alf Bauman was universally regarded as a star tackle and Paul Hiemenz, Northwestern's most valuable player who trailed Harmon in the conference vote, was the Big Nine's outstanding center.

Northwestern climaxed its season of six victories and two defeats by beating Notre Dame, 20 to 0. Clawson and De Correvont were the offensive stars in the third victory the Wildcats have registered against the Irish and the first since 1935.

Iowa Poison to Notre Dame.

Notre Dame's undefeated march of six consecutive games had ended the preceding week when Iowa won in the Notre Dame stadium, 7 to 0. Bill Green scored the touchdown. Thus Iowa duplicated its 1939 achievement when the Hawkeyes, with Nile Kinnick scoring, had ended another Irish march with a 7 to 6 conquest.

Kinnick's value in 1939—he was the conference's most valuable player—was demonstrated after the first two Iowa games this fall. South Dakota and Wisconsin were beaten and then the Hawkeyes lost four in a row, including a 34 to 6 licking by Minnesota and a one touchdown loss to Nebraska. But the victory over Iowa revived the team which ended the year with an 18 to 7 victory over Illinois.

Wisconsin finally snapped its losing streak in conference play by scoring a touchdown in the last six seconds of the Purdue game to win from the Boilermakers, 14 to 13. This led to a victory over Illinois and later a runaway decision over Indiana, 27 to 10. The Badgers finished with a rousing scrap against Minnesota, losing only 13 to 22. George Paskvan, battering full back, was the bulwark of Wisconsin's attack and defense.

Purdue a Luckless Team.

Purdue had a heartbreaking season, losing several games in the final seconds. Ohio State got a field goal to win 17 to 14. Later it was discovered that Charley Maag, who kicked the goal, had been illegally substituted in the second period and consequently should have been ineligible for the remainder of the game. Wisconsin delivered a coup de grace with two fourth period touchdowns and in the last game, Indiana's final minute field goal took possession of the old oaken bucket, 3 to 0, for the first time in four years.

Indiana defeated Iowa and Purdue, and lost to Texas [conqueror of Texas A. & M.] and to Nebraska by one touchdown each. The Hoosiers also defeated Michigan State but lost conference games to Northwestern, Wisconsin, and Ohio State.

Ohio State's collapse was started by Northwestern, which held the Buckeyes to a net gain of six yards from rushing. Northwestern won 6 to 3. Minnesota and then Cornell poured it on the Buckeyes, who finally disintegrated in the Michigan game. Even Illinois, which failed to win a Big Nine game, held Ohio State 14 to 6.

Illinois Lacks Material.

Illinois' best game probably was played against Southern California when the Trojans won, 13 to 7. But the Illini, handicapped by lack of material and loss of key backs, including Jim Smith, were overmatched against such rivals as Notre Dame, Northwestern, Michigan.

Notre Dame won seven games but its hope for a national championship was blasted by Iowa and then Northwestern thoroly whipped the Irish. Early season opponents did not provide sufficient competition and the Irish line also failed to measure up to expectations.

The faculty committee of the Western conference also shares in this football review. After a special meeting in September, the question of competition in the Rose bowl was referred to the university faculties. Then, in December, the faculty men voted against participation in postseason games after instructions from their own groups.

Stanford Surprises Nation.

Stanford was the surprise team of the nation. Under Clark Shaughnessy who was left without a squad when the University of Chicago voted to drop football a year ago, the Indians were undefeated and won the Pacific Coast conference championship. Southern California, 1939 champion, won only three games. Washington took second place in the conference.

Tennessee continued undefeated in the Southeastern conference and now meets undefeated Boston college, eastern champion, in the Sugar bowl game in New Orleans. Last year Southern California defeated the Volunteers in the Rose bowl. Tulane and Georgia Tech, which had shared the 1939 Southeastern title with Tennessee, dropped out of the picture.

North Carolina eliminated Duke in the Southern conference race and the title went to Clemson. Duke also was beaten by Tennessee. Cornell's defeat by Dartmouth in the famous five downs game, and the Big Red's subsequent licking by Pennsylvania ended Cornell's reign in the east. Texas A. & M. managed to share the title it won outright last year with Southern Methodist but Texas walloped the Aggies and changed their destination for postseason engagement from Los Angeles to Dallas and the Cotton bowl.

CHICAGO CHAMPIONS LEAVE FOR SOUTH

Clean Sweep of Old Marquette Staff Forseen

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 21 [Special].—Announcement today that Paddy Driscoll's successor as head football coach at Marquette university will be permitted to nominate his assistants confirmed reports that there would be a "clean sweep" in the Hilltop football coaching staff.

Contracts of Line Coach John L. [Tarzan] Taylor and Back Field Coach Joe [Red] Dunn, therefore, will not be renewed unless they are nominated by Driscoll's successor. Taylor is known to be an applicant for the position of head coach.

Athletic Director Conrad M. Jennings in making the announcement added that the athletic board will defer at least until Jan. 10 the selection of a coach, and will receive applications until that time.

Stamina Over Speed Is Turf Trend of 1940

BY HOWARD BARRY.

There have been two outstanding developments in the 1940 racing season and by an odd combination of circumstances there is a close relationship between them.

The first of these was distance racing, which was nurtured at Arlington and Washington Park, brought to national prominence with a $50,000 stake at Belmont, and assured of survival with the announcement of another $50,000 stake at Santa Anita. The second development was the importation of European stallions and mares, sprung from a long line of horses bred to go the distances required in the big events of the English and French turf. They bring to American breeding a strain which stresses stamina rather than speed.

Influx of New Blood.

When Hitler sent his legions into Poland there was no thought further from his head than the idea that his action would have its repercussions in the quiet thorobred farms of Kentucky, Maryland, and Virginia. But such was the case. The war promptly killed French and English racing. The invasion of France came so suddenly that many sportsmen were unable to get their valuable thorobreds out in time. In the case of England there has been plenty of opportunity to ship stallions, mares, and race horses. The result is an influx of new blood.

Bahram, Mahmoud, Rhodes Scholar, Easton, Chrysler II., Hairan, and Bel Aethel are among the more prominent stallions to be imported. Heliopolis, Saint Andrews, and Hypnotist have come over to take part in racing campaigns on the American turf.

A Trend Toward Stamina.

If distance racing continues to expand there is every reason to believe that the newly arrived stallions will have a particularly powerful influence on the sport. As the opportunities for distance runners increase, it is logical to expect that American horses will be bred more and more along distance running lines. In the past there has been the steady trend toward greater and greater speed at the expense of stamina.

Distance racing will freshen up the sport in a number of ways. It will give the fans new stars to interest them. It will supply the tracks with new box office attractions. It will give owners an opportunity to cash in on the abilities of horses which might be successful at two miles after failing at six furlongs.

The outstanding concrete example of this is Shot Put. He was just another plater until he began getting chances in distance events. Then he became something for the tracks to advertise, something for the public to be interested in, and a lucrative source of revenue to his owner, Mrs. Marie Evans of Chicago.

BIG 12 PREP RACE SLACKENS; ONLY ONE GAME SLATED

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 21 [Special].—Big 12 conference basketball activity suffers the customary holiday lull next week, with only one league contest scheduled, Champaign playing at Pekin on Friday night.

Four nonconference games fill out the remainder of the week's schedule. Peoria Manual and Peoria Woodruff meet Thursday. Streater entertains West Aurora, Bloomington travels to Clinton, and Urbana to Moline on Friday. Standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Bloomington	3	0	1.000
Urbana	2	0	1.000
Champaign	1	0	1.000
Peorial Manual	1	0	1.000
Lincoln	1	1	.500
Danville	1	2	.333
Streator	1	2	.333

Maine High Swimmers Beat South Bend Central

The Maine Township High school senior swimming team of Des Plaines defeated Central of South Bend, Ind., 47 to 20, in a dual meet at Maine last night.

BOLDEN TO MEET BURNETTE IN 3D BOUT TOMORROW

Nate Bolden, 1937 intercity Golden Gloves middleweight victor, who is a contender for world title honors, is all set for a 10 round rubber match with George Burnette of Detroit in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Burnette conquered Bolden in Detroit on Nov. 1 after his Chicago rival had scored a victory in an earlier meeting. The setback was one of four Nate has suffered in 12 fights this year.

After losing to Teddy Yarosz, Charley Burley, and Jimmy Bivins, Bolden registered consecutive triumphs over Marty Simmons, Burnette, Dick [Honeyboy] Jones, Billy Bengal, Joe Sutka, and Paul Frazier. Following his defeat by Burnette in their rematch, Nate stopped Henry Chmielewski and beat Tony Cisco. Between his two battles with Bolden, Burnette pounded out a decision over Al Bernard on July 23.

Booker Beckwith, Gary light heavyweight, also a Golden Gloves product, will be in quest of his 10th straight victory in a six round semifinal against Orlando Trotter. Trotter points to a conquest of heavyweight Clarence Brown last month as a basis for his belief he can snap Beckwith's chain of triumphs. Preliminary matches, each four rounds, will bring together Billy Pierce, Milwaukee welterweight, and Tony Reno; William Hawkins, former Catholic Youth organization bantamweight, and Richard Rigali, and Matt Milovich, Milwaukee junior welterweight, and Jimmy McCormick.

A wrestling show will be offered in White City tomorrow, featured by Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein, west side heavyweight. Ruffy will attempt to throw two opponents, Juan Humberto and the Irish Angel, within one hour. . . . Johnny Coulon, former bantamweight champion, has announced his appointment as boxing instructor at Morgan Park Military academy. . . . Rudy Hoffman, sports director at the Lake Shore Athletic club, recently expressed the belief that it is impossible for Billy Conn to add 20 pounds to his frame for prospective heavyweight title bout next June and still retain skill and speed.

SOUTH AND EAST OFFICIALS NAMED FOR SUGAR BOWL

New Orleans, La., Dec. 21 (AP).—A proposal that neutrals officiate in the New Year's day Sugar bowl football game between Tennessee and Boston college was converted today into a south and east selection which won general approval.

The suggestion of neutrals was made by Head Coach Frank Leahy of Boston college who said he thought a post season game might be handled better by four officials who had worked together as a team in an outside conference.

The officials announced by A. N. Goldberg, president of the New Orleans Mid Winter Sports association which sponsors the game, follow:

Referee, James [Buck] Cheves [Georgia]; umpire, Fred J. Murray [Georgetown]; headlinesman, G. M. Phillips [Georgia Tech]; field judge, Raymond J. Barbuti [Syracuse].

Leahy gave his squad a morning and afternoon workout today in Bay St. Louis, Miss., while Tennessee was preparing to jump into intensive practice next week.

Southern California Ends Oklahoma's Home Record

Stillwater, Okla., Dec. 21 (AP).—Southern California's lanky Trojans ended the Oklahoma Aggies' home winning streak of 47 games, compiled over four and a half seasons, with a 28 to 25 victory tonight. The Cowboys' last defeat at home was by Grinnell college, then of the Missouri Valley conference, early in the 1935-'36 season.

TURKEY SHOOT TODAY.

The Indian Boundary Gun club has its annual turkey shoot this morning starting at 10 o'clock.

Fenger Squad of 37 Off for Miami Game

Thirty-seven members of Fenger High school's football team, city champion, left yesterday morning for Miami, Fla., and its charity game with Miami High school Wednesday night. Coaches Charles Palmer and Frank Knight, officials of the Public School league, and a group of Fenger's followers also were aboard the special C. & E. I. train which departed from the Roseland station, 111th street and Stewart avenue.

Fenger will seek its 13th victory of the 1940 season against Miami and will attempt to run its streak to 38 games without defeat. The south siders will be playing the game under the risk of suspension from the Illinois High School association. The state group prohibits football games after the first Saturday in December, an amendment passed in November, 1939. The team which left for the south follows:

ENDS—Garrett Prince, Ed Vanderploeg, John Vilet, Pete Rubinas, Don Derrico, Wally Collett.

TACKLES—Clarence De Valk, Al Zussa, John Petrilla, Leonard Neutout, George Mitchell, Ted Kereakes.

GUARDS—Dick Barwegan, Sam Filippo, Ed Arvia, Ray Christian, Frank Satriano, Paul Van Liere, Bill Wood, Ed Dreger.

CENTERS—Kimball Howes, Ed Hutchinson, Earl Rooth.

QUARTER BACKS—Henry Stevenson, Wayne Bridge, Anton Gbur, James Sullivan.

HALF BACKS—Joe Kredens, Bruno Pocius, Al McBroom, Lee Biolchini, Albert Baffo, Glen Anderson, Jack Glover.

FULL BACKS—Ray Florek, Gene Pederson, Art Johnson.

Bruins Play at Hammond; Bid for 3d Victory

League Standings

Firestone	1	5	.167	217	232
Hammond	1	6	.143	255	308

THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE.
Today—Chicago at Hammond.
Monday—Goodyears at Firestones.
Wednesday—Hammond at Chicago.
Thursday—Detroit at Sheboygan.
Friday—Chicago at Akron Firestones.
Sunday, Dec. 29—Detroit at Hammond.

The Chicago Bruins, threatening the Oshkosh Redskins for first place in the National Basketball league race, move into Hammond Civic center to meet the Hammond Ciesars this afternoon. Christmas night the Chicagoans play their second home game of the season with Hammond as the opposition in the 132d Regiment armory.

In two games played to date the Bruins have lived up to advance predictions. In the home opener on Wednesday they defeated the Akron Firestones, 44 to 36, and the following night defeated the Redskins, 27 to 20, on the latter's home court in Sheboygan.

That they will need every point they can score is indicated by the latest standings of individual scorers. Ralph Vaughn, last year's Southern California star, scored 18 points for Hammond against Detroit, bringing his point total to 72 for seven games. Ben Stephens of the Akron Goodyears is the league leader with 78 points in six games.

Bob Neu, former De Paul star, is another Hammond player who is hitting the hoop consistently. Neu is third among the league scorers.

Spartas Meet Olympias in Soccer Game Today

The Sparta Ogden Dairy soccer team, national co-champion which again will represent Illinois in the western semi-finals next spring, will oppose the Olympias at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in an exhibition game in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. Sparta and Olympia reserves will play a preliminary at 12:30. In the only other soccer game in Chicago today, the Hakoah reserves and South Side Swedes' reserve play in Washington Park at 2 o'clock.

CITY PIN TOURNEY OPENS AT GOLD COAST THURSDAY

A Record Entry of 1,484 Teams to Compete.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

All the world has one big night this week—bowlers have two. They not only celebrate Christmas, but any number of them will be at Gold Coast recreation Thursday night for the opening of the 37th annual city tournament—and those who aren't there probably will be checking their schedules to see when they do roll.

Thursday will be the Bowling Proprietors' night, with 72 teams representing various alleys shooting in three squads. They will be the vanguard of 1,484 teams, 1,742 sets of doubles, and 3,345 singles, by far the largest totals in city tournament history, which will occupy the Gold Coast alleys thru Feb. 22. Their objective will be a total of $15,149 in prize money, together with 18 medals, and trophies for the sponsors of winning teams. Teams will roll the first 17 nights, while doubles and singles will be bowled on week-ends.

Several leagues will be inactive during the holiday period. The Classic Sunday is idle tonight while competing in the Central States' tournament at Flint, Mich., but resumes next week. Leagues off two weeks include the Windy City, Classic Wednesday, Gold Coast, Stevenson's, Samuelson's, and Congress women's.

Cinderella recreation last night opened its third annual doubles and singles handicap—three games across six alleys—which is to run every night thru Jan. 1, except Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday this week. The handicap is two-thirds with 200 as scratch, but with a 100 pin per man limit.

The William C. Danne insurance team won three games from the Ambrosia Nectars, while Ivanhoe was taking two from the Walter C. Eden insurance five to break the first place tie in the Beverly Major. The Dannes now have a 37 won—11 lost record, with the Edens two games behind and the Triangle Liquors—who took three from the Dr. Kroms—one more game back.

Two "400" Leaguers Find the Range.

Hallberg's Hoppers moved from fifth to second place in the C. & N. W. "400" league, but the league's highlight was the third battle between two anchormen, Gus Larson of the sixth place White's Streamliners and Eddie Carr of the leading Fitz-Patrick's Traffickers. Both went into the eighth frame with a string of x's and Carr went on to the 10th. Then a light hit, a split, and Eddie finished up with 278 and a 600 series. Gus came up with 645, the league's high for the night, and the Streamliners won two. Then they voted overwhelmingly to enter the League of Leagues competition.

George Haug, who won the city singles championship several decades back, came up with 210-232-229—671 to lead the Hyde Park Major Wednesday night. It won him a turkey. George Foster's 647 was second. The Dave Eichners were high with 2,985 in winning twice from WelBilt Gas Ranges.

Chapin & Gores vs. Pepsi-Colas.

The much heralded match between the Chapin & Gores and Pepsi-Colas for the North End Traveling league lead takes place tomorrow night at 7 o'clock on the Milford alleys, Milwaukee avenue at Pulaski road. Each team has won 31 games and lost 17, but the Pepsi-Colas have a six point edge in team average. Other matches: Fox DeLuxe vs. Schambergers at North Town, 7 o'clock; Birk Trophy Beers at DeLuxe recreation, 7 p. m.; Jolly Jacks vs. Budweisers at Gold Coast, 9 p. m.; Samuelson's Kids vs. Koenig Brau at Stack & Ryan's, 9 o'clock.

Aetna and Zurich shut out H. H. Herbst and Western Adjustment, respectively, in the Insurance league. American Glass could score only once in three games against London & Lancashire despite Jules Sowa's 682.

Roy Kulow boosted his average to 207 with a 712 series which was a major factor in giving the Keeley Beers two games over Faetz & Son in the North West Traveling league. North Town did most of its pin spilling in a 1,133 game, losing the other two to West Ridge. Schamberger shot 1,103 for an odd game triumph over Monte Cristo, and George Rudy's 660 helped Budweiser take two from Sportsman's Club. . . . Something of a question of economics is involved in trying to bring bowling to the farm, but the farm now has been brought to the bowler—in the Lawrence Bowl's new clubroom, to be opened tomorrow night. There'll be a hay rake with real hay at one end of the room and, among other things, a horse collar at the other. No mention is made of a house—for low men on teams.

And the A. B. C. Just Saves Another Medal.

The A. B. C. saved one more medal when Henry Bucek of the Burlington railway's Black Hawk team fired 10 strikes and had the ten pin stick on him on a good hit in the try for eleventh. He finished with 288 and a 643 series. His team scored a triple over the Fast Mails. Pioneer Zephyrs won the odd from Ak-sar-ben, with Paul Vogt getting 254, 637, and Bill Lucas, 230, 628.

The eternal battle between the sexes is to break out among the juniors when the Wolves of the Wright Junior College Bowling club [average 160] meet the Wenches of the Wright Woman's Athletic association [average 120] at Stratford Jan. 6. It'll be a handicap match, of course. . . . George Morrison had his hot night in the South Side Milk Wagon Drivers' league at South Shore.

West Pullman No. 1 and McCormick No. 1 proved Monday night why they are first and second, respectively, in the International Harvester Major. West Pullman rolled 3,112 to win three from Harvester Press and McCormick marked up 3,126 for a triple over Tractor No. 3.

Prep Quintets Face 5 Holiday Basket Meets

Holiday Features

Dec. 23-Jan. 1—University of Chicago tournament.
Dec. 26-28—De Kalb invitation tournament.
Dec. 26-28—Mount Vernon invitation tournament.
Dec. 26-28—Pana invitation tournament.
Jan. 1-3—Pontiac invitation tournament.

Holiday time is tournament time for prep basketball players in Illinois. More than 100 of the 800 odd contenders for the official 1941 championship will furnish an insight into the state race in five major invitation tourneys, starting with the opening of the 34th annual University of Chicago meet in the Midway fieldhouse tomorrow afternoon.

Dozens of other teams will compete in small tournaments of shorter duration; while still others, shunning strenuous competition during the Christmas recess, will keep in trim with single games against neighborhood rivals.

From Little Egypt, in the far southern sector, to the northern border, from the Indiana line to the Mississippi, prep fans will watch with interest the outcome of the five major spectacles. From among the contenders in these annual events, the state champion usually emerges.

State Champ at Mount Vernon.

Granite City and Herrin, winner and runner-up respectively in the 1940 state finals, are among the entrants in the Mount Vernon tournament, starting Thursday. Granite City won the Mount Vernon title last year and Salem was runner-up. These two teams and Herrin were among the last 16 survivors in the state race later in the season.

Sixteen northern Illinois teams, including Glenbard of Chicago's West Suburban league, will start firing Thursday in the De Kalb invitation meet. Also included among the entries is Hebron, McHenry county hamlet, which joined Granite City, Herrin, Salem and 12 others in the 1940 state finals.

Eight Catholic prep teams will participate in Routt High school's holiday tournament in Jacksonville on Friday and Saturday. Nokomis, Raymond, Witt, and Irving will play in a four team bracket in Witt.

Watch Centralia's Eddleman!

Possibly the foremost of the holiday attractions will be reserved for next week in the 16th annual Pontiac meet, starting New Year's day. Centralia, regarded as one of the strongest teams in the state, will travel north for this event. So will Taylorville, Centralia's only conqueror in its first nine games this season. Centralia will return with four veterans from the quintet which won the Pontiac title a year ago, including Dwight Eddleman, the current sensation of Illinois prep basketball.

In nine contests this month, Eddleman has scored 185 points, an average of 20 per game. He counted 28 in a 55 to 26 victory at Springfield, and 32 in a return rout of Springfield, 61 to 17. Taylorville, using a shifting zone defense built around Ben Wilhelm, held Eddleman to six points in gaining a 34 to 25 triumph over Centralia.

York Plays at De Kalb.

York of Elmhurst, Duquoin, Aledo, El Paso, Bradley, Fairbury, Flora, Greenup, Normal Community, Peoria Manual, Dwight, Pontiac, Coal City, and Clinton, in addition to Centralia and Taylorville, will play in Pontiac next week.

In Cook county interest this week centers around the University of Chicago tourney. For the first time since the meet was limited to Chicago entrants, in 1935, all 40 members of the city's public school league will compete. Following two days of eliminations, all survivors will rest on Christmas day and then resume shooting on Thursday.

The first round of the Midway scramble will end Friday. After second round contests are concluded Saturday a second recess is scheduled for Sunday. The quarter-finals are slated for Monday, Dec. 30, with the semi-finals on New Year's eve, and the third place and championship battles on the afternoon of New Year's day.

Austin Defends Title.

Austin, the defending champion in the Chicago tourney, will oppose Phillips at 2 o'clock in the second game on tomorrow's program. Newcomers to the meet, which did not compete last year, are Bowen, Fenger, Lake View, Medill, Morgan Park, Roosevelt, South Shore, and Steinmetz.

CLASSIC LEAGUE INDORSES NEW BOWLING EVENT

Plans to Enter Contest, Starting Jan. 25.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The League of Leagues contest, 10 weeks' competition to be run for sanctioned bowlers in conjunction with their regular leagues, yesterday was given the complete endorsement of George Weissensel, president of the Classic league with the promise that both divisions would enter. The circuit's endorsement is considered significant because of the nature of the handicaps imposed on it.

"The League of Leagues plan provides something extra for the bowler—women as well as men—to shoot at in regular competition," Weissensel said. "High scores cut him in for his own league's prizes, and also in the League of Leagues' cash awards. I like it. I'm satisfied that, as long as it's confined to sanctioned league bowling, it's going to make more sanctioned bowlers. Furthermore, it's going to make more practice lines for the alley operators. It's a good thing, any way you figure it."

Classic Bowlers in "A" Group.

Most of the Classic league bowlers will have to compete in the League of League's Class A, which is for bowlers with averages of 190 and over. Their league is one that moves from one center to another and always shoots at new pins.

Several scores marked up during the last week were totals that illustrate the point that League of Leagues competition is "hot night insurance." George Corbiel, a 169 average bowler, rolled 656—including a 299 game—which probably would have won him the top prize in the bracket for bowlers with averages from 160 to 170. Harry Lippe, one of the city's stars, carrying an average of more than 190 in his several leagues, probably would have won in Class A. His 759 was the top score of the week.

Woman Scores 642.

And the 642 rolled recently by Sara Hannblom, who has a 173 average, is likely to have given Mrs. Hannblom prize money in the 170 to 180 class. Then, there was the 645 shot by Gus Larson of the Chicago and North Western's "400" league. Gus carries a 176 average. Significantly, the circuit voted unanimously to participate in the League of Leagues contest.

The series of 10 weekly contests opens Jan. 25. Entries must be in the league's offices, 1609 Tribune Tower—telephone Whitehall 5882—by Jan. 20. A total of 105 prizes, 15 in each of the seven brackets, will be given each week together with a grand prize at the conclusion and special secretary's prizes—a grand total of 1,064. Prize winners will be published in THE TRIBUNE.

Schaefer and Hoppe Sign for Special Match

Jake Schaefer, regarded as the greatest of balkline players and runner-up in the 1940 world three cushion billiards tournament, yesterday came to terms for a challenge match with Willie Hoppe, the three rail title holder.

They'll meet in a four day, eight block match of 480 points in Bensinger's 131 South Wabash avenue arena, starting Jan. 6 and ending Jan. 9, only four days before the opening of the 1941 world title tourney in the same arena.

Finally Accepts Terms.

Schaefer challenged Hoppe to a special match more than a week ago. For the last six days he refused to accept terms laid down by Promoter Norman E. Bensinger. But he signed a contract when the ultimatum deadline neared.

Bensinger also announced yesterday that the world tournament, sanctioned by the National Billiard association, probably will be composed of a field of 18 instead of 16 as originally planned. The meet starts Jan. 13. Welker Cochran and Jay N. Bozeman, Californians, still holdouts, are included among the entrants, inasmuch as the N.B.A. is confident that both will sign this week. Schaefer signed yesterday when agreeing to terms of the challenge match with Hoppe.

List Tourney Entries.

The other 14 signed for the tournament, in addition to Hoppe and Schaefer, are: Johnny Layton, Otto Reiselt, Tiff Denton, Arthur Thurnblad and Joe Chamaco, all former champions; Allen Hall, John Fitzpatrick, Irving Crane, Earl Lookabaugh, Len Kenney, Joe Moriarty, Clarence Jackson, Paul Lewin and Art Rubin.

Layton, however, is a doubtful starter. He still is in a critical condition caused by injuries when hit by a street car last week.

Iowa State Runs Up Fifth Victory in Row, 43 to 37

Ames, Ia., Dec. 21 (AP).—Iowa State won its fifth straight nonconference basketball game here tonight by turning back Grinnell, 43 to 37. Fred Gordon and Gordon Nicholas were the scoring leaders for the Cyclones, each contributing 12 points.

NEBRASKA SHOWS OFF FOR CAMERA; GOES TO WORK

Squad Gets First Real Drill for Stanford.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 21 (AP).—Nebraska's Cornhuskers donned their new Rose bowl uniforms and did fancy punting and passing for the benefit of the photographers today, then changed to practice clothes and went thru a stiff two hour drill behind locked gates.

Coach Lawrence Jones sent the Nebraskans thru limbering up exercises and a dummy scrimmage session. Jones said it was the first real practice the Cornhuskers have had in preparation for the New Year's day game with Stanford. Heavy snows in Nebraska have handicapped the squad's drills.

Plans Two Drills Daily.

The Cornhusker coach scheduled a morning session for tomorrow and said drills would be held twice daily thereafter, except for Christmas day, when the players probably will be given the afternoon off.

The amount of work on tap for the Cornhuskers depends on how quickly the squad rounds into form, Jones said.

Stanford Drills in Rain.

Palo Alto, Cal., Dec. 21 (AP).—Stanford's football players, who won the Rose bowl nomination with victories on nine sunny Saturdays, practiced for two hours in the rain today and came up with the assertion "we're ready for any kind of weather."

Quarter Back Frankie Albert, speaking for his teammates, said "the wet ball didn't bother us a bit." He then kicked five consecutive place kicks from the 20 yard line.

All plays in Coach Clark Shaughnessy's répertoire were run off with a minimum of fumbles. The former Chicago coach told the boys that rainy weather "doesn't mean a thing; it's all in the mind."

TWO AGGIE TEAMS

College Station, Tex., Dec. 21 (AP).—The Texas A. and M. second team dealt the first team a 9 to 6 defeat in a regulation length practice football game today—and Coach Homer Norton of the Aggies said he liked it.

"I've wanted two teams all my life, and now it looks like I'll be able to play a fresh team every quarter at Dallas New Year's day against Fordham.

"That's the way Tulane beat them in 1939, and we'll give Fordham another dose of it at the Cotton bowl Jan. 1," Norton said.

Marland Jeffrey scored a touchdown and Bill Dawson kicked a field goal for the second team. The first team was held scoreless until the fourth quarter, when Full Back John Kimbrough returned a punt 75 yards behind excellent blocking.

Out of practice with the flu were John Abbott, Marshall Spivey, Elvis Simmons, and Harold Cowley. Practice injuries kept Woodrow Bando and Sam Rankins from work.

Three Dodgers, Two Bears Win All-Pro Berths

New York, Dec. 21 [Special].—The official 1940 All-American professional football teams were announced here today by Ken Smith, president of the Professional Football Writers' Association of America. Taking over for the first time the assignment of selecting the official team, which previously had been reserved for National league coaches, 92 sports writers, representing every city in the circuit, participated in the poll.

Seven of the league's ten teams are represented on the first team, with the Brooklyn Dodgers, riding the crest of a renaissance generated by Coach Jock Sutherland, qualifying the most players—three. The world champion Chicago Bears and the Detroit Lions placed two men each on the first team and the Washington Redskins, the Green Bay Packers, New York Giants, and Cleveland Rams one each.

O'Brien on Second Team.

The Philadelphia Eagles qualified two men—Davey O'Brien and Don Looney—for the second team. Thus, the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Chicago Cardinals were the only teams which did not place a player on either the first or second teams.

Don Hutson, Green Bay's game breaking end, led the balloting. He received 87 nominations for the first team. The other five writers placed him on the second team to give him the astounding total of 450 votes out of a possible 460. Danny Fortmann, the Bears' brilliant guard, was the next popular choice. He drew 77 first place ballots. John Drake, Cleveland's battering ram full back, who had been close, but never first among the stars of his position in previous years, was third in popularity. Big John polled 70 first choice ballots.

Compliment Bulldog Turner.

Only two first year men, Bulldog Turner, the Bears' brilliant center from Hardin-Simmons, and Looney, Philadelphia's freshman end from Texas Christian, showed enough, in the opinion of the scribes, to merit listing among the league's best. They were awarded second team places. The selections follow:

FIRST TEAM.

ENDS—Don Hutson [Green Bay] and Perry Schwartz [Brooklyn].
TACKLES—Joe Stydahar [Chicago Bears] and Frank Kinard [Brooklyn].
GUARDS—Danny Fortmann [Chicago Bears] and John Wiethe [Detroit].
CENTER—Mel Hein [New York].
QUARTER BACK—Clarence Parker [Brooklyn].
HALF BACKS—Sammy Baugh [Washington] and Byron White [Detroit].
FULL BACK—John Drake [Cleveland].

SECOND TEAM.

ENDS—Don Looney [Philadelphia] and Jim Poole [New York].
TACKLES—Jim Barber [Washington] and John Mellus [New York].
GUARDS—Steve Slivinski [Washington] and Doug Oldershaw [New York].
CENTER—Clyde Turner [Chicago Bears].
QUARTER BACK—Davey O'Brien [Philadelphia].
HALF BACKS—Cecil Isbell [Green Bay] and Dick Todd [Washington].
FULL BACK—Clark Hinkle [Green Bay].

Mickey Welcomes East-West Players on Coast

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

W-G-N Broadcast

ERNIE SMITH, who has been broadcasting Pacific coast sports events for 14 years, will be at the microphone for the Mutual network's broadcast of the East-West all-star football game in San Francisco on New Year's day, it was announced yesterday. W-G-N will be the Chicago outlet, starting at 3:30 o'clock. At 1 o'clock the same afternoon Bob Elson of W-G-N will broadcast the Cotton bowl game between Texas A. & M. and Fordham over the Mutual chain from Dallas, Tex.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 21 (AP).—All-American Tom Harmon and 21 teammates who comprise the eastern squad arrived today to begin practice for the 16th annual East-West Shriners' charity football game on New Year's day.

The easterners, headed by Co-Coaches Andy Kerr of Colgate and Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, detrained in a steady drizzle of rain.

Players Visit Children.

Players of both the east and west squads paid a visit to the crippled children's hospital. Harmon was the big attraction.

The ace half back was flanked by three other players of All-America status, Francis Reagan of the University of Pennsylvania, a backfield running mate of Harmon; and two western luminaries, Paul Christman, University of Missouri pass thrower, and Rudy Mucha, husky center from the University of Washington.

Harmon Still Undecided.

Harmon reiterated he had made no definite plans as to a career.

The western team, coached by Matty Bell of Southern Methodist and Orin Hollingbery of Washington State, will move to practice headquarters at Stanford university tomorrow. The easterners will shift over to Berkeley and begin training on the University of California field Monday.

The roster follows:

Ends—Bill Johnson [Minnesota], James Schmuck [Cornell], Lawrence Carbelli [Colgate], Ed Frutig [Michigan].
Tackles—Mike Enich [Iowa], Nick Drahos [Cornell], Tony Ruffa [Duke], Fred Davis [Alabama].
Guards—Joe Lokanc [Northwestern], Lew Conti [Cornell], Tommy O'Boyle [Tulane].
Centers—Leon Gajecki [Penn State], Dwight Gahm [Indiana].
Quarter backs—Forrest Evashevski [Michigan], Bob Paffrath [Minnesota].
Full backs—George Kracum [Pittsburgh], James Murphy [Iowa].

SAVOLD MANAGER QUITS; OFFERS TO SELL CONTRACT

Pinkie, who said in the future he would devote his time to promoting boxing shows, declared: "In my endeavor to get national recognition for Savold, I've gone broke. Managing a boxer, good or bad, is not what it is cracked up to be."

The proposed sale, George said, was sanctioned by Savold, provided the buyer meets the fighter's approval. Savold, recently beaten by Billy Conn, has a Jan. 10 engagement with Bill Poland in Madison Square garden.

I. A. C. AMATEUR BOXING TOURNEY TO OPEN JAN. 21

The ninth annual amateur boxing tournament sponsored by the Illinois Athletic club will be held in the I. A. C. gymnasium, 112 South Michigan avenue, Jan. 21, 22, and 29, Sports Director Johnny Behr announced yesterday. Applications may be obtained at the I. A. C., Catholic Youth organization, or the Central Association of the Amateur Athletic union. Any boy, 16 years or over, who has not fought professionally, is eligible to compete. There will be no entry fee.

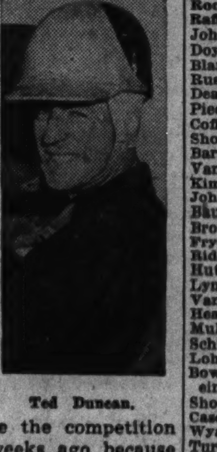
Midget Auto Stars Resume Race Tonight

America's outstanding auto racers will resume the national indoor midget championship race tonight in the International amphitheater, 43d and Halsted streets. Time trials start at 7 o'clock.



Ted Duncan.

The eight regular events, increased by 22 laps by lengthening the main race and four eliminations, will have Wally Zale of Chicago defending his lead. Zale amassed 132½ points before the competition was halted four weeks ago because of the live stock and poultry shows. He is followed closely by Teddy Duncan, Chicago, 109½, and Ray Richards, Highland Park, 106½.

St. Ignatius to Play Alumni in Celebration Friday

St. Ignatius High school, 1076 West Roosevelt road, will have a two-fold celebration Friday evening in the school gymnasium, to celebrate the largest enrollment in its 70 years history and the 400th anniversary of the founding of the Society of Jesus, whose members conduct the school. The present St. Ignatius basketball team will play a team of alumni, and two teams of former St. Ignatius champions also will play.

DIETRICH, TURNER FEAR DYKES' IRE; SIGN CONTRACTS

Pitcher, Catcher Forget About Holding Out.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Two White Sox members who threatened to kick up a fuss over their 1941 wages have decided it might be unwise to arouse the ire of their boss, James J. Dykes, who is sort of touchy about certain things, among them being holdouts.

Bill Dietrich, the bespectacled right hander, who upon receipt of his contract declared he wanted more because he was "going to win 20 games," signed and returned the document to the club's Comiskey park offices yesterday. In the same mail came the signed paper of Catcher Tom Turner who from Peoria, Ariz., had broadcast he was going to haggle for better terms.

Dietrich's Pay Boosted.

The pay Dietrich first rejected and then accepted represented a boost over his 1940 salary, the increase having been granted by the club because of the athlete's record of 10 victories against 6 defeats. It was the first season in which Dietrich, who came to the Sox in July, 1936, wound up with better than a .500 percentage.

During the recent baseball meetings the Cleveland Indians talked at length with Dykes on the little matter of a deal involving Dietrich. All that Dykes said to the queries was that he had been working on Dietrich for more than four seasons and now that he was beginning to get results he wanted to enjoy the fruit of his labors.

Dykes Likes Turner.

Turner, drafted from the Cardinal chain store system in the fall of 1939 and for whom the Cardinals immediately made a cash bid of $15,000, also was sought during the meetings. The Browns wanted him and were willing to give Outfielder Myril Hoag whom Dykes wanted. Dykes was willing to give Catcher Ken Silvestri but not Turner, so the swap didn't materialize.

BOUDREAU NO. 1 ROOKIE

Lou Boudreau of Harvey, Ill., Cleveland Indians shortstop, has been adjudged the most valuable rookie in the major leagues for the 1940 season, by the vote of the membership of the Chicago Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

To Boudreau will go the award of the J. Louis Comiskey Memorial trophy. Presentation will be made at the annual dinner of the Chicago chapter in the Morrison hotel, Jan. 7.

Hudson Places Second.

Boudreau was given a total of 185 points when the tabulation was completed yesterday. He was the first choice of all the Chicago chapter's voting members, save two. These declared for Sid Hudson, Washington pitcher, who finished second in the voting with 116 points.

Third place went to Harold [Pee Wee] Reese, Brooklyn shortstop, who drew 80 points.

Chicagoans 4th, 5th, 6th.

Vern Olsen, the young Cub left hander, finished fourth with 70 points. Bob Kennedy, White Sox third baseman, was fifth with 52. Bill Nicholson, Cubs outfielder, was next with 50.

A total of 31 rookies in the American and National league were given consideration. Those finishing nearest the six leaders were, in order: Ray Mack, Cleveland; Frank Gustine, Pittsburgh; Walter Judnich, St. Louis Browns, and Dominic DiMaggio, Boston Red Sox.

Illini Hockey Team Leaves on Trip Today

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 21 [Special].—The University of Illinois ice hockey team will leave tomorrow on a western trip to oppose California, Southern California, U. C. L. A. and Santa Rosa on the Pacific coast, and Colorado college en route home.

Coach Vic Heyliger has selected a squad of 10 players for the trip. They will be accompanied by William Kerwin of Ransom, Ill., student manager. The squad: Capt. Chester Ziemba of Chicago; Jack Gillan of Western Springs; Amo Bessone of Springfield, Mass.; Gilbert Priestley of Melrose, Mass.; Joseph Gannon of Swampscott, Mass.; Starr Owen of Arlington, Mass.; Norbert Sterle and Aldo Palazzari of Eveleth, Minn., and Joseph Lotzer and Wayne McKibbin of Fond du Lac, Wis.

Bessone, Sterle and Palazzari, sophomores, are newcomers to the starting lineup. Owen, Gannon and Priestley also are sophomores. The six newcomers helped defeat Western Ontario, 9 to 4, in the only game played by the Illini this season. The revised schedule for the holiday campaign follows:

Dec. 26—Illinois at Santa Rosa Junior college.
Dec. 27—Illinois vs. California at Berkeley.
Dec. 28—Illinois vs. Southern California at Berkeley.
Dec. 30—Illinois vs. Southern California at Los Angeles.
Dec. 31—Illinois vs. U. C. L. A. at Los Angeles.
Jan. 3, 4—Illinois vs. Colorado college at Colorado Springs.

Pitcher Anderson Sold by Giants to Knoxville

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 21 (AP).—Purchase of right handed Pitcher Herbert Anderson from the New York Giants was announced today by the Knoxville Smokies. The 6 foot 2 inch hurler played with Clinton, Ia., a second division team in the Three Eye league, last year, winning 17 games and losing 11. The purchase price was not disclosed.

The Navy and a Florida Moon Fail to Soothe Tourists' Pains

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delray Beach, Fla., Dec. 21.—Three cars, two with Ohio and one with Indiana plates, were parked beside the road on the ocean front near by. A moon bathed a rippling path on the dark sea. A warm breeze was moist and salty. A surf rumbled in regular cadence.

Seven middle aged men and women were grouped in back of an eighth, who was leveling binoculars seaward. Near the faint horizon were tiny white lights in pairs. We could count 11 of these pairs, spaced regularly in a string probably a mile or two long.

"The big one in front," said the man with the glasses, passing the binoculars to his wife, "looks like a battleship. The others may be submarines, torpedo boats, or destroyers."

A Nightmare, Maybe.

"You're always talking about the war," said the wife, adjusting the lenses. "For all I can see, they may be fishing boats."

"I saw three planes fly north about an hour ago," volunteered a voice with Hoosier accent. "My guess is that the navy is playing games tonight."

"Your eyes can fool you at night," said the gray haired woman in snappy beach pajamas, with a light sweater over her shoulders. "I hate to drive at night."

"We ran into fog at night on the trip down, between Nashville and Chattanooga," the Hoosier continued. "We took it easy until a fast Tennessee car passed us, and then we got on his tail."

Follow the Trail Blazer.

"That's a swell way to travel at night on a strange road. Follow a native who acts like he knows the bumps and turns. Let him be your pilot. On the curves, you get advance notice of whether you're going to have to slacken your speed. You can tell from his rear lights whether he uses his brakes. And if he accidentally hits a bump, you can see his rear lights bob, and you can brake in time to avoid a shaking."

"That's a good idea," said a heretofore silent member of the party.

"It's a good idea if you don't follow too close," he added. "There is nothing that makes me madder than to have some one drive right behind me at night with his lights shining thru my rear window. Some drivers don't seem to realize how far reflected rays will carry and annoy the driver ahead.

Seeks Retaliation.

"I've thought sometimes of putting a spotlight on the rear of my car that I could turn on to retaliate for bright lights that are following me."

"John," said his wife, "does it look to you like that ship in the lead is signaling?"

"That's just the green navigation light appearing and disappearing with the roll of the ship," he said.

"I always drive with my dim light and stay well behind the leader when I'm following a car at night," said the Hoosier. "I sure hate a man dumb enough to interfere with the vision of the driver ahead."

"Aren't the nights here romantic?" said the gray haired woman with snappy pajamas flapping in the breeze.

Others said nothing. The lights from the ships were moving slowly southward in a navy war game, if such it was. That is part of international power diplomacy.

NEWS AND VIEWS

In keeping with the efforts of the automobile industry to promote safe driving the Pontiac division of the General Motors corporation announces that it recently assigned 50 of its 1941 model automobiles to the American Automobile association for use in driver training courses. Each safety car is equipped with two sets of brakes and clutch pedals for use by drivers in training high school students in the final portion of their driving course. The high school course requires 25 hours of class work and 8 of actual driving. Up to 1940-'41 Pontiac dual control cars have been used in 112 high schools and 53 colleges.

Charles L. Jacobson, vice president in charge of sales of the Chrysler division of the Chrysler corporation, states that the advantages of the fluid drive are especially well received during winter. He explains that the hazards of winter driving are greatly reduced thru the fluid drive because it reduces the danger of skidding. The action of the fluid drive is such that the proper amount of power is applied to the wheels to propel the car. There is no spinning of the wheels.

Dodge has started production of two long wheelbase models, one a sedan and the other a limousine. Altho the cars are described as seven passenger models, it is said that they actually can transport nine persons easily, because the divided folding center seats are so wide and so closely joined that three persons may ride on them in comfort.

Nicholas Dreystadt, general manager of Cadillac, reports a 20 per cent boost in production to meet the heaviest buying demand in Cadillac's history. The present schedule provides for the production of 300 cars a day.

Auto Veteran Praises New Improvement

R. E. Olds, pioneer in the automobile industry and founder of Oldsmobile, discusses the hydra-matic drive, which eliminates manual gear shifting, with D. E. Ralston, general sales manager for Oldsmobile. Olds and Ralston talked over the old days of the industry and the veteran said he was pleased with the new improvement which eliminates clutch and clutch pedal.

SERVICE ON CARS IS STILL IRKSOME THRUOUT NATION

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delray Beach, Fla., Dec. 21.—Approaching the mountain climb to Monteagle in the Cumberlands en route here, we noticed that the oil pressure in The Tribune road car was not as high as it had been. The crankcase contained S. A. E. 20. Before the long upgrade pull, we decided that a heavier lubricant was advisable. "Be sure you have five quarts of S. A. E. 30 before you pull the crankcase drain plug," we advised the gas station attendant.

When we returned from a nearby lunch counter, he was emptying a third can into the engine. We looked at the bottom of the can. It read S. A. E. 20.

"Yes, sir," the attendant replied to our comments. "I don't know how I could have made a mistake like that."

He drained the new oil, saving it. We looked thru his stock and couldn't find any S. A. E. 30 of the brand requested. We had to take a cheaper and inferior brand.

A Problem Even at Home.

Getting service on a car while touring is a problem, but so is getting service on a car at home. While traveling you have to watch. While at home, unless you are luckier than we are, you have to wait for them to finish the job when you call for your automobile. And even then you find they haven't done everything that was ordered.

At St. Augustine we asked an authorized dealer service station to inspect for overheating, not dangerous overheating, but too hot for efficient performance and long life of the engine.

"You see," said the service salesman, "at sea level there is a higher boiling point than in Chicago."

We didn't see how that had much to do with it, so after looking at the fan belt we decide that some other shop would check on our suspicion that a thermostat in the water cooling system was sticking.

Recall a Few Incidents.

In a service station in South Bend, Ind., one time, we asked a mechanic to inspect a clutch noise. He listened and said it was a burned transmission bearing. We went to a movie while he took the transmission apart. When we returned, he was almost thru reassembling the transmission. He had found that the foreign noise was a scored spot on a clutch plate.

We once had another clutch experience, in a factory branch service station in Chicago.

"You've been letting alley garages rather than authorized dealers lubricate your car," said the foreman. "The throwout bearing is dry, that's your only trouble."

He didn't know that his own shop had given the car its last previous greasing. We left the automobile with him to have the throwout bearing lubricated and other work done. Later in the day, after picking up the car, we discovered that the clutch noise was still there. We returned to the shop. The pertinent grease cup had not been touched. When it was filled, the noise was gone.

Complaints to Auto Industry.

I've heard owners complain that the automobile industry places too much emphasis on selling new cars and not enough on servicing the machines. One of my peeves is that in the big shops the man who meets the customer and takes his order doesn't check on the work done by the mechanics.

And then I'd like to have my car ready at the time promised. As for service on the road, I want to watch whenever possible while work is being done on The Tribune's automobile.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

SAFETY LANES.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—It seems that every time I go to a safety lane I find something else wrong with my car. The other day my car was rejected because the focus of my bright lights was too low. Yet as I travel along I see many drivers flash their lights at me because my bright lights disturb them.

Will some one please tell me how to raise the bright lights and not disturb the focus of the driving lights when they both work from the same bulb? I think that if the city is as broke as they say it is Mayor Kelly could do away with the safety lanes and save a lot of money because as they are run now they are just a lot of downright foolishness and waste.

I think that the lanes, if they are continued, should be run by men who know automobiles. This idea of raising the bright lights and not the driving lights just doesn't seem possible to me.

EDGAR S. FINCH.

A VISITOR COMPLAINS.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 18.—I happened to be in Chicago for the Live Stock exposition and drove around sight-seeing. Some of the things I saw that night left me speechless. At least 10 cars approached and passed me with only one headlamp burning, making it hard to see what side of the road the car was on. About three cars passed with no lights and four had lights so dim a candle would outshine them. Why the blackout? The war is in Europe.

With all the safety lanes in your city, how can such conditions exist? Where are your law enforcing officers?

Your platform is for more superhighways. Why? Your autoists are not educated to drive on the streets they already have.

Come out and see how small towners do things.

J. RUSSEK JR.

SNOW IN THE STREETS.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—I recently had a spring in my car broken because of the bumps caused by the owner of a filling station who throws the snow off his driveway into the street. The station I refer to has plenty of room between the curb and the sidewalk to pile tons of snow, but instead, shovels it into the street. I think the city council should do something about this and pass a law prohibiting such a thing.

U. S. TO GIVE UP OPERATION OF CONGRESS HOTEL

Hopes to Regain Its Big Investment.

The government, which has been operating the Congress hotel on Michigan avenue at Congress street for the last 15 months without bragging about making any profits, made arrangements yesterday to turn over its landlording to others on Jan. 1.

It is the hope of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, whose subsidiaries have been the ostensible managers of the property, that its investment of $2,075,000 will be returned. The terms of the agreement for the transfer indicated that the hope will be realized only if and when the new management gets the hotel on a profitable basis and decides to pay $2,075,000 for it.

Has Option to Purchase.

The deal specifies that the new company, the Michigan-Congress corporation, will have a 20 year lease on the 1,000 room hotel and the option, not the obligation, to purchase at the price named. John J. Mack, Harry Prince, and C. O. Wallace, who operate the Hotel Chicagoan and other properties, are the organizers of Michigan-Congress.

Terms of the lease call for a total net minimum rental, after payment of ground rent and taxes, of $1,472,000 over the 20 years. The lessees are also to pay additional rent to be based on a percentage of their profits.

The exact profit percentage was not disclosed. The lessees announced, however, that they proposed to spend $800,000 for improvements at once, and would borrow $400,000 of this from the RFC Mortgage company. This is the agency that plumped Uncle Sam into the hotel business.

Congress hotel, which will be turned over to private operator.

First Loan Is $900,000.

Originally the government lent the Congress $900,000. Obligations on the debt were not met and on Sept. 14, 1939, the hotel was bid in at $1,335,000 by the lending agency, which was then in to the tune of $1,400,000, including interest. Apparently the obligation has grown since.

Frank M. Murchison, Chicago agent of the RFC Mortgage company, said last night that the property now owes the agency $1,675,000, and that the new loan to Michigan-Congress would raise the amount to $2,075,000.

"We'll be out all right when the hotel is sold for $2,075,000," he said.

Uncle Sam, landlord, began having troubles soon after entry into the hotel business. The management was worried about complaints of beauty shop customers and about the moral aspects of paying off the winners in 26 games, as well as in the operation of swank cocktail lounges.

Operated by Corporation.

A plan to house some of the many New Deal bureaus in the Congress was given up as impractical. Operation of the hotel was left to the Congress Hotel and Annex, Inc., specially created corporation whose stock is owned by the government agency.

This is the corporation which figured in the lease, made with the Michigan-Congress corporation, which was created a few days ago by the Mack group when the lease negotiations were under way.

Real estate men expressed satisfaction with the arrangements because they provide Chicago operation of a famous Chicago institution and because they get the government out of the hotel business.

Congress Hotel and Annex, Inc., was represented in the negotiations by Joseph J. Rice, an officer and director of the company. Rice is with the grain commission firm of Daniel F. Rice & Co.

The Congress began operations in 1893, and, according to the announcement, was profitable until 1929. Plans for its remodeling and rehabilitation are being drawn and work will start at once, it was announced.

PRICE CHANGES MIXED IN N. Y. BOND MARKET

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—The bond market milled around in a narrow and uneven range today. There was a limited demand for a few low-priced rails and a group of specialties.

United States government obligations continued to drop back under extremely light offerings and ended down 2/32 to 17/32 of a point. Two issues inched up a minor fraction.

Sales of $4,303,400, face value, compared with $5,738,400 last Saturday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails gained .1 of a point at 60.1 and the low-yield group added a similar amount at 114.6, but other groups were unchanged.

Sydney 5½s bounded up 12½ points to 77½ on a single sale, but losses up to a point or more were posted for Australia 5s, Italy 7s and Copenhagen 5s.

America Buys More Cheese from Argentina

Foreign made cheeses sold on American markets now for the most part are products of Argentina, a survey of Chicago cheese distributors indicated yesterday. Almost 85 per cent of the Italian type cheese sold in Chicago is made in factories near Buenos Aires.

Only one shipload of European cheese is known to have arrived in the United States in the last few months. Chicago merchants said that a small shipment of cheese made in Switzerland, that was loaded at Genoa, Italy, and shipped under British permits, arrived in New York recently.

The department of agriculture reported that of 2,092,778 pounds of cheese arriving from foreign countries in October 1,111,250 pounds came from Argentina. Dealers said the remainder of the imports came mostly from Canada.

War Cuts Off Imports.

The full effect of the war on the amount of cheese that formerly came from Europe is revealed in the department's figures which show that 11,637,182 pounds of foreign made cheese arrived in the United States during October, 1939. Increased domestic production has replaced a large part of this loss of imports, but some types of foreign cheese cannot be satisfactorily duplicated in this country, dealers said.

Argentina shipped the United States $788,000 worth of cheese in the first ten months of 1940 compared with $344,000 worth in the corresponding period last year, Juan Carlos Weidemann, acting Argentine consul in Chicago, said yesterday. October shipments totaled almost $225,000 compared with about $70,000 a year earlier.

Chicago dealers said that Argentina is shipping this country more Bleu type cheese than any other. The Bleu cheese is quite similar to Rocquefort, but is made from cow's milk. The true Rocquefort is made from sheep's milk.

Domestic Product Cheaper.

According to Albert Kirchoff of August Kirchoff & Co., the Bleu cheese costs about 30 cents a pound at the port of entry. A duty of 5 cents a pound must be paid while freight charges to Chicago amount to approximately 2 cents a pound. Kirchoff said a much inferior domestic Bleu cheese costs about 34 cents a pound wholesale in Chicago. He said there is little different between the prices of domestic and Argentine Italian type cheese.

The dealers reported that Argentine manufacturers are making a superior type Edam cheese, which compares favorably with the original Dutch Edam as many of the European cheesemakers have migrated to Argentina since the war started.

John L. Antognoli of Joseph Antognoli & Co., a Chicago firm handling mostly Italian type cheese, said public reception of Argentine cheese has been good. He said the Argentine cheese costs almost 50 per cent less than Italian made cheese did before the war.

J. S. Hoffman company reported it was supplying 85 per cent of its sales of Italian type cheese with the Argentine product. The remaining 15 per cent is supplied with domestic cheese.

EXPORT LICENSE RULE EXTENDED TO 15 PRODUCTS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 (AP).—In the interest of national defense President Roosevelt issued a proclamation today placing 15 additional items under the export licensing system.

The White House said the new items consisted of miscellaneous products omitted from former proclamations and were added "for the purpose of perfecting those lists."

Previously 58 articles and materials had been placed under license control, including such items as aircraft, iron and steel products, aviation gasoline, and various types of machine tools.

Today's items included:

Cobalt, plastic moulding machines and presses, gauges, measuring machines, balancing machines, testing machines, hydraulic pumps, tools incorporating industrial diamonds, equipment and plans for production of aviation lubricating oil, bromine, ethylene, ethylene dibromide, methylamine, strontium metals and ores, abrasives and abrasive products containing emery, corundum or garnet, as well as abrasive paper and cloth.

Air Line Will Start Cargo Service to N. Y.

United Air Lines tomorrow will start the only regular cargo plane service in the nation when a 12 ton Douglas Mainliner begins daily runs carrying only freight from New York City to Chicago. The plane will leave New York nightly at 11 o'clock and arrive in Chicago at 3:26 a. m., after a stop in Cleveland.

The service will be limited to the westward run, because most of the express business is in this direction. The cargo plane will make the return trip to New York as a combination passenger and freight flight.

Plane Interior Unchanged.

Ray Ireland, traffic manager, said that the interior of the plane will not be altered to handle express merchandise which will be placed in and about the seats, as well as in the aisles and regular freight compartment.

The Railway Express company, under a contract with United, makes pickups and deliveries of express consignments. The rate will be 28 cents a pound between New York and Chicago for freight weighing 25 pounds or more. The rate is somewhat higher for consignments under that limit. The rates remain the same as for cargo carried on combination freight-passenger runs.

Reports Express Gain.

Ireland said that the exclusive cargo service was introduced because express business had shown a noticeable development lately. United, which carries 30 per cent of the nation's air express, according to Ireland, has been transporting an average of 2½ tons of cargo nightly. Utilization of passenger space will permit the transportation of larger shipments than can be accommodated in the regular cargo pits.

Ireland said that several attempts had been made in recent years by other air lines to provide all cargo service, but that they had been abandoned.

KANSAS CITY FEE CASE IN SUPREME COURT 4TH TIME

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 (AP).—Litigation involving fees charged at the Kansas City stockyards by commission agents between 1933 and 1937 was carried to the Supreme court today for the fourth time.

The department of justice appealed from a ruling by a three judge federal court in western Missouri holding invalid a 1939 order issued by former Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace reducing the maximum fees that could be charged for buying and selling live stock on a commission basis.

Also challenged was action of the three judge court directing that $586,093 of impounded funds be restored to the commission men. This represented the difference between the rates ordered by Wallace and the higher rates already in effect. The old rates continued to be collected, but the difference was impounded pending a final decision on the litigation.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC THRU SOO SETS PEAK SINCE 1929

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 21 (AP). Freight shipments thru the Soo locks in 1940 were the largest since 1929.

The annual report of the army engineers' office, issued today, showed that 89,858,319 tons of freight were shipped, bearing out the best of last spring's predictions of a busy season on the Great Lakes. This total was a 29 per cent increase over 1939, when 69,850,262 tons were shipped. The aggregate was 92,622,017 in 1929.

The 1940 season produced a record in iron ore shipments with a tonnage of 66,177,996. The previous record was 65,616,328 in 1937. Last year the tonnage was 46,803,691.

HOOVER URGES EFFICIENCY IN DEFENSE WORK

Asserts Work Hours Need Not Increase.

New York, Dec. 21 [Special].—Former President Herbert Hoover asserted tonight that industrial waste motion must be eliminated and plant equipment brought up to date before the defense program can be raised from its slump.

Herbert Hoover.

In a speech accepting the 1940 gold medal of the Pennsylvania Society of New York, given for his service to humanity, Hoover said his plan for obtaining an immediate speedup of munitions production was to increase our industrial efficiency and productivity. He said he did not support those who contended that the solution of problems of production, prices, taxes, standard of living, and future competition was no longer daily hours and lower wages for manufacturing labor.

Asks Organized Coöperation.

"The methods I suggest do not mean more speedup or pressure upon individual workers," Hoover explained. "They do not mean longer daily hours or lower wages. They mean that we work our machines and our heads harder. And above all they mean definitely nation-wide organized coöperation."

Machinery must be set to working three shifts six days a week, he said. Any money needed for a program of greatly expanded scientific research should immediately be advanced, he said, for from this can come new inventions and new methods of saving materials and labor.

"We must bring our plant and equipment out of its present slump of obsolescence," Hoover asserted. "We must eliminate more industrial waste motion and more waste of materials and men. We must apply every labor saving device.

Would End Restrictions.

"We must remove every sort of restriction by both capital and labor which impedes or penalizes the use of better methods and better machines. We must maintain free competition so that lower costs will be passed on to the consumer at lower prices.

"We also must have removal of unnecessary governmental restrictions which encumber production and lessen the initiative of men. We must have constructive tax systems."

Hoover said that employers and employés in essential war industries should waive their respective rights of lockout and strike in favor of arbitration, as was done in this country during the first world war.

PREDICT STOCK EXCHANGE WILL DEFY SEC ORDER

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Governors of the New York Stock exchange probably will consider in a meeting next Thursday an order of the Securities and Exchange commission for removal of a ban against so-called multiple trading by exchange members, informed sources said today.

Brokerage circles looked for a fight on the issue since the governors previously stood pat on the policy against allowing members to act as dealers or specialists on other exchanges in handling issues listed in New York.

The exchange insisted the rule, long on its books, concerned merely internal administration.

NAVY LETS 284 MILLIONS MORE IN BOAT ORDERS

Contracts for Mine Layers, Tenders.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21 (AP).—The navy department announced today the awarding of contracts to private shipyards for 31 additional minelayers, tenders, and other naval vessels estimated to cost $265,765,500. Another announcement said contracts totaling $18,659,767, principally for new submarine chasers, were awarded.

Additional contracts totaling $6,600,000 were let to expand facilities at the widely-scattered shipyards receiving the orders.

The vessels will be built on a cost-plus-fixed fee basis. Detailed breakdowns and delivery dates were not disclosed. The shipyards, number of vessels, and limit of cost on expansion of facilities included:

The Willamette Iron and Steel corporation, Portland, Ore., two minelayers, $1,000,000 for expansion of facilities.

Orders Widely Scattered.

Associated Shipbuilders, Seattle, four small seaplane tenders; $700,000 for expansion.

Ingalls Shipbuilding company, Pascagoula, Miss., four net layers; $2,000,000 for expansion.

Moore Dry Dock company, Oakland, Cal., two submarine tenders and five submarine rescue vessels. No expansion.

Sun Shipbuilding company, Chester, Pa., three destroyer tenders and three seaplane tenders; $2,500,000 for expansion.

Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, San Pedro, Cal., two repair ships; $400,000 expansion.

"Sub" Chaser Awards.

Defoe Boat and Motor Works, Bay City, Mich., $5,941,200; Dravo corporation, Pittsburgh, $3,447,000; Consolidated Shipbuilding corporation, Morris Heights, N. Y., $2,825,000; Sullivan Drydock and Repair corporation, Brooklyn, $1,140,000; George Lawley & Son corporation, Neponset, Mass., $4,500,000, and Leathem Smith Coal and Shipbuilding company, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., $600,000.

The navy also announced that a $700,000 contract for aviation facilities at the naval reserve aviation base, Oakland, Cal., had been awarded to Dinwiddie Construction company, San Francisco.

Tulsa Gets Plane Plant.

The war department announced that the third of four projected assembly plants for production of bombing planes from parts to be fabricated largely by automobile manufacturers will be located at Tulsa, Okla.

Other such plants already have been assigned to Kansas City, Mo., and Omaha, Neb. A fourth is to be built, also west of the Mississippi, but its site has not been announced.

The Tulsa plant, expected to cost possibly $10,000,000 and employ 5,000 or more workers, will assemble heavy four-motor bombers and will be operated by the Consolidated Aircraft corporation, San Diego, Cal. The Omaha and Kansas City plants will assemble two motor bombers.

Allocation of a new bagloading plant near Pulaski, Va., in the vicinity of the new $35,000,000 smokeless powder plant already under construction at Radford, was also announced by the war department.

Hercules to Run Factory.

A contract totaling $6,756,339 was awarded to the Hercules Powder company, Wilmington, Del., for architectural and engineering services, procurement and installation of equipment, and the operation of the Pulaski plant. Negotiations are still in progress for the actual construction.

The department also announced contracts under which four machine tool manufacturers will finance immediate expansion of their facilities for production of gages at a cost of $3,459,000. The contracts were:

Sheffield Gage corporation, Dayton, O., $910,000; Pratt and Whitney division of the Niles-Bement-Pond company, Hartford, Conn., $1,140,000; Taft-Pierce Manufacturing company, Woonsocket, R. I., $400,000, and the Greenfield Tap and Die corporation, Greenfield, Mass., $1,009,000.

Allison Motor Boosts Output Without 'Line'

BY HAROLD HUTCHINGS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 21.—Quantity production, but not mass production of the type used in automobile manufacture, is the plan in producing the V-12 cylinder Allison aircraft engine which has been adopted by the air corps, a spokesman for General Motors corporation, said today. The Allison plant here, which has been expanding continuously since June, 1939, has set a goal of 1,000 plane engines a month by next September, does not operate on the conveyor system used in automobile production.

Instead, each motor is assembled on a movable construction table, being completed by one group of workers, in contrast with the system used in automobile production where each worker completes one operation on the chassis as it passes him on the conveyor.

Alterations Delay Output.

Slight alterations in design of the motor, resulting from developments and observations in the European war, have delayed production from time to time by requiring changed plans and tooling.

The weight of the motor is about one pound per horsepower, the spokesman for the company said. The horsepower of various engines in production varies, he said, tho none is under 1,000 horsepower.

To facilitate production, crankshafts and camshafts for the motors are made in the Cadillac plant at Detroit, and a plant of 200,000 square feet has just been completed at the plant of Delco-Remy, another General Motors unit, at Anderson, Ind., to assist production of the Allison engine. Aluminum castings will be made there.

Trains Many Young Men.

Many of the men who are accepted and then trained to work in the Allison plant are young, some of them having had no previous experience. Others have had courses of training in defense industry, conducted in Indianapolis schools as in Chicago schools.

The Allison plant has grown from the shop established by James Allison, one of three owners of the motor speedway here. One of his aims was to develop a better engine. The plant has prospered.

General Motors bought the factory in 1929 after Allison's death, retaining the staff of highly skilled engineers and mechanics, and as far as motors are concerned, continued to operate it as a small experimental plant.

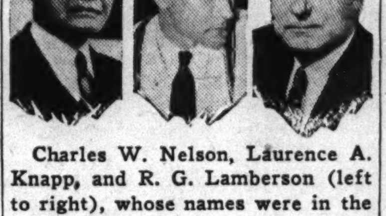
Plant Being Expanded.

In August, 1937, the first Allison engine passed air corps tests and was approved by the war department. The war department's first order for 969 engines was the signal for the first expansion of the plant in June, 1939. Since then the orders and the expansions have continued.

So greatly has the organization expanded that now the original Allison plant is only the bearing department.

People and Events

Elmer C. Jensen, president of the Chicago Building congress, will address members of the City Club of Chicago at a luncheon in the Hotel La Salle tomorrow on the neighborhood redevelopment bill sponsored by the congress as a means for eradicating slums in Chicago and other Illinois cities. It is planned to bring the proposed bill before the next session of the Illinois legislature.



Charles W. Nelson, Laurence A. Knapp, and R. G. Lamberson (left to right), whose names were in the news yesterday.

Charles W. Nelson, secretary of the Tablet & Ticket company, Chicago, was honored by officers and employés of the firm recently on his 80th birthday. He has been with the company continuously for 66 years since he started as an office boy.

Election of R. G. Lamberson of Oak Park as president of Quarrie corporation, Chicago publisher of the World Book encyclopedia, was announced yesterday by W. F. Quarrie, chairman of the board. Lamberson has been with the company for many years.

Laurence A. Knapp, a native of Garden City, S. D., yesterday was named associate general counsel of the National Labor Relations board, succeeding Robert B. Watts, previously appointed general counsel. He had been assistant general counsel.

The 18th annual Motor Salon will be held Feb. 1 thru 9 in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Refinery Is Opened

Part of the new plant of Wisconsin Oil Refining Company, Inc., which is in operation at Sheboygan, Wis. Fractionating column and condensers are shown.

WISCONSIN OIL STARTS REFINING AT SHEBOYGAN

Wisconsin Oil Refining Company, Inc., yesterday announced the start of operations in its plant at Sheboygan, Wis. Construction of the refinery, which officials said is the first to be established in Wisconsin, was begun last July, shortly after the company was organized.

The plant has a refining capacity of 5,000 barrels of crude oil daily. The company will sell its products to independent oil jobbers and industries in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. Crude oil from southern Illinois fields is being used by the refinery. The oil is shipped to Sheboygan in railroad tank cars.

Officers of the company are: D. E. Foster, president and general manager; W. H. Pauly, chairman of the board; W. H. Wingrove, vice president; T. H. Spence, secretary, and John Heronymus, treasurer.

DECEMBER GRAIN CONTRACTS TAKE WILD LAST FLING

A large turnover in December grain contracts resulted yesterday in one of the most excited sessions on the Chicago Board of Trade in several months.

Price changes in the expiring future were extremely rapid within a range of about 1¾ cents a bushel on wheat, corn, and oats. Traders who had hedged or sold the contract short were on the buying side, while holders sold out as prices advanced. December wheat was ⅝ cent higher at one time and corn was ⅞ cent higher.

December oats surprised traders by closing at the top at 41 cents, a new seasonal high, gaining 1½ cents. December wheat closed unchanged to ⅝ cent higher, with trading at 89⅜ to 90 cents in various parts of the pit at the final bell. December corn was ⅛ to ⅞ cent lower with last sales varying from 60¾ to 60 cents.

The May and July deliveries of soy beans closed 1⅜ cents lower while the December was ½ cent higher. It was the last day for trading in the latter.

NOVEMBER USE OF STEEL SCRAP BELOW OCTOBER

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Domestic consumption of iron and steel scrap declined to 3,922,000 tons in November from the record high of 4,233,000 tons in October, the Institute of Scrap Iron & Steel said today. This compared with 3,858,000 tons in November, 1939.

The institute said the contraction was due entirely to the short month and Thanksgiving holiday.

For the first 11 months domestic consumption totaled 37,737,000 tons. In all of 1939 only 32,434,000 tons were used. A record of 38,006,272 tons was set in 1937.

Bank Clearings Increase, but Lag Behind Year Ago

Last week's Chicago bank clearings totaled $379,500,000, compared with $351,300,000 in the preceding week and $429,400,000 last year, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The report:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 56,600,000	$ 3,100,000
Tuesday	64,200,000	6,600,000
Wednesday	66,000,000	6,700,000
Thursday	66,800,000	3,700,000
Friday	62,000,000	5,000,000
Saturday	63,900,000	7,100,000
Total	$379,500,000	$32,200,000
Last year	$429,400,000	$58,600,000

Many Engineering Courses Approved for Defense Work

R. A. Seaton, director of the government's engineering defense training program, told 22 regional advisers meeting here yesterday that 418 proposed courses in 84 engineering schools of the country have been approved. Seaton is on leave as dean of the school of engineering of Kansas State college.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

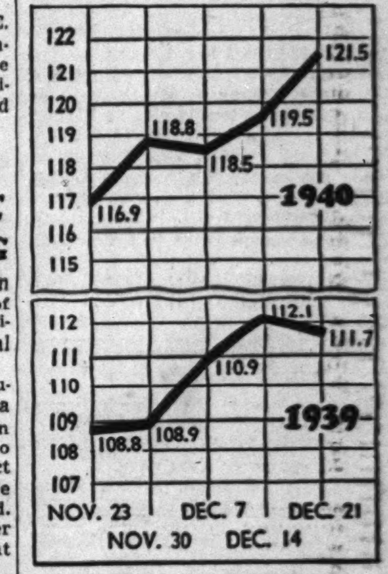
Merchandising and manufacturing industries quickened last week, establishing or hovering near 11 year high marks as questions relating to lagging rearmament and more aid to British foreshadowed possible sidetracking of civilian orders to give war goods production a clear track.

Attention in retail trade was centered on Christmas shopping, the volume of which was difficult to gauge because trends varied in different sections of the country. On the whole, according to Dun & Bradstreet, this year's holiday trade "shows evidence of shaping up to the best volume in a decade." In centers where defense work has boosted employment and even poured overtime pay into pockets of thousands, some stores reported largest unit sales on record.

Seasonal Trends Resisted.

In the manufacturing industries, several phases of activity showed gains as compared with the preceding week, and some others underwent less than their normal seasonal slackening.

Cotton textile makers, swamped with government orders, toiled 16 to 24 hours a day, with output setting a record. Steel output edged up to 96.8 per cent of capacity, from 96 per cent in the preceding week. Electric power production, engineering construction awards, bank clearings, new security offerings, and wholesale trade increased. Automobile assemblies dipped less than seasonally to 125,370 units, from 125,625 a week earlier. Railroad freight loadings showed a less than normal decline.



The course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

Index at New Peak.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity, which is adjusted for seasonal influences, climbed to a new 1940 peak. The index, based on 1929-'30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Previous week.	Year ago.
Automobile Prod	117.1	113.4	108.8
Steel Mill Act	129.9	128.9	120.8
Cotton Mfg Act	*149.0	144.0	136.3
Elec Pwr Prod	*136.9	136.7	127.8
Residential Bldg	118.5	118.5	98.4
Total carloadings	*80.1	78.6	74.1
Composite index	*121.5	119.5	111.7

*New 1940 high.

Maintenance of automobile output at a high level was said to reflect unusually large sales, forecast at 500,000 for December, and reports that automobile makers may reduce assemblies for civilian channels from now on to spring so their skilled labor and plants can be devoted more to making aircraft and other war supplies.

Some other industries likewise were looking ahead to the possibility that the government's requirements will have to be given preference to an increasing degree. In some quarters, tightening of defense officials' control over raw materials was expected.

Names Defense Supercouncil.

President Roosevelt returned to Washington from a fishing cruise and found the capital alarmed by warnings in and out of congress that defense goods production is far behind schedule. The President created a new supercouncil in which he vested full responsibility for defense production.

Members are W. S. Knudsen, production chief of the national defense advisory commission; Sidney Hill-

BIG SHIP ORDERS LIFT PRICES OF BUILDER STOCKS

General List Is Uneven at Closing.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Buying support developed for scattered favorites in today's stock market but the list, on the whole, finished a generally unsatisfactory week with inconclusive trends.

Shipbuilding shares stepped out in front at the end of the brief session, and steels and specialties gained fractions to a point or more, but uneven tendencies were displayed in most of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 43, leaving it about where it was in September of this year and 1939. It was the seventh consecutive session in which the composite had been unable to gain.

Tax Selling Is Large.

Year-end selling for tax purposes in several low-priced stocks again accounted for a large part of the volume which amounted to 420,992 shares compared with 390,360 last Saturday.

Announcement of more navy awards for war craft spurred the shipbuilding division in the final few minutes. New York Shipbulding went into new high ground for the year and improvement was recorded for American-Hawaiian Steamship and Newport News Shipbuilding.

Cudahy Packing, a usually dormant stock, came to life for a 2½ point upswing. The company had reported the best profit in a decade.

Steels held their own — United States Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown were up ⅝ each—in the face of a predicted sharp drop in next week's mill operations because of holiday shutdowns.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Stocks moved indecisively on the Chicago exchange yesterday, with 28 of the 74 issues traded closing higher, 25 lower, and 21 unchanged from Friday's final prices. Fractional gains were posted for South Bend Lathe, Middle West, Swift, Brown Fence, and Consolidated Oil. Viking Pump preferred rose a point to a new 1940 peak at 41½. Trading during the last week involved 170,000 shares, compared with 171,000 in the week before and 151,000 a year ago.

STAPLE MARKETS MOVE NARROWLY WITHOUT A TREND

Price Gains and Losses About Evenly Divided.

Advances and declines balanced within a close range as commodity futures finished the week without establishing a definite trend. Wool tops, zinc, rubber, Santos coffee, and domestic sugar were higher, and hides, copper, lead, tin, and silk lost ground. In the cash markets rubber and wool tops were lower, and tin improved a small amount.

With the exception of sudden strength in zinc futures, metal markets showed little activity. Copper eased 0.03 cent a pound to 10.95 cents in May deliveries. Lead lost the same amount at 5.25 cents a pound in May, and tin was down 0.10 cent at 50 cents.

Buy South American Copper.

Cash metals held firm as tin added 0.05 cent at 50.10 cents. The government entered the copper market last week to avert a possible shortage of the metal by ordering 100,000 tons from South America.

Wool tops moved unevenly during the week, but closed with a gain of 0.9 cent a pound at $1.06 1/10 for May delivery. The cash price receded ½ cent to $1.20 bid. Rubber futures moved forward 0.37 cent a pound to 20.62 cents in May, but the cash market was off ¼ cent at 20.75 cents. Prices follow:

MARK CHICAGO EPOCH AS LIVE STOCK CAPITAL

Great Yards to Observe 75th Birthday.

to the populous east. Eastern butchers opposed the new method, but refrigeration was the basis for the development of Chicago's industry in its modern form.

First to Use Conveyors.

The packing industry, too, claims it was the first to adopt the conveyor chain system, moving the conveyor chain past the worker, a principle at the base of modern mass production in the automobile and other industries. When concrete roads and trucks appeared, the industry met them halfway, sending out buyers to head stock toward Chicago. Then the railroads speeded up and cut a day off the run of stock trains from Montana and the Dakotas to Chicago.

Gone are the old longhorns that once were driven up from Texas and turned out to graze on the prairies near town. Apparently vanished, too, are the buffalo coats and bearskins that were the glass of fashion among visiting cowmen from the plains in the early days of the exposition.

In the last couple of decades or so, the fragrances of the yards and Packingtown seem to have diminished in potency. Some years ago, on a night when the sky ceiling would be low and the wind from the south, thick smells from the rendering plants sometimes enveloped areas in Rogers Park and Evanston. Quite soupy it was, and at city council meetings it was debated.

"Babies Cry for It."

Alderman from the yards upheld it as nutritious . . . "babies cry for it" . . . and extoled the yards as one place where man or beast might put on weight by inhaled nourishment.

Rendering plants were modernized, too much fat was being wasted in the air, and the atmosphere was improved. It's not so smelly now, compared with the old days when old timers say 10 minutes of breathing exercise was the equivalent of a hearty breakfast.

Packingtown's laboratories are now one of its loudest boasts. The industry which in earlier days gained the title, somewhat derisive, of "hog butcher for the world," has become one of the great sources of medicinal products of animal origin. Some houses have research laboratories which make pharmaceutical products from the ductless glands and other materials, while other houses sell the glands to pharmaceutical manufacturers. Thus Chicago's slaughter houses have developed into a medicine chest.

A historical backdrop for the 75th anniversary has been worked up by O. T. Henkle, general manager of the Union stockyards, and M. S. Parkhurst of the staff.

Chicago, from its early days, has been identified with meats. The first live stock business here was to supply beef for the Fort Dearborn garrison. The cattle were slaughtered on the lake shore or under an elm tree which stood near what is now the corner of Monroe and Wells street. Live stock was driven from the rich Wabash country of Indiana to the fort.

Chicago's First Butcher.

In 1827 Archibald Clybourne built the first slaughterhouse of logs on the north branch of the Chicago river. Clybourne was the government butcher for the garrison and for the Potawatamies.

The year 1832 was memorable as the year which laid the foundation of the present packing business. In October that year George W. Dole packed 152 head of cattle for Oliver Newberry of Detroit. The slaughtering was done by John and Mark Noble on the prairie near the lake near what is now Michigan avenue and Madison street. The beef was shipped to Detroit. In December Dole packed 338 hogs, bought from John Blackstone. They had been driven from the Wabash valley. The meat was shipped to New York from Detroit. That was the start of the traffic in dressed meats.

The dealers in village days rode down into Illinois and Indiana and bought animals which they drove to Chicago. Chicago was surrounded by low, swampy land. The rivers were main lines of transportation for farmers not too far away from the water. Beardstown on the Illinois did more packing than Chicago. To get out of the mud, planked roads leading from Chicago in several directions were built. They were toll roads.

Taverns Built for Drovers.

As the years sped by taverns for drovers were built on these planked roads near the village limits. They had barns and pens for the animals, and thus a series of small live stock markets sprang up. Among the more famous were the Bull's Head, near what is now Madison street and Ogden avenue; Darrow's, at the present corner of State and 29th streets; the Brighton, near what is now Western avenue and 39th street; Myrick's, on the lake shore near what is now Cottage Grove avenue and 29th street.

The advent of the railroads marked the real start of the industry. In 1852 the Michigan Central and the Michigan Southern reached Chicago from the east. The Galena and Chicago Union, parent of the Chicago and North Western, the first railroad in Chicago, in 1848 was operating 10 miles of line to the Des Plaines, burning wood in its engines.

The civil war changed the flow of live stock which had moved south largely by water route and brought the meat animals to Chicago. Cincinnati had been the largest pork slaughtering center. It was known as Porkopolis. Some of the packers moved from Cincinnati to Chicago, which took the lead in both beef and pork.

Packing plants had sprung up along the south branch of the river near Halsted street and Bridgeport. Seven rival stock yards were scattered over the city, and stockmen and buyers suffered from wide fluctuations in price between points only a few miles apart, while the cattle suffered from lack of feed and attention.

Charter Granted in 1865.

So in June, 1864, the Chicago Pork Packers association proposed a plan, calling on all the railroads to go in with them, to consolidate all the seven markets at some spot readily accessible to the packing houses. The railroads agreed, and in 1865 the Illinois legislature granted a charter for the Union Stock Yard and Transit company of Chicago.

THE TRIBUNE in commenting on this step said: "Our reporter frequently finds in making his daily rounds of the various yards, that the average value of stock under these frequent changes which are occurring, has varied from 25 cents to as much as 50 cents between the price paid in one yard and the others. This is an evil of considerable magnitude, giving rise to feelings between owners and brokers of a very unsatisfactory character.

"By the consolidation of the yards of this city in one suitable place, drovers will always be able to command the full value of their stock and operators will always have the satisfaction of knowing that they are buying at the same equitable rate."

Chanute Is Chief Engineer.

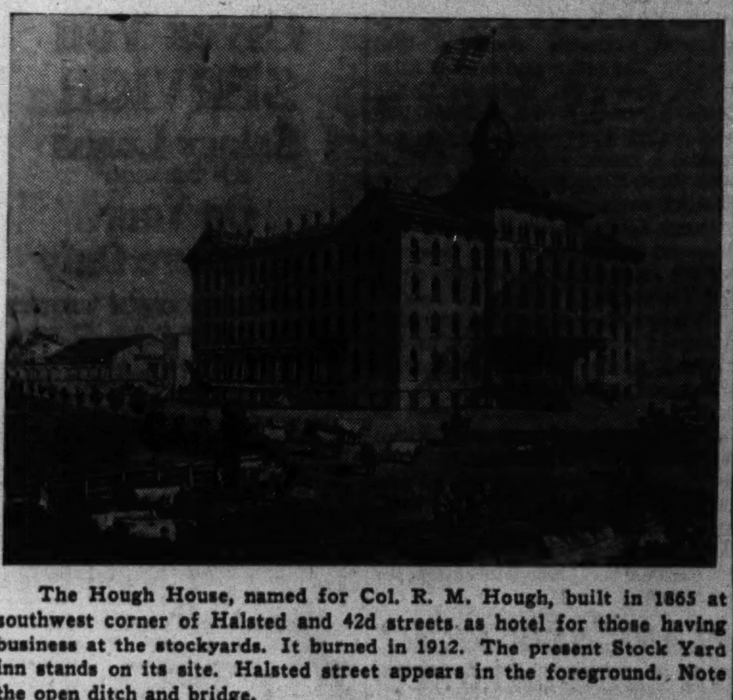
The railroads put up $925,000 and the packers $75,000. A 320 acre tract just south of the city's boundary was bought from John Wentworth, one of Chicago's mayors and a congressman, for $100,000. With additional tracts it is now 345 acres. It was low and swampy and had to be drained. The chief engineer who laid out the yards was Octave Chanute, civil engineer and pioneer in aviation, after whom Chanute flying field is named. Timothy B. Blackstone, president of the Chicago & Alton, was made president of the company.

On Christmas day, 1865, the stock yard had its formal opening, and the next day the Burlington railroad brought in the first train of 15 cars of hogs. Within a few weeks the small scattered markets became matters of history.

THE TRIBUNE on Jan. 1, 1866, commenting on the situation, said:

"The great Union Stock Yards are now a reality—the realization of a wish long since expressed, and, like the Chamber of Commerce building, the lake tunnel, the packing houses, and Crosby's Opera House, one of the 'lions' of which Chicago may justly 'brag' on. The traveler or tourist who 'does' Chicago, must not neglect to spend a day or two at the Hough House, for if not, he has not seen what no other city in the world can show—the largest cattle and hog market on the globe."

Stockyards to Observe Birthday



The Hough House, named for Col. R. M. Hough, built in 1865 at southwest corner of Halsted and 42d streets as hotel for those having business at the stockyards. It burned in 1912. The present Stock Yard inn stands on its site. Halsted street appears in the foreground. Note the open ditch and bridge.

WEEK'S PRICES OF LIVE STOCK LITTLE CHANGED

Prices of most kinds of live stock changed only slightly last week, altho some kinds fluctuated rather sharply. The six day steer average at $11.90 a hundred pounds was 5 cents above the preceding week's average. Most steers and yearlings closed the week steady to 25 cents higher. Beef cows rose 15 to 25 cents. These gains were offset by sharp losses in most classes of heifers. Best heifers held steady, but others tumbled 25 to 50 cents. Calves advanced 25 cents.

The various classes of hogs finished the week from 5 cents lower to 10 cents higher compared with the final sales of the week before. The six day average moved up 10 cents, to $6.20. Closing lamb prices showed reductions of 10 to 25 cents, the week's average at $9.10 recording a loss of 15 cents.

man, former vice president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; Secretary of War Henry Stimson, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

The issue of aid to England likewise stirred the capital, and President Roosevelt finally disclosed a plan to "rent" armaments to Britain. He authorized the British government to place orders for 3 billion dollars' worth of war equipment, which would be returned or replaced after the war, according to the plan.

Award More Contracts.

Meantime hundreds of millions of dollars of additional national defense orders and contracts for supplies and factory expansions or construction were awarded.

Closely related to the defense problem was an apparent shift in the treasury's financing program, indicating that the government is planning to raise more of its needed funds by direct public borrowing, with less reliance on commercial banks. A new drive to sell savings bonds to the public was indicated. One purpose would be to absorb savings which otherwise would be spent for nondefense purposes.

Other developments during the week:

The house of representatives failed to muster a two-thirds vote to override a Presidential veto of the Walter-Logan bill to regulate arbitrary powers of government departments by providing judicial review of rulings.

Speed Up Train Service.

The Export-Import bank, a government agency, extended a $10,000,000 credit to Peru to cover purchases of United States goods.

Chicago-Miami 29½ hour train service on three railroads out of Chicago got underway amid ceremonial splashings of champagne and orange juice on the noses of brand new streamliners.

Preparations were made for final tests of a "mechanical whale," a ship scientifically designed to extract "whale" oil from tiny plants and organisms which float in the sea to a depth of 1,000 feet. The sponsors' aim is to displace the whale as the source of the oil.

Investors' Guide

INVESTING FOR TOMORROW.

The 1940 census has revealed a slowing of the rate of population growth in the United States. This has been interpreted as indicating a trend toward a stationary or declining population—resulting from a drop in the birth rate and in immigration.

The prospect of a stable population has serious implications for the investor. A slowing rate of growth in population may presage the closing of a major outlet for investment funds. The exploitation of the western frontier shut an earlier investment avenue.

A nation that has stopped growing, however, does not necessarily produce an economy having hardening arteries. Such a condition need not indicate a mature society in which all growth has ceased. Population increase is only one of several forces which generate business expansion.

There are several potential outlets for private capital to replace the slowing in the rate of population growth, according to Dr. Philip M. Hauser, population expert for the bureau of the census. Mass housing construction, plastics, air conditioning, and other new industries, processes, and technics are suggested by Dr. Hauser as possible channels into which accumulated savings of private investors may flow in the future.

As important as new products and new industries, but often overlooked, are the possibilities of wider distribution and heavier consumption of goods already on the market. Lowered prices thru reduced distribution costs, and increased buying thru intelligent advertising also would offer broader opportunities for investment, Dr. Hauser said.

The economic readjustments which accompany a stationary or declining population will work themselves out gradually, he indicated, and the transition period will be long enough to "cushion many of the shocks."

"Other things being equal, demand will be more stable and hence easier to predict," he asserted. "Altho returns on investments may not be so great as in the past, stability will bring smaller risk—an increased margin of safety which an increasingly larger proportion of investment capital, thru various forms of trusteeship, is already seeking."

The effect of the decline in the rate of population growth will not be felt immediately. Investors, however, may have to readjust their long-term programs in the event the decline in the rate continues. To protect the long range value of their investments, they might include securities of companies in industries which do not depend on an ever expanding population and which have potentialities of new and continuing growth.

DEALERS OPPOSE PROPOSED MILK INSPECTION FEE

Say It Would Kick Back on Consumer.

A proposal that the city levy an inspection tax on country dairy farms and dairies in the Chicago milk shed, requiring them to foot the bill for inspections now made by the Chicago board of health at city expense, was attacked by milk producers and dealers yesterday as a measure that would kick back on the consumer.

Dairy inspections now cost the city $350,000 a year. An inspection fee of 2 cents for every 100 pounds of milk produced, which would produce $400,000 in revenues annually, is proposed, and an ordinance is being drafted at the direction of the city council finance committee.

Objections by Milk Dealers.

Sam Dean Sr., president of the Dean Milk company, declared that while such a fee would be relatively small for each quart of milk, "it would be just another of those fixed costs which would delay the possibility of a producer lowering the cost of milk and would look large to the producer if the cost of raw milk advanced at all. In the end, it will cost the consumer more money."

Paul Potter, executive secretary for Associated Milk Dealers, said: "It is not just the inspection fee that counts. We regard this as another step to impose further taxes on the industry."

"An inspection fee law," Potter continued, "merely transfers the burden of the city milk inspection department from the taxpayer to the poor person who goes out to buy a quart of milk."

Farmers Oppose Measure.

The Pure Milk association, a farmers' coöperative, also has announced opposition to an inspection fee ordinance.

In spite of their objections to the proposed measure, representatives of the producers and dealers who met Friday with Mayor Kelly and the finance committee said they would attempt to work out a plan to absorb the inspection costs. If such a plan is arranged it will be presented before the council meets on Jan. 7 to consider passage of the 1941 budget.

BURGLARS GET $200, WATCH, AND RING.

Two burglars broke into the apartment of Peter Colter at 4845 North Washtenaw avenue early yesterday and stole a watch, a diamond ring, and $200 while the family slept.

Draftees Get Leave

William F. Rockar (left), 152 North Latrobe avenue, and Russell Middaugh, Manistique, Mich., leaving Union station after arrival from Savanna, Ill., yesterday.

Forty soldiers from the army ordnance proving grounds at Savanna, Ill., arrived in Chicago by train yesterday afternoon to spend the Christmas holidays with their friends and families. Most of the soldiers in the group were Chicagoans, sent to the Savanna station at the time of the first draft in November. Others were from Michigan and Wisconsin.

U. S. PLANE LINES IN FOREIGN LANDS HELD DEFENSE AID

Teacher Tells of Links in Latin America.

Government support of American owned air lines operating in foreign lands will strengthen our foreign relations, commercially and otherwise, and should form an integral part of national defense, according to Prof. Robert S. Platt of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Platt has traveled more than 50,000 miles by air over Latin America in his research in regional geography. His use of air transportation to study geography now is reversed, and he is using geography as a basis for research in aviation.

47 in Latin America.

"Of the 47 established air lines in Latin America," he said yesterday, "7 are German, 1 is Italian, 1 is Dutch, 26 are controlled by Latin American countries, and 12 are owned by the United States.

"The German air lines are strategically located in the southern countries, particularly Brazil, Argentina, Bolivia, and Peru, and usually coöperate with German pilots and equipment. In September, 1939, the government of Colombia reorganized the German air line in that country by giving control to Colombian citizens, replacing German pilots with Colombian and American flyers, and coöperating more closely with Pan-American Airways.

"In recent months the government of Ecuador has allowed Pan-American to extend its influence over the German air line system. Present government restrictions on the expansion of air lines in the United States do not apply to Pan-American Airways.

Lines to Be Studied.

These and other air lines will be discussed by Dr. Platt next semester at the University of Chicago in a new course on airways and air traffic.

"In this course," said Dr. Platt, "we will discuss the national and international geographic structure, the present and potential traffic, and the political significance of the world's air lines. An examination will be made of the development of Pan-American Airways, Imperial Airways, Trans-Canada Airlines, Japan Air Transport, the soviet air network, and the United States' system.

"Aeronautical research in the social sciences barely has been touched, and it is hoped that by offering this course more students will interest themselves in a subject of great importance."

PLAN GAY YULE FETES FOR ARMY AND NAVY UNITS

Parties and Christmas season programs have been planned for soldiers and sailors and their relatives at Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes naval training station. Many of the 4,257 enlisted men at Fort Sheridan will be on furlough during Christmas. They have their choice of taking leaves over Christmas day or New Year's day.

A pre-Christmas dance will be given tonight in the drill hall at Great Lakes, where there are approximately 4,000 sailors. A party for children of officers and enlisted men will be given tomorrow. A Christmas eve party is planned in the gymnasium at Fort Sheridan, and there will be a Christmas day party for children of the post.

Five hundred members of the 202d coast artillery, a National Guard unit, which is training at Fort Bliss, Tex., will arrive in Chicago tomorrow night on a Christmas furlough.

Police Blame Insecticide in Poison Coffee Death

Police said yesterday they believed that arsenic in coffee that poisoned three men, one of whom died, at the Signode Steel Strapping company, 2600 North Western avenue, came from insecticide in a locker where the coffee was kept. Therea Hill, 47 years old, 2542 Jackson boulevard, died of the poison and James Mengler, 44, of 3119 South Hamlin avenue, and John L. Kapche, 56, of 2443 Warner avenue, were stricken Thursday after drinking the coffee.

BANDIT FLEES THRU WINDOW.

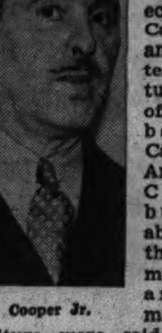
A bandit posed as a prospective patient yesterday and then tried to rob Dr. E. M. Buchner, a dentist, in his office at 3556 Fullerton avenue. Dr. Buchner sounded an alarm and the bandit escaped by leaping thru a window, 15 feet above the ground when he found his escape down the stairway blocked by persons responding to Dr. Buchner's call for help.

COMPLETE NEW GEN. ELECTRIC OFFICE BUILDING

Occupies Full City Block on Canal Street.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Completion of the largest office building and warehouse erected in many years on the west side, the $2,000,000 General Electric company's project at 840 South Canal street, was announced yesterday. The structure covers most of a city block bounded by Canal, Cabrini, Arthington, and Clinton. The building cost about $1,500,000, the land approximately $400,000, and equipment, machinery, and furniture were said to have cost about $100,000. Holabird & Root designed the building.



R. Cooper Jr.

Several Units Consolidated.

Six General Electric departments and four affiliated companies, formerly housed in nine different locations in Chicago, have been consolidated in the new building.

A seventh tenant, and one which will occupy one of the largest areas used by any one unit, moved in yesterday. This was R. Cooper Jr., Inc., distributor of all major General Electric appliances.

The firm moved from 444 Lake Shore drive to much larger quarters in the new General Electric building. It will occupy all of the second floor and one-half of the first floor Canal street frontage. The latter will be used for a showroom.

The new General Electric building is air conditioned, has acoustically treated ceilings, and is illuminated almost entirely with fluorescent lighting. It is six stories in height on the Canal street side and seven on the other three streets.

About Third for Offices.

Not quite a third, or 110,000 square feet, of the floor space is used for offices. The remainder is used for warehouse space and machine service shops equipped with heavy cranes and ponderous machinery. Trucks can drive directly into the building and a covered railroad siding permits car unloading in all kinds of weather.

The Chicago headquarters supervise General Electric operations in 11 states and parts of 3 others. Offices in 7 midwestern cities report to Chicago. They are: Davenport, Detroit, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Omaha, and St. Louis. W. O. Batchelder, a vice president of the company, is in charge of the entire district.

BUYS 305 ACRES AT BARRINGTON FOR $60,000 CASH

Victor C. P. Dreiske, general manager of the Chicago branch of the Cadillac division of General Motors, yesterday bought 305 acres near Barrington known as the Alfred Cowles estate farms, for a reported $60,000 cash. The property, on Cuba and Meadow Hill roads, includes 125 acres of woodland and 180 acres under cultivation. It is improved with two sets of farm buildings. Dreiske will modernize one of the residences and occupy it.

New Advertising Concern Leases Offices in "333"

The Chicago Car Advertising company, a new corporation just awarded advertising privileges by the Chicago Rapid Transit company, has leased space in the 333 North Michigan avenue building thru William O. Trainer. Edwin F. Faber and C. H. Murphey head the new concern. Associated with them are many formerly with the Chicago Elevated Advertising company.

Plan Oak Park Shops at Lake, Forest Corner

Improvement of the farthest east parcel of real estate zoned for business on the north side of Lake street, in the Lake-Marion business district of Oak Park, was announced yesterday. A syndicate of Chicagoans bought the land at the northeast corner of Lake street and Forest avenue and will erect a one story stone building to contain seven shops, from plans by B. Leo Steif, Inc.

The property, fronting 165 feet on Lake and 150 feet on Forest, was bought more than 20 years ago by Oak Park Masons—Lodge No. 540, A. F. & A. M., and Siloam commandery No. 54, Knights Templar—with the idea of building a Masonic temple.

The price paid the Masons was not disclosed, but the total investment in land and building, it was said, will be $175,000. Spring occupancy is scheduled.

Negotiations already are under way with tenants for all of the shops, according to Howard L. Storch, of Ross, Browne & Fleming, renting agent for the syndicate.

Two years ago this property was re-zoned from residential to business use. In the next block west is the Lake theater. The northwest corner of Lake and Forest is also vacant.

BILLS REALTY BROADENS PLANS IN NORTHBROOK

The Bills Realty, Inc., yesterday outlined its 1941 building program for its Northbrook Highlands community, in the town of Northbrook. The area has been increased from an original 131 acres [containing 420 home sites] to 240 acres, with a total of 810 home sites.

The new addition of 109 acres, adjoining the original property on the east, was bought from the Kaspar American State bank. It extends from the main business section of Northbrook north to Dundee road and east to Waukegan road.

Bids are now being taken on 14 new homes out of a contemplated 100 to be built during 1941, according to Benjamin F. Bills, chairman of the corporation. Nearly one half of the first section, opened last October, already has been sold, Bills said.

U. S. TAKES TITLE TO 571 ACRES FOR ORDNANCE PLANT

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe granted the government title yesterday to 571 acres of land for the Wilmington ordnance plant in Will county. The order was entered after C. W. Beatty Jr., assistant United States attorney, filed a condemnation suit against five property owners and posted a treasury check for $162,225 with Hoyt King, clerk of the federal District court.

Judge Igoe's order gives the government possession of the property for the amount posted with the clerk, but the property owners, if dissatisfied, may obtain a jury hearing on a demand for a higher price. The settlement made by the government was based on an appraisal.

The government has acquired 95 per cent of the preserve of 62 square miles required for the plant by direct purchase, and will file additional condemnation suits against other holdout property owners. The total in land purchases will amount to $6,000,000 and the plant will cost about $25,000,000.

PLANS NEW FIGHT ON LEGISLATURE'S LUMP SUM FUNDS

State Representative Arnold L. Lund said yesterday that he has given the required notice that he intends to seek a rehearing in the Illinois Supreme court of the case in which he attacked large lump sum appropriations made by the general assembly in 1939.

The court recently held that it was impossible for the legislature to know just what money would be spent for each of several purposes in connection with state road construction which were grouped in a single appropriation. Lund said it is his contention the highway engineers must have made estimates upon which the total sum was based.

Lund also argued that unless the court modifies its ruling the governor would be stripped of his constitutional right of vetoing separate items in major appropriations lumped in one total without detailed figures.

Order Trio Held to Jury for Alcohol Tax Violation

Mrs. Marie Schuberth, 49 years old, owner of a farm near Lockport; her son, Laverne, 21, and Pasquale Luberti, 32, of 511 South Kilbourn avenue, were ordered held to the federal grand jury yesterday on charges of alcohol tax law violations. Agents of the alcohol tax unit told United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker that 11,500 gallons of mash, 43 gallons of untaxed alcohol, and 236 empty five gallon cans were found in a raid on the Schuberth farm Monday, when the three were arrested.

JOYOUS MUSIC TO FILL CHURCHES

EVANSTON CABS ARE HEADACHE FOR ALDERMEN

Jitneys Run Freely Under Injunction.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

Evanston's perennial taxicab trouble has grown into a hot potato that the politicians would like to drop into somebody else's lap. The Evanston legal staff has been pouring over statutes and drawing up briefs, and many an alderman has spent restless hours over the issue.

It's no secret that it's an-out-and-out war between the Evanston bus line and 248 jitney cabs. The bus company, which runs 46 buses, would benefit greatly if the aldermen clamped down on the taxis. Majority of the stock in the company is held by a Milwaukee qeuipment company.

Put Clamp on Cabs.

Recently aldermen passed an ordinance raising cab fares and prohibiting cabs from picking up passengers at bus stands. Mayor Henry Penfield vetoed it, but the ordinance was passed over his veto. Last week three jitney cab companies got an injunction restraining Evanston from enforcing the new law.

At the present time the lid is off in Evanston as far as cabs are concerned. With the injunction in effect, there are no taxi restrictions. As a result, independent cabs have hung signs on their doors offering to take passengers anywhere in Evanston for 25 cents.

A few months ago a fleet of silver-painted cabs appeared on the streets taking riders for a nickel as far as they wanted to go in the suburb, providing passengers would ride only on thru streets and providing that the cabs could pick up other passengers along the way.

Delighted the Children.

These cabs became the school children's delight. They were cheaper in many cases than the bus, and one was always sure of a seat, for no one, except a midget, can stand in a cab. Ald. Tommy Airth charges that these cabs often would dart past a bus, beating it to a loading zone and the passengers who had been waiting for a bus.

Evanston's taxicab dispute started five years ago. Thirty ancient Yellow cabs were stopped on their journey to the graveyard of taxis, then painted gray and put out on Evanston's streets. Rates were cut to 5 cents a half mile.

These ex-Yellow cabs rattled over the suburb's streets, clouds of exhaust smoke trailing in their wake. But they did a booming business. Everybody went taxicab riding. Finally other companies cut fares and operators bought light cars and converted them into taxis. They had the words "FIVE CENTS" printed on the doors and rented the cabs to drivers at $2.50 a day.

Still Is the Practice.

This practice still goes on. The driver pays $2.50 for the use of a cab for 12 hours. What money he takes in is his. The cab company sells him his gas and oil taking a profit of about four cents a gallon on the gas. The cab takes in for the company a total of $5 a day, not counting gas and oil profit which is said to cover repairs and maintenance.

The cab company, with 50 cabs, thus grosses $250 a day, seven days a week. The cab driver earns on an average from $12 to $15 a week working 12 hours a day, six days a week.

Evanston's cops have made it tough on the cab drivers for a long time, altho the cabs are a large source of city revenue. Each cab pays a total of $25 a year to the city for operating fees. There are a total of 300 cab licenses issued over a year, including 50 to the Yellow Cab company, which makes a total of $7,500.

Buses, however, are charged $50 each for running over the suburb's streets. The total revenue from the bus company is $2,300. Some have charged that this does not pay for the wear on the streets.

Rates under the new ordinance are 10 cents for the first half mile and 5 cents for each additional half mile. Chicago cab rates are 20 cents for the first third mile and 10 cents for each additional two-thirds mile. An extra charge of 5 cents is made for each extra passenger.

DINNER-DANCE SCHEDULED FOR CONFIRMANDS

The annual homecoming dinner dance for students at out of town colleges who are former confirmands of Anshe Emet synagogue, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, will be held next Sunday evening in the community hall of the temple.

Rabbi Solomon Goldman will be guest speaker, and Cantor Moses Silverman will sing. Pupils of the synagogue's Hebrew school will present a series of skits and paraphrases of popular radio programs.

Robert Mills, Elsa Royack, and Irma Buckman are in charge of arrangements. The homecoming will be sponsored by the Anshe Emet Alumni organization.

Convention Ends.

The three day midwest convention of the Cosmopolitan club at Northwestern university in Evanston will end today. Delegates representing 40 different nationalities attended.

Students Join in Good Fellow Sing Tomorrow

(Coupon on page 8.)

Hundreds of students from six Chicago High schools and one junior college will join voices tomorrow afternoon in the fifth annual Good Fellow Carol Sing. The program of Christmas music will be given in the court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio from 3:45 to 4:15 o'clock. The first 15 minutes of the program will be broadcast over W-G-N.

School musical organizations taking part include mixed choruses from Lindblom, Hirsch, Senn, Waller, and Steinmetz High schools and Wright Junior college. From Farragut High school will be boys' and girls' choruses, and Austin will be represented by its boys' and girls' glee clubs and senior and junior choirs. The sing will be presented thru the coöperation of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago public schools.

Carols on Program.

Carols to be sung include the favorites of the Christmas season. They are: "Silent Night," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," "Joy to the World," "Deck the Halls," "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," "The First Noel," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "Here We Come A-Caroling."

Each school group will be under the immediate supervision of its musical directors. The directors are: Austin, Hazel E. Lloyd, Marion McDonaugh, and Edna Pohlmann; Farragut, Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson; Hirsch, Helena L. Kane; Lindblom, Joseph R. Taylor; Senn, Dr. Samuel Burkholder; Steinmetz, Harriet Calverley and Willard L. Groom; Waller, Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, and Wright Junior college, Erhardt Bergstrasser.

BEARD TOO HOT! KRIS' JOB IS O. K. IN OTHER WAYS

Mike, 75, Hails Kids on Howard Street.

The only thing wrong with the job of being Santa Claus is that the whiskers are too warm. Otherwise, says 75 year old Mike Waner, 2104 Birchwood avenue, it's not a bad job.

For the last three years now Mike has worked at being Santa Claus for the Howard street business men. He trudges up and down Howard every day except Sunday for three weeks before Christmas. His hours are from noon to 9 o'clock at night, depending on the crowds.

Groups of youngsters tag after him, tugging at his hand. Before he asks them what they want for Christmas he insists on knowing whether they have been well-behaved during the year. When they insist their deportment has been so excellent that it's not to be questioned, he assures them they will get their train, doll buggy, skates, or whatever they want, within reason.

Kids Always the Same.

"Kids today want practically the same things they wanted when I was a kid," he tells you. "They all want toys, bicycles, and dolls mostly."

Mike Waner "didn't know much about this Santa Claus business" until he came to Chicago eight years ago. He owned a 160 acre farm in Kansas where he raised wheat, corn, oats, and six children of his own. He was a farmer for 60 years.

"It was so durn dry you couldn't raise anything hardly, some years," he says. Finally he lost the farm and came to Chicago to live with his son, Harry. Santa Claus doesn't pay much attention to poor farmers, he remarks dryly.

Until he came to Chicago he had never played Santa Claus but the rôle came easily to him, for he is fond of children and he has a naturally jovial manner.

Rig Doesn't Fool 'Em.

The youngsters who live in his neighborhood and know him as Mr. Waner during the rest of the year aren't fooled for one minute by his Santa costume, he says. Some of them politely pretend to be fooled tho, he believes.

Loosening the white beard, he sighs. "This is the worst part of job. It's too warm, even when the weather is cold."

With a typical Santa Claus twinkle in his eye, he adds, "You'd be surprised at what the young women folks ask me for." He pauses. "They all ask for one thing—a man."

BOYS AND GIRLS QUIT SCHOOL FOR YULE AT HOME

Thirteen boys and girls from the north side and the north shore were among the 50 or more pupils of two western schools who arrived in Chicago last week to pass the holidays with their parents.

The girls are from the Brownmoor school near Santa Fe, N. M. They are Marion Booz of Evanston, Joan Clement, Barbara King, and Fayette Krum of Lake Forest, Anna Spaulding of Glencoe, Carla Hawley of Geneva, Ill., and Roberta Folonie of 1246 North State street, and Trescott Ripley of 5555 Sheridan road, both in Chicago.

The boys attend the Los Alamos ranch school, which is also near Santa Fe. They are Arthur Buckley and Addison L. Gardner III. of Evanston, John Curtis Jr., and Frederick Childs Pullman of Lake Forest, and Richard Wieboldt of Glencoe.

HIGHLAND PARK CENTER TO HOLD AN OPEN HOUSE

The Community center in Highland Park will hold open house from 4 to 6 o'clock Christmas eve. George Scheuchenpflug, director, is inviting shoppers to stop in for hot punch and cookies. A new piano, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Boynton, will be dedicated.

Mrs. Arthur F. Byfield is in charge of a musical program which will include carols by the music club and selections by the orchestra, directed by Everett Millard Jr. The carols will be broadcast over a loud speaker.

The Young Men's club will hold its New Year's dance Saturday night in the center. Dr. Baker M. Hamilton, president, and Harry Skidmore, social chairman, are in charge of arrangements.

DRAMATIC GROUP GIVES PLAYS AS GIFT TO BOYS

The Jack and Jill Players will present an after-Christmas gift Friday evening to 300 members of the Lawndale Boys club, 2801 South Ridgeway avenue.

Their gift to the club will be the staging of four plays at the clubhouse. The program will be directed by Marie Agnes Foley, drama coach, and the plays include "The Great Gift," "Midge Goes to the Movies," "The Grand Protector," and "Case of the Glass Slipper."

Former Scouts to Attend Troop Reunion on Friday

A reunion of former members of Boy Scout Troop 830 will be held Friday evening in the parish house of St. Paul's Church by the Lake, 7110 North Ashland avenue. Present members of the troop will hold a parents' night program and demonstrate Scout activities of 1940. The troop was formed 15 years ago. Curtis Mitchell, 7520 North Seeley avenue, and Paul Ryckoff, 1608 Chase avenue, are in charge of reservations.

Homecoming Dance.

Alumni club of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, will hold a college homecoming dance next Sunday evening in the temple community rooms.

NEIGHBORHOOD BOYS' CLUB WILL HAVE PROGRAM

Revere Park Club Will Sing Operetta.

A year of keen competition on the athletic field and comradeship inside and outside of the clubhouse will be climaxed for members of the Neighborhood Boys club with a Christmas program at 8 o'clock this evening in Lane Technical High school auditorium, Addison street and Western avenue. J. F. Nickels, president of the Dads club which sponsors the program, will preside.

An operetta, "Ye Olde English Christmas," directed by Miss Marie Valentine, will be presented by members of the Paul Revere Park club, 2501 Irving Park road. Robert Buehler, who founded the club in 1931, will present awards and medals and the Lake View High school concert band will furnish the music. Clarence Wermich of the Northcenter Business Men's association will be master of ceremonies.

The three branches of the club, at Paul Revere park, Hanson park playground, Central and Fullerton avenues, and River park, 5100 North Francisco avenue, have an active membership of 1,500 boys. The entire group will be present to see the presentation of 103 "For Better Men" awards and 808 medals for service on championship teams in 1940.

A cast of 82 boys will take part in the operetta.

WARMER AREAS LURE N. SIDERS FOR VACATIONS

Florida, California Favored Spots.

The list of north siders who are following the sun to the south and west coasts this winter increases daily. Many have chosen the warmer regions for their vacations or Christmas holiday trips, but a few will not return to their homes until spring.

Among the Evanstonians entraining for Florida are Mrs. W. M. Echols, who is going to Orlando; Mrs. W. A. Brooks, who left last week for Coral Gables, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Colson, who will leave early in January for Miami.

Those preferring the west coast include Nathan Osborne, who drove to Pasadena; Miss Mary M. Logsdon, who left two weeks ago for California; the Robert O. Vandercooks, also in Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. John McCoy and John Gable, who will go to Santa Monica, Cal., by train, and Mrs. Elizabeth F. Stevens, who will leave this month for Los Angeles.

Off for the West.

Marshall Haywood, 237 East Delaware place, and his wife and two children, are spending the holidays in Naples, Fla. Mrs. Haywood and the children, who made the trip by railroad, will pass the winter there, but Mr. Haywood, who followed by automobile, will return early next month.

Drive to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. George Murdock of Wilmette drove to Coral Gables, Fla., Mrs. Herbert Hyde of Winnetka left for Santa Fe, N. M., and Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Alexander of Evanston left the early part of this month by train for Laguna Beach, Cal.

R. Max Cobb of Skokie left this month for Los Angeles, Cal., and two of his townsmen, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Nelson, will drive to Los Angeles after the first of the year. Mrs. Johanna Kellan of Skokie is in Coral Gables, Fla.

A few who have chosen still different vacation trips are Mr. and Mrs. John McCoy of Evanston, who will go to Santa Monica, Cal., by train; Mrs. Grace Cheesman, Evanston, who is leaving this month for Pasadena, Cal.; Mrs. Russell D. Hill, Evanston, who will entrain soon for Fairfax, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, Evanston, who are staying in Tucson, Ariz., this season.

Flying to Maryland.

S. V. Manley, who resides at the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A., will fly to Maryland by American Airlines to spend the Christmas holiday with his parents. Mr. Manley, who is a salesman, will go Tuesday and return by New Year's eve.

Miss Jean Miller, 212 East Ontario street, is flying to her home in Detroit by American Airlines for a three day holiday over Christmas. Miss Miller is employed at the Chez Paree.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Williams, 209 Kedize street, Evanston, and their two children, Betty and Mary,

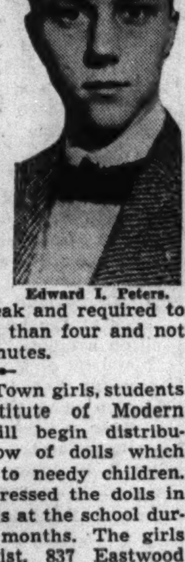
OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

EDWARD I. PETERS, 2530 Farwell avenue, is going to be a technician with a talent for public speaking. Competing against more than 450 other students in the freshman class at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., he was one of six students to qualify for the finals in an extemporaneous speaking contest. In each of the preliminary, semifinal and final contests the students were assigned a subject only five minutes before they were called upon to speak and required to speak for not less than four and not more than six minutes.



Edward I. Peters.

TWELVE Our Town girls, students at the Institute of Modern Business, will begin distribution tomorrow of dolls which they have made to needy children. They made and dressed the dolls in their recess periods at the school during the last two months. The girls are Betty Ahlquist, 837 Eastwood avenue; Letha Davis, 4448 North Racine avenue; Clara Bell Douglas, 4737 North Hermitage avenue; Hope Gold, 4416 Hazel avenue; Gertrude Johnson, 3531 North Bell avenue; Georgia Kokonas, 4814 North Seeley avenue; Margery Kull, 4925 N. Claremont avenue; Gertrude Leibundguth, 4422 North Seeley avenue; Jeanette Martin, 163 East Walton place; Bessie Stathopul, 2104 Eastwood avenue; Betty Tabar, 4705 North Tallman avenue, and Darleen Thomas, 1409 Wilson avenue.

Our Towner Harry S. Bunting of Lake Forest, past honorary president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, will be a guest speaker at the fraternity's 85th national convention to be held Dec. 28-31 at Fort Worth, Tex.

TWO Our Towners have been named by Congressman Ralph E. Church [R., 10th] to fill vacancies at the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, Md. They are Douglas S. Mackay, 3238 Hartzell street, Evanston, and James E. Murrin, 153 Austin avenue, Libertyville. The appointments and those of six alternatives were made on the basis of competitive examinations held last October.

William R. Throckmorton, 1611 Juneway terrace, senior at Amhurst college, recently had charge of one of four round tables at the ninth annual International Relations conference at Brown university. Thirty-six colleges were represented at the meeting.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sall, 1810 Farwell avenue, Dec. 5 in the Edgewater hospital.

MRS. JAMES ANDERSON, former house mother at the Lamba Chi Alpha sorority house at Northwestern university, has been appointed to the same job for the Gamma Deuteron chapter of Phi Gamma Delta at Knox college, Galesburg.

Blend Their Voices in Yuletide Operetta

Rehearsing in close harmony, members of the Neighborhood Boys' club prepare for their seventh annual Christmas program, an operetta, "Ye Old English Christmas," to be given at 8 o'clock tonight in the Lane High school auditorium, Western avenue and Addison street. Pictured here (left to right) are, front row: Jack Leske, Donald Tempinson, Clifford Farrell, William Koopmann; middle row: Roger Mutter, Clarence Seitsema, Edward Gogonas, William Schwenk; back row: Robert Lutzow, William Schwenk, Robert Holm, Bert Benziger, William Schubert, and Louis Baker. Miss Marie Valentine directs the club choristers.

YULE SERVICES TO START TODAY ON NORTH SIDE

Pageants and Carols Are Scheduled.

BY JUANITA DALY.

Reverent Christmas music, silent and spoken prayers and the beautiful drama of the nativity scene will invoke peace for a war torn world as they are presented in north side churches this week. "The Christmas Legend in Song and Story," an original pageant written and directed by Miss Sadie Marie Rafferty, director of youth choirs, will be offered at the Evanston First Presbyterian church at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Elias A. Bredin, organist and choirmaster, will be at the Barnes memorial organ and Dr. Emory Wylie Luccock, minister, will be the narrator. Soloists will include Agatha Lewis and Dorothy Coopersmith, sopranos; Elaine Dahlgren, contralto; Robert Long, tenor, and Roy Schuessler, baritone.

The pageant is under the auspices of the white gifts committee of the board of deacons, Milton Harper, chairman. After the program, the annual white gifts procession will be held and the congregation will make its contribution for the charity work of the deacons.

Players in Pageant.

Characters in the pageant are Martin Morrison, A. W. Groves, and Ed Williams, prophets; Mary Vey as Mary, William Morris as Joseph, Jack Rhett, Herbert Coppersmith, Grant Holt, Charles Anderson, David Morrison, and Tom Shedd, shepherds; Ann Vernon, Ruth Kerr, Martha Mueller, Mary Williams, Eleanor Torstenson, and Judith Vernon, angels, and Clarence Boettcher, Joseph C. Dana, and Edwin McNeil, wise men.

Maurice G. Morrison advised the committee on authentic costumes and privided some from his Palestinian collection. Other committee members are John Zatteau, Edson Brock, Cecil Holman, Eugene Bishop, Frederick Mueller, Mrs. Charles Van Horssen, Mrs. E. M. Stevens, and Mrs. J. B. Maylard.

St. James' Episcopal church, Wabash and Huron streets, will hold a communion service at 11 o'clock Christmas morning. The choir, directed by Dr. Leo Sowerby, will sing parts of the Gregorian "Missa de Angelis" as arranged by Canon Douglass and Dr. Sowerby will play two choral preludes. The children's carol and candlelight service will be held at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Carillon Concert.

Carillon Noël melodies will precede the Christmas eve service at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, 1424 North Dearborn street. After the half hour recital, the choir will sing traditional carols from the church cloister. Holy communion will begin at 11:30 o'clock.

A Christmas candlelight evensong will be offered by the four choirs of Berry Memorial Methodist church, Leavitt and Giddings streets, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Carols from many nations will accompany the living picture, "Star of Bethlehem." Mary Frances Eldredge is choir director, assisted by Margaret Borchers. The Rev. William Evans, pastor, will preside.

Solemn high mass at the Episcopal church of the Ascension, La Salle and Elm streets, will be celebrated by the Rev. W. B. Stoskopf and the Rev. J. R. Vaughn at 11 o'clock Christmas morning. Lester Groom will play the organ and the choir will sing the "Missa Marialis" and selections from Handel's "Messiah," with Miss Ruth Brown as soloist.

High Mass at 4 A. M.

Bishop William D. O'Brien will celebrate pontifical high mass at Old St. John's church at 4 o'clock Christmas morning, assisted by the Rev. Thomas J. Reed, assistant priest; the Rev. Joseph B. Lux, deacon, and the Rev. R. R. St. John, subdeacon. The vested schola cantorum, directed by Gerald Devlin, will sing a plain chant mass in the sanctuary.

The processional, composed by Mr. Devlin for last year's Christmas mass, will be repeated. In addition to the mass, the schola will sing carols in English and Latin. Masses will be said at 8, 9:30, 11, and 12 o'clock and the musical program will be repeated at noon. Members of the schola are Robert Burns, Jerome O'Grady, Donald Devlin, John Phelps, James Burns, Donald O'Grady, Frederick Raye, and Gerald Devlin.

The midnight eucharist at St. Peter's Episcopal church, 621 Belmont avenue, will feature songs by the choir, a sermon by the Rev. R. Everett Carr and organ selections by Henry Hungerford, president of the Chicago Choirmasters association. The choir will present its 17th carol service at the Edgewater Beach hotel on Christmas.

Mass at Midnight.

Special music for the midnight mass at St. Paul's-by-the-Lake, 1606 Estes avenue, will feature an offertory anthem arranged from an old French folk song by Albert J. Strohm, choirmaster and organist. The service will begin at 11 o'clock, with the Rev. Charles T. Hull, rector, in charge.

A choir of men and boys will sing for the midnight service at All Saints'

Voice of the North Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the North Side, The Tribune.

OPPOSE WIDENING OF LINCOLN AVENUE.

THE TRIBUNE is doing a masterful job in crystalizing sentiment for the removal of blighted areas in Chicago. Couldn't you go a little stronger and endeavor to influence public officials who thoughtlessly do things that create blighted areas?

We call your attention to the proposed widening of the roadway of Lincoln avenue between Armitage avenue and Wells street. Within the last two years many of the old buildings have been remodeled into attractive studio appartments. The street is a beautiful street lined with elms. You can readily visualize what it will look like after these trees have been removed and a truck boulevard is created.

This widening is not at all necessary as the route could be turned eastward on Armitage avenue to Clark street, which is a very wide thorofare connecting with La Salle street. The other plan, in addition to harming property values creates a bottleneck at Wells street that would be dangerous. L. C. B.

PRAISES CONDUCTOR 11908.

I have seen in this column many times bits of ridicule about the motormen and conductors on the Chicago Surface Lines and many times I was almost inclined to stick up for the people who wrote about them, but then again, credit must be given to those that deserve it, too.

I was riding on a Clark street car Sunday afternoon, a crowded car, where people asked the conductor one question after another. He answered them politely and with a smile, at the same time calling out streets, and you could understand them.

I wonder if the Chicago Surface Lines appreciate him the way riders did. His badge number is 11908. H. R.

INTERESTING IF TRUE DEPT.

A resident of Chicago since 1886 made a complaint to the police against Yellow cab No. 300184 driven by Charles Neiburger, 4435 North Lawndale avenue, for parking the cab on the wrong side of the street and with the rear end of the cab so far from the curb that a passenger could not alight from a street car. This was on State street just south of Ontario street. The cab driver reported to the police that the complainant was drunk, and thus ended the effort to improve Chicago. RICHARD J. JACKER.

SNOW COVERED PARK WALKS.

The Chicago park district makes no attempt to clear snow off walks in Lincoln park from Foster to Montrose, altho clearing all drives to full width, even erecting snow fences to accumulate snow on the walks. Plows could be driven over the walks at little or no additional expense while clearing drives. Pedestrians, as well as motorists, pay taxes and should not be forced to endanger their lives by walking on drives because walks are not cleared. A. F. R.

BRUTAL DRIVER.

Last Sunday while walking north on Clark street I was crossing Fullerton avenue with the green light. A car coming from the south turned east on Fullerton avenue and knocked me down. This fellow did not stop to see if I was hurt. He did not sound his horn or give any warning. But fortunately for me some witnesses got his license number. It is hard to see how a civilized person could act like that driver. A. CITIZEN.

Revere Park Is to Offer A 'Joke on Santa Claus'

A two act Christmas fantasy, "A Joke on Santa Clause," will be presented morrow afternoon at Paul Revere park, 2509 Lrving Park road. Twenty-seven 11 year old youngsters will enact the play under the direction of A. A. Rothengass, park district drama instructor. John E. Asp, park supervisor, is incharge of the arrangements. Contests and games will follow the play.

OFFER PARTIES FOR CHILDREN IN COMMUNITIES

'Y's' and Salvation Army Arrange Programs.

Almost every neighborhood on the north side will welcome the coming of Christmas with a children's community party this week. Three such parties have been scheduled by Y. M. C. A.'s and other special programs for children have been arranged at the neighborhood corps headquarters of the Salvation Army.

At the Rogers Park "Y" 150 boys and girls will be entertained tomorrow afternoon and evening by the neighborhood Kiwanis club and the "Y." Neighborhood business men will hold their annual children's Christmas party at the North Avenue-Larrabee "Y" tomorrow evening. Seven hundred youngsters are expected to attend. The Ravenswood Kiwanis club will be host to community children in the lobby of the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A. on Christmas day.

Party for 150.

The Belmont avenue corps of the Salvation Army will hold a party tomorrow afternoon for 150 neighborhood youngsters at headquarters, 1518 Belmont avenue. A candlelight service will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Lake View corps, 3252 Wilton avenue.

Members of Harold A. Taylor post, American Legion, will be hosts to children at a Christmas tree party in their headquarters, 1016 North Dearborn street. Past Commander Guy B. Woodson is chairman of the arrangements committee.

Program in Park.

A Christmas carol party for north Rogers Park youngsters will be held tomorrow afternoon at Pottawattomie park, 7340 Rogers avenue. The North Side Civic committee will sponsor a party tomorrow afternoon at Stanton park, Evergreen and Vine streets.

More than 500 sons and daughters of members of the Lake Shore club have been invited to a Santa Claus festival this afternoon in the club lounge, 850 Lake Shore drive.

Evanston Methodist Youths to Sing Carols Tonight

The Young People's fellowship of the Evanston First Methodist church is planning its annual evening of caroling at 6 o'clock tonight. The members will assemble in the church and then visit homes of shut-ins whose names have been obtained thru the church office. In addition, the group will distribute baskets to needy families. The Double club and the Post Kollege klub are planning a similar evening which will begin with a supper at 6:30 o'clock.

His First Birthday Cake

Twenty-five neighborhood youngsters and their mothers came to the home of Policeman Anthony Bongiorno at 1011 Hudson avenue last Sunday to attend the birthday party of one year old Anthony Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Bongiorno and their son are shown lighting the candle on the cake, which husky Anthony Jr. promptly blew out with a single puff.

The dance will be a homecoming celebration for many young members of the parish who are returning home from college for the holidays. The committee is planning a floor show which will include well known acts by entertainers from the Rogers Park area.

Six Children Take Part in Parents' Golden Jubilee

The six children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Josiek, 5069 Avondale avenue, remembered their parents' golden wedding anniversary with a dinner recently. The couple have lived in Chicago since their arrival from Hungary 45 years ago. Mr. Josiek is 72, and his wife is 68 years of age. They have seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild

Rho Sigma Alpha Sorority Gives Balloon Dance Tonight

Rho Sigma Alpha sorority of Roosevelt High school alumnae will hold its annual balloon dance this evening at Humboldt Boulevard temple, 1908 Humboldt boulevard. Beatrice Orlove, 1952 Belmont avenue, is president of the group and Phyllis Wertheimer, 3251 Diversey avenue, is chairman of the dance.

PLAN CAROLING TUESDAY NIGHT AT HOWELL PARK

The sound of Christmas carols, the sight of twinkling colored lights on a Christmas tree, and the gleam of 60 electric candles will attract the community to Howell park in Evanston on Christmas eve. Mrs. Max Powell, chairman of the celebration, and Mrs. Joseph Bristle, co-chairman, are planning unusual lighting effects for their outdoor program in the small, triangular park.

A. A. DeLapp will be master of ceremonies. A group of 55 high school freshmen will sing carols, under the direction of Arthur East and Mrs. Willard Pollard. The Rev. Clifford Newham, pastor of Covenant church, will offer the opening prayer, while Betty Mee, Barbara Teare, Barbara Bremner, and Jane Stewart Armitage, holding candles, form a circle around him. Nancy Strader will give the story of the first Christmas.

After the solo, "There's a Song in the Air," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" by the chorus, jingle bells sounding in the distance will usher in Santa Claus. Mrs. Frank Rowley and Mrs. James Barber will play the piano accompaniments.

Among the Park Place neighbors assisting with arrangements are Mrs. Oscar Brodfuehrer, Mrs. A. B. Effrein, Mrs. F. L. Finlayson, Mrs. K. L. Mertz, and Mrs. L. A. Wigley.

DISTRICT 9 CLUB WOMEN TO FETE NEEDY CHILDREN

Will Give Party for 300 at Olivet Institute.

For the third year club women in the 9th district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will be Santa Claus to needy children in their neighborhoods. More than 300 children will attend the two parties which the district will give tomorrow morning and afternoon in Olivet institute, 1441 Cleveland avenue. They will receive serviceable stockings filled with candy and nuts and a toy.

Mrs. Albert W. Seidel.

About 100 of the neediest children also will be given shoes and warm clothing purchased thru the shoe and stocking fund which Mrs. Albert W. Seidel, district public welfare chairman, started when she entered office in 1938. The fund helped 50 children the first year and 75 the second.

At the parties Santa Claus will distribute the filled stockings and a magician will entertain. The youngsters will provide part of the program by singing carols and giving recitations.

Assisting Mrs. Seidel with arrangements are the club public welfare chairmen, including Mrs. Carl Menzies, Mrs. Charles Pardee, Mrs. Paul Bock, Mrs. Clifton K. Timmons, Mrs. Otto Seibenmann, Mrs. Herbert Archut, Mrs. G. L. Lehle, Mrs. G. E. Beerly, Mrs. Ethel Luper, Mrs. Daisy Barbour, Mrs. Barbara Tyrell, Mrs. Frederick Goodhouse, Mrs. Lee Bacon, and Miss Clara Zeutschel.

In addition the district will provide Christmas baskets for 55 needy families whose names were obtained thru the Schiller school.

Seward Park Juniors.

The Juniors will give their annual Christmas party for children of Seward park tomorrow evening in their clubroom. Miss Olga Manfredo and Miss Lillian Nottoli, chairmen, are planning games and refreshments. Each child will receive a special gift and a novelty from the grab bag.

Rogers Park Woman's Club.

Members of Mrs. Moyne Myers' school children's aid committee will continue to work thru the holidays on clothing for children who do not have sufficient apparel to attend school. About 210 children have been provided for since the beginning of the club year. The committee will sponsor a spring benefit to buy shoes for the poor children.

Chicago Commons.

The membership of the Highland Park auxiliary of the Chicago Commons settlement voted at its last meeting to take the name of Helen Taylor Carr auxiliary in memory of the wife of George W. Carr, Highland Park, who died last month. Mrs. Carr was a sister of Miss Leah Taylor, head resident of the settlement, and a daughter of Graham Taylor, who founded the institution.

Mrs. Carr helped found the local auxiliary. In further recognition of her work, the auxiliary, as a perpetual memorial, will finance annually one child's vacation at the Commons' summer camp.

Rogers Park Catholic Club.

Members will enact "The Spirit of Christmas," under the direction of Mrs. W. G. Piggott, for the Christmas meeting at 1 o'clock tomorrow. Hostesses will be Mrs. D. J. Molloy, Mrs. W. P. Nevins, Mrs. E. D. McCahill, and Mrs. J. W. Kellicher.

Mrs. W. H. Bowerhan, welfare chairman, is in charge of arrangements for a donation of coal for a destitute family, preparing Christmas baskets for 20 underprivileged families and providing funds for a Christmas party at St. Mary of Providence Institute for Crippled Children.

Miss Anne MacLaughlin and a committee of club members also gave a Christmas party for 100 children attending a Catholic action class at St. Alphonsus school last week.

C. A. R.

The Blackhawk society, Children of the American Revolution, will give a Christmas dance at 9 o'clock tomorrow night in the Highland Park Woman's club. The organization of young people is an auxiliary of North Shore D. A. R. chapter. Proceeds will be used for the national and local projects of the D. A. R. As a special feature, Bud and Shirley Pfister of Highland Park, students at Northwestern university, will give their interpretation of the modern dance.

Shirley and Bud Pfister.

Evanston First Methodist Church.

The high school fellowship has invited Negro pensioned mothers and their children as guests for a Christmas party from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the great hall. The program will include a worship service in the chapel, supper, caroling, games, and the distribution of gifts by Santa Claus. Virginia Wenger and William Moss are co-chairmen, assisted by Ruth Boss, Martha Lefler, Marian Gilliland, Phyllis Hamrin, Phyllis Jones, Cynthia Olson, Margaret Ann Grant, Marjorie Lou Miles, Laurice Lang, Dorothy Millard, Elsie Hovey, and Mary Marcellus.

Peoples Church Business Women.

Members will gather at 8 o'clock tomorrow night for a Christmas party. Miss Edith Sley will be in charge of the program. A donation for Christmas baskets will be collected.

Women of the Moose.

Junior chapter, No. 8, of the Chicago chapter will hold its Christmas party tomorrow evening in the lodge hall at 1016 North Dearborn street. Mrs. Marie Jenkinson, governess, is planning the program of recitations and songs.

plan to leave by automobile soon for several days of skiing at Long Lake lodge near Phelps, Wis. Mr. Williams is an investment broker.

Going to California.

As has been his custom for many years, Arthur Thelen, 2738 North Pine Grove avenue, controler for the Schlitz Brewing company, will spend the Christmas holiday with his mother, Mrs. Josephine Thelen, in Los Angeles, Cal. He left yesterday on the Overland limited and will return Jan. 13. Mr. Thelen plans to attend the Rose bowl football game.

Dr. Francis Napolilli, 3526 Reta avenue, and a party of friends left for a vacation trip and sunshiny Christmas in Sarasota, Fla. With him were George Hopkinson, 815 West Buena avenue, and Harry Powers, 1431 Catalpa avenue. They will return in about two weeks.

Going by Automobile.

Attorney Charles Mishkin, 855 Margate terrace, his father, Samuel, his brother, Jules, and other members of the family left on an automobile tour of the south that will take them to Miami, Fla. It is their tentative plan to return by way of Washington, D. C., in time to attend the opening session of the new congress.

Mrs. V. S. Schehrer of 5726 Winthrop avenue left on the T. W. A. plane to spend the holidays with her daughter, Henrietta, who attends boarding school in Kansas City. Mrs. Schehrer will return after New Year's.

Some Go by Air.

Many north siders will fly south and west for the holidays. Miss May Blackburn, 731 Reba place, Evanston, will fly to Seattle where she will spend Christmas.

Richard Kennard, 641 Roscoe street, will make his first airplane flight on Christmas eve when he will board an air liner for Cleveland. His mother, Mrs. Pearl Kennard, will precede him by train.

Miss Elizabeth Chavannes, 2525 Orchard street, will fly to Des Moines, Ia., to spend Christmas with her father.

First Time by Plane.

Another first time air traveler will be Miss Florence Kass, 1100 North La Salle street, who will fly to New York City on Christmas day. She will spend the holiday with her brother, William, a radio writer, seeing the latest Broadway plays.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shipman, 1360 Greenleaf avenue, will fly by T. W. A. for a Christmas visit with their parents in Kansas City, Mo.

H. S. Vanderbie of Highland Park will depart with several friends Friday for Land o' Lakes, Wis., for his fifth annual vacation of skiing. Mr. Vanderbie and his friends will travel by train.

Five other Highland Parkers, Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield Cleary and their children, Mansfield Jr., John, and Charlotte, have made plans to drive to Hobe Sound, Fla. They will stay there three weeks.

Miss Virginia Wood of the Oak Crest hotel, Evanston, will go to Champaign, Ill., her former home, for the Christmas holidays. Miss Wood will travel by train.

Evanston Sends Quota.

SIX SYMPHONY RECORDS GIVEN TO LEGION POST

Mrs. James Shakman, president of the Chicago Women's Symphony Orchestra association, recently presented six sets of symphony recordings to Dr. Roy T. Sugars of Rogers Park post of the American Legion and child welfare chairman of the Seventh district. The records will be used by the Illinois Soldiers' and Sailors' school at Normal, Ill., to augment its musical education program. Francis E. Phelan, Cook county commander, received the records in behalf of the department of Illinois and they have been sent to the school as an addition to the Christmas entertainment.

JEWS TO LIGHT CANDLES IN RITE OF CHANUKKAH

North Side Temples Will Join in Ceremonies.

Candles will gleam in Jewish synagogues as well as gentile churches this week. Chanukkah, Hebrew Festival of Lights in celebration of the rededication of the Temple of Jerusalem in 167 B. C., this year falls in the Yuletide season.

One of the largest north side celebrations will be held Tuesday evening at Anshe Emet synagogue, 3760 Pine Grove avenue, on the program of the annual reunion of parents and sons of the temple. Thirty members of Ivrim, honor society of Jewish young men selected on the basis of scholastic attainment, will take part in the lighting of the traditional eight candles.

Children To Take Part.

The Chanukkah celebration at Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore drive, will be held next Sunday afternoon. Children in the primary grades of the temple school will officiate in the candle lighting ceremony. Part of the program will be given over to the showing of a sound movie, "The March of Freedom."

Chanukkah and the annual sisterhood mothers and daughters' day will be observed jointly Saturday morning at Ner Tamid Congregation, 2752 Rosemont avenue. Hebrew and English prayers will be read by Mrs. Milton Wilson and Mrs. William Kastel. Dr. Hymen Ezra Cohen, Ner Tamid rabbi, will deliver the sermon.

A luncheon will be served in the community hall after the services.

Plan Ceremonies Today.

The newly organized Rogers Park Youth division will hold Chanukkah ceremonies this afternoon at Congregation B'nai Zion, 1447 Pratt boulevard. Miss Nina Klowden will serve as chairman.

Rogers Park-Edgewater Lions to Greet Children

100 CAROLERS WILL SING IN EVANSTON PARK

Eight hundred Evanstonians are expected to gather in Raymond park in the suburb Tuesday afternoon to hear 100 carolers of the Lake Shore Choral society in a Christmas song program. Dr. Emory Luccock, pastor of the Evanston First Presbyterian church, will deliver the benediction. The carolers will sing under a lighted Christmas tree in the park. Hans Lange, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will direct the singing.

Music will be furnished by the senior choir, directed by Edgeley W. Todd; the children's echo choir, Germaine Q. Shriver, director; Julian Stripe, tenor, and Dorothy Staiger, guest soprano.

Candlelight Pageant.

The church school will give its annual Christmas candlelight pageant at 4:30 o'clock, closing with the white gift service in which the audience and pupils will donate clothing, food, money or toys for the needy. For the pageant, Mrs. Albert K. Sawyer will appear as Mary and Leslie S. Perry will portray Joseph; Margaret Winston Brooks will read the Christmas story found in St. Luke and Buxton L. Johnson Jr. will read the story in St. Matthew.

Two services will be held today at "The Country Church of the City," the Methodist church at Granville and Lakewood avenues. The Rev. Benjamin M. Will, minister, will preach on "The Magic of Christmas" at 11 o'clock this morning. There will be special music by the choir. The 5 o'clock vespers will feature a sermon by Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf and music by the vested choir, directed by Bernard Zur, and four soloists, Nonabelle Welday, organist; Gloria Dawson, harpist; Helen Cole Conrad, violinist, and Edna Lou Stauffer, pianist.

The choirs of Trinity Lutheran church, Barry and Seminary avenues, will give their annual candlelight service at 7:45 o'clock tonight. The Alenius ensemble will assist. For the midnight service Christmas eve, Lael Westberg will deliver the sermon and the choirs will sing carols. Swedish matins will be offered at 4 and 5:30 o'clock in the morning, with Dr. Julius Lincoln in charge. Carl Engstrom will conduct the choir, M. W. Broman is the organist, and Esther Minge, accompanist.

Pageant of Nativity.

The primary children will have a Christmas party at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening and the intermediates at the same time Friday. A cast of 125 will present the nativity pageant at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening.

Solemn high mass at St. Luke's Episcopal in Evanston will start at 11 o'clock Christmas eve with an organ recital by Herbert E. Hyde, choirmaster. The Rev. Frederick L. Barry will celebrate his first high mass at St. Luke's.

The all male choir of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Evanston, will participate in two Christmas services. There will be the choral eucharist at 11 o'clock Christmas day and a carol service and shortened morning prayer at 11 o'clock next Sunday. Stanley Martin, choirmaster and organist, is arranging the songs.

Joseph C. Brye, music director of Concordia Lutheran church, Seeley avenue and Byron street, will be presented in a recital of carols on the marimba for the choir candlelight service at 8 o'clock this evening. Two choirs of 75 voices will sing under Mr. Brye's direction.

Julotta Service.

A Christmas eve midnight service will open with music from the church tower. At 4:30 o'clock, the Rev. Carl E. Lund-Quist, pastor, will hold the traditional Swedish Julotta service, with Paul Anderson of Moorhead, Minn., playing the trumpet accompaniments for the hymns. The senior choir will sing for the 5:45 o'clock early matins and the junior choir at the 10:45 o'clock Christmas day worship. Next Sunday the children will present their program at 6:30 o'clock.

Music for the Christmas eve service of the Episcopal church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest, will be under the direction of William S. Horner, choirmaster and baritone soloist. The service will begin at 10:30 o'clock, with an organ recital by Alice Emmons McBride. The senior choir will sing.

Two Services Today.

Two Christmas services have been planned for today by the Wilmette Parish Methodist church. Both the 10:30 o'clock service and the 4:30 o'clock vespers will be held in the sanctuary which will be decorated with poinsettias, a star and the crèche scene. Mrs. Sarah M. Eilert, organist, and the choir, directed by Dean F. McSloy, will provide the music in the morning. The Rev. Erskine M. Jefferds, minister, will preach on "The Christmas Trilogy."

The church school children, high school groups, and the choir will participate in the vespers. Mrs. Eilert will be at the organ and Mrs. McSloy, assisted by church school teachers, will direct the musical features of the program.

An organ medley of Christmas hymns will precede the processional by the choir and children.

The pastor and his wife will hold open house for high school groups, college students, and the young adult groups from 5 to 7 o'clock next Sunday and will be at home to the general membership and friends of the church from 3 to 6 o'clock New Year's day.

In Evanston Church.

In a setting of evergreens, flowers, and candles, members of the Evanston First Methodist church will join in Christmas activities thruout the day. "The Influence of Jesus" will be Dr. Ernest F. Tittle's title for his 11 o'clock worship sermon. Dr. Emory L. Gallup is arranging the choral music which will be presented by the high school fellowship choir and the chancel choir. Anne Hershey and Eugene Dressler will be the soloists.

The children and young people will present "The Nativity" in scripture, tableaux, and song at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Gallup will be at the organ, Helen H. Carlisle will direct the choirs, and William McCreary is dramatic director. Priscilla Williams will portray Mary, and William Mummory, Joseph.

Others in the Cast.

Geraldine Gregg is supervisor of the church school and departmental supervisors assisting with arrangements are Mrs. George H. Betts, Amy Clowes, Lota Jacoby, Dorothy Kurzenknabe, Virginia Lecey, Mrs. J. F. Mummery, Mrs. D. M. Phipps, and Mr. and Mrs. George Seale. Music assistants are Fred Bouknight, John Hull, and Muriel Schreiber.

The midnight Christmas eve service will begin at 10:45 o'clock with Cordelia Jones playing the chimes and Dr. Gallup at the organ.

Children to Take Part.

About 400 children will take part in the Christmas eve service at 7 o'clock in the St. James Evangelical Lutheran church, Fremont street and Dickens avenue. The choir of First St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Goethe and La Salle streets, will present a Christmas pageant, "Prophecy and Fulfillment," this evening.

Prof. Albert Beck, choir director, used historical sketches from the Old and New Testaments as the basis for his 10 scenes. Fifty members of the congregation will comprise the cast and the choir will sing choral selections. The Rev. Henry Kowert and the Rev. Louis Grother, pastors, will preside. The children's Christmas service will begin at 7 o'clock Christmas eve.

Masses at St. Hilary.

Masses will be said from 5 o'clock thru noon on the hour Christmas day at St. Hilary church, California and Bryn Mawr avenues. The Rev. Thomas J. Burke, pastor, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Father Charles as deacon, and the Rev. Charles Heaney as subdeacon.

Special music has been arranged for the Christmas service this morning in the North Shore Methodist church in Glencoe. Charles B. Watson will direct the choir, accompanied by James R. Preston at the organ. The Rev. F. J. Schnell, pastor, will preach on "The Messiah—the Prince of Peace."

Is There a Santa Claus?

Dr. Preston Bradley will question "Is There a Santa Claus?" in his sermon this morning in the People's church, 941 Lawrence avenue. The choir of 65 voices will be directed by Emerson Abernethy, with Philip Jorgensen at the organ. The Uptown players will present a Christmas play at the 7:30 o'clock candlelight service this evening and the service will be repeated tomorrow night. J. Bradley Griffin directs the players.

The Church of Our Saviour, 530 Fullerton parkway, will begin its Christmas eve midnight mass at 11 o'clock. A Christmas cantata, Maunder's "The Manger Throne," will be presented at 10 o'clock.

Lutheran Church of the Ascension, Wolcott and Cornelia avenues, will offer three services on Christmas day at 6 and 11 o'clock in the morning and 7:30 o'clock that evening. The Rev. E. O. Wannagat, pastor, will be in charge and the choir and orchestra will provide the music.

White Gifts Service.

Christmas pictures will be a feature of the white gifts service at 10 o'clock this morning in the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, 615 Wellington avenue. The Rev. T. F. Rutledge Beale will conduct the 11 o'clock service in the sanctuary.

Miss Marcia Sandahl is directing the Christmas music by the adult and girls' choirs which will begin 15 minutes before the service. Miss Dorothy Cutler will play the organ. At 8 o'clock this evening Raymond MacDonald Alden's Christmas pantomime, "Why the Chimes Rang," will be presented by members from all departments.

Plan Five Services.

Christmas will be observed at five services in the Edgewater Presbyterian church, Bryn Mawr and Kenmore avenues. Dr. Adolph Bohn, pastor, will give his Christmas message at the 11 o'clock worship this morning and a youth communion service will be held at 12:30 o'clock.

A white Christmas service at 7 o'clock will feature music by the primary choir. Richard Olson and Torbin Yates will sing a duet and Marian Correll a soprano solo.

The Bible school celebration will be held at 7:30 o'clock Christmas eve and Dr. Bohn will conduct a service at 11 o'clock Christmas morning.

Prom Chairman

Frances Wilhelmy, 9347 Marquette avenue, is chairman of the committee for the annual Bowen High school prom to be held on Friday, Jan. 10, in the Hotel Shoreland.

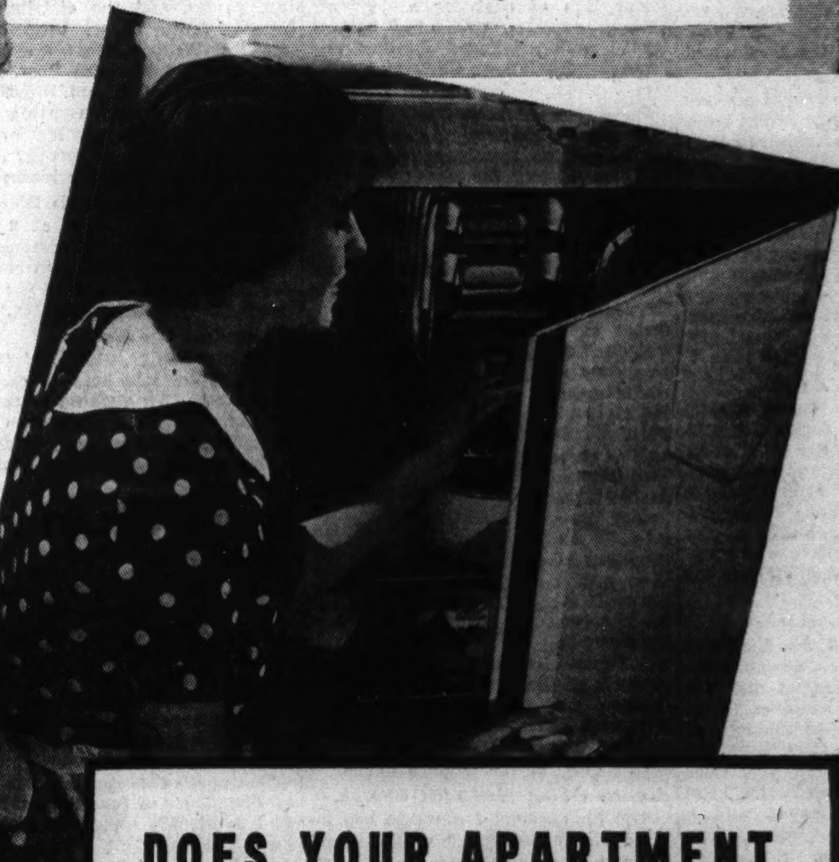
"NOW, LITTLE MAN, YOU,LL HAVE ROOM TO PLAY IN!"

"Daddy bought a home for us today!"

HAS YOUR FAMILY outgrown your home? Would you be interested in buying a house with a big yard? Follow the Real Estate columns of the Tribune want ad section. No matter what you can afford to pay for a home, the location you prefer, or the number of rooms you need, you can be practically certain of finding what you want by reading the Real Estate columns in the Tribune. Start looking today!

"HONEY, YOU'RE A BUSINESS MAN'S WIFE NOW!"

"I bought that shop I saw advertised in the Tribune."



• Are you thinking of going into business for yourself? Follow the Business Opportunities columns in the Tribune want ad section. More business opportunities want advertising is printed in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper. Turn to the want ad section now for a review of today's offerings.

DOES YOUR APARTMENT HAVE THE CONVENIENCES YOU WANT?

• You will be surprised at the values you can get for your rent dollars today if you are careful to shop the market thoroly before you sign a lease. The easiest way to make sure you have overlooked no worthwhile opportunity is to follow the apartments to rent want ads in the Tribune, which prints more apartments to rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined. Begin today to follow the Apartments to Rent columns!

ARE YOUR TRUCK REPAIR BILLS A BIG HEADACHE?

• If your trucks are in the shop too frequently for expensive repairs, it will pay you to consider the late model used trucks offered in the Tribune want ad section. You will find many types of trucks listed at attractive prices and terms. These trucks, among the most modern in design, construction and features, offer you years of dependable service. Review the offers in the Motor Trucks column in today's Tribune want ad section!

A TIP TO HOME HANDYMEN

For bargain offers in materials you need for remodeling and repair jobs around the home, follow the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find values in lumber, plywood, paint, glass, plumbing and heating units and parts, and many other things you can use.

Because want ad users get better results, they place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

HOBBY BECOMES LIVELIHOOD FOR HELPER OF DEAF

Mrs. Sadie Pelton Uses Cooking Talent.

Many persons develop a hobby into a financial asset; a few find their hobby a lifeline after unexpected reverses. Mrs. Sadie Pelton, 455 Belmont avenue, whose hobby is making jams and jellies, fits into the latter group. She began by using her cooking talent to make money to help the tubercular and the hard of hearing, but now she has turned this ability into a job to support her family.

Mrs. Sadie Pelton.

Mrs. Pelton has spent 43 years of her life doing voluntary social service work. At first she promoted aid for those afflicted with tuberculosis and during the last 20 years she has championed the cause of the hard of hearing, perhaps because she is now handicapped by partial deafness. As chairman of the hearing aids committee of the Chicago Woman's aid Mrs. Pelton started in 1929 to campaign for the installation of electrical hearing aids in churches, public schools, and theaters.

Honored at World's Fair.

Within five years more than 80 churches, several theaters, and the Planetarium installed hearing devices and a number of Chicagoans had provided funds to equip four public schools. The work has continued to progress and aid has been brought in many ways to many of the 300,000 hard of hearing in Chicago. Mrs. Pelton became nationally known for her efforts and was listed in the Hall of Fame at A Century of Progress.

She pressed her cause by discussing the work over the radio, addressing club groups, and distributing literature on the project. The Victory workshop for the benefit of deafened boys and girls beyond school age was established in the Haven school. There these young people make handicraft articles and receive the proceeds from sales sponsored by clubs.

Hobby Now a Business.

Besides donating her time and money, Mrs. Pelton made jams and jellies and sold them at bazars and to her friends to obtain additional funds for her project.

She indulged her hobby for 35 years in which time she won three awards for texture and color in contests in California. Then Mrs. Pelton found she no longer had the means to maintain a hobby, but perhaps this hobby could be used to maintain her. Thus she launched upon a career.

Discuss Good Fellow Music

Dr. Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools, is conferring with north side choral conductors on music for the Good Fellow carol sing in which seven high school choruses and Wright Junior college chorus will participate tomorrow afternoon in Nathan Hale quadrangle between Tribune Tower and W-G-N studio. Weds This Week

LOIS MARGARET HULL.

The Rev. and Mrs. Charles T. Hull, 1606 Estes avenue, announce the approaching marriage on Saturday of their daughter, Lois Margaret, to John Everett Colburn, 1447 Greenleaf avenue, formerly of Winona, Minn. The wedding will be held in the Rev. Mr. Hull's church, St. Paul-by-the-Lake. Miss Hull is a graduate of North Park Junior college and has been attending the National College of Education in Evanston. Her fiancé attended the University of Wisconsin and is a member of the George W. Colburn laboratory in the Merchandise Mart.

Gardeners Set Out 140,000 Tulips in North Side Parks

Park district gardeners last week finished planting more than 140,000 tulips at three north side parks. Mixed tulips numbering 104,880 have been planted in front of Lincoln park conservatory. At Indian Boundary park, Lunt avenue and Rockwell street, more than 35,000 tulip bulbs have been put into the ground. Welles park, Montrose and Western avenues, received 850 tulips. The planting was directed by William C. Blaesing, acting chief horticulturist.

GATES ORDERED AT COUNTY LINE RAIL CROSSING

The North Area council of the Chicago Motor club was informed last week that additional protection for motorists and pedestrians will be provided at two crossings of the North Shore railroad in the suburbs.

Automatic short arm gates will be installed next spring at the County Line road crossing of the Skokie route. The installation was ordered by the Illinois Commerce commission

At the Linden avenue crossing in Wilmette Chief of Police Cloyd McGuire reported that children gather in the shelter at the west side of the tracks and run across the tracks to board northbound trains. The commerce commission has ordered that trains make a safety stop at this point and the railroad has agreed to build another shelter on the east side of the tracks.

St. Gertrude Parish School Alumni to Dance Saturday

Alumni of St. Gertrude's parish school will hold their first homecoming dance Saturday evening in the school hall, Granville and Glenwood avenues. William Dempsey is chairman of the arrangements committee.

CHRISTMAS NOTE ON CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Two Yule Songs.

A program of familiar music blended with Christmas favorites will be presented on the new Chicagoland Concert hour tomorrow evening. Two Yuletide solos by Marion Claire will feature the concert, which will be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Michael Wilkomirski, W-G-N concertmeister, will be the instrumental soloist.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker of the evening. Col. McCormick has announced that his weekly talks will be devoted principally to vital, close at hand topics, to "things which we all want to have accomplished but which we have not yet found means of achieving."

Two Holiday Songs.

For her two holiday season solos, Miss Claire will sing "Hail Ye Tyme of Holiedayes" and "Away in a Manger." Miss Claire also will join the augmented chorus in presenting the waltz from Oscar Straus' "Waltz Dream." Wilkomirski will play Schumann's "Traumerei."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the Symphony orchestra in presentations of Straus' "Emperor Waltz," Mozart's "Minuet in G Minor" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor."

The Complete Program.

The program:

Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor....Brahms
Orchestra.
[a] Hail Ye Tyme of Holiedayes. Branscombe
Marion Claire and orchestra.
[b] Away in a Manger.........Old German
Marion Claire, chorus and orchestra.
Emperor Waltz.........................Straus
Orchestra.
Waltz Dream selection from "Waltz Dream"........................O. Straus
Marion Claire, chorus and orchestra.
Traumerei ....Schumann
Michael Wilkomirski, violinist, and orchestra.
Minuet G Minor.......................Mozart
Orchestra.
Hallelujah Chorus from the "Messiah," ....Handel
Chorus and orchestra.

Chicagoland Concert hour programs are presented in the main audience studio of W-G-N under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production. Listeners desiring to attend the Chicagoland Concert hour may obtain tickets by addressing their requests to W-G-N.

PETER QUILL PITS SKILL AGAINST FLAMING RIVER

Peter Quill today finds himself confronted with "The River of Flame." The weird scientist will pit his skill against the sizzling stream from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Two inventions are mixed up in the strange story. First Quill invents a tablet which when placed in water will form gasoline. A member of the Red Circle spy ring nabs a shopping bag full of the tablets, but stumbles over a wharf in escaping and dumps the whole business in the river.

Naturally, the water turns into gasoline and a careless cigaret transforms the quiet stream into a "River of Flame." At this point Quill mops up with a mysterious dixerol powder.

Getting Quill in and out of his weekly complications is managed by Blair Walliser, who writes script and directs the show.

MISS HASKINS, EDWARD BARRY ON MUSIC QUIZ

Virginia Haskins, young Chicago Opera soprano, and Edward Barry of the Chicago Tribune music and drama department will be experts on a gala Christmas "Your Music I. Q." program tomorrow. Featuring Len Salvo at the organ and Mark Love, basso, in presentations of several oratorios, the program will be heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. over W-G-N.

Other members of the board of experts will be Paul Hume, organist of the La Grange Presbyterian church; George Danforth, who teaches architecture at the Illinois Institute of Technonogy. Miss Haskins will appear Dec. 29 in a post-season opera performance of Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel."

Damrosch on NBC.

Dr. Walter Damrosch, conductor of the weekly NBC Music Appreciation hour, will present a special Christmas program during the I'm an American broadcast at 11:15 a. m. today over the NBC-Blue network.

SOLDIERS TO AIR CHURCH SERVICE ON W-G-N TODAY

A van of trucks from Fort Sheridan and a fleet of military cars from Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., will roll up to W-G-N's studios this morning to unload United States army soldiers and airmen who will participate in a unique Chicagoland Church hour. The special services, under the direction of Roland B. Bach, assistant chaplain of the 6th corps area, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 a. m. over W-G-N.

The Chanute Wing chorus, a group of 25 aviators, will sing camp songs. The Fort Sheridan chorus of 25 voices, under the direction of Prof. Carl Carlstedt, also will sing on the program.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel will extend Christmas greetings to camps thruout the 6th corps area which extends over Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The caravan of Fort Sheridan trucks will be accompanied by a motorcycle escort in order to speed up the return trip, for the chorus is scheduled for a camp program an hour after the W-G-N broadcast.

The Chicagoland Church hour is a regular Sunday morning feature on which city churches of all denominations are invited to broadcast.

Jan Peerce on Air.

Jan Peerce, tenor, will be featured as soloist in a presentation of Kodaly's "Psalms Hungaricus" during the Radio City Music Hall on the Air broadcast at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL. Erno Rapee will conduct the orchestra in Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor.

CHICAGO THEATER OF AIR TO OFFER 'NEW MOON' SATURDAY

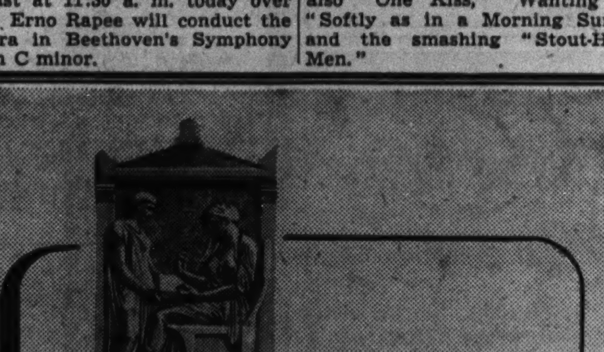
Next Saturday's presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air will bring Sigmund Romberg's operetta "The New Moon" to W-G-N and Mutual listeners from 9 to 10 p. m. "The New Moon" is the third operetta by Sigmund Romberg to be produced by the Theater of the Air this season.

Two radio favorites, Marion Claire and Conrad Thibault, will star in the leading rôles. Miss Claire is one of the best known sopranos in the light opera field.

Thibault, who has supported Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King" and "Rio Rita" in this season's Theater of the Air productions, has gained fame in recent years as a radio baritone. He studied in New York and Philadelphia, making his debut with the Philadelphia Grand Opera company and later singing leading rôles in the Chicago and San Francisco companies.

The W-G-N concert orchestra and augmented chorus will be conducted by Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company. The entire operetta is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N.

The operetta is noteworthy as containing some of the best of Romberg's music—in particular, the crooning melody, "Lover, Come Back to Me," also "One Kiss," "Wanting You," "Softly as in a Morning Sunrise," and the smashing "Stout-Hearted Men."



Funeral rites are a response to the universally felt need that man's mortal career be brought to a close in a manner consistent with the dignity of human existence. In our service, therefore, we strive for an esthetic setting and the traditional, unhurried tempo essential to a reverential and beautiful ceremony.

STEELMAKERS TO ADD 40 MUTUAL STATIONS JAN. 5

Employe Talent Show Will Have 91 Outlets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.
[PICTURE ON PAGE 8.]

On Nov. 8, 1937, a small station in Wheeling, W. Va., put on a new program, called Musical Steelmakers. Heralded by a mill whistle this new show featured amateur talent recruited entirely from the ranks of employés of the Wheeling Steel company and members of their families.

The next year Musical Steelmakers expanded to a four station Mutual network, with W-G-N as one of them. This fall the number of stations reached 51.

On Jan. 5, 1941, the mill whistle of the Musical Steelmakers will be heard over 40 additional Mutual stations—bringing the show's regular network to 91 stations.

How It Got Started.

The program got its start when John L. Grimes, executive of the company, discovered that the Welsh, Italian, and Polish stock in Wheeling bought more musical instruments, played more and better music per capita than in any other town in the United States.

Grimes encouraged the development of company entertainment groups; then fathered the first Musical Steelmakers broadcast which headlined employé-family talent. The program grew up in the midst of a wave of amateur shows, but unlike many of these it took permanent root and grew as they went into a decline.

Several of the performers of the first broadcast are still with the Musical Steelmakers of today. Tommy Whitley, who began as saxophonist in the band, is now leader of the orchestra. The Old Timer, popular master of ceremonies who regales listeners with his Scottish twang, also is among the faithful performers who have been on the show since its inception.

Typical Program Today.

Typical of the Musical Steelmakers shows will be the one to be broadcast at 4 p. m. today. From Beech Bottom, W. Va., seven girls will come to the stage of the Capitol theater in Wheeling to headline the broadcast with a holiday inspired presentation of "The Birthday of a King." The youngsters—Erma Maley, Shirley Lee, Martha Lydick, Ina Clair de Nichols, Marjorie Kull, Marjorie Wallace, and Shirley Stuck—all are children of employés.

As her Christmas contribution, Dorothy Ann Crowe will present "O, Little Town of Bethlehem."

Happy Birthday

When Alan Scott walked into the W-G-N studio for his "What Do You Say" broadcast the other day at 12:15 p. m., the 98 women in the studio audience rose to their feet singing "Happy Birthday." Then they presented Alan a cake which several of them had baked. "What Do You Say," a women's quiz program, is heard from 12:15 to 12:30 each week day.

ANNA NEAGLE IN 'NO, NO, NANETTE' ON CHICAGO HOUR

Anna Neagle, distinguished British actress, will make her second appearance of the year in W-G-N's main studio next Thursday evening when the radio première of her newest musical picture, R-K-O's "No, No, Nanette," will be presented on In Chicago Tonight. The picture will open at the Palace theater Christmas eve.

Last spring Miss Neagle came to Chicago and was starred in a radio adaptation of her picture, "Irene," which was an exclusive feature of W-G-N and the Mutual network. The radio version of "No, No, Nannette" will be presented from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

All-Star Cast with Her.

An all-star cast of Chicago radio actors will be featured with Miss Neagle. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will provide the lively musical back drop required for this musical show.

When Miss Neagle came to America two years ago, she was asked by Hollywood producers to make herself known to American audiences. She followed this advice with customary energy and traveled a total of 46,000 miles by air making personal appearances.

Makes Two Musicals.

Into nearly every state in the nation Anna Neagle followed her first American film, "Nurse Edith Cavell," to appear before the audiences that acclaimed her work on the screen. As Anna Neagle, herself, the versatile British girl was even more enthusiastically received.

As a result of her air junkets to meet America in person, the public clamored to see Anna Neagle as her singing, dancing, personable self in a movie. "Irene" and "No, No Nanette" were the results of this demand.

Poet Priest to Be Guest of Farm and Home Hour

Rev. Francis C. Young, nationally known poet priest, pastor of St. Juliana parish, Oceola and Touhy avenues, Chicago, will be heard in his 13th annual Christmas broadcast, which is known as "Father Young and His Christmas Carols and Poems," over a coast to coast NBC network at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday. He will make a guest appearance on the National Farm and Home hour.

SAFETY RULES JOIN 3 R'S AT PEIRCE SCHOOL

Pupils Taught to Avoid Traffic Dangers.

Safety has been added to the three R's at the Helen C. Peirce school, 1423 Bryn Mawr avenue. Pupils are taught traffic safety in much the same manner that they study geography or arithmetic.

The class is conducted by Miss Emily Webster, fourth grade teacher, who devotes at least half an hour to each session. In her classroom on the third floor are a pair of stop-and-go lights on a wooden stand. These serve as her main equipment. She uses the lights, which she operates from a switch, to illustrate actual traffic problems.

Miss Webster makes use of safety posters, traffic pamphlets issued by the Chicago Motor club, the National Safety council and other organizations. But the main textbook consists of the pupils' actual experiences which are discussed at length in the class.

Tell of Near Accidents.

For example, pupils will relate stories of near accidents—how one dashed out into the street to meet an ice cream wagon and was almost hit by a car going in the opposite direction; how a little girl found herself trapped in the traffic stream on Clark street as the lights changed; how a motorist, running thru a red light, almost struck a boy who had stepped off the curb, and how two cars almost collided in trying to avoid hitting several children who were playing in the street.

The incidents are analyzed by Miss Webster and the class, not with the idea of fixing the blame, but for the purpose of showing how such incidents can be avoided.

Draw Safety Posters.

Miss Mildred Fahy, principal, has introduced the study of safety into the teaching of art at the school. The art pupils draw safety posters which are hung in the assembly hall and corridors, thus keeping simple rules before the children at all times.

One of the rules particularly emphasized is obedience to signals given by the patrol boys at the corners. There are 75 safety patrol boys who stand at their posts near the school each morning, noon and afternoon.

The safety class is held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and is attended by fourth and fifth graders.

Medal Winner

Winner of a gold Tribune R. O. T. C. medal in recent ceremonies was Lieut. Col. William Buechler, commander of the Evanston Township High school R. O. T. C. unit. The medal is being given him by Francis L. Bacon, principal of the school. Six other cadets in the unit were also honored with medals.

EVANSTON HIGH CADETS AWARDED TRIBUNE MEDALS

Before a special school assembly recently, seven cadets of the Evanston Township High school R. O. T. C. unit were presented with Tribune medals in recognition of their achievements in military work. The medals are given twice each year to members of R. O. T. C. units in the Chicago area who have proven themselves outstanding in their training.

The awards were presented to the cadets by Philip Maxwell of the TRIBUNE, who complimented the winners on their achievement, and urged all of the men to work during the rest of the year for the final Tribune medal awards in the spring.

Winners of the medals were Robert W. Dillon, Hugh C. Fowler, Clifton H. Merry, Robert C. Buckley, Jerome R. Head, Albert W. Swanson, and William R. Buechler. Presentation of medals to members of the Chicago Public High schools will begin the first of the year.

PLAN TO SHARE CHRISTMAS WITH NEEDY FAMILIES

North Area Residents Preparing Gifts.

The true Christmas spirit of sharing with a needy neighbor has pervaded north side homes and hundreds of families and individuals are trying to make the day happier for less fortunate ones in their communities. Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of the United Charities, reports that families on the near north side will owe their merry Christmas chiefly to students.

Northwestern law school students collected contributions of money, clothing, and toys last week in the corridors of Chicago campus buildings. These baskets will be distributed thru the two north side offices of the United Charities at 360 Locust street and 1001 Leland avenue.

The Girls Latin school has "adopted" several families and is providing not only Christmas gifts, but also to help them get reëstablished. Gifts also will be furnished by the University School for Girls.

Collect Toys for Gifts.

Winnetka residents are collecting truckloads of toys and gifts which will be distributed to west side families. The Winnetka auxiliary, the Ash Street circle, the North Shore Country Day school, the Winnetka Girl Scouts, and the Kenilworth Church of the Holy Comforter also are contributing generously.

The North End Woman's club has given cash gifts to needy parents so that they can shop and plan their own Christmas. Epsilon Beta Gamma sorority, the Flyers' club, a group of loop office girls, and several individuals are coöperating with the Charities to provide Christmas for other families.

Skokie school pupils in Winnetka brought their old toys to school to be repaired in the shop and now these gifts are being distributed to the Dorcas home, Winnetka Family Welfare, Tennessee mountain families, and a mission in Minnesota thru the Winnetka Bible school, and the Burley school and a nursery in Chicago.

Send Gifts of Holly.

The children wrote to a school in Maryland, relates Miss Mary Williams of the Winnetka Community house, chairman of the distribution committee, and asked them to exchange gifts. The Maryland youngsters did not have money for gifts, but they sent holly instead and the holly was made into wreaths for hospitals.

On Miss Williams' committee are Mrs. James Rogers, Winnetka Family Welfare; the Rev. Melvin M. Seguine, Winnetka Bible church, and Westner Fallaw, director of religious education, Winnetka Congregational church.

In Highland Park the American Legion will give a party for needy children within the city limits at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Community Center building.

For the fifth year, the Highland Park Social Service distributed renovated toys to about 200 children of Highland Park and Highwood. Mrs. W. P. Flinn, executive secretary, was in charge of the work.

Old Toy Center.

"Santa's Workshop" at the Central school in Glencoe was the center for old toys which were rejuvenated and distributed to children who would otherwise do without. C. R. Cannon was in charge of the shop.

Stone P.-T. A. will deliver the 25 baskets which the children filled last week and the individual gifts which they brought for children in hospitals.

Queen and Court for Cadet Ball

AMUNDSEN HIGH PLATOON DRILLS FOR TITLE TEST

Hoping to garner honors in the coming drill competition among the city's high school R. O. T. C. units, the picked platoon of Amundsen High school is working hard each day.

BASEMENT ROOM IS BENEFIT TO ENTIRE FAMILY

Heavy Duty Floor Helps in Practicality.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Does a basement game room and recreation retreat pay its way?

We'll say so—where a recreation room is definitely slanted to serve all the family.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Milliner, 1216 William street, River Forest, there is just such a room. It possesses those assets which contribute to its popularity and success. It is all things to all the family, an extra room which relieves the living room above from need to serve as study, dance floor, game room, and parlor.

There is crying need for such space in many homes not palatial in size. Where people are heard to say: "We had our basement all fixed up and after our first housewarming party, no one uses it," the fact is often revealed that it is very nicely furnished indeed, but not abounding in homey provisions for mixed ages, and the use of various family members.

Floor for Dancing.

There was no economy of ideas in the finishing of Mr. Milliner's basement recreation room.

Because a dance floor could be used, Mr. Milliner had the floor covered with a heavy composition material, impregnated with asphalt. This is a type of floor often seen on sun-decks in recently built or remodeled homes. It will take a great deal of hard wear. It is dark green and varnished and waxed for dancing.

Because a quiet room was desired and because there was a certain dampness in the air on occasions, the outer walls were furred before putting on the plank type wall finish, in natural light shade, and sound absorbing tile ceiling was installed. There is a large brick fireplace, and the furnishings are informal and appropriate to the family use of the room.

Space for Extra Room.

Some new homes will be built next year without basements, and with utility room and storage space on the first floor. Other homes will be built with what we call a half basement, a shallow space about half the depth of the usual basement, large enough to house the home heating plant and with room besides for some storage area.

However, conventional size basements will appear in the greater number of homes with opportunity below "deck" for heating and laundry facilities, generous supply of storage room for household tools and yard equipment, and then some space besides for an extra room, if desired, at time of building or later.

Such an extra room—a playroom for stormy days, a recreation and game room for people of different ages and tastes—justifies the expense of finishing it. There is common sense back of its appearance on the family scene.

Stairs Should Be Safe.

Take a room of average size, and the larger the better if the family is a growing one, and the chances are the windows are average size, or should be. And the stairs should be safe and well lighted, and provided with a rail.

There are wall boards and insulating boards which can be left in their natural finish, and the trim can be inexpensive and painted. Or it can be of some hard type board which isn't expensive and yet has a nice rich look. If such games as pingpong are to be played it is well to play safe and keep the lights flush with the ceiling.

If there are young children, a side of a wall can be given over to them, with a play table which opens out when they want to use it and then drops against the wall when their bedtime arrives and other family members take possession. Wall cupboards are valuable for storage purposes.

Bar with Outlets.

A snack or counter refreshment bar at one end of the room is a big drawing card. It can have a plug-in strip at the back for electric percolator, toaster, etc. A shelf overhead can hold decorative dishes and glassware, and a cupboard underneath can accommodate food staples, linens, silver and other needed "kitchenette" accessories.

Or if there is some one in a family with a special hobby, and precious little room in the house proper to indulge it, then some corner of such finished space can probably be found to solve THAT problem.

Holiday Harmonizers

The Steele Sisters get their heads together for a little close harmony in loveliness. It's the same effect when they blend their voices in a little close harmony over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 4 to 4:30 p. m. each Sunday. The girls are featured on the Musical Steelmakers show. Left to right, they are Lucille Bell, Harriett Drake, and Lois Mae Nolte.

STUDENTS MERGE TALENTS IN AN ART CALENDAR

62 Wood Cuts Used for Illustrations.

The first joint project of all Chicago high school art departments was published last week in the form of an engagement calender illustrated with 62 woodcuts made by students in the various schools.

Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art for the schools, was in charge of assembling the material, and said that the first edition of 2,500 was already sold and that a second printing of 1,000 had been contracted for.

The four district art supervisors also helped in the work. They are Miss Jane Palczynski, Mrs. Ellen Link, Miss Mabel Williams, and Miss Agnes Fenerty.

In a general way the subject matter of each woodcut follows the season in which it is used. In the summer pages there are farm scenes, scarecrows, swimming, and other pastimes. In December there are Christmas designs, and during the school months pictures of student activities. The scene for the first week in September, the opening of school, portrays a boy in jail.

Makes Cover Design.

The cover design, a picture of a farm yard, was done by Theodore Frano of Von Steuben High school.

School representatives who made wood cuts for the calendar are:

Harper: Ann Regin, Betty Lantry, Freeman Elliott, Jean Baltusnik; Hyde Park: Virginia Walker; Lindblom: Florence Baim; Phillips: Doris Sigmon; Parker: Elizabeth Hegin.

Kelly: Stanley Kazdailis; DuSable: Amelia Stewart, Lilford Starcks, James Cadell; Calumet: Shirley Meyer, Jeanette Loring, Loren Fry, Moynette Berglund, Marian Ogren; Hirsch: Ethel Erickson, Ruth Holman, Jeanne Fletcher, Adele Deam.

Other Student Artists.

Lane: D. Kolenda, Frank Fritzmann, Norman Harris. Lake View: Margaret Camardo, Lorraine Gross. Sullivan: Peggie Kirsten.

Farragut: Ray Henning. Manley: Eleanor Sughero, Beatrice Starr, Helen Patt. Flower: Evelyn Snoka, Evelyn Kalita. Marshall: James Angarola.

De Soto Isabellans to Play Santa Claus to Orphans

De Soto council, Ladies of Isabella, has placed an order for skates, cameras, and other toys with Santa Claus and he will deliver them in person at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Angel Guardian orphanage, 2001 Devon avenue. Each child also will receive a stocking filled with nuts, fruit, and candy.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 23.

Dip the ends of cut poinsettia stems in boiling water or sear over a flame. It does no good to use chemicals altho one or two will preserve the flowers for a day or so, but no longer. Under ordinary conditions most cut flowers will keep with only an inch or two of water. Experiment with the use of chemicals, the amount of water to use, temperature, etc.

Growing plants without soil or in water and chemicals offers opportunity to try the new method and compare it with plants growing in soil. Soil, at best, simply holds the plant in place, anchors it securely, but the food must be taken up when it is in solution. Soils are often deficient in food elements and these must be supplied.

The difficulty when growing plants in rooms is usually a lack of light or sun, hot, dry atmosphere, a stuffy condition, a lack of knowledge of how and when to water, and often starvation.

Tuesday, Dec. 24.

Sometimes a leaky gas jet or stove will cause plant leaves to drop. The Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers are susceptible to gas. Keep the soil moist for dry soil also causes leaves to wither.

About the only way to get rid of poison ivy is to dig it out bodily and burn it. Keep away from the smoke when it is burning.

If young trees have not been protected against the attacks of rodents, protect them without delay. Tar paper, small meshed screening, or other material can be used. Mulch bulb beds if it has not been done.

Wednesday, Dec. 25.

Cuttings of rose stems can be used for propagating purposes. Cut just below a leaf or node, leaving one leaf above. Place the cuttings in a box of sand or sandy soil and cover with glass. Water well the first time and sprinkle sufficiently to keep moist. Shade for a few days, but remove at night. Pot when rooted. In spring, plant out in the garden.

Cuttings also can be made of the favorite chrysanthemum if large specimen blooms are wanted. For cutting material, use the growths that come from around the base, cut back the leaves to avoid excessive transpiration, place in sand, and carry on when rooted.

Cuttings can be made as late as early June if small pot plants are desired. These make nice plants for table use.

Thursday, Dec. 26.

Look over your plants; see that they are well watered and have good light conditions. The terrarium may need a bit of air to keep out excessive moisture. Keep the poinsettia plant at about 60 degrees and never permit it to be subjected to draughts, or the leaves will turn yellow and drop.

It hardly pays to keep the plant over for another season, but one may attempt it as an experiment. After flowering, let it rest by withholding water; the leaves will fall and the stems look like dead sticks.

Set pot and plant in basement until spring when it can be cut back, repotted in good soil, and plunged in a sunny spot in the garden. Cuttings can be made of the young growths that appear along the stems.

Friday, Dec. 27.

Keep the window boxes filled with evergreens watered. Mulch rhododendrons with about six inches of leaves. It is a good plant to make a new cut at the end of the Christmas tree and stand in a bucket of sand saturated with a 10 per cent sugar solution. This will preserve the needles and keep them from falling.

Do not topdress lawns with stable manure because weed seeds may be introduced. A heavy application will likely kill the grass.

Use little, if any, fertilizer to house plants on dull days. Use a complete plant food when the plants are in active growth. Commercial foods are best* and especially where organic manures cannot be had or are difficult to obtain.

Saturday, Dec. 28.

An aquarium in the home will interest every member of the family. Success depends on maintaining a proper balance between the fish and the plant life. Stock the aquarium with fish and water loving plants in such proportion that each will supply the needs of the other.

Cover the bottom with coarse sand; an inch layer will suffice. Plant in it a collection of plants like the vallisneria, sagittaria, cabomba, parrot's feather, or any other that is obtainable.

Scavengers may be added, such as fresh water snails, tadpoles; a single snail and two tadpoles will be enough for each gallon of water.

STUDENTS JOIN IN GOOD FELLOW SING TOMORROW

Hundreds to Meet at Tribune Tower.

Hundreds of students from six Chicago High schools and one junior college will join voices tomorrow afternoon in the fifth annual Good Fellow Carol Sing. The program of Christmas music will be given in the court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio from 3:45 to 4:15 o'clock. The first 15 minutes of the program will be broadcast over W-G-N.

School musical organizations taking part include mixed choruses from Lindblom, Hirsch, Senn, Waller, and Steinmetz High schools and Wright Junior college. From Farragut High school will be boys' and girls' choruses, and Austin will be represented by its boys' and girls' glee clubs and senior and junior choirs. The sing will be presented thru the coöperation of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago public schools.

Carols on Program.

Carols to be sung include the favorites of the Christmas season. They are: "Silent Night," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," "Joy to the World," "Deck the Halls," "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," "The First Noel," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "Here We Come A-Caroling."

Each school group will be under the immediate supervision of its musical directors. The directors are: Austin, Hazel E. Lloyd, Marion McDonaugh, and Edna Pohlmann; Farragut, Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson; Hirsch, Helena L. Kane; Lindblom, Joseph R. Taylor; Senn, Dr. Samuel Burkholder; Steinmetz, Harriet Calverley and Willard L. Groom; Waller, Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, and Wright Junior college, Erhardt Bergstrasser.

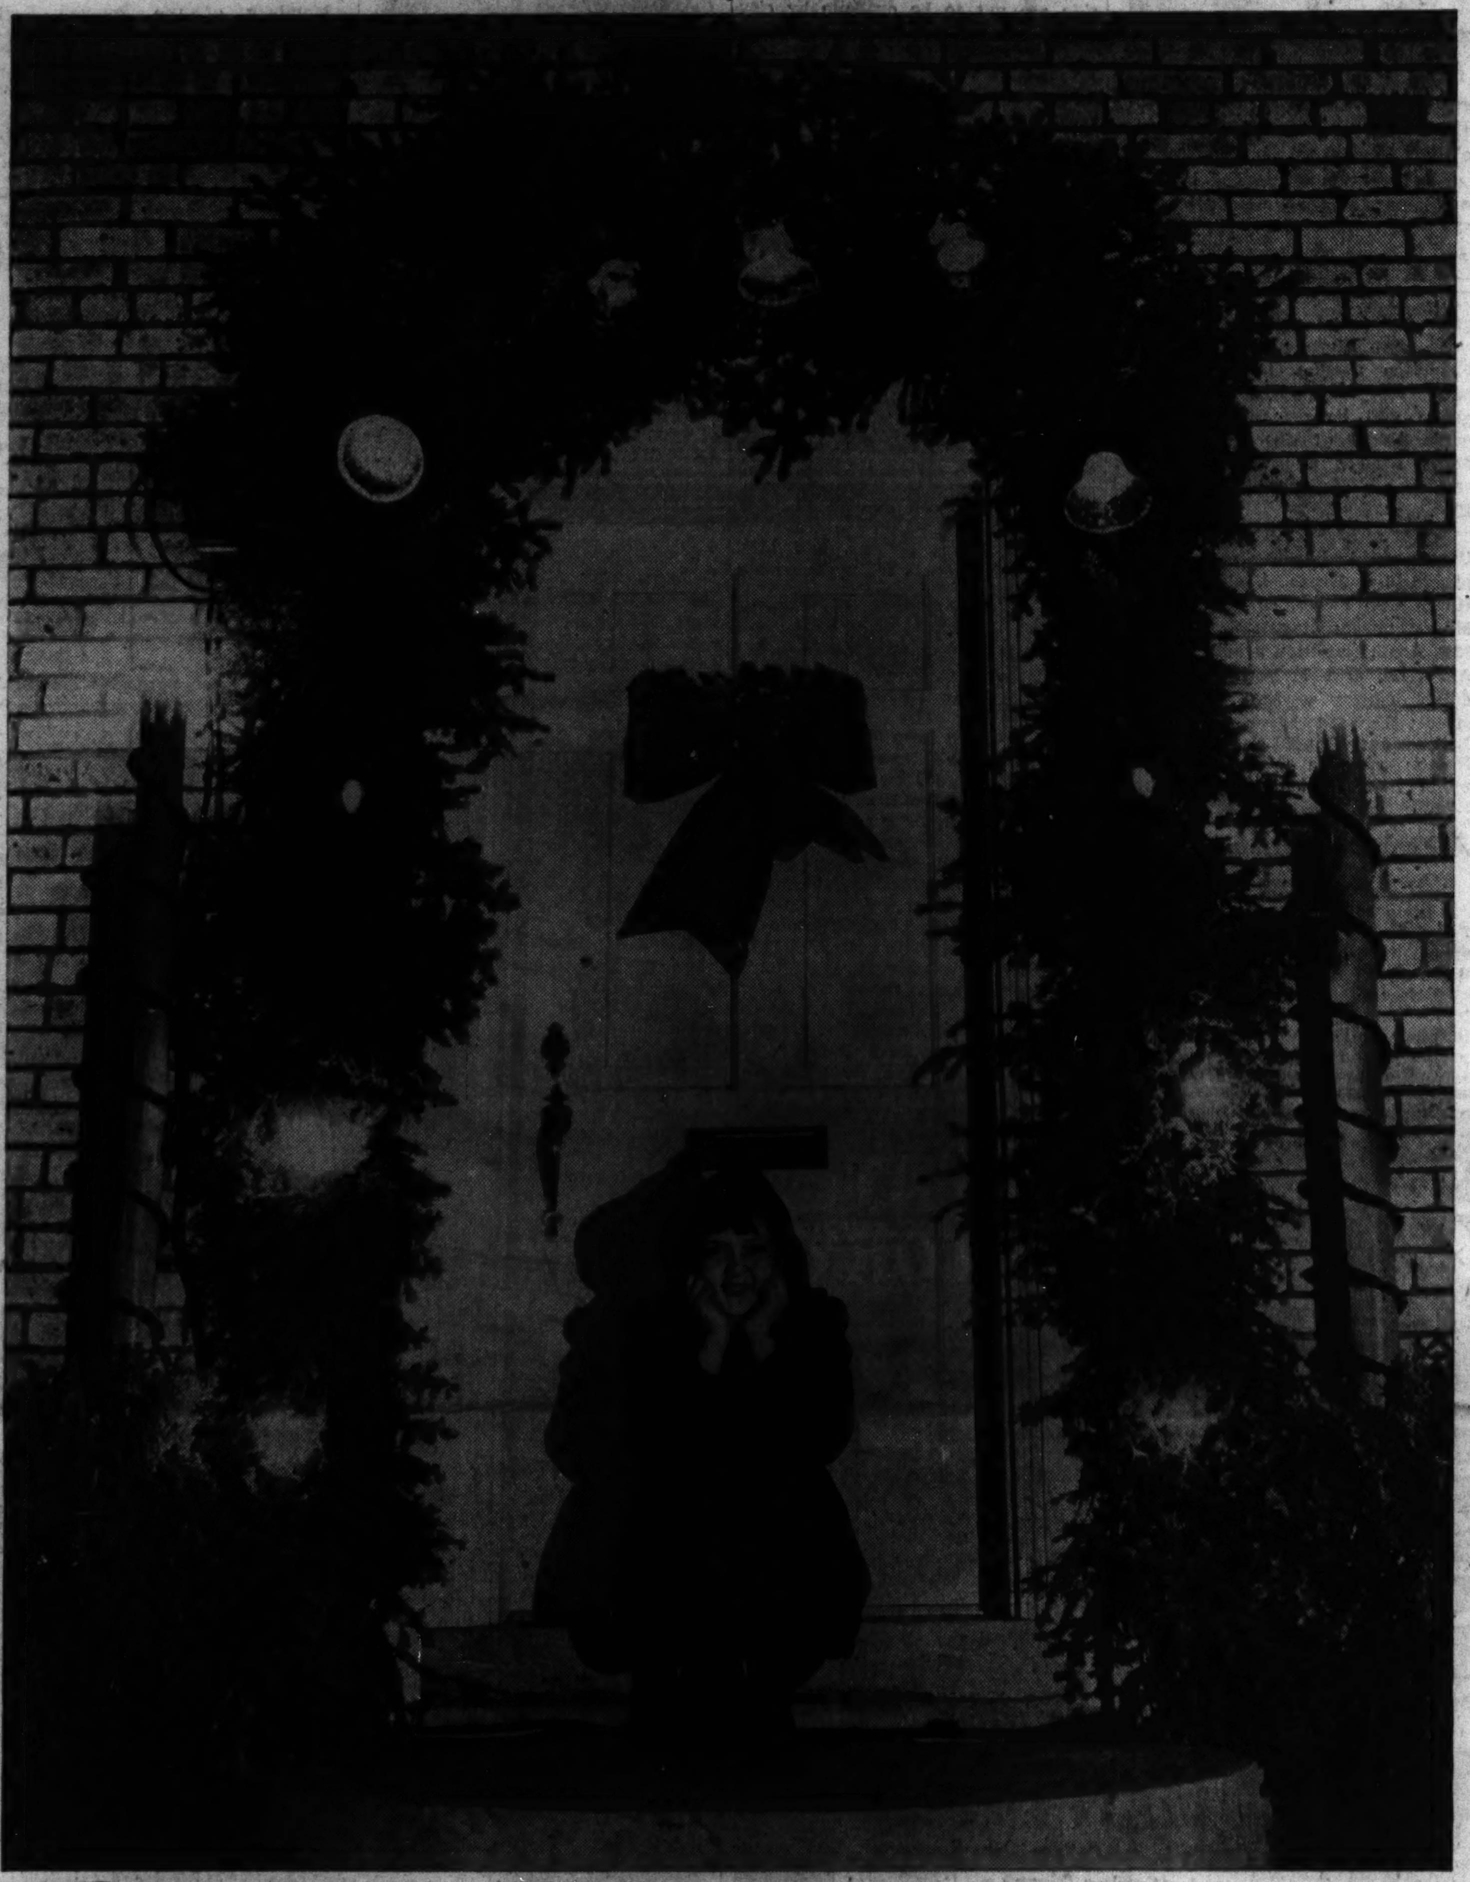
Homes Aglow Await Kris Kringle



Eleven year old Donna Jeanne Kirchoff, 4136 North Melvina avenue, has decided to sit right down and wait for Santa Claus to arrive on Christmas eve, so that she can let him in to the beautifully decorated house of her friends, the Phillip Kellers, at 4435 North Menard avenue. This attractive doorway with its greens, Christmas bells, and tall candles is but one of the many outdoor decorative effects which have been designed by Arthur Hollins for the Kellers. A six foot moving Santa Claus, a huge Christmas tree, and eight room lighted doll house, and a huge wreath and streamers on the outdoor fireplace chimney are grouped attractively. This home is one of hundreds entered in the Christmas outdoor decorations contest.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

WILLARD DINNELLA, 902 North Drake avenue, one of the four men students in a class of 250 at De Paul university's secretarial school, is glad that women have the vote. Earlier in the year he was elected president of the class by a substantial margin, and now he finds himself entrusted with a large share of the responsibility for making the school's 12th annual charity ball Saturday night a success. It will be held in the Drake and the setting will be that of an old southern holiday ball.

Willard Dinnella.

Rollin Simonds, economic instructor and debate coach at Maine Township Junior college, has been elected president of the Debate League of Illinois Junior colleges, which is made up of the following teams: Maine, Wright, North Park, La Grange, La Salle-Peru, Morton, and Thornton.

Next March's league debate, Simonds said, will be on the subject, "Resolved, that the nations of the western hemisphere should form a permanent union." Members of the Maine debate squad are Gwenn Jenkins, Olive Allen, Floyd Gibbert, David Held, Marjorie Johnson, and Marjorie Ruoss.

The command, "Leave for Christmas holidays, March!" sent three Culver cadets scurrying home to the northwest side last week, where they will be "at ease" for the next 10 days. They are Robert Koch, 6144 North Kilpatrick avenue; Herbert Matthews, 4111 North Bernard street, and Frederick A. Wieland, 5846 North Kolmar avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Stretch have turned their home at 5908 North Neva avenue into a "house of Christmas cheer" for the holidays, as these outdoor decorations show. On the roof of the sun parlor is a life-size representation of the Three Wise Men and their camel, being guided by the Star of the East overhead. Gay lights and decorations trim the rest of the house and the yard. Indirect lighting colors the top half of the white stucco walls in green, and the bottom section in red. This home is entered in the Norwood Park decorations contest.

Six Children Take Part in Parents' Golden Jubilee

The six children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Josiek, 5069 Avondale avenue, remembered their parents' golden wedding anniversary with a dinner recently. The couple have lived in Chicago since their arrival from Hungary 45 years ago. Mr. Josiek is 72, and his wife is 68 years of age. They have seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild

Paradise Steppers Sponsor 'Night of Nights' Saturday

The Paradise Steppers, a Polish-American Social and Athletic Club of Avondale, will sponsor a "Night of Nights" on Saturday at St. Mary of Angels ballroom, 1814 North Hermitage avenue. Joseph Galazkiewicz, 3249 North Hamlin avenue, heads the committee on arrangements. The club has a membership of 120 young men and women.

Rho Sigma Alpha Sorority Gives Balloon Dance Tonight

Rho Sigma Alpha sorority of Roosevelt High school alumnae will hold its annual balloon dance this evening at Humboldt Boulevard temple, 1908 Humboldt boulevard. Beatrice Orlove, 1952 Belmont avenue, is president of the group and Phyllis Wertheimer, 3251 Diversey avenue, is chairman of the dance.

NEW FAIRYLAND SPRINGS UP THRU NORTHWEST SIDE

Residents Compete in Annual Contest.

BY ELAINE MINER.

Fantastic Christmas fairylands of light and color are springing up in communities thruout the northwest side as homes and yards are transformed by holiday decorations. The time and effort expended by residents in beautifying their premises is encouraged by many community Christmas decorations contests, sponsored by local organizations in an effort to make their neighborhoods attractive during the holidays. Among these are contests in the suburbs of Elmwood Park, Park Ridge, Des Plaines, and Itasca, and in Portage Park and Norwood Park in Chicago.

Mrs. Lawrence Dowd.

The Elmwood Park contest was initiated last year by the Home Owners association and attracted several hundred entries. This year even more residents are expected to compete for the cash and merchandise prizes offered. A crew of judging experts will inspect all entries between tomorrow and Dec. 31, and awards will be made soon thereafter. Mrs. Lawrence Dowd is chairman of the committee arranging the contest. She is assisted by Clifford Beaumont, Herbert H. Frueh, George Lowrie, and J. J. Petranek Jr.

Will Show Movies.

The Karl R. Steinhofer residence at 7911 Sunset drive in Elmwood Park was one of the winners in last year's contest. This year the Steinhofers are planning even more elaborate effects. A life-size Santa Claus will be mounted on the roof, holding a decorated Christmas tree. On the ground below three large candles will be placed on each side of the windows which cover the front of the house, and a lighted red cross placed between them. A transparent screen inside the windows will show Christmas movies to those outside, while carols and other appropriate music will be played thru a loudspeaker outdoors.

The Joseph K. Paulicks, 3046 North 77th avenue, have another Elmwood Park Christmas show place. This year's decorations will focus attention on their doorway, which will be wreathed and outlined in lights and Christmas greens. The same materials will garnish the iron railings on the steps leading to the entranceway. Small trees and shrubbery growing in the yard also will be lighted.

The Frank Kanders, 2221 73d court, utilize four evergreen trees in their decorative effects. Two small ones near the steps light up the doorway; a third, larger one, is centered between the porch and the end of the house, and also is lighted. The fourth tree shines from inside the porch itself, showing to passersby. A large wreath on the door invites visitors to enter.

Contest in Four Divisions.

The Park Ridge outdoor Christmas lighting contest has been sponsored for the last several years by the Park Ridge Garden club, in coöperation with the chamber of commerce. Prizes will be offered for the best general effect, the best Christmas tree, the most attractive doorway, and the most original outdoor display. Mrs. Stephen T. McDermott is president of the Garden club, while J. H. Redson will be in charge of the contest.

L. C. Clayton, 1009 S. Delphia street, who was judged to have last year's most original display, is already setting up his unique, 30 foot long barbecue for the 1940 contest. Fireplace, warming ovens, and many other parts comprise the barbecue which is fully capable of providing a real meal, including French fried potatoes, if it were wanted. Adding realism to this display are the life-size silhouettes of well known actors and actresses which are grouped about it, and the seven foot high chef holding aloft a platter of turkey. A number of decorated trees and floodlighting complete the effect.

Tall Tree Lighted.

The first prize winning Christmas tree at the J. S. Barrett Park Ridge home, 601 South Crescent, will be repeated again this year under the expert hands of their son, Peter Barrett. This beautiful tree, growing taller than the house, is covered with red, blue, green, and yellow lights, and the whole is then floodlighted, making it stand out effectively.

The Des Plaines decorating contest is now in its 10th year, and considerable emphasis is being laid on the trimming of business houses, as well as homes here. It is sponsored by the business men's association, with Barney Frazen as chairman, and the Lions' club, under chairman John Tures, Fred Lessing, and James R. Lawrence. Thirty to forty homes are expected to compete for the $50 offered in residential prizes, and approximately 25 places of business are entered in the commercial contest, which offers another $25 in prizes.

Santa to Leap from the Sky Bearing Gifts

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Santa Claus has adopted blitzkrieg tactics for his scheduled appearance tomorrow afternoon at Elmwood Park's annual Christmas party for its 2,200 elementary school children. Santa will arrive by plane and alight via parachute—literally in the midst of the celebration. But instead of spreading terror and confusion he'll bring good cheer and presents for every child in his parachute packs.

The party is a coöperative enterprise to which the entire village has contributed for the last three years. Mothers and fathers, businessmen, trustees, and officers of the Elmwood Park school district, the village Parent-Teachers' association and the village board all take active parts in arranging and running the show. For the last two years it was given for the needy only, but this year every child in the village has been invited.

And all six of the village's schools —both parochial and state—are prepared to attend en masse. The schools are the John Mills and Elmwood Park Elementary institutions; St. Celestine's, St. Williams', and St. Vincent Ferrier's parochial schools and the Zoar Lutheran school.

Will Travel by Bus.

In three groups of about 750 each they will gather at the Mills and Elmwood Park schools, respectively at 76th and Diversey avenues and at 75th court and Fullerton avenue, shortly before noon. Ten motor buses will take them in relays to Olson's barbecue restaurant at 7330 West North avenue, where the festivities will be held.

Christmas carols will be sung by the group, and the children will watch a number of amateurs from their own ranks give several Christmas plays. Then comes an interlude during which they will be fed hot chocolate and milk, cake and ice cream, nuts, candy, and fruit. The serving will be done by the children's mothers, who expect, perhaps too optimistically, to keep some sort of order.

Then Santa Arrives.

Then comes the pièce de résistance —the arrival of Santa overhead. He will appear in a cabin monoplane at a height of 2,000 feet, to conform with all United States Department of Commerce safety regulations.

The children will stream outdoors to the edge of a golf course that is directly behind the restaurant, so they can see Santa make his exit from the airplane and his parachute jump.

In this instance Santa will be Carl Rupert, licensed parachute rigger and jumper from the Normann airport in Melrose Park. Clad in red suit and beard, he will make the jump, expecting to land on the golf course and as close to the children as safety permits. There are power lines and telephone wires uncomfortably close to that spot but "Santa" has made 214 successful jumps, and he expects to hit his target.

Santa to Take Stage.

The children will help him out of his parachute harness and then he'll take the stage to hand out the surprise packages that will be given to every one. The whole show will wind up when the children are returned to the village schools in the buses.

Walter P. Grubbe, village collector, is chairman of the Christmas party committee. Working with him are John A. Cullerton, village president, George Wells, the superintendent of schools, and most of the parents in the town.

Eric Olson and Ole Christianson, partners in the Olson restaurant, are contributing use of their restaurant and the refreshments that the throng will consume during the day.

Hey, Kids! He's Real

Elmwood Park's Santa Claus will drop from the sky—no fooling. He's coming down with a parachute and a bundle of toys for the community Christmas celebration tomorrow. When the suit's at home he is Carl Rupert and he teaches others to make jumps.

CHURCHES OPEN SPECIAL YULE SERVICES TODAY

Vespers, Operetta Among Events.

Neighbors and parishioners in the vicinity of the Messiah Evangelical Lutheran church at Melvina and Patterson avenues listen eagerly each evening for the Christmas music which sounds all about them, as it is broadcast by loud speakers from the belfry of the church.

Carols, organ music, instrumental numbers and children's choruses will be included in the program. The broadcasts will be given from 8 to 9 o'clock from now until Christmas.

The Messiah church has planned a number of other special programs. At 8 o'clock tonight the treble choir will give its annual Christmas concert under the direction of Harold P. Wukasch.

Plan Sacred Concert.

A sacred concert will be given at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Concordia Evangelical Lutheran church, Washtenaw and Belmont avenues. This musical vesper service, featuring Christmas music, will be given under the direction of the new church organist and choir conductor, George A. Albers, who recently came to Chicago from Winnepeg, Canada.

The church school and combined choirs of St. Paul Congregational church, Keeler and Belden avenues, will present an operetta, "The Christmas Bazar" tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. A candle light service on Christmas day is also scheduled.

A Christmas white gift vesper servive will be held at 4, and again at 8 o'clock today at the Albany Park Presbyterian church, St. Louis avenue and Ainslie street.

The annual Christmas observance at Bethany Presbyterian church, Cortland street and Humboldt boulevard, will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening. The Etcetera Players guild of the church will present the Christmas pageant, "The Story That Never Grows Old," written by the pastor, the Rev. O. J. Ohan,

A Christmas concert will be given at 7:45 o'clock this evening at Christ Lutheran church, Parkside and Barry avenues.

Offer Choral Eucharist

Among the special Christmas services announced at St. Alban's Episcopal church, Avondale and Nina avenues, will be the choral Eucharist at 11:15 o'clock Christmas eve, and another communion celebration at 11 o'clock on Christmas morning.

A Christmas cantata entitled "The Nativity," by Adam Giebel, will be the first special Christmas program to be presented in the new auditorium of the Mid-West Bible church, 3469 North Cicero avenue, at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The Sunday school Christmas program, with presentation of gifts, will be held at 4 o'clock today at St. John's Lutheran church, Montrose and LaVergne avenues.

A candle light processional, carols, the service of the lights and the prayer of dedication will be a part of the midnight Christmas eve services at Eedison Park Lutheran church, Avondale and Oliphant avenues, beginning at 11 o'clock. Christmas day services will be held at 6:30 and 10:45 in the morning.

A carol service held especially for the children of the parish will open Christmas programs at St. James Episcopal church of Dundee at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday.

Plan Musical Services.

The Christmas season will be inaugurated with a series of musical services at Tabor Lutheran church, 3540 Sunnyside avenue, beginning with a candle light service at 4 o'clock this afternoon. A cantata, "It Came to Pass," by Richard T. Rohlfing, will be given by the children's a cappella choir under the direction of John G. Rieck.

The Gladstone Park Lutheran church choir, under the direction of Alexander Mulligan, will give two candle light services, the first on Tuesday night at 11:30 and the second at 6:30 o'clock the next morning.

A colorful pageant, "The Holy Night," supported by the junior choir, will be the highlight of the Christmas programs to be presented at St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran church, Parker and Kostner avenues. It will start at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

Children of the church school of Martin Luther Evangelical Lutheran church, Addison street and New England avenue, will present "White Gifts for the King," with the aid of the senior choir, at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

Irving Park Presbyterian church, Keeler and Belle Plaine avenues, plans a Christmas candle lighting service Wednesday at 7 o'clock in the morning. Carols and other music will be featured.

Octet and Trio.

A male octet and a ladies' trio will contribute music to the 11:30 o'clock Christmas eve service at the Albany Park Lutheran church, Spaulding and Thorndale avenues. At 5:30 the following morning the church choir will sing.

The Rev. Oliver D. Baltzly, pastor emeritus of the Kountze Memorial Lutheran church in Omaha, Neb., will deliver a sermon at the 11 o'clock candle light service Christmas eve at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, North Lockwood and Iowa streets.

Voice of the Northwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Northwest Side, The Tribune.

HE LIKES THE SHOW.

I want to thank the department of streets for putting on a good show for me, free. Since I am not a motorist, this may be a one-sided point of view, but it sure is a good show, like I said.

I live near the triple intersection of Elston, Belmont, and California avenues. California avenue runs about 100 feet east of the crossing of the other two streets, and there is a gas station on the triangle in the center, so there are in all, I think, 10 traffic signals. Watching them in itself is a pretty good show.

But watching the faces of motorists who are as yet unaccustomed to the corner is even more fun, because the lights are so well timed that a car must stop for the second set of lights just after the first one turns green. Once a business man in a hurry was so annoyed when the second one turned red that he bit his cigar in two.

There have been a good many nifty accidents and traffic jams there, too, on account of this. THRILLED.

SPREADING YULE CHEER.

One of the things which makes a person enjoy Christmas more is to realize that it is bringing happiness in a greater or lesser degree to other people as well. It has given me great pleasure to read the accounts in your paper of the cheerful things that are going to happen in settlement houses, churches, parks, schools, and what individual children and grown-ups are going to do to enjoy it themselves. That is a service of which a newspaper should be proud.

MRS. J. O. L.

A BETTER RIVER.

Residents of Ravenswood Manor and other communities along the north branch of the Chicago river, north of Montrose avenue, are proud of their river now, thanks to the work that has been done on it, and is still being done near Eugene Field park. Every time I see the river several miles further south, lined with coal yards, smoky chimneys, etc., I think how lucky we are to have the river the way it is, with clean shores and lots of trees along its banks.

A. J. P.

A SINCERE THANK YOU.

I would like to be among the first to wish the Northwest side section and THE TRIBUNE a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We depend on THE TRIBUNE for going places and enjoy it very much.

PARK PETITION HALTS BUSES ON HOMAN-KIMBALL

Right to Fee to Be Heard by I. C. C.

BY JOHN McCUTCHEON JR.

Indefinite postponement of bus service on Homan and Kimball avenues, which was to have started last week, is seen as a result of an intervening petition filed before the Illinois Commerce commission by the Chicago park district in which it asserts its right to collect a fee for use of its streets by buses. The petition will be heard on Friday.

The proposed route would mean use of about one-third of a mile of park roadway on Homan boulevard between Madison and Lake streets. The complete service as ordered by the commerce commission last September runs from 31st street north to Wrightwood avenue, and has long been advocated by merchants of the neighborhood, led by Milton Friend of Logan square, State Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe, and Attorney Charles V. Falkenberg.

Seeking Mileage Fee.

The park district is seeking to collect a fee of two cents per bus mile traveled over these three blocks, which the Chicago Surface lines, operator of the buses, say would amount to $2,000 a year. After this demand was made the surface lines, on Dec. 10, asked that the case be reopened and that a ruling prohibit the park district from collecting a fee.

It was also pointed out that no new buses could be obtained in time for opening of service last week, as had been ordered, because of the rush of national defense business on the manufacturers, and that they probably would not be ready until February or March.

The park district reply, in the form of the intervening petition, has been prepared by Philip A. Lozowick, first assistant general attorney for the park.

"The use of buses," Lozowick said, "deteriorates the streets rapidly due to their great weight. We have never allowed trucks on park roads, and to my knowledge we have never permitted bus operation without payment, and we now receive about $300,000 a year from this source. If it were cut off, the money would have to be obtained from additional taxes."

Pay at Logan Square.

The surface lines are already paying for bus operation at Logan square, he said. Most bus service in the parks is by the Chicago Motor Coach company.

Transfer of the right to assess bus companies for service on park roads to the commerce commission, he said, would "deny home rule" by taking it from a city agency and giving it to the state. By its charter, he added, the park district is given the power to regulate or prohibit traffic upon its streets.

If the commerce commission denies the right of the park district to intervene, it may at the same time grant the request of the surface lines and amend the September order by directing them to install the service without the approval of the park district. If it is granted, however, a long period of litigation is likely.

VISIT TO BALLET IS BENEFIT FOR SCHOLARSHIP

A visit to the Ballet Russe next Sunday night will replace the annual dance of the Tuley Orchestra Alumni association. The money acquired at this benefit will be given as a scholarship of $100 or $150 to the public high school music student deemed the most worthy, and he may use it studying under any Chicago teacher he wishes. Milton Jaffe is president of the association, Ted Sherman is vice president, and Sidney Letchinger is chairman of the benefit program.

Costumed for Caroling

A fancy costume, lamps, and a song have transformed these regular fellows into Old English carolers for the Christmas program to be given by the Neighborhood Boys' club at 8 o'clock tonight in Lane auditorium, Addison street and Western avenue. The event is sponsored by their Dads' club. Among club members who will participate are (left to right) back row, Louis Baker and William Schwenk; front row, Jack Leske, William Koopman, Edward Gogonas, and William Schubert.

NEIGHBORHOOD BOYS' CLUB WILL HAVE PROGRAM

Revere Park Club Will Sing Operetta.

A year of keen competition on the athletic field and comradeship inside and outside of the clubhouse will be climaxed for members of the Neighborhood Boys club with a Christmas program at 8 o'clock this evening in Lane Technical High school auditorium, Addison street and Western avenue. J. F. Nickels, president of the Dads club which sponsors the program, will preside.

An operetta, "Ye Olde English Christmas," directed by Miss Marie Valentine, will be presented by members of the Paul Revere Park club, 2501 Irving Park road. Robert Buehler, who founded the club in 1931, will present awards and medals and the Lake View High school concert band will furnish the music. Clarence Wermich of the Northcenter Business Men's association will be master of ceremonies.

The three branches of the club, at Paul Revere park, Hanson park playground, Central and Fullerton avenues, and River park, 5100 North Francisco avenue, have an active membership of 1,500 boys. The entire group will be present to see the presentation of 103 "For Better Men" awards and 808 medals for service on championship teams in 1940.

A cast of 82 boys will take part in the operetta. Leading rôles will be played by James Desherow, 2417 Hutchinson street, as squire of the Manor house; Raymond Baumhart, 3942 North Hamilton avenue; Francis Anderson, 4051 Melrose street; Rudolph Guttosch, 2529 Hutchinson street; Edward Elenz, 3844 North Bell avenue; Donald Samuelson, 4323 North Francisco avenue, and Raymond Bartlett, 3810 North Leavitt street.

Albany Park Moose Groups Sponsor Christmas Party

Albany Park lodge 220 and Albany Park chapter 427, Order of the Moose, are sponsoring a Christmas party for their Junior chapter at Moose hall, 4350 North Pulaski road, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. Members and their families will see an entertainment program, and Santa Claus will present gifts to all the boys and girls.

SUBURBAN FOLKS FLEE COLD BY TRAIN AND AUTO

Will Pass Vacations in the Sunny South.

Suburbanites from the northwest side are not to be outdone by city dwellers in the matter of exchanging winter weather for the balmy sunshine of the south. In fact, many have already left for Florida and California.

Walter Dutton of Woodstock is leaving this week for a month's cruise to South America, following which he will spend another month in Florida. Many others from Woodstock are making less spectacular trips. Two teachers, Miss Mildred Anderson and Miss Ruth Price, left Friday for a two weeks' motor tour of Florida, going down the east coast and up the west coast.

Others Taking Trips.

Other Woodstock residents who left recently or are leaving this week by automobile for Florida are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peet, the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Monroe, Frank Hanaford, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hendricks, and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Friend. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McPhail are traveling to Biloxi, Miss., by car, and Mrs. Grover Wickham is taking the train to Hollywood, Fla.

Mrs. Hattie Coquillette has gone by train to California, and Mrs. Etta Rogers, Mrs. William T. Charles, and Miss Blanche C. Bunker are leaving next week for several months in Tucson, Ariz.

Going from Elgin.

Elginites who will winter in Florida include Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Gifford, Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Krausmann, Mrs. C. A. Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Slinko, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Adkins, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Broitzman.

From Harvard, Mrs. Gertrude K. Cooke has left for Houston, Tex., and Mrs. H. L. Ferris for St. Petersburg, Fla. Florida is also the destination of four Marengo residents: Mrs. Edward D. Shurtleff, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tanner, and Miss Jane Stanford.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kilpatrick of Solon Mills, will spend the winter at Orlando, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wolcott of Batavia will go to Fairhope, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Giese of Lake Zurich will pass the holidays with relatives at Marianna, Fla.

To Be Church Bride

Miss Vanita Elaine Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buell F. Brown, 4045 Simpson street, Skokie, will be married on Christmas day in Evanston to Robert E. Lundin of 7606 North Paulina street. The marriage will take place at the First United Presbyterian church.

CHARITIES HELP IN YULE GIFTS FOR NEEDY FOLK

Clubs, companies, and individuals are coöperating with the northwest district office of the United Charities, 3600 Fullerton avenue, to give unfortunate families of the neighborhood a merry Christmas this year.

Their aid is being given according to the United Charities idea that a poor mother or father likes to give Christmas to his own children, rather than have them get it from a stranger, just as much as any other parent wishes his children to look up to him for good things. Miss Catherine Roherty, superintendent of the district office, is receiving gifts at the office so that families can call for them.

The Young Married Peoples club of Barrington has collected and renovated about 1,300 toys which their own children have outgrown. They will be shown today at the home of Mrs. Hyde Gillette, and will then be distributed to families.

OFFER NATIVITY PAGEANT AGAIN FOR 18TH YEAR

Settlement Actors Are 'Enlisted for Life.'

To one earnest group of northwest siders, the story of the Nativity is especially well known. Each year for eighteen years this group has enacted the stirring pageant of the Holy Birth.

One year the Joseph of this pageant decided he had other things to do than take part in the play which he had performed so many times, and another person filled his place. The next year he was back.

"I thought I could get along without this, Miss Vittum," he told the director of Northwestern university Settlement house where the pageant is an annual feature. "But I can't," he added with contriteness, "and I've come back."

Began 18 Years Ago.

That is how real, and how important the Christmas pageant has become to this close-knit group. Eighteen years ago its members were of high school age, and called themselves the Mask and Wig dramatic club of the Northwestern Settlement house. In December of that year the settlement had no dramatic director, and the club volunteered to present a pageant for the annual Christmas program. So successful was their show they repeated it for several years.

Gradually, however, members grew up, were married, moved out of the neighborhood, and there came a year when Miss Vittum thought:

"Surely they won't be able to present the play again this year! I don't want them to feel that this is a burden to them."

Discuss the Problem.

At the same time, the little group of actors were discussing the problem among themselves.

"We don't want to act as tho we had a monopoly on this Christmas program," they worried. "Maybe they'd rather we didn't keep on giving it."

Word trickled over the grapevine system to Miss Vittum, that the Mask and Wiggers were still really interested in the Christmas story. So one afternoon she invited them all over for a cup of coffee in the library.

Enlisted for Life.

"Let's get down to business. I move that we keep on doing the Christmas pageant all the rest of our lives!" said one young man.

This year's shows will be given at 4 o'clock and at 8 o'clock this evening.

The tableaux are getting to be a "family" affair in more ways than one. Several of the performers have married other performers, which heightens their sentimental interest in the ritual. This year, four children of the original players will participate in the play.

Will Offer Polish Dances

National Polish dances will be one of the features of the mid-holiday party to be held by the Polish National Alliance Junior league Friday evening at 1250 Milwaukee avenue. Lydia Sawicka and Henry Gilewski are shown in one of their dances.

JEWISH TEMPLES WILL CELEBRATE FEAST OF LIGHTS

Notes Ancient Victory Over Syrian King.

While Christians are celebrating Christmas this year, Jews will be celebrating the festival of Chanukah, or the Feast of Lights, which commemorates the rededication of the temple in ancient Jerusalem by the Maccabees after their victory in 165 B. C. over the Syrian king who had attempted to suppress the Jewish religion.

The festival will be ushered in at the Humboldt Boulevard temple, 1908 Humboldt boulevard, with a sermon by Rabbi David Graubart Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock entitled "Light Over Darkness."

The children of the schools connected with the temple will present a program of Chanukah entertainment next Sunday afternoon, featured by a play, mass recitations, tableaux, and chants under the direction of Maynard Schwerdlin, dramatic instructor. At this time greetings will be presented by William Durchslag, president of the temple.

Celebrate a Birthday.

The 80th birthday of Henrietta Szold, founder of the Women's Zionist organization of America, will be observed by the Henrietta Szold Junior Hadassah this afternoon at a gala Chanukah meeting at the Humboldt Boulevard temple. A play, "The Unlighted Menorah," will be presented by Miss Violet Kossy with a cast consisting of Miriam Hirsch, Esther Stein, Evelyn Herman, and Belle Falikoff. A scroll will be signed by all members and sent to Miss Szold in Palestine, where she is now working.

Another Chanukah party will be held Tuesday morning for members of the preschool at the Albany Park Hebrew congregation, 4601 North Lawndale avenue, beginning at 10 o'clock.

There will be a special Chanukah festival at the open meeting of Albany Park Lodge of B'nai B'rith Saturday at the Albany Park Masonic temple, 4660 North Kedzie avenue. Henry H. Marks is president of the lodge and Louis Soloman is chairman of the committee in charge of prizes and refreshments.

Will Hold Symposium.

The Junior league of the Logan Square temple will hold a symposium Friday evening on "What the Synagogue Means to the Youth." The speakers will be Evelyn Hochberger, Evelyn Mitchell, Yale Solomon, and Ronald Reifler, president of the group. The symposium will be at the temple, 3135 Fullerton avenue.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Northwest Side Gomel Chesed Shell Emess will hold its annual banquet this evening at the Austro-Galician congregation hall, California and Hirsch avenues. The group is a charitable society to see that no one of the Jewish faith is buried in Potter's field, as this is contrary to religious beliefs. Mrs. Rose Radin and Mrs. Rebecca Friedman are chairmen for the affair.

A Weighty Decision for Dennis

Little Dennis Duffey seems undecided as to whether or not he will be allowed to stay at "Dame Clotilde's" Christmas party, and Rosalie Vernon, who plays the part of the wealthy lady, reassures him. The scene is from a play, "The Christmas Card," which the junior dramatic group will present at the Riis park community Christmas party tomorrow afternoon. Miss Catherine Troy is the director of the young actors.

SEEKING HANDY KIT FOR EVERY AREA DRAFTEE

"Kick In For a Kit" is the motto of the campaign launched last week by the Edison Park post of the American Legion to provide all draftees going to camp from the Edison and Norwood Park area with handy leather kits containing razor, comb, shaving brush, and other personal articles.

Fletcher Newell.

Fletcher Newell, 6547 Oshkosh avenue, is commander of the post, and Bert J. Schneider, 6755 Oketo avenue, is chairman of the kit fund committee. Other members are Allan Lewis, H. W. Van Loon, James E. Krum, Dr. S. C. Bromberg, and Frank Hartigan.

"So many appeals have been made to help people in foreign countries," Mr. Schneider said, "that some of us forget there are things we can and should do for our own boys right here at home who have been drafted for training.

Collection boxes for the drive are already on the counters of nearly 170 stores thruout Edison and Norwod Parks, where contributions for the draftee kits can be made.

SALVATION ARMY PLANS ITS OWN YULE PARTIES

Northwest Corps Will Hold Festivities.

With most of their Christmas services to others performed, the Salvation Army's northwest side corps are now planning their own holiday programs and services for their Sunday school children and neighborhood friends during the coming week.

Christmas carols at 7:45 o'clock tonight will open the holiday festivities at the Kedzie avenue corps, 1634 North Kedzie avenue. On Thursday evening a holiday party for Sunday school children will be held.

Maj. Clarence Hall will be active in directing most of these parties. Chairman of the carol festival will be Col. William H. Garrett, chief secretary for the Army in Chicago and the middle west.

Five Hundred Are Expected.

The Humboldt Park corps, 1710 North California avenue, will be host at one of the four large Christmas parties for children which the Army's family service department will give tomorrow evening.

Christmas festivities at the Humboldt Park corps will begin, however, at 7 o'clock this evening, when the Sunday school will give its program featuring a drama, "The Spirit of Christmas." On Christmas day at 4 o'clock the corps will hold a candle-lighting service sponsored by the young people under the direction of Mrs. Charles Gardella.

A Julotte service at 7 o'clock Christmas morning will open holiday observances at the Mont Clare corps, 7005 West Grand avenue. Later in the morning members of the corps' Girls' club will distribute gifts to a neighborhood children's home and to children who are ill.

On Thursday the corps musicians will go to Elgin to give a concert, and on Friday evening the group will present a musical program for the home league of its own corps. On Saturday afternoon the corps will sponsor a Christmas party for needy children of the neighborhood.

The Cragin corps, commanded by Maj. Kaleb Johnson, will give a party for neighborhood children at 7:30 o'clock on Friday evening.

ALTRUI WOMEN TO HAVE HOLIDAY PARTY THURSDAY

Mothers' Friendly Club Also Plans Fete.

Club activities are at a minimum this week as home and family Christmas fun takes precedence over club group plans. Some northwest side organizations, however, are continuing their regular meetings and programs.

Altrui Club.

The Altrui club of Jefferson Park will hold a Christmas party at the Wilson park fieldhouse at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. The younger generation will be prominent at this meeting, as children of the members, and their friends under 12 years old, will be welcomed by Santa Claus. Mrs. Louis Dehli, welfare chairman, and Mrs. Henry Diedesch, American home chairman, with their committees will have charge of the social hour.

Irving Park Woman's Club.

The drama department of the Irving Park Woman's club will hold a Christmas grab bag party and luncheon at 1 o'clock on Friday at the home of Mrs. R. R. Granquist, 3827 North Lawndale avenue.

Mothers' Friendly Club.

The Mothers' Friendly group will hold a Christmas party at 1:30 o'clock Thursday at Association house, 2150 West North avenue. A grab bag, movies, Christmas carols, and gifts distributed by Santa Claus to the children, will all brighten the program. Social hour will follow with Mrs. Florence Nelson, Mrs. Elsie Schmerr, and Mrs. Lillian Rosman as hostesses.

Betrothed

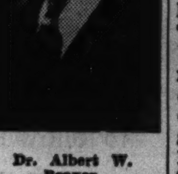
The engagement of Miss Muriel Enerson to Robert Siemers, 1060 West Ainslie street, was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Enerson, at a party given recently in their home at 3353 North Kilpatrick avenue. The couple will be married when Mr. Siemers, who is attached to the 25th division of the Illinois Naval reserve, returns from active service some time next year.

Scouts to Sing.

Boy Scout troop 97, of which Stanley R. Wisniewski is scoutmaster, will sing carols from house to house in the neighborhood of Richmond avenue and Division street on Christmas eve.

SEMINARY PRESIDENT WILL SPEAK BEFORE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Speaker, music, and decoration at Orchestra hall tonight will set off the spirit of the Christmas season. Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester Theological seminary, who will be introduced by the club's president, Clifford W. Barnes, will address the Sunday Evening club on the topic "Bombing Planes and Christmas Carols."



Dr. Albert W. Beaven.

Dr. Beaven held but one pastorate, previous to his present office, that of Lake Avenue Baptist church for 20 years. Under his leadership the membership was doubled and a church plant erected costing more than $250,000. He has served also as president of the Northern Baptist convention, the Federal Council of Churches, and the New York state council of churches. A prolific author, he is perhaps best known for his book "Fireside Talks with the Family Circle."

At the 7 o'clock informal meeting the musical feature will be the singing of carols by 100 children of the Civic Music association under the direction of Max E. Oberndorfer.

LIGHTED HOMES ENHANCE YULE HOLIDAY SCENE

Neighborhoods, Suburbs Glow This Week.

Three large trees distinguish the decorations at the W. L. Fabian residence at 906 Greenview avenue, Des Plaines. Two of these are growing there; the third large one has been placed in the center for the holiday showing. All three are effectively lighted.

Tall Candles at Door.

The doorway of the Erich H. Schalk home, 647 Parsons avenue, Des Plaines, is set back across a wide porch fronting the house, and it is on this difficult feature that the Schalks usually concentrate their Christmas decorations. Tall, lighted candles on each side of it illuminate the spray or wreath of boughs on the door. The entranceway is floodlighted, and a snow man is sometimes placed onto the porch railing. The urns on the railing are filled with boughs, and the fir trees in front of the porch are lighted.

The story of the Portage Park Christmas lighting contest is a tale of the growth of neighborliness. Three years ago, W. H. Kornbeck, 5529 Berenice avenue, started a community contest, and promoted about 20 entries. The idea took hold, however, and the next year 280 homes were entered. Many more are expected this year. Out of it, too, came the Portage Park Community club, a social group which has done much to encourage community spirit and coöperation. About 40 judges are expected to aid in the contest this year. Michael George, park supervisor, is in charge.

Coöperative Lighting.

A little extracurricular competition has developed in the Portage park area, in addition to the contest proper. Residents of the 17 homes on the south side of the 5500 block on Berenice avenue started it last year. Using one electric lighted letter to each house, they spelled out "Merry Christmas," with a dash between the words and a star at each end. This year they plan to repeat the stunt, and in addition the neighbors will gather at 8:30 o'clock on the evening of Dec. 30 to sing Christmas carols, with an accordion for music.

This block attracts much attention, but residents of the 4800 block on Cullom avenue expect to have their share of the spotlight too, for they have plans for both sides of the street. The 14 houses on the south side of the street will spell out, in red letters, "Merry Christmas," while green letters adorning the 12 north side houses will read "Happy New Year."

Winking Santa Claus.

Elaborate indeed will be the decorations at the new Phillip Keller home at 4435 North Menard avenue. Arthur Hollins designed the varied layout, which fills a 60 foot frontage. In the foreground will be a large Christmas tree decorated with stars, lights, and silver dust. A six foot Santa, with arms that move and eyes that wink, will occupy a part of the yard, and near him will be an eight room doll house, every room lighted.

Above the natural fire place which is built into the chimney at the front of the house will be a large lighted wreath with streamers, and a loudspeaker playing Christmas carols. The colonial doorway will be decorated like a Christmas package, and flanked by tall artificial candles. Colored floodlights will bathe the house in a rosy glow, and smaller lights will extend all the way to the back of the house, along the ground.

Mrs. Harry Gibbons, 5524 Grace street, one of last year's Portage park winners, plans to use about 300 lights in her outdoor decorations this year. Seven trees, two unusually large ones and five smaller, will be lighted. A soft, rosy glow will illuminate the rosebud molded handles of the porch baskets, which will be filled with pine branches.

Lights Outline House.

The whole front of the Ralph E. Bergstrom home at 5521 Grace street will be outlined in electric lights. Garlands around the door and large lighted stars placed at the peaks of the porch and the house will add to the Christmasy effect.

A silhouetted, floodlighted version of the Nativity scene will grace the front yard of the W. V. Horns, 5511 Byron street. The manger, the wise men, Mary, and other figures have all been built out of wood by Wilton Horn, a senior at Foreman High school. Lighted trees on each side, and a wreath on the door will be added.

Decorations Contest.

The Norwood Park Christmas decorations contest has been sponsored for the last four years by the community's Citizens' association, and it grew from 15 or 20 entries to more than 100 decorated residences last year. A committee of three outside judges will review the decorations between Christmas and New Year's and six cash prizes will be awarded.

Approximately 500 lights have been used in the unusually complete Christmas decorations at the residence of Richard J. Stretch, 5908 North Neva avenue. The first feature to attract attention is the lifesize presentation of the Three Wise Men of the East, mounted with their camel on the roof of the solarium at the front and side of the house. They are being guided by the lighted star mounted at the gable. Chime music from a loud speaker is a part of this scene.

The rest of the home is equally well trimmed. Green, indirect lighting illuminates the upper half of its white stucco walls, while the lower section is lighted in red. Red and green lights alternate under the eves of the lower roof. An illuminated wreath over the doorway is encircled with various colored lights. Fir trees in the yard are trimmed with deep red.

Santa and Sleigh.

Three reindeer pulling Santa Claus and his sleigh, all life size, form a "Night Before Christmas" scene at the Chandler O. Voorhees residence, 5702 Newark avenue. Santa's pack on his back is filled with toys, and the whole is mounted and floodlighted on the upper deck of the house. The circle top on the doorway below is also illuminated, and new evergreens at the base of the house will add their Christmas touch.

The Itasca Garden club is sponsoring a Christmas decoration contest for the first time, with both day and night classes for the trimming of windows, doors and trees, and a separate classification for displays made by children. The ribbon awards will be given next Friday.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wagner is decorated and floodlighted in yuletide tradition. The trellises on either side of the porch are trimmed with evergreen boughs, Christmas birds and blue lights. The nearby wren house is lighted and decorated in holly. Thru the big, bay window a Christmas tree may be seen.

Red Candles Under Arch.

Two huge red candles under an arch of lighted evergreen and red ruscus shed their light on the steps of the Louis Stolley family porch. A "Welcome" is formed on the front door by a charm string of pine cones, sleigh bells and evergreens.

Old Saint Nicholas, with his pack on his back, is on his way down the chimney of the Robert Slater home. The doorway and its surrounding shrubs are lighted in holiday fashion.

The J. W. Schippmanns wish their neighbors the "Season's Greetings" in large, bright red letters flanking the entrance of their home. A life size Santa Claus is mounted on the roof.

Planning Good Fellow Carols

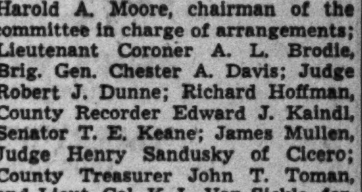
The part to be played by the Steinmetz High school choirs in the Good Fellow carol broadcast over station W-G-N tomorrow afternoon from 3:45 to 4 o'clock is being discussed by Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago public schools, and Willard L. Groom and Mrs. Harriet Calverley, choral conductors at Steinmetz, one of the schools participating in the program. It will be held in the court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studios.

OFFER MILITARY DANCE IN NEW GUARD ARMORY

The newly dedicated Northwest armory at Kedzie and North avenues will be the scene of the farewell military ball for the 108th Quartermaster Regiment of the Illinois National Guard Saturday evening.

In addition to the dance program starting at 8:30 o'clock, the regiment will present a military pageant and regimental review for the public. Col. Richard Smykal commands the regiment.

Sponsors for the event include Col. Harold A. Moore, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements; Lieutenant Coroner A. L. Brodie, Brig. Gen. Chester A. Davis; Judge Robert J. Dunne; Richard Hoffman, County Recorder Edward J. Kaindl, Senator T. E. Keane; James Mullen, Judge Henry Sandusky of Cicero; County Treasurer John T. Toman, and Lieut. Col. K. L. Van Sickle, former executive officer of the regiment.



Glare ice on the northwestern horse trails, which has made going difficut and chancy for all but the sharpest shod and surest footed mounts, has almost disappeared, thanks to recent melting temperatures. Experienced horsemen expressed the belief that similar conditions will not return this winter. They expect sound footing until the spring thaws, with perhaps some trouble from soft snow, which balls up in hooves unless the horse is equipped with special snow pads.

One of the newest of the private stables in northwestern Chicagoland is that of Tex Harris and Carl Kosel on Palatine road a mile west of Milwaukee avenue. Here are stabled Tex's tiny trick horse, his two midget mules, and his string of saddle mounts.

Carlos A. Wallach, 4243 North Kedvale avenue, has just added his name to the growing list of Chicagoans who like riding so well they have bought their own horses. His new mount, stabled at Andy Nemeth's Cumberland academy, is Arlett-Winter, a registered bay mare.

Regular Sunday afternoon riders at the Fairview ranch on Lawrence avenue include George, Ben, and Ruth Sorvillo of Melrose Park, Ed Cook of 4841 Carmen avenue, and Robert and William Kristenal of 922 Pratt boulevard. George Sorvillo and the Kristenals own their own horses. Usually the six ride for two hours or more, and then entertain fellow riders in the ranch clubroom with impromptu singing.

Friends of Ray Wendt and Leona Kanney, riders from the Valley Green stables on East River road in Des Plaines, are congratulating them on their newly announced engagement.

Teacher Betrothed

The engagement of Ruth Elizabeth John, a teacher at Woodstock Community High school, to Clare Philip Hafel of Springfield has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William John of Lincoln, Neb. Miss John is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, and Mr. Hafel, a manufacturing executive, attended Notre Dame.

CHRISTMAS NOTE ON CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Two Yule Songs.

A program of familiar music blended with Christmas favorites will be presented on the new Chicagoland Concert hour tomorrow evening. Two Yuletide solos by Marion Claire will feature the concert, which will be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Michael Wilkomirski, W-G-N concertmeister, will be the instrumental soloist.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker of the evening. Col. McCormick has announced that his weekly talks will be devoted principally to vital, close at hand topics, to "things which we all want to have accomplished but which we have not yet found means of achieving."

Two Holiday Songs.

For her two holiday season solos, Miss Claire will sing "Hail Ye Tyme of Holliedayes" and "Away in a Manger." Miss Claire also will join the augmented chorus in presenting the waltz from Oscar Straus' "Waltz Dream." Wilkomirski will play Schumann's "Traumerei."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the Symphony orchestra in presentations of Straus' "Emperor Waltz," Mozart's "Minuet in G Minor" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor."

MARVIN MUELLER IS PETER QUILL, SANTA CLAUS, TOO

Marvin Mueller is an all-round handyman in radio studios. He's an actor, announcer, writer, producer, all in one. Mueller works for all three major networks in Chicago, but ample indication of his many-sided abilities is to be found in a compilation of the shows he does each week for W-G-N.

Marvin Mueller. [Seymour Photo.]

Five afternoons a week he is radio Santa Claus for a department store show on W-G-N. Mueller writes this show as well as playing Santa.

On Sunday afternoon, Mueller reverses personality and steps into the rôle of the bizarre genius of the scientific laboratories on the Peter Quill show. Tuesday nights Mueller is the quick witted, wise cracking master of ceremonies on the Musical Monikers novelty quiz show.

For five weeks he was the commentator for the Chicago Opera broadcasts. Each Thursday he is commentator for the Chicago Symphony orchestra broadcasts on W-G-N.

He is also a member of the group of actors who perform regularly on the In Chicago Tonight programs on Thursdays, and the Saturday Chicago Theater of the Air programs produced by William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of production.

Added to this full time day he puts in for W-G-N are shows on both NBC and CBS. His parts on the other networks range from master of ceremonies on the Quiz Kids show to the romantic lead in the Helen Trent serial.

Sistine Chapel Choir to Broadcast on CBS Today

Arrangements have been completed for the famed Sistine Chapel choir of St. Peter's church in Vatican City to take part in the second annual Christmas caravan with a special religious program of music at 11 a. m. today over WBBM-CBS during the time usually allotted to Columbia's "Church of the Air."

STEELMAKERS TO ADD 40 MUTUAL STATIONS JAN. 5

Employe Talent Show Will Have 91 Outlets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

On Nov. 8, 1937, a small station in Wheeling, W. Va., put on a new program, called Musical Steelmakers. Heralded by a mill whistle this new show featured amateur talent recruited entirely from the ranks of employés of the Wheeling Steel company and members of their families.

The next year Musical Steelmakers expanded to a four station Mutual network, with W-G-N as one of them. This fall the number of stations reached 51.

On Jan. 5, 1941, the mill whistle of the Musical Steelmakers will be heard over 40 additional Mutual stations—bringing the show's regular network to 91 stations.

How It Got Started.

The program got its start when John L. Grimes, executive of the company, discovered that the Welsh, Italian, and Polish stock in Wheeling bought more musical instruments, played more and better music per capita than in any other town in the United States.

Grimes encouraged the development of company entertainment groups; then fathered the first Musical Steelmakers broadcast which headlined employé-family talent. The program grew up in the midst of a wave of amateur shows, but unlike many of these it took permanent root and grew as they went into a decline.

Several of the performers of the first broadcast are still with the Musical Steelmakers of today. Tommy Whitley, who began as saxophonist in the band, is now leader of the orchestra. The Old Timer, popular master of ceremonies who regales listeners with his Scottish twang, also is among the faithful performers who have been on the show since its inception.

Typical Program Today.

Typical of the Musical Steelmakers shows will be the one to be broadcast at 4 p. m. today. From Beech Bottom, W. Va., seven girls will come to the stage of the Capitol theater in Wheeling to headline the broadcast with a holiday inspired presentation of "The Birthday of a King." The youngsters—Erma Maley, Shirley Lee, Martha Lydick, Ina Clair de Nichols, Marjorie Kull, Marjorie Wallace, and Shirley Stuck—all are children of employés.

As her Christmas contribution, Dorothy Ann Crowe will present "O, Little Town of Bethlehem." Whitley and the orchestra will add to the holiday spirit with "Siberian Sleigh Ride."

SOLDIERS TO AIR CHURCH SERVICE ON W-G-N TODAY

A van of trucks from Fort Sheridan and a fleet of military cars from Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., will roll up to W-G-N's studios this morning to unload United States army soldiers and airmen who will participate in a unique Chicagoland Church hour. The special services, under the direction of Roland B. Bach, assistant chaplain of the 6th corps area, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 a. m. over W-G-N.

The Chanute Wing chorus, a group of 25 aviators, will sing camp songs. The Fort Sheridan chorus of 25 voices, under the direction of Prof. Carl Carlstedt, also will sing on the program.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel will extend Christmas greetings to camps thruout the 6th corps area which extends over Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The caravan of Fort Sheridan trucks will be accompanied by a motorcycle escort in order to speed up the return trip, for the chorus is scheduled for a camp program an hour after the W-G-N broadcast.

The Chicagoland Church hour is a regular Sunday morning feature on which city churches of all denominations are invited to broadcast. The series is under the direction of Dr. John Evans, religion editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

'THE NEW MOON' NEXT OPERETTA IN AIR THEATER

Miss Claire, Thibault to Be Starred.

Next Saturday's presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air will bring Sigmund Romberg's operetta "The New Moon" to W-G-N and Mutual listeners from 9 to 10 p. m. "The New Moon" is the third operetta by Sigmund Romberg to be produced by the Theater of the Air this season.

Two radio favorites, Marion Claire and Conrad Thibault, will star in the leading rôles. Miss Claire is one of the best known sopranos in the light opera field.

Thibault, who has supported Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King" and "Rio Rita" in this season's Theater of the Air productions, has gained fame in recent years as a radio baritone. He studied in New York and Philadelphia, making his debut with the Philadelphia Grand Opera company and later singing leading rôles in the Chicago and San Francisco companies.

The W-G-N concert orchestra and augmented chorus will be conducted by Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company. The entire operetta is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N.

Quin Ryan Marks 18th Year in Broadcasting

Quin Ryan celebrated his 18th year in radio last week with the expansion of his evening news program from 8 minutes to 15 minutes. His sponsor found the first year of radio advertising so successful that it has taken an additional seven minutes, formerly devoted to Tomorrow's Tribune. Ryan's newscast is now heard at 8:15 p. m. every day except Saturday. His news commentary on all week-day mornings at 11:15 has also been renewed by its two sponsors. Quin has spent 17 of his 18 "radio years" with W-G-N. The broadcaster entered the young radio field in the fall of 1923, when he wrote a weekly humorous show comprising all of the acts and orchestras at the Balaban & Katz Chicago theater for presentation over station WMAQ.

Jan Peerce on Air.

Jan Peerce, tenor, will be featured as soloist in a presentation of Kodaly's "Psalms Hungaricus" during the Radio City Music Hall on the Air broadcast at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL. Erno Rapee will conduct the orchestra in Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor.

ANNA NEAGLE IN 'NO, NO, NANETTE' ON CHICAGO HOUR

Movie's Radio Premiere on W-G-N Thursday.

Anna Neagle, distinguished British actress, will make her second appearance of the year in W-G-N's main studio next Thursday evening when the radio première of her newest musical picture, R-K-O's "No, No, Nanette," will be presented on In Chicago Tonight. The picture will open at the Palace theater Christmas eve.

Last spring Miss Neagle came to Chicago and was starred in a radio adaptation of her picture, "Irene," which was an exclusive feature of W-G-N and the Mutual network. The radio version of "No, No, Nannette" will be presented from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

All-Star Cast with Her.

An all-star cast of Chicago radio actors will be featured with Miss Neagle. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will provide the lively musical back drop required for this musical show.

When Miss Neagle came to America two years ago, she was asked by Hollywood producers to make herself known to American audiences. She followed this advice with customary energy and traveled a total of 46,000 miles by air making personal appearances.

Makes Two Musicals.

Into nearly every state in the nation Anna Neagle followed her first American film, "Nurse Edith Cavell," to appear before the audiences that acclaimed her work on the screen. As Anna Neagle, herself, the versatile British girl was even more enthusiastically received.

As a result of her air junkets to meet America in person, the public clamored to see Anna Neagle as her singing, dancing, personable self in a movie. "Irene" and "No, No Nanette" were the results of this demand.

Poet Priest to Be Guest of Farm and Home Hour

Rev. Francis C. Young, nationally known poet priest, pastor of St. Juliana parish, Oceola and Touhy avenues, Chicago, will be heard in his 13th annual Christmas broadcast, which is known as "Father Young and His Christmas Carols and Poems," over a coast to coast NBC network at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday. He will make a guest appearance on the National Farm and Home hour.

Rabbi to Speak.

Rabbi Israel H. Weisfeld, spiritual leader of the West Suburban Jewish center, will speak at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon over station WJJD. His topic will be "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself."

BASEMENT ROOM IS BENEFIT TO ENTIRE FAMILY

Heavy Duty Floor Helps in Practicality.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Does a basement game room and recreation retreat pay its way?

We'll say so—where a recreation room is definitely slanted to serve all the family.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Milliner, 1216 William street, River Forest, there is just such a room. It possesses those assets which contribute to its popularity and success. It is all things to all the family, an extra room which relieves the living room above from need to serve as study, dance floor, game room, and parlor.

There is crying need for such space in many homes not palatial in size. Where people are heard to say: "We had our basement all fixed up and after our first housewarming party, no one uses it," the fact is often revealed that it is very nicely furnished indeed, but not abounding in homey provisions for mixed ages, and the use of various family members.

Floor for Dancing.

There was no economy of ideas in the finishing of Mr. Milliner's basement recreation room.

Because a dance floor could be used, Mr. Milliner had the floor covered with a heavy composition material, impregnated with asphalt. This is a type of floor often seen on sun-decks in recently built or remodeled homes. It will take a great deal of hard wear. It is dark green and varnished and waxed for dancing.

Because a quiet room was desired and because there was a certain dampness in the air on occasions, the outer walls were furred before putting on the plank type wall finish, in natural light shade, and sound absorbing tile ceiling was installed. There is a large brick fireplace, and the furnishings are informal and appropriate to the family use of the room.

Space for Extra Room.

Some new homes will be built next year without basements, and with utility room and storage space on the first floor. Other homes will be built with what we call a half basement, a shallow space about half the depth of the usual basement, large enough to house the home heating plant and with room besides for some storage area.

However, conventional size basements will appear in the greater number of homes with opportunity below "deck" for heating and laundry facilities, generous supply of storage room for household tools and yard equipment, and then some space besides for an extra room, if desired, at time of building or later.

Such an extra room—a playroom for stormy days, a recreation and game room for people of different ages and tastes—justifies the expense of finishing it. There is common sense back of its appearance on the family scene.

Stairs Should Be Safe.

Take a room of average size, and the larger the better if the family is a growing one, and the chances are the windows are average size, or should be. And the stairs should be safe and well lighted, and provided with a rail.

There are wall boards and insulating boards which can be left in their natural finish, and the trim can be inexpensive and painted. Or it can be of some hard type board which isn't expensive and yet has a nice rich look. If such games as pingpong are to be played it is well to play safe and keep the lights flush with the ceiling.

If there are young children, a side of a wall can be given over to them, with a play table which opens out when they want to use it and then drops against the wall when their bedtime arrives and other family members take possession. Wall cupboards are valuable for storage purposes.

Bar with Outlets.

A snack or counter refreshment bar at one end of the room is a big drawing card. It can have a plug-in strip at the back for electric percolator, toaster, etc. A shelf overhead can hold decorative dishes and glassware, and a cupboard underneath can accommodate food staples, linens, silver and other needed "kitchenette" accessories.

Or if there is some one in a family with a special hobby, and precious little room in the house proper to indulge it, then some corner of such finished space can probably be found to solve THAT problem.

Holiday Harmonizers

The Steele Sisters get their heads together for a little close harmony in loveliness. It's the same effect when they blend their voices in a little close harmony over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 4 to 4:30 p. m. each Sunday. The girls are featured on the Musical Steelmakers show. Left to right, they are Lucille Bell, Harriett Drake, and Lois Mae Nolte.

STUDENTS MERGE TALENTS IN AN ART CALENDAR

62 Wood Cuts Used for Illustrations.

The first joint project of all Chicago high school art departments was published last week in the form of an engagement calender illustrated with 62 woodcuts made by students in the various schools.

Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art for the schools, was in charge of assembling the material, and said that the first edition of 2,500 was already sold and that a second printing of 1,000 had been contracted for.

The four district art supervisors also helped in the work. They are Miss Jane Palczynski, Mrs. Ellen Link, Miss Mabel Williams, and Miss Agnes Fenerty.

In a general way the subject matter of each woodcut follows the season in which it is used. In the summer pages there are farm scenes, scarecrows, swimming, and other pastimes. In December there are Christmas designs, and during the school months pictures of student activities. The scene for the first week in September, the opening of school, portrays a boy in jail.

Makes Cover Design.

The cover design, a picture of a farm yard, was done by Theodore Frano of Von Steuben High school.

School representatives who made wood cuts for the calendar are:

Harper: Ann Regin, Betty Lantry, Freeman Elliott, Jean Baltusnik; Hyde Park: Virginia Walker; Lindblom: Florence Baim; Phillips: Doris Sigmon; Parker: Elizabeth Hegin.

Kelly: Stanley Kazdailis; DuSable: Amelia Stewart, Lilford Starcks, James Cadell; Calumet: Shirley Meyer, Jeanette Loring, Loren Fry, Moynette Berglund, Marian Ogren; Hirsch: Ethel Erickson, Ruth Holman, Jeanne Fletcher, Adele Deam.

Other Student Artists.

Lane: D. Kolends, Frank Fritzmann, Norman Harris. Lake View: Margaret Camardo, Lorraine Gross. Sullivan: Peggie Kirsten.

Farragut: Ray Henning. Manley: Eleanor Sughero, Beatrice Starr, Helen Patt. Flower: Evelyn Snoka, Evelyn Kalita. Marshall: James Angarola.

De Soto Isabellans to Play Santa Claus to Orphans

De Soto council, Ladies of Isabella, has placed an order for skates, cameras, and other toys with Santa Claus and he will deliver them in person at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Angel Guardian orphanage, 2001 Devon avenue. Each child also will receive a stocking filled with nuts, fruit, and candy.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 23.

Dip the ends of cut poinsettia stems in boiling water or sear over a flame. It does no good to use chemicals altho one or two will preserve the flowers for a day or so, but no longer. Under ordinary conditions most cut flowers will keep with only an inch or two of water. Experiment with the use of chemicals, the amount of water to use, temperature, etc.

Growing plants without soil or in water and chemicals offers opportunity to try the new method and compare it with plants growing in soil. Soil, at best, simply holds the plant in place, anchors it securely, but the food must be taken up when it is in solution. Soils are often deficient in food elements and these must be supplied.

The difficulty when growing plants in rooms is usually a lack of light or sun, hot, dry atmosphere, a stuffy condition, a lack of knowledge of how and when to water, and often starvation.

Tuesday, Dec. 24.

Sometimes a leaky gas jet or stove will cause plant leaves to drop. The Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers are susceptible to gas. Keep the soil moist for dry soil also causes leaves to wither.

About the only way to get rid of poison ivy is to dig it out bodily and burn it. Keep away from the smoke when it is burning.

If young trees have not been protected against the attacks of rodents, protect them without delay. Tar paper, small meshed screening, or other material can be used. Mulch bulb beds if it has not been done.

Wednesday, Dec. 25.

Cuttings of rose stems can be used for propagating purposes. Cut just below a leaf or node, leaving one leaf above. Place the cuttings in a box of sand or sandy soil and cover with glass. Water well the first time and sprinkle sufficiently to keep moist. Shade for a few days, but remove at night. Pot when rooted. In spring, plant out in the garden.

Cuttings also can be made of the favorite chrysanthemum if large specimen blooms are wanted. For cutting material, use the growths that come from around the base, cut back the leaves to avoid excessive transpiration, place in sand, and carry on when rooted.

Cuttings can be made as late as early June if small pot plants are desired. These make nice plants for table use.

Thursday, Dec. 26.

Look over your plants; see that they are well watered and have good light conditions. The terrarium may need a bit of air to keep out excessive moisture. Keep the poinsettia plant at about 60 degrees and never permit it to be subjected to draughts, or the leaves will turn yellow and drop.

It hardly pays to keep the plant over for another season, but one may attempt it as an experiment. After flowering, let it rest by withholding water; the leaves will fall and the stems look like dead sticks.

Set pot and plant in basement until spring when it can be cut back, repotted in good soil, and plunged in a sunny spot in the garden. Cuttings can be made of the young growths that appear along the stems.

Friday, Dec. 27.

Keep the window boxes filled with evergreens watered. Mulch rhododendrons with about six inches of leaves. It is a good plant to make a new cut at the end of the Christmas tree and stand in a bucket of sand saturated with a 10 per cent sugar solution. This will preserve the needles and keep them from falling.

Do not topdress lawns with stable manure because weed seeds may be introduced. A heavy application will likely kill the grass.

Use little, if any, fertilizer to house plants on dull days. Use a complete plant food when the plants are in active growth. Commercial foods are best and especially where organic manures cannot be had or are difficult to obtain.

Saturday, Dec. 28.

An aquarium in the home will interest every member of the family. Success depends on maintaining a proper balance between the fish and the plant life. Stock the aquarium with fish and water loving plants in such proportion that each will supply the needs of the other.

Cover the bottom with coarse sand; an inch layer will suffice. Plant in it a collection of plants like the vallisneria, sagittaria, cabomba, parrot's feather, or any other that is obtainable.

Scavengers may be added, such as fresh water snails, tadpoles; a single snail and two tadpoles will be enough for each gallon of water.

AWAIT SANTA IN WEST SIDE HOMES

COURT UPHOLDS HINSDALE GIFT PROPERTY SALE

Village May Retain Lot Proceeds.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

A decision of the Illinois Supreme court, affirming one handed down in Du Page County court, gives the village of Hinsdale title to five lots deeded to the village for library purposes by Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons. The Supreme court ruling held that neither the Chicago Congregational union nor the heirs of Dr. Pearsons has any interest in proceeds of the sale of the lots.

The original action was brought by Charles L. Cobb, attorney for the village and the public library, in order to clear title to the property.

Shortly before his death, Dr. Pearsons, a resident of Hinsdale, gave the block of land in which his home was located to the village in trust. One of the lots was to be used for the site of a library and the others were to be sold to provide funds for erection and maintenance of a library building.

Not Centrally Located.

The block, bounded on the north by Walnut street, on the east by Grant street, on the south by Maple street, and on the west by Vine street, was not a central location in the village.

The lots were sold from time to time until, in 1925, a fund of $25,000 was accumulated. The question arose among the trustees whether to use the fund for a library building on the lot 19, designated as the site, or use it for library purposes in connection with the Hinsdale Memorial building, erected at a cost of $175,000.

The fund was held until 1935 when the court was asked for instructions. Could the fund be used in connection with the library in the memorial building rather than for a building on lot 19? It was felt that lot 19, not being centrally located, was less suitable for a site. Attorney Cobb brought the suit seeking instructions to use the fund for library purposes in the memorial building.

Society Sought Proceeds.

Named as parties to the suit were heirs of D. K. Pearsons and the Chicago Congregational union, the latter as the City Missionary society having been named in the deed under the provision that if the village should not use lot 19 for library purposes it should go to the society. The society had made the contention that not only lot 19 but funds realized from the rest of the property go to the society if lot 19 were not used for library purposes.

Contention also was made that due to delayed performance on the part of the village intent of the gift had been lost. The Pearsons heirs, grandnephews and nieces, made the same contention concerning delay.

The lower court held that delay had not forfeited the gift. The village of Hinsdale must now decide within six months, however, whether to use lot 19 for the site of a library or have the building lot go to the Congregational union.

Gave Away Fortune.

Dr. Pearsons died in Hinsdale at the age of 93 after having given away between 6 and 7 million dollars to small schools and colleges thruout the United States, with Berea college, in Kentucky, as his favorite. He missed on his prophecy that he would live to be 100, but he consummated a fervent wish that he die penniless.

Born on a farm near Bradford, Vt., Dr. Pearsons labored until he was able to attend Dartmouth college. Still pressed for funds, he studied medicine for a time. He came west to Janesville, Wis., with the determination to get rich and give all he could to colleges.

Dr. Pearsons made a fortune in the buying and selling of timber lands. Then he made a careful study of deserving colleges. He is quoted as saying, "I know what money means and I know how hard it is to get."

Speaking of his endowments, he said, "I have imposed conditions that made every cent do some good. I prefer antemortem investments to postmortem gambles."

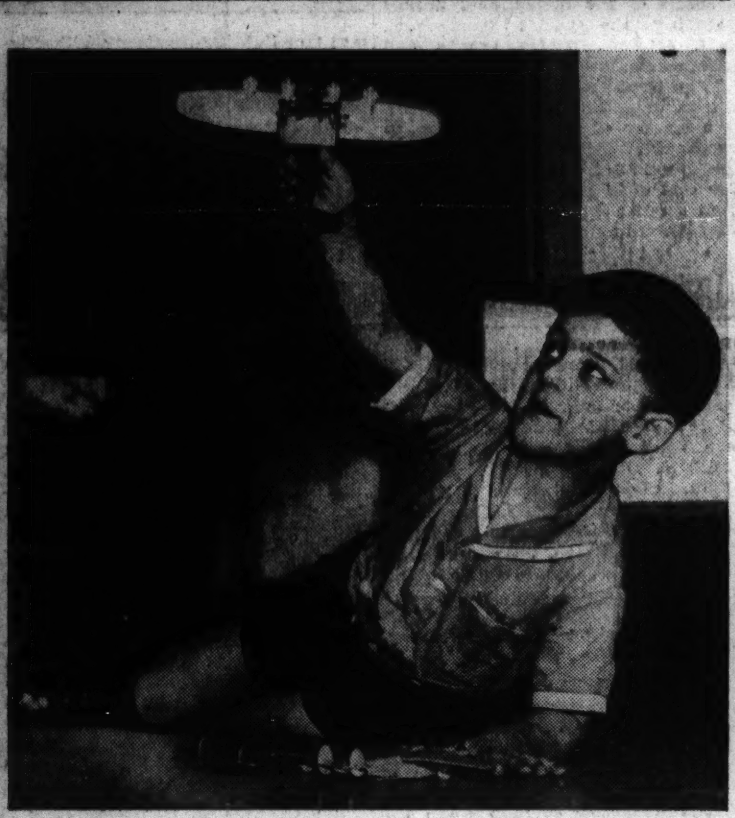
LEGION GROUP TO ENTERTAIN 350 CHILDREN

Santa Claus will distribute gifts to children from a 15 foot Christmas tree at the party given this afternoon by Yarmo De Vere post of the American Legion in Franklin park, 4300 West 14th street. Paul J. Harper, chairman, has arranged a program for the 350 community youngsters expected to attend that will include vaudeville, singing, and a drill by the Sons of the American Legion. Refreshments will be served by the auxiliary and junior auxiliary.

Cuyler Ave. Church Choir Will Sing 'The Messiah'

The choir of the Cuyler Avenue Methodist church will sing Handel's "Messiah" this evening in the church auditorium, Cuyler avenue and Ontario street, Oak Park. The program will begin at 7:45 o'clock under the direction of Paul Vernon. The soloists are Miss Inez Strone, soprano; Mrs. Esther Ament, contralto; Harold Townsend, tenor, and Howard Buchner, bass.

Preview of Christmas Portrayed in Hull House Playrooms



Four children at Hull House enact four Christmas morning expressions. This is what hundreds of thousands of airplanes and fire engines and baby doll cribs will do to the faces of hundreds of thousands of boys and girls. This scene in the Hull House playrooms is a preview of what will happen Wednesday morning in cities and country towns, in apartments or mansions wherever there is a boy or girl who knows about Christmas. Phyllis de Salvo and Janet Orseno do a bit of housekeeping with a baby doll and a tea set. David Narro is a young construction engineer and fireman combined with a bevy of trucks at his command. Marco Orseno shows what a little boy will do who gets an airplane, for his arm is the power that makes it fly.

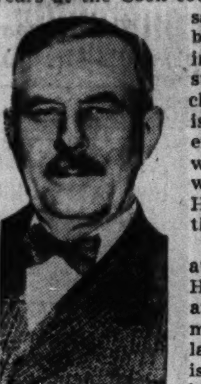
Happy in Jail for 40 Years— as a Gardener

Bernard Prasil recently ended 40 years at the Cook county jail and he says they have been the happiest in his life. He stayed thru eight changes of administration and first entered its high walls when it was called the House of Correction.



Bernard Prasil. [Boudnek Photo.]

Mr. Prasil lives at 3052 South Harding avenue and has had a motto for these last 40 years. It is — "Make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before."

Mr. Prasil has had what some would call a hard job. As head gardener and supervisor of grounds at the House of Correction and then at the new county jail, he has had more than 20,000 men, all called "tough guys" and convicted of some crime, spading and weeding in his flower beds. He says he never had an hour's trouble.

Took Job in 1900.

In 1900 Mr. Prasil, an educated man from Czecho-Slovakia with an honor record in professional schools at Nuremburg, Germany, started to work for the city of Chicago as gardener. He was assigned to the grounds of the House of Correction at 26th street and California, where he found three flower beds. Inside the walls of the institution there wasn't a blade of grass. There was only black cinders and grayness from earth to sky.

By 1921 Mr. Prasil had employed 10,000 of the prisoners in a "life and grounds beautiful" program. He had 47 flower beds, some 30 feet in diameter, worked out in various designs. He had 46 ornamental cement flower vases and 10 acres of lawn.

Men who had been thieves and had committed manslaughter looked after the 15,000 geraniums, cannas, salvias, petunias, and vines with tender care. A miniature lake reflected low hanging branches and brilliant flowers nodded over the water from the edge of the lawn. In the winter the pond furnished the institution's ice supply.

Has Two Greenhouses.

Two greenhouses in winter were the storage places not only for this institution's greenery but that from the city hall window boxes and the city hospitals.

In the spring aged prisoners who said they had nothing to live for waited anxiously for the first bud.

Mr. Prasil has expressed himself in flowers at the German Old People's home. He was gardener, too, for the Bohemian National cemetery, and when he first came to this country he worked on a private estate in Missouri. Before he emigrated to America in 1891 he served as an apprentice in horticulture for royalty.

Has Five Children.

His wife died four years ago, just two years after they had celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary. His sons are James, Edward, and George Prasil. The daughters are Mrs. Antoinette Slanec and Miss Anna Prasil.

On Dec. 4 Mr. Prasil, known thru the west area for his kindliness, sat down to dinner with his colleagues of the House of Correction.

And because he had worked, some 20,000 men doomed to cells and gray walls had walked in a garden.

PARK PETITION BALKS NEW BUS LINE OVER TWO CENTS A MILE FEE

Indefinite postponement of bus service on Homan and Kimball avenues, which was to have started last week, is seen as a result of an intervening petition filed before the Illinois Commerce commission by the Chicago park district in which it asserts its right to collect a fee for use of its streets by buses. The petition will be heard on Friday.

The proposed route would mean use of about one-third of a mile of park roadway on Homan boulevard between Madison and Lake streets. The complete service as ordered by the commerce commission last September runs from 31st street north to Wrightwood avenue, and has long been advocated by merchants of the neighborhood, led by Milton Friend of Logan square, State Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe, and Attorney Charles V. Falkenberg.

The park district is seeking to collect a fee of two cents per bus mile traveled over these three blocks, which the Chicago Surface lines, operator of the buses, say would amount to $2,000 a year. After this demand was made the surface lines, on Dec. 10, asked that the case be reopened and that a ruling prohibit the park district from collecting a fee.

It was also pointed out that no new buses could be obtained in time for opening of service last week.

The park district reply, in the form of the intervening petition, has been prepared by Philip A. Lozowick, first assistant general attorney for the park.

"The use of buses," Lozowick said, "deteriorates the streets rapidly due to their great weight. We have never allowed trucks on park roads, and to my knowledge we have never permitted bus operation without payment, and we now receive about $300,000 a year from this source. If it were cut off, the money would have to be obtained from additional taxes."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

GOUNOD'S "Ave Maria," was sung on a recent broadcast of the Novena in honor of Our Sorrowful Mother by Mary Jane Lavin, soprano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Lavin, 160 North Laramie avenue.

Miss Lavin is a graduate of St. Catherine of Siena High School and is a soloist at St. Thomas Aquinas church and on the Irish raido hour every Sunday evening. After her high school work, Miss Lavin was presented with a partial scholarship in voice from the Chicago Musical college and a complete scholarship from Mundelein college.

Miss Mary Lavin.

Two west side girls, students at the Institute of Modern business, will begin distributing dolls to needy children tomorrow in time for Christmas. The girls are Nancy Mae Bradfield, 676 North Mayfield avenue, and Barbara Kristof, 330 Neva avenue. Scores of dolls and dozens of extra sets of dresses were prepared by the girls during the recess periods at the Institute during recent months.

The junior choir of Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran church, Kenilworth and St. Charles road, Elmhurst, will present a sacred Christmas concert with candle light service at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Miss Corinna M. Kull, director, will be assisted by Miss Astrid Mattson, soprano, and Mrs. Elis Eurholmas, organist.

CHARLES Miller retains the record of 614 pins for the individual three game series high mark in the Sears Y. M. C. A. Foremen's Council Bowling league. Eight teams are represented on Wednesday nights at the Madison Athletic club. American Decalcomania company, American Forge and Taylor Forge and Pipe works are running a close race for league honors. Taylor Forge holds the record of 955 pins for the high mark in a single game.

For the eighth consecutive year, Mrs. Russell Corya, 3030 South Wisconsin avenue, Berwyn, has a display at her home of "The Nativity" scene. In Mrs. Corya's memory book are the signatures of persons as far away as England and Australia who have viewed the scene. Something new is added each year. This year a microphone is being instaled for the broadcast of Christmas carols.

CANTEEN Corps of the Hinsdale Red Cross is the only unit of its kind outside Chicago chapter headquarters. Those completing the food and nutrition course in Hinsdale are Mrs. James Craig, Mrs. Dorothy Allbight, Mrs. Ben Beale, Mrs. Paul Butler, Mrs. B. H. Doble, Mrs. A. G. Dugan, Mrs. John E. Eddy, Mrs. James Hannah, Mrs. J. J. Hasbrook, Mrs. William W. Kimball, Mrs. Torben C. Klenz, Mrs. Anson Mark, Mrs. Elliott McIntire, Mrs. Harold Meyers, Mrs. Thophilus Noel II, Mrs. Harold E. Pridmore, Mrs. T. H. Rider, Mrs. Lyell H. Ritchie, Mrs. Paul Robinson, Mrs. Steven Roby, Mrs. Charles Thayer, Mrs. David V. Thomas, Mrs. Clement C. Thompson, Mrs. Norris E. Wililamson, and Mrs. Albert A. Yort. Mrs. J. L. Vollintine, organized the corps.

Maywood Baha'i center, 507 Main street, will present a candlelight service at 3 o'clock this afternoon under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Moffett. Admittance will be free.

SEMINARY PRESIDENT WILL SPEAK BEFORE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Speaker, music, and decoration at Orchestra hall tonight will set off the spirit of the Christmas season. Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester Theological seminary, who will be introduced by the club's president, Clifford W. Barnes, will address the Sunday Evening club on the topic "Bombing Planes and Christmas Carols."

Dr. Albert W. Beaven.

Dr. Beaven held but one pastorate, previous to his present office, that of Lake Avenue Baptist church for 20 years. Under his leadership the membership was doubled and a church plant erected costing more than $250,000. He has served also as president of the Northern Baptist convention, the Federal Council of Churches, and the New York state council of churches. A prolific author, he is perhaps best known for his book "Fireside Talks with the Family Circle."

At the 7 o'clock informal meeting the musical feature will be the singing of carols by 100 children of the Civic Music association under the direction of Max E. Oberndorfer.

Alumni Dance.

Students Join in Good Fellow Sing Tomorrow

Hundreds of students from six Chicago High schools and one junior college will join voices tomorrow afternoon in the fifth annual Good Fellow Carol Sing. The program of Christmas music will be given in the court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio from 3:45 to 4:15 o'clock. The first 15 minutes of the program will be broadcast over W-G-N.

School musical organizations taking part include mixed choruses from Lindblom, Hirsch, Senn, Waller, and Steinmetz High schools and Wright Junior college. From Farragut High school will be boys' and girls' choruses, and Austin will be represented by its boys' and girls' glee clubs and senior and junior choirs. The sing will be presented thru the coöperation of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago public schools.

Carols on Program.

Carols to be sung include the favorites of the Christmas season. They are: "Silent Night," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," "Joy to the World," "Deck the Halls," "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," "The First Noel," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "Here We Come A-Caroling."

Each school group will be under the immediate supervision of its musical directors. The directors are: Austin, Hazel E. Lloyd, Marion McDonaugh, and Edna Pohlmann; Farragut, Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson; Hirsch, Helena L. Kane; Lindblom, Joseph R. Taylor; Senn, Dr. Samuel Burkholder; Steinmetz, Harriet Calverley and Willard L. Groom; Waller, Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, and Wright Junior college, Erhardt Bergstrasser.

FEASTS, CAROLS, WORSHIP WILL MARK YULETIDE

Old Customs Are to Be Observed.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Homes on the west side are filled with expectation, mistletoe, packages, and holly wreaths. Housewives are critically eyeing the turkey in the market place or testing the tenderness of the goose.

It's the old fashioned way, the tradition of Christmas that is causing the bustling in the kitchen and the attendance at churches. How will the west side cling to the traditions of Christmas? What will the man do who lives in a house in La Grange or has an apartment on Austin boulevard?

There is the matter of Christmas carols that people are singing in the crisp cold night, in furred hoods or tassel cap. The very first carol, some authorities say, may be traced to St. Francis of Assisi who made a crib resembling the manger bed of the Christ child around which he and his brethern knelt while they sang. And over at St. Francis Assisi church at 3 o'clock today carols will be sung.

The church, located at 1206 South Newberry avenue, will be host to the South Side Catholic choir. They will sing "Silent Night" in addition to the "Mass in F" by Loesch, directed by Prof. Mathew Schleder. Some of the soloists will be Mary Tobin, Dorothy Shyfault, Ann Lamberty, Marie Molengraft, Irene Connelly, Marcelline Lenon, William Lundy, and James Cunningham.

Follow St. Nicholas.

Out of Asia Minor long ago came the initial gift giver. St. Nicholas, a bishop of the old Greek church, was the saint who returned year after year, wearing his bishop's robes, his mitre on his head and his crozier in his hand.

He spoke kindly to good children and promised to return the next morning loaded with gifts. The west side women who follow in the footsteps of St. Nicholas are the members of the Sixth district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Led by Mrs. John C. Biemeck last week the women purchased a gross of tiny automobiles and a gross of rattles for babies and took them over to the Cook County Children's hospital. The children were given a program in the sun room. Mrs. Edward Randa, president of the Cicero Woman's club, and the 300 club members furnished the ice cream and cake for the party.

Mrs. William Welker, superintendent of the hospital, says the automobiles will be in the bag of toys at the foot of each little patient's bed this whole year. When he goes home, he takes the toys with him.

Four Plays as Gift.

The plots of many plays are hidden in the Christmas tradition of "Peace on earth, good will toward all men." The Jack and Jill players are presenting as their holiday gift to the Lawndale Boys' club, four one act plays, "The Great Gift," "Midge Goes to the Movies," "The Goose Man," and "The Grand Protector."

Some west side players are Nanine Bilski, Peggy Lou and Betty Guilfoyle, Dolores Ladendorf, Joan and Jeanne Long, Joan Lorentze, Dorothy Ann and Lenore O'Loughlin, and Tommy and Mary Ann Riordan.

The making of the Christmas crib is as old as the Christmas carol and has hundreds of interpretations. This Christmas season at Sears Y. M. C. A., nearly 400 pounds of plaster was used by the boys for religious articles, scenes, animals, and statues. The craft was introduced by F. P. Blair and has developed from five molds to 49.

Christmas in Homes.

Then there will be the Christmas in the homes this week. There is an account of how Christmas used to be observed in England in the time of George II. "An English gentleman at the opening of the great day had all his tenants and neighbors enter his hall by day break, the strong beer was broach'd and the Black Jacks went plentifully about with toast, sugar, nutmeg, and good Cheshire cheese. The rooms were embowered with holly, ivy, cypress, bays, laurel, and mistletoe."

There will be turkey and goose in west side homes and the center of excitement will be the Christmas tree. At the home of the L. W. Porters, 1125 Lockwood avenue, there will be the traditional family gathering. Mr. and Mrs. Russell H. Tamplin will go over for the tree trimming on Sunday night. Everybody will hang up stockings and on Christmas day there will be a turkey dinner.

Fireworks Down South.

Mrs. Millard Gilmore says on Christmas she always feels like shooting off fireworks. That's what she did when she was a little girl and lived in Mississippi. "The farmers were afraid to come to town," she says, "because cannons and Roman candles turned the town into a battlefront and horses ran away."

The Gilmores will gather with their relatives at their home, 134 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, to sing Christmas carols and tell Christmas stories. They have followed this routine for 25 years.

Mrs. E. B. Stuart, 147 North Lorel avenue, says she celebrates Christmas the "old fashioned" way. They have had a tree ever since they moved to Chicago 35 years ago and they have had that many family dinners, with goose as the main course.

Voice of the West Side

BIG HAND FOR DECORATORS.

The custom of decorating the outsides of homes in the suburbs is such an excellent one that I want to thank every homeowner that does this and adds to my Christmas. Every year I make a pilgrimage out to Glen Ellyn, La Grange, Western Springs, Maywood, and all the suburbs where quiet home life is in order. I look at the lovely decorations, the fir trees in the entrance ways ablaze with light, the wreaths in the windows, and Christmas trees peeping out from some inside corner. I get an inspiration and a hope that lasts me most of the year. If ever a man or woman decides to feel, "Oh! what's the use of doing all that work" and quits decorating for Christmas, I for one will feel that the holiday has lost a great deal of its charm.
MARGUERITE Z.

IN THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

It seems to me that community leaders have done a splendid job this year in providing Christmas decorations and that we owe a debt of gratitude to those who give their time and thought in making the season more enjoyable by brightening up the business streets. I realize there is a commercial angle to the effort, for shoppers are inclined to prefer those neighborhoods that are cheeriest, but this does not detract from the good deed.

There are other groups in each community that make a systematic effort to see that no home is overlooked at Christmastime. This takes planning quite apart from sentiment or the best of intentions. Let's "give them a hand." T. H. R.

COLD 'L' PLATFORMS.

Is it asking too much to expect the elevated company to provide a warm place to stand while waiting for trains? When I wait on some of the platforms on the Metropolitan line, the station is closed and there is a sign "Pay on the Train." I don't care where I pay but couldn't these stations be kept open so that I wouldn't freeze. JOHN PALMYRA.

HE MUST HAVE SLIPPED.

Just as a chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so the path to the railroad station after a fall of snow is of no avail if an occasional householder along the way neglects his duty in shoveling off the walk. A. W.

MANLEY SENIORS REWARDED WITH SCHOOL LETTERS

Excellence in Work Is Given Recognition.

The Who's Who in the February, 1941, senior class at Manley High school, 2935 Polk street, were presented with awards at a recent assembly by Thomas J. Crofts, principal. The reward was a special school letter and represented four semesters of distinguished service in art, music, newspaper work or ushering for school events.

While these students were admiring their letters, Rochelle Cutler, 1549 Avers avenue, was trying to believe the good fortune that just came her way. Rochelle is 17 years old and is a member of the Manley Players.

Training for Radio Work.

She recently received an audition at the United Broadcasting company and the director, William Klein, offered to train her in radio technique. She started her lessons on Dec. 2. Manley students believe Rochelle's success story will follow that of Michael Cipriani, a former Manley drama star, who is now under movie contract in Hollywood.

The Manley art students who received honor letters are Janet Crane, Adele Ebner, Josephine Bullaro, Harry Tangy, Lillian Bolta, Nettie Wortman, and Mary Haber. The ushers who merited the award are Julius Katzenberg and Robert Dewbrey. Members of the newspaper staff who won the award are Harry Epstein, Pasqual De Nicola, Jeanette Engel, and Ruth Baich.

In Girls' Chorus.

The girls' chorus members are Mary D'Augustine, Shirley Dector, Grace Hennart, Mary Haber, Sophie Mann, Anna Marie Manzo, Catherine Margrotta, Goldie Mazure, Dorothy Silver, Ruth Baich, Kathie Capsuto.

Legia Di Dominico, Eleanor Goldberg, Helen Greenspahn, Ruth Hadesman, Florence Kadan, Sylvia Kirchick, Fannie Root, Idelle Axelrod, Lilyan Fisher, Ethel Grill, Anita Klein, Belle Mendel, Gloria Rinella, Jane Yager, Ruth Zeid, and Anna Zipes.

SUBURB CHURCH GROUP TO GIVE NATIVITY PLAY

Maywood Stage Unit to Offer Two Dramas.

Costuming and lighting effects have been designed to lend impressiveness to the presentation of scenes in a Christmas Nativity pageant at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the First Congregational church, 5th avenue, north of Lake street, Maywood.

The pageant is the offering of Mrs. Vernon L. Davies who began nine years ago with the simple presentation of "The Adoration of the Kings and Shepherds" and has enlarged it into a spectacle. The public is asked to bring a silver offering or a "white gift."

At their eighth annual Christmas open house program, the Maywood Players tonight will present two one act plays at Emerson school, 4th avenue and Washington boulevard.

Members of Casts.

Members of the cast of "Her Christmas Gift," directed by Mrs. Mary V. Johnson, are Mildred Law Wakeman, Mrs. Mary V. Johnson, Lucille Rende, and Miss Elaine Robertson. Those who will take part in "The Finger of God," directed by Raymond Jensen, are Miss Helen McPhail, Wendell Wilsey, and Raymond Jensen.

The musical program will include selections by the Proviso Alumni choir and the Proviso String ensemble, and solos by Miss Roberta Holmer.

Raymond Jensen, open house chairman, will be assisted by Miss Elaine Robertson, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Betty Ann Young, and Cora Lee Bell. Alfred Moore will have charge of staging the plays. Refreshments will be served after the play. The Maywood Players are sponsored by the Maywood Recreation board.

Chorus in Concert.

The male chorus of the Lutheran Church of St. John, Forest Park, tonight will present its annual Christmas concert under the direction of Robert Reuter. The children's choir of the church will assist. The Rev. Alvin Wagner will bring the holiday message.

Handel's "The Messiah" will be presented Friday night by the Cicero Bible church choir and orchestra in the church auditorium, 52d avenue and 22d street, Cicero. Clyde Stukes will direct the program.

Coloists will be Margaretta Shott, soprano; Ethel Erickson, contralto; Thorvald Haaning, tenor, and Crosby Kelly, bass. Merrill Dunlop, organist, will be assisted by Elsie Marek and Evelyn McConchie, pianists. The Rev. William McCarrell is pastor of the church.

Plan Vesper Seervice.

A candlelight vesper service featuring the young choir and chapel quartet in Christmas anthems will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Presbyterian church, 32d street and Clinton avenue, Berwyn.

The Christmas celebration in the church will start this morning in the Sunday school when all classes will meet in a single assembly to sing carols and hear the Christmas story told by Mrs. A. J. Melichar.

At the worship service at 11 o'clock, the Rev. Gilbert T. Bremicker will take as his topic, "The Birthday of a King." Mrs. Ruth Bennett, director of the choir, will sing, "O, Lovely Voices from the Sky." On Christmas eve, young people of the church will gather for their annual Christmas carolling.

Give Christmas Cantata.

The choir of Redeemer English Lutheran church, First street and Blaine avenue, Hinsdale, will present a Christmas cantata in the church auditorium this afternoon. The offering will be used to form the nucleus for an organ fund. The Rev. Carl F. Dankworth is pastor.

The male chorus and children's choirs of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, Forest Park, will open the holiday festivities tonight with a concert directed by Robert Reuter.

On Christmas eve, 800 children of the parish will take part in programs at 5 and 7 o'clock. At 6 o'clock on Christmas morning, a candlelight service will be held, with the Rev. Alvin E. Wagner preaching the sermon.

Hawthorne Methodist church, 5050 30th street, will have special Christmas music this morning at 10 o'clock. Tomorrow night, the play, "The Babe of Bethlehem," will be given by the Juvenile Dramatic club of the church.

Glen Ellyn Stages Nativity Scene

PARKS PREPARE FOR PARTY VISIT FROM OLD SANTA

Children to Gather in West Side Areas.

Tomorrow will be Christmas in several west side parks when decorated trees, Santa Claus, stockings filled with candy and plays will entertain the children.

The recreation staff of Columbus Park, assisted by local merchants, will hold a Christmas party for Austin children at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the park, Harrison street and Central avenue. The 400 children who are members of various park classes will participate. Stockings filled with candy will be distributed. Erwin Weiner, park supervisor, will be in charge.

Douglas Park Party.

Douglas park, 14th and Sacramento boulevard, will hold a Yuletide party for adults at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening and one for children at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Santa Claus will turn out for both parties.

The programs will consist of dancing, community singing of Christmas carols and talent acts. Sumner G. Webb is supervisor at Douglas. Admittance will be by ticket only but the tickets will be given free to all members of the recreational groups attending the park's gymnasium, craft, artcraft, drama groups and game rooms.

"The Crosspatch Fairies," an operetta in three acts, will be presented as a feature of the Christmas party tomorrow afternoon in Sheridan Park fieldhouse, 910 South Aberdeen street. The cast of 31 players ranges in age from 5 to 9 years and is directed by Miss Ida Commito.

Taking Leading Rôles.

Leading rôles will be played by Sue Angelina Christopher, Josephine Russo, Minnie Calabrese, Gloria Filippini, Mary Lou Christopher, Concetta Perri, Geraldine Russo, Julia Mancini, Dolores Diano and Jean Fasano.

Members of the supporting cast are Marie Petrocelli, Marie DeNatale, Arlene Vallcento, Joan Russo, Angella Catalano, Elenor Garelli, Frances Miolli, Elaine Petrocelli, Carmella Casolaro, Mary Di Poala, Grace Magnolo, Fannie Arcuri, Alice and Marie Cozzi, Stella Diano, Jean De Poala, Rosemarie Marchese, Mary and Pauline Miller, Edith Sammarco, and Diana Laino.

The party will be in charge of William F. Steinhaus, park supervisor.

Plan Series of Parties.

Harrison park, 18th place and Wood street, will be the scene of a series of Yuletide parties for park district classes and other community groups. The first of these will be at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening when the gymnasium classes will present an exhibition of tumbling, balancing, pyramids, games, and tap, folk, ballet, and barn dancing.

On Tuesday afternoon a Christmas party will be given for the junior boys and girls of the park. There will be games and contests for prizes, motion pictures and refreshments.

On Friday evening there will be a Christmas party for the senior group of young men and women of the park which will include dancing and motion pictures. On Thursday, Jan. 2, the Polish Woman's alliance will hold a Christmas party in the park for members and children. The parties will be conducted by Art Butler, park supervisor.

In Stanford Park.

Stanford park, 14th street and Union, will hold a Christmas festival at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. The program will consist of a Christmas tree lighting ceremony with singing of carols and the showing of pictures. The party will be conducted by Z. I. Egardner, supervisor of recreation.

A 22 foot Christmas tree has been decorated at Austin Town hall where parties opened last Thursday. They will continue thru Friday. F. M. Bosserman, park supervisor, is coöperating in arrangements.

Wedding Today

Miss Frances Meisles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Meisles, 1664 South Millard avenue, will become the bride of Maurice Kash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kash, 3349 Beach avenue, this evening. Mr. Kash is an attorney. [David Photo.]

NATKIN JUNIOR HADASSAH WILL HOLD MEETING

A meeting of the Esther Natkin Junior Hadassah will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in Darwin hall of the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. The meeting will be dedicated to the 80th birthday of Henrietta Szold, the 20th birthday anniversary of Junior Hadassah and the Chanukah celebration of the Jews.

Dorothy Edson, Esther Gutenberg, and Muriel Rosenberg will give short talks on the 20 years of Hadassah work, Miss Szold's contributions and the meaning of Chanukah. A scroll will be signed by all the members and presented to Miss Szold.

Membership pins will be presented by the membership chairman, Miss Florence London and her co-chairman, Bernice Rosenberg. Palestinian songs will be sung and refreshments served. Miss Eileen Berz is president of the group.

CATHOLIC WOMEN WILL GIVE PARTY FOR CHILDREN

The annual children's Christmas party of the West End Catholic Woman's club will be held on Friday afternoon in the 19th Century clubhouse, Oak Park. Mrs. Harry A. Quinn, program chairman, will present Eugene Laurant, vaudeville entertainer. Hostesses for the social hour will be Mrs. Ray AuBochon, Mrs. John J. Mullen, Mrs. Harry M. Thometz, Mrs. Frank Callahan, Mrs. Louis Mondi, Mrs. Robert M. Sutton, Mrs. Philip O'Grady, and Mrs. John C. Woodward.

NATIVITY SCENE IS YULE FEATURE IN GLEN ELLYN

Life Size Figures Have Setting in Park.

Those who motor thru the suburbs during the Christmas season on the alert for what each community and individual home owner has contributed to provide Yuletide atmosphere may find an unusual project in Glen Ellyn, where the Chamber of Commerce has sponsored "The Nativity Scene," said to be the most pretentious arrangement of its kind ever attempted in the area.

Set up on the crown of the city park hill, Main street and Pennsylvania avenue, the open air tableau covers a space 50 feet wide. Each of the 16 figures is life size, and at night flood lights in colors play upon the spectacle.

Only the manger is enclosed. Wise men and shepherds, camels, oxen, and sheep, are seen making their way in a semi-circle along the crest of the hillside. The star of Bethlehem is shown in a bright shaft of light. Snow that has covered the hill lends to the impressiveness of the pageant.

Research on Clothing.

When the chamber of commerce considered "The Nativity Scene" several weeks ago, J. R. Stewart, village clerk, was made chairman of the activity. Mr. Stewart assigned A. J. Herrmann, a resident of the village, to the task. Enthusiastic coöperation was given by E. W. Leonard, secretary of the chamber, and other members of the committee.

Mr. Hermann formerly worked as a scenic artist in the east. He has taken pains in giving symmetry and accuracy to the figures, and rich coloring has gone into the garments.

Mr. Herrmann explained that before starting the work, he visited several libraries for research concerning the robes of Mary and Joseph and other characters in the scene.

Finds Many Scenes.

"I found at least 30 nativity scenes," said Mr. Herrmann, "but no two of them were alike. Each artist had his own conception. My scene is a composite of the many I studied, but I chose flowing, rich robes for the figures."

Before painting the figures, Mr. Herrmann cut them out with a jig saw from weatherproof boards. Work was carried out in the vacant Glen Ellyn State bank building, and attracted interest from all passersby.

Across the street from the city park, where the scene is located, employés of the Glen Ellyn postoffice, under Postmaster N. C. Knapp, have erected a billboard showing an envelope 11 feet wide, bearing the season's greetings to "Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ellynites and family."

In the south business section, the chamber has set up a Christmas tree in charge of a huge Santa Claus carrying a sack of toys.

Melrose Park Methodists Plan Yule Dawn Services

The Sunday school of Melrose Park Methodist church will present a program this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock under the direction of Supt. Joseph N. Johnson. The Christmas day program at 6 a. m. will include music by the choir directed by Robert Grace, and a message from the pastor, the Rev. C. Gideon Carlson. Next Sunday afternoon, the church choir will present the Christmas cantata, "On Wings of Angel Song."

SALVATION ARMY PLANNING GALA YULETIDE WEEK

1,000 Children to Attend Party Tomorrow.

One thousand boys and girls will be guests of the Salvation Army at a Christmas party tomorrow evening in the Chicago Temple corps, 1512 West Madison street. The party is one of four held by the Army's family service department.

Brigadier Henry Otway, head of the Central States music department, will be chairman and the entertainment will be presented by radio stars and by children of Salvation Army officers. Santa Claus will have a gift of candy and fruit for each guest.

Party Friday Night.

Children of Salvation Army officers will be guests at a special Christmas party Friday evening. Members of the Temple Corps Sunday school will hold its holiday program and party on Saturday evening and on New Year's eve there will be a double service at 8 and 10:30 o'clock. Col. Edwin Clayton, principal of the William Booth Memorial Training college, and the college cadets will be in charge of both services.

At the Midwest corps, 2459 West Monroe street, a holiday dinner and party tomorrow evening will open the Christmas season. The corps Sunday school will have a Christmas tree party Saturday evening.

Austin Corps Program.

An early morning service on Christmas day and a program of carols for the evening has been scheduled at the Austin corps, 5413 West Chicago avenue. On Thursday there will be a Scandinavian program featuring a dramatization of the old Christmas customs of Norway and Sweden.

The corps Sunday school will have its Christmas party on Thursday evening complete with Santa Claus and gifts. Capt. Julia Witthoff commands the Austin corps. Maj. Charles Langley is commander of the Temple corps and Capt. Walter J. Ousterhout has charge of the Midwest corps.

Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Karel Malik of Fox Lake recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at an open house gathering in the home of their daughter, Mrs. J. C. Rezek of Brookfield. The party was arranged by their five grandsons and daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Malik were both born in Domazlice, Bohemia. Their other daughter, Mrs. F. J. Sikorovsky, resides in Jackson, Mich. [Hinchliffe Photo.]

Legion Party.

WORK ACTIVITY GROUP TO HAVE VACATION TREATS

Special Programs Are on J. P. I. List.

More than 500 boys and girls are expected to attend the special programs planned by the group work activity department of the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard, during their Christmas vacation from school. The vacation treat will include a magician, games, shows, swims, and trips.

A magician will perform for the group at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and afterwards there will be a community sing. A boys' social swim is scheduled for 4 o'clock. A talent show has been scheduled for juniors at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and a swim party for girls will be held at 4 o'clock.

Plays and Dances.

On Christmas afternoon the game room will be open for ping-pong and table games. Dramatic plays, Palestinian dances and songs have been arranged for 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The highlight of the vacation program will be the Chanukah party which will be held at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, Dec. 30.

A program has been arranged under the direction of Mrs. M. M. Krechevsky, Mrs. Samet Friedman, Miss Gretl Hauck, Mrs. Mabel MacAdoo, Miss Bernice Berkovitz, Julius Lakin, and Nate Klein.

Plan Special Trips.

On Tuesday, Dec. 31, there will be special trips to the Chicago Historical museum, Lincoln Park zoo, Hull house, the Jane Addams housing project and radio broadcasting studios.

SUNNIER CLIMES ATTRACT MANY FROM WEST AREA

Destinations Range from Florida to Hawaii.

Plenty of sunshine and warm summer breezes will be the Christmas gifts of a number of west suburbanites to themselves. Winter vacations are gaining in popularity as the Christmas migration continues by train, plane and automobile.

Warm climates attract most of the travelers who can get away for a few weeks or even a few months of Jack Frost and his blizzards. Here are some of the neighborhood travelers:

Mrs. Grace Vollan departed from her Wheaton home on Oct. 1 for Atlanta, Ga., where she is spending the winter season.

Two weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Douglas, Wheaton, departed for Arizona and will go on to Miami in a week and a half to stay for the winter.

Takes Early Departure.

Fort Lauderdale was the destination of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, 1511 East Forest avenue, Wheaton, who departed for the south on Nov. 1.

Another Wheaton family, Judge and Mrs. C. B. Clark, 808 North Main street, left the middle of October for their winter home in Bradentown, Fla.

Mrs. M. E. Rohde, a west sider, will depart Christmas morning by plane for Dallas, Tex., to spend the remainder of the winter with her son. Mrs. Rohde will travel on the American Airlines.

H. T. Moore and daughter, Dorothy Elizabeth, 735 Park avenue, Hinsdale, plan a trip by automobile to Los Angeles, Jan. 1. Dorothy will make a stay on the west coast, but Mr. Moore said he would return early by train so as to be in Hinsdale for the winter sports.

Motor to Florida.

Dr. Elsie S. Dow, Dr. Marian J. Downey, and Miss Clarabell Hainey of the Wheaton college faculty, have planned a motor trip to Florida during the Christmas holidays.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry W. Kinne of West Chicago have planned a motor trip to Florida, with Jan. 6 scheduled as their date of return.

Miss Dolores Dolangelo, 1324 North Mayfield avenue, sailed recently from Los Angeles on the SS. Lurline to spend several months in the Hawaiian islands. She flew to the west coast on the Stratoliner and stayed in California a week before sailing.

Elginites wintering in Florida include Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Gifford, A. M. Price, and Miss Ruth Price, Palm Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Adkins, Miami; Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Krausmann and Mrs. C. A. Whiting, St. Petersburg; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Slinko, Melbourne.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Broitzman of Elgin recently left by motor-trailer to spend the winter in Florida.

Go to West Coast.

The west coast as a place for spending the winter has been chosen by Elginites including Mrs. Mary D. Hinsdell and Mrs. S. D. McIntyre.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wolcott of Batavia are wintering in Fairhope, Ala.

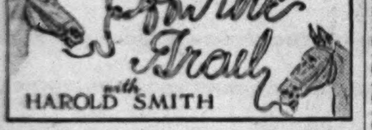
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Collins of St. Charles have gone to Los Angeles for the winter.

CHURCH TO HAVE MUSIC PROGRAM CHRISTMAS EVE

A Christmas musical will be presented at 11 o'clock Christmas eve by St. Barnabas Episcopal church, 4241 Washington boulevard, where the Rev. Walter S. Pond is rector. Morgan Merrifield, organist and choirmaster, will direct the chorals and carol singing.

Soloists will be Miss Katherine Williams and Mrs. Nancy Day Williams, soprano; Mrs. John Zumph and Mrs. George Tompson, Miss Violet Durkin and Miss Ethel Lambert, alto; James Jones, Edwin Forbrich, and John Williams, tenor; Harlan Kean and Glenwood Ent, bass.

The midnight eucharist will open with the Bach choral prelude, "O Come All You Faithful."



All the members of the Oakbrook Saddle and Suds club are expected to attend the annual dinner and dance in Lilac lodge at 22d street and Wolf road today. The affair will be preceded by a 15 mile ride thru the Du Page and Cook county forest preserves, led by William D. Bradley, club president.

Walter Youngberg of Elmhurst, treasurer of Du Page county, has just bought another horse. The new one is Rose Delight, a 5 year old five-gaited chestnut mare. Both Rose Delight and Youngberg's three gaited mare, Temple, are stabled at Oakbrook academy, 31st street and Spring road, near Hinsdale, where Mr. and Mrs. Youngberg are frequent riders.

The Youngbergs are among the relatively few persons in the Chicago area who own old-fashioned horse cutters, a type of equipage that is becoming increasingly harder to find. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Carter of Riverside also own a cutter. They and the Youngbergs took full advantage of the recent wintry spell by sallying forth in their merrily sleighbelled rigs.

Fred Willis of Downers Grove recently was elected president of the Stanton Silver Spur club, which operates from the Stanton stables on Butterfield road south of Glen Ellyn. Other newly elected officers are vice president, Shafer Ahalt of Downers Grove; secretary, Miss Barbara Hintze of Wheaton, and treasurer, Miss Charlotte Davison of Oak Park.

Chosen Most Beautiful at Morton Junior College

The five most beautiful girls at Morton Junior college recently chosen in an elimination contest, left to right, are Miss Ardell Vitt, Miss Ruth Brebis, Miss Drusilla Groth, Miss Jeannette Roesener, and Miss Alice Corcoran. From the group will be selected "The American Beauty Rose" to take part in the operetta, "Firefly," to be presented Jan. 10 in the college auditorium.

SEEK TO RESTORE FIRE DAMAGED CHURCH IN LISLE

Members Weigh Plans for Rebuilding.

When lightning struck the Lisle Congregational church building during a storm the latter part of October, fire destroyed the steeple, the roof of the auditorium, most of the walls, the organ and pews, and the roof of the annex. Members of the congregation established 98 years ago, and are now in the midst of a campaign to restore their house of worship.

The church at Ogden avenue and York road is one of the oldest in the area. The first structure, erected in 1842, was torn down to make way for a new building in 1918. Like the first building, the new church boasted a steeple that commanded the landscape for miles around. In 1930, an annex was constructed.

May Change Site.

The congregation, of which the Rev. G. B. Goodmundsson is pastor, now finds itself faced with two alternatives. The first calls for a new building and a new location away from the highway, with $20,000 as the estimated cost. According to a second plan, from $5,000 to $10,000 would be spent in restoring the present church building.

Acceptance of the latter alternative is said to be more likely altho some members of the committee favor seeking a new location.

Until this spring, the church was a member of the Aurora Association of Congregational Churches, but now is affiliated with the Chicago association.

Members of the committee active in raising subscriptions for a new building or restoration of the present structure are Fred Landorf chairman; John Brandner, William Frye, George Ellsworth, Arthur Melton, Harry Hatch, and Mrs. R. E. Lacey.

Hope for Society Loan.

Subscriptions are being sought by the committee which also hopes for a loan from the Congregational Church Building society, New York City. It is explained that when local funds are raised and the church building society makes its decision, the Chicago Congregational union also will consider giving financial aid.

As in pioneer days, the modern church has been attended by members scattered over a wide area.

Arranging Dance

Miss Loretta Shober, Oak Park, is a member of the committee for the 12th annual formal charity ball Saturday night in the Drake. The setting for the winter dance will be that of an old southern holiday ball.

MORELAND CHOIR GIVES YULETIDE CONCERT TONIGHT

The Moreland Lutheran church choir, directed by Edward A. Nelson, will hold its annual Christmas candlelight service at 7:45 o'clock this evening in the church, Lotus avenue at Huron street. The Rev. Alvin A. Snesrud is church pastor. Mrs. John Cruikshank, church organist, will accompany the singers. Ernest Moeller, blind pianist, will play two groups of piano solos. Mr. Moeller recently appeared in a recital on Dec. 6. The Rev. Mr. Snesrud will sing the tenor solo in one of the choir's a cappella anthems.

Omega Psi Epsilon Social Club Holds an Election

New officers were elected recently by the Omega Psi Epsilon, social club for girls, at meeting in the Midwest Athletic club. The girls elected are Celia Kaganove, president; Sara Lasine, vice president; Dorothy Fisdel, treasurer; Evelyn Siegel, recording secretary, and Sylvia Nemzin, corresponding secretary.

CHANUKAH MARKS 165 B. C. VICTORY OF JEWISH RACE

Light Candle in Every Home Tuesday Eve.

The final victory for religious freedom won in 165 B. C. by the Hebrews in Palestine against the Hellenite Syrians will be celebrated by west side Jewish men, women, and children beginning at sundown Tuesday evening in Chanukah holiday events. The Chanukah will be celebrated on the Christmas eve of the Christians, when a candle will be lighted in every Jewish home.

The lighting of the candle on Tuesday evening and the lighting of seven more on the evenings to follow is based on a legend handed down from Judas Maccabeeus, the Hebrew leader in the Syrian fight. It is said that when the temple was desecrated by the Hellenists no oil could be found except one small jar. This would be sufficient to keep the sacred candelabra burning only one day. But when the Maccabeans lighted the lamp it miraculously burned for eight days.

Parties and Feasts.

In addition to the eight day candle lighting ceremony in Jewish homes there will be parties, gatherings, and feasts. The story of the defeat of the Syrians will be dramatized in the area's Hebrew schools by the students.

Programs in west side schools and the supervisors are: Grenshaw Hebrew school, Rabbi Abraham Kramer; Anshe Sholom, Joseph Guror; Montefiori, Samuel Frohman; Anshei Liebovitz, M. H. Bolotin; Ein Jacob, Isadore Ginsburg; Anshei Zhipomir, Abraham Rosenshine; Nusach Sfard, Moses Greenberg, and Harris Michle Dick school, Rabbi Harold Berger.

Two of the main events of the west side will be the graduation of Hebrew school pupils and a meeting of the Council of Jewish students. At 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon diplomas will be awarded to 100 pupils who have completed a course of studies of four or six years duration. About one-fourth of these graduates will go to schools of higher le[illegible]—boys to the Hebrew Theolog[illegible] lege and girls to the School of Jew[illegible] studies.

President to Preside.

Rabbi Ephraim Epstein, president of the Associated Talmud Torahs, will preside. Messages of congratulation will be delivered by Rabbi Leonard Mishkin, educational director, and Rabbi Manahim Sacks, executive director.

The meeting of the Council of Jewish Studies will be held Saturday in the Talmud Torah headquarters, 3641 Douglas boulevard. The headquarters will also be used for the commencement service.

The West Side Youth division of the American Jewish congress will hold its annual Chanukah meeting at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening in the banquet hall of Temple Judea, 1227 South Independence boulevard. The candle lighting ceremony will be conducted and a Chanukah program has been prepared. Max Kopstein, president of the Chicago Division of the American Jewish congress, will be the guest speaker. Joseph R. Friedman is president of the district.

AUSTIN METHODIST CHOIR WILL PRESENT HANDEL'S 'MESSIAH'

The Austin Methodist choir of 60 voices will sing the Christmas section of Handel's "The Messiah" at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the church, Central and Race avenues. Mrs. Margaret Christy, 5410 Fulton avenue, will sing the soprano solos.

Other soloists will be I. Rai Sturgis, bass; Earl Bichel, tenor; Arsene Sommers, alto, and Maldwyn Jones, tenor. Mr. Bichel, Mr. Jones, and Mrs. Christy are all winners in recent Chicagoland music contests sponsored by The Tribune Charities, Inc.

In addition to the hour of solos, duets, and arias, Dr. Herbert Rhodes, church pastor, will give a short talk and the entire congregation will join in the Hallelujah Chorus finale.

Calhoun School Mothers to Pack Christmas Baskets

Officers and chairmen of the Mothers' Civic council of Calhoun school will meet at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. Lillian Eaker, 2709 Jackson boulevard. Christmas baskets will be packed for needy families.

West Suburban Jewish Club Names Staff of Officers

Officers were elected at a recent meeting of the Men's club of the West Suburban Jewish center, Lake street at Ridgeland avenue. Louis Joseph is the new president, and his staff consists of Lester Lurie, vice president; Jack Omens, sercetary; Morris Glasser, treasurer; Fred Ne[illegible]rovski, sergeant at arms. Mem[illegible]rs of the board of directors are William Jaffe, Sigmund Mann, Nathan Perlman, David Brown, David Gesmer, S. M. Wolffson, and Walter Siegel.

PEOPLES OF 26 NATIONS TO GIVE COMMUNITY PLAY

Is Tomorrow's Bill at the Aiken Institute.

The twenty-six nationalities that participate in the 45 different activities during the year at Aiken institute, Monroe and Morgan streets, will present a Community night play at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. Major rôles in the drama "At the Inn" will be taken by men, women, and children of the six largest nationality groups in the area, Greek, Mexican, Italian, Bulgarian, German, and English.

Frank Rees, director of boys' activities, will play the part of the innkeeper. Anna Goebel is cast as the inkeeper's wife and George Stamos will play the rôle of Joseph. The part of the Virgin Mary will be taken by Beatrice Apostole. Jesse Duarte, Alberto Lucero and Jesus Rojas will be the three shepherds. John Penchoff will also have a rôle in the cast.

Anniversary for Three.

At the end of this Christmas season at Aiken institute, which is named for "Aunt Lizzie" Aiken, a civil war nurse, three women will celebrate their silver anniversary at the settlement. Mrs. Christina Larson, the housekeeper, lived across the street when she arrived in Chicago from Sweden. She has kept house at Aiken ever since she was hired for the job a quarter century ago.

Miss Goebel came to a club at the institute when she was a little girl. When she grew up she was put in charge of the nursery school. Now she is a member of numerous clubs and takes care of all the odd jobs for the director, Mrs. George Kampfer.

The third veteran is Mrs. Lillian Basket, a graduate of a southern academy, who came to live in the neighborhood and work with the many types of people who get lessons in music, drama, handicraft, and sewing at the settlement. Once Mrs. Basket was assistant director of the nursery school.

In Historic Building.

Aiken institute occupies one of Chicago's historic buildings. In the far away 1850's of Chicago history, it was the Second Baptist church, standing at La Salle and Washington streets.

Footmen met the carriages when they rolled up to the spacious church entrance. Its aisles were covered with thick carpets and its hand painted glass windows were the pride of the city. There were 1,700 persons seated in the huge church auditorium every Sunday.

The civil war that tore at the south had its reverberations in the north and worked havic on the Second Baptist church. The congregation was split in two over slavery. The anti-slavery group built a church at 1857 Jackson boulevard. The pro-slavery group moved to the south side.

Decide to Move.

The board of directors of the Baptist church decided to move the beautiful building to Monroe and Morgan streets. Later it was opened as a Sunday school and a center of welfare work and named for the civil war nurse, Lizzie Aiken.

Today the handpainted windows have been almost blown out of the old Second Baptist church. The carpets were torn up from the spacious aisles where Chicago brides walked long ago. The organ pipes make no sound and the pulpit is battered by wild throws of the Aiken basketball teams. For the church proper is now a gymnasium. The old Sunday school rooms are the scenes of busy industry as men, women, and children troop in for the settlement activities.

PARK WORKERS PLANT 90,375 FLOWER BULBS

There have been 90,375 bulbs planted this month in the parks and along the boulevards of the west side. This number is among the 263,905 bulbs planted thruout the city, according to William C. Blaesing, acting chief horticulturist of the Chicago Park district.

The west side communities to receive the new plantings are Douglas park, 25,000 mixed Darwin tulips; California avenue and 26th street, 4,000 mixed Darwin tulips; Garfield Park in front of the conservatory, 4,000 mixed tulips; front of the administration building in Garfield park, 4,000 mixed Darwins. In the main garden there were 11,825 single tulips planted and also 20,650 mixed Darwins.

An additional 10,000 tulips will be planted by the Chicago Park district next month in Palmer square.

OFFICER OF DAY PLAN IS TRIED AT CRANE HIGH

Sergt. Veachel A. Dennison, the new military instructor at Crane Technical High school, has instituted an officer of the Day system in the R. O. T. C. unit.

A different officer is excused each day from classes, and reports early in the morning at the headquarters room. Here he takes full charge of the officers for the day, checking absentees, equipment, and interviewing each cadet who wishes to talk to the sergeant on military business. The new system saves much time and has been successful in keeping order in the unit headquarters.

Another innovation is the giving of 2-10ths minor credits to all R. O. T. C. lunch guards. The guards number 200 and keep order in the halls during the school's four lunch periods.

Dies to Speak.

Congressman Martin Dies will speak Sunday evening, Jan. 5, in Winnetka at the North Shore Sunday Evening club in New Trier High school.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE
SERVING CHICAGO FOR 93 YEARS

CHRISTMAS NOTE ON CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Two Yule Songs.

A program of familiar music blended with Christmas favorites will be presented on the new Chicagoland Concert hour tomorrow evening. Two Yuletide solos by Marion Claire will feature the concert, which will be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Michael Wilkomirski, W-G-N concertmeister, will be the instrumental soloist.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker of the evening. Col. McCormick has announced that his weekly talks will be devoted principally to vital, close at hand topics, to "things which we all want to have accomplished but which we have not yet found means of achieving."

Two Holiday Songs.

For her two holiday season solos, Miss Claire will sing "Hail Ye Tyme of Holiedayes" and "Away in a Manger." Miss Claire also will join the augmented chorus in presenting the waltz from Oscar Straus' "Waltz Dream." Wilkomirski will play Schumann's "Traumerei."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the Symphony orchestra in presentations of Straus' "Emperor Waltz," Mozart's "Minuet in G Minor" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor."

The Complete Program.

The program:

Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor....Brahms
Orchestra.
[a] Hail Ye Tyme of Holiedayes. Branscombe
Marion Claire and orchestra.
[b] Away in a Manger..........Old German
Marion Claire, chorus and orchestra.

Hallelujah Chorus from the "Messiah," ....Handel
Chorus and orchestra.

Chicagoland Concert hour programs are presented in the main audience studio of W-G-N under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production. Listeners desiring to attend the Chicagoland Concert hour may obtain tickets by addressing their requests to W-G-N.

SOLDIERS TO AIR CHURCH SERVICE ON W-G-N TODAY

A van of trucks from Fort Sheridan and a fleet of military cars from Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., will roll up to W-G-N's studios this morning to unload United States army soldiers and airmen who will participate in a unique Chicagoland Church hour. The special services, under the direction of Roland B. Bach, assistant chaplain of the 6th corps area, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 a. m. over W-G-N.

The Chanute Wing chorus, a group of 25 aviators, will sing camp songs. The Fort Sheridan chorus of 25 voices, under the direction of Prof. Carl Carlstedt, also will sing on the program.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel will extend Christmas greetings to camps thruout the 6th corps area which extends over Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The caravan of Fort Sheridan trucks will be accompanied by a motorcycle escort in order to speed up the return trip, for the chorus is scheduled for a camp program an hour after the W-G-N broadcast.

The Chicagoland Church hour is a regular Sunday morning feature on which city churches of all denominations are invited to broadcast.

Damrosch on NBC.

Dr. Walter Damrosch, conductor of the weekly NBC Music Appreciation hour, will present a special Christmas program during the I'm an American broadcast at 11:15 a. m. today over the NBC-Blue network.

Happy Birthday

When Alan Scott walked into the W-G-N studio for his "What Do You Say" broadcast the other day at 12:15 p. m., the 98 women in the studio audience rose to their feet singing "Happy Birthday." Then they presented Alan a cake which several of them had baked. "What Do You Say," a women's quiz program, is heard from 12:15 to 12:30 each week day.

ANNA NEAGLE IN 'NO, NO, NANETTE' ON CHICAGO HOUR

Premiere Is Scheduled Over W-G-N Thursday

Anna Neagle, distinguished British actress, will make her second appearance of the year in W-G-N's main studio next Thursday evening when the radio première of her newest musical picture, R-K-O's "No, No, Nanette," will be presented on In Chicago Tonight. The picture will open at the Palace theater Christmas eve.

Last spring Miss Neagle came to Chicago and was starred in a radio adaptation of her picture, "Irene," which was an exclusive feature of W-G-N and the Mutual network. The radio version of "No, No, Nannette" will be presented from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

All-Star Cast with Her.

An all-star cast of Chicago radio actors will be featured with Miss Neagle. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will provide the lively musical back drop required for this musical show.

When Miss Neagle came to America two years ago, she was asked by Hollywood producers to make herself known to American audiences. She followed this advice with customary energy and traveled a total of 46,000 miles by air making personal appearances.

Makes Two Musicals.

Into nearly every state in the nation Anna Neagle followed her first American film, "Nurse Edith Cavell," to appear before the audiences that acclaimed her work on the screen. As Anna Neagle, herself, the versatile British girl was even more enthusiastically received.

As a result of her air junkets to meet America in person, the public clamored to see Anna Neagle as her singing, dancing, personable self in a movie. "Irene" and "No, No Nanette" were the results of this demand.

LILLIAN GISH, WARAM BOOST 'NIGHT OF STARS'

Lillian Gish and Percy Waram, stars of "Life with Father," will be heard in a special Christmas drama, presented in the interest of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit, "Night of Stars," from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. today over W-G-N. Mayor Kelly, originator of the annual benefit, and Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, secretary, will speak. Also featured will be Jimmy Roland and Margaret Randall of "Life with Father"; Katherine Krug, former stage notable, and Eleanor Ronan of Danville, Ill., honor student in dramatic art at St. Mary of the Woods college. The radio show will promote the 8th annual "Night of Stars" program to be presented next Wednesday at the Chicago Stadium.

BECKER TO TELL STORY OF PATRON SAINT OF DOGS

Dogdom, too, has its legendary saint. Bob Becker, radio's dog expert, will bring the story of St. Roche to W-G-N listeners at 1:45 p. m. today.

The legend originated in 13th century France, where the son of a very rich man was born with the sign of the cross on his breast, an omen that his life was devoted to God. Later the boy became the monk, St. Roche, and though he loved his fellow men, he turned from human folly, vanity, and ingratitude to the companionship of a dog named Fidelo. During a pestilence St. Roche himself was stricken. Fidelo raced to the castle of the Lord of Plaisance and brought help.

In mortal fear of plague, the great lord was tempted to flee and let the saint die. But the tender loyalty of the dog gave him courage, and thus the saint was brought to the castle. Today, when men are kind and dogs show their deep devotion, it is said that the spirit of St. Roche still lives.

Jan Peerce on Air.

Jan Peerce, tenor, will be featured as soloist in a presentation of Kodaly's "Psalms Hungaricus" during the Radio City Music Hall on the Air broadcast at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL. Erno Rapee will conduct the orchestra in Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor.

CHICAGO THEATER OF AIR TO OFFER 'NEW MOON' SATURDAY

Next Saturday's presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air will bring Sigmund Romberg's operetta "The New Moon" to W-G-N and Mutual listeners from 9 to 10 p. m. "The New Moon" is the third operetta by Sigmund Romberg to be produced by the Theater of the Air this season.

Two radio favorites, Marion Claire and Conrad Thibault, will star in the leading rôles. Miss Claire is one of the best known sopranos in the light opera field.

Thibault, who has supported Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King" and "Rio Rita" in this season's Theater of the Air productions, has gained fame in recent years as a radio baritone. He studied in New York and Philadelphia, making his debut with the Philadelphia Grand Opera company and later singing leading rôles in the Chicago and San Francisco companies.

The W-G-N concert orchestra and augmented chorus will be conducted by Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company. The entire operetta is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N.

STEELMAKERS TO ADD 40 MUTUAL STATIONS JAN. 5

Employe Talent Show Will Have 91 Outlets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.
[PICTURE ON PAGE 6.]

On Nov. 8, 1937, a small station in Wheeling, W. Va., put on a new program, called Musical Steelmakers. Heralded by a mill whistle this new show featured amateur talent recruited entirely from the ranks of employés of the Wheeling Steel company and members of their families.

The next year Musical Steelmakers expanded to a four station Mutual network, with W-G-N as one of them. This fall the number of stations reached 51.

On Jan. 5, 1941, the mill whistle of the Musical Steelmakers will be heard over 40 additional Mutual stations—bringing the show's regular network to 91 stations.

How It Got Started.

The program got its start when John L. Grimes, executive of the company, discovered that the Welsh, Italian, and Polish stock in Wheeling bought more musical instruments, played more and better music per capita than in any other town in the United States.

Grimes encouraged the development of company entertainment groups; then fathered the first Musical Steelmakers broadcast which headlined employé-family talent. The program grew up in the midst of a wave of amateur shows, but unlike many of these it took permanent root and grew as they went into a decline.

Several of the performers of the first broadcast are still with the Musical Steelmakers of today. Tommy Whitley, who began as saxophonist in the band, is now leader of the orchestra. The Old Timer, popular master of ceremonies who regales listeners with his Scottish twang, also is among the faithful performers who have been on the show since its inception.

Typical Program Today.

Typical of the Musical Steelmakers shows will be the one to be broadcast at 4 p. m. today. From Beech Bottom, W. Va., seven girls will come to the stage of the Capitol theater in Wheeling to headline the broadcast with a holiday inspired presentation of "The Birthday of a King." The youngsters—Erma Maley, Shirley Lee, Martha Lydick, Ina Clair de Nichols, Marjorie Kull, Marjorie Wallace, and Shirley Stuck—all are children of employés.

As her Christmas contribution, Dorothy Ann Crowe will present "O, Little Town of Bethlehem."

Willie Howard Is Guest on Mutual Show of Week

Willie Howard, dialect comedian, will be guest on the Show of the Week from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Buddy Clark will match wits with the wise-cracking funnyman. Vincent Lopez and his orchestra and Ann Barrett, jitterbugger, as well as Buddy Clark, who sings tenor, will provide music.

FOLEY'S Cough Syrup ... TRIPLE ACTING

"Wouldn't think of being without Foley's," writes Mrs. Wilson Boughman, Tipton, Ia. One of the many reasons why users boost explained by Mrs. John Balish, South Bend, Ind., "Children actually ask for Foley's at first sign of cough." And Mrs. Carl Frederick, Dubuque, Ia., adds, "—don't have to coax my youngsters to take it."

"Foley's is so quick and soothing," Mrs. Hattie Crowell, Battle Creek, Mich. And Eileen Fengel, Champaign, Ill., says, "It's the key to soothing one's throat and relieving that constant cough that's bound to come with a cold." Mrs. A. Drury, McBain, Mich., comments, "We like way it loosens the phlegm."

"My doctor recommended it when my babies were small," tells Mrs. T. M. Davis. "Always pleased with the splendid results," Mrs. Martha Smith, Albion, Ill. We could fill pages with what enthusiastic users have to say about FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR.

For you—or your child's cough from a cold—use Foley's Honey & Tar, the highly recommended cough syrup. See for yourself how quick, efficient, delightful triple-acting Foley's really is. At your druggist or—

BASEMENT ROOM IS BENEFIT TO ENTIRE FAMILY

Heavy Duty Floor Helps in Practicality.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Does a basement game room and recreation retreat pay its way?

We'll say so—where a recreation room is definitely slanted to serve all the family.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Milliner, 1216 William street, River Forest, there is just such a room. It possesses those assets which contribute to its popularity and success. It is all things to all the family, an extra room which relieves the living room above from need to serve as study, dance floor, game room, and parlor.

There is crying need for such space in many homes not palatial in size. Where people are heard to say: "We had our basement all fixed up and after our first housewarming party, no one uses it," the fact is often revealed that it is very nicely furnished indeed, but not abounding in homey provisions for mixed ages, and the use of various family members.

Floor for Dancing.

There was no economy of ideas in the finishing of Mr. Milliner's basement recreation room.

Because a dance floor could be used, Mr. Milliner had the floor covered with a heavy composition material, impregnated with asphalt. This is a type of floor often seen on sun-decks in recently built or remodeled homes. It will take a great deal of hard wear. It is dark green and varnished and waxed for dancing.

Because a quiet room was desired and because there was a certain dampness in the air on occasions, the outer walls were furred before putting on the plank type wall finish, in natural light shade, and sound absorbing tile ceiling was installed. There is a large brick fireplace, and the furnishings are informal and appropriate to the family use of the room.

Space for Extra Room.

Some new homes will be built next year without basements, and with utility room and storage space on the first floor. Other homes will be built with what we call a half basement, a shallow space about half the depth of the usual basement, large enough to house the home heating plant and with room besides for some storage space.

However, conventional size basements will appear in the greater number of homes with opportunity below "deck" for heating and laundry facilities, generous supply of storage room for household tools and yard equipment, and then some space besides for an extra room, if desired, at time of building or later.

Such an extra room—a playroom for stormy days, a recreation and game room for people of different ages and tastes—justifies the expense of finishing it. There is common sense back of its appearance on the family scene.

Stairs Should Be Safe.

Take a room of average size, and the larger the better if the family is a growing one, and the chances are the windows are average size, or should be. And the stairs should be safe and well lighted, and provided with a rail.

There are wall boards and insulating boards which can be left in their natural finish, and the trim can be inexpensive and painted. Or it can be of some hard type board which isn't expensive and yet has a nice rich look. If such games as pingpong are to be played it is well to play safe and keep the lights flush with the ceiling.

If there are young children, a side of a wall can be given over to them, with a play table which opens out when they want to use it and then drops against the wall when their bedtime arrives and other family members take possession. Wall cupboards are valuable for storage purposes.

Bar with Outlets.

A snack or counter refreshment bar at one end of the room is a big drawing card. It can have a plug-in strip at the back for electric percolator, toaster, etc. A shelf overhead can hold decorative dishes and glassware, and a cupboard underneath can accommodate food staples, linens, silver and other needed "kitchenette" accessories.

Or if there is some one in a family with a special hobby, and precious little room in the house proper to indulge it, then some corner of such finished space can probably be found to solve THAT problem.

Holiday Harmonizers

The Steele Sisters get their heads together for a little close harmony in loveliness. It's the same effect when they blend their voices in a little close harmony over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 4 to 4:30 p. m. each Sunday. The girls are featured on the Musical Steelmakers show. Left to right, they are Lucille Bell, Harriett Drake, and Lois Mae Nolte.

STUDENTS MERGE TALENTS IN AN ART CALENDAR

62 Wood Cuts Used for Illustrations.

The first joint project of all Chicago high school art departments was published last week in the form of an engagement calender illustrated with 62 woodcuts made by students in the various schools.

Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art for the schools, was in charge of assembling the material, and said that the first edition of 2,500 was already sold and that a second printing of 1,000 had been contracted for.

The four district art supervisors also helped in the work. They are Miss Jane Palczynski, Mrs. Ellen Link, Miss Mabel Williams, and Miss Agnes Fenerty.

In a general way the subject matter of each woodcut follows the season in which it is used. In the summer pages there are farm scenes, scarecrows, swimming, and other pastimes. In December there are Christmas designs, and during the school months pictures of student activities. The scene for the first week in September, the opening of school, portrays a boy in jail.

Makes Cover Design.

The cover design, a picture of a farm yard, was done by Theodore Frano of Von Steuben High school.

School representatives who made wood cuts for the calendar are:

Harper: Ann Regin, Betty Lantry, Freeman Elliott, Jean Baltusnik; Hyde Park: Virginia Walker; Lindblom: Florence Baim; Phillips: Doris Sigmon; Parker: Elizabeth Hegin.

Kelly: Stanley Kazdailis; DuSable: Amelia Stewart, Lilford Starcks, James Cadell; Calumet: Shirley Meyer, Jeanette Loring, Loren Fry, Moynette Berglund, Marian Ogren; Hirsch: Ethel Erickson, Ruth Holman, Jeanne Fletcher, Adele Deam.

Other Student Artists.

Lane: D. Kolenda, Frank Fritzmann, Norman Harris. Lake View: Margaret Camardo, Lorraine Gross. Sullivan: Peggie Kirsten.

Farragut: Ray Henning. Manley: Eleanor Sughero, Beatrice Starr, Helen Patt. Flower: Evelyn Snoka, Evelyn Kalita. Marshall: James Angarola.

De Soto Isabellans to Play Santa Claus to Orphans

De Soto council, Ladies of Isabella, has placed an order for skates, cameras, and other toys with Santa Claus and he will deliver them in person at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Angel Guardian orphanage, 2001 Devon avenue. Each child also will receive a stocking filled with nuts, fruit, and candy.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 23.

Dip the ends of cut poinsettia stems in boiling water or sear over a flame. It does no good to use chemicals altho one or two will preserve the flowers for a day or so, but no longer. Under ordinary conditions most cut flowers will keep with only an inch or two of water. Experiment with the use of chemicals, the amount of water to use, temperature, etc.

Growing plants without soil or in water and chemicals offers opportunity to try the new method and compare it with plants growing in soil. Soil, at best, simply holds the plant in place, anchors it securely, but the food must be taken up when it is in solution. Soils are often deficient in food elements and these must be supplied.

The difficulty when growing plants in rooms is usually a lack of light or sun, hot, dry atmosphere, a stuffy condition, a lack of knowledge of how and when to water, and often starvation.

Tuesday, Dec. 24.

Sometimes a leaky gas jet or stove will cause plant leaves to drop. The Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers are susceptible to gas. Keep the soil moist for dry soil also causes leaves to wither.

About the only way to get rid of poison ivy is to dig it out bodily and burn it. Keep away from the smoke when it is burning.

If young trees have not been protected against the attacks of rodents, protect them without delay. Tar paper, small meshed screening, or other material can be used. Mulch bulb beds if it has not been done.

Wednesday, Dec. 25.

Cuttings of rose stems can be used for propagating purposes. Cut just below a leaf or node, leaving one leaf above. Place the cuttings in a box of sand or sandy soil and cover with glass. Water well the first time and sprinkle sufficiently to keep moist. Shade for a few days, but remove at night. Pot when rooted. In spring, plant out in the garden.

Cuttings also can be made of the favorite chrysanthemum if large specimen blooms are wanted. For cutting material, use the growths that come from around the base, cut back the leaves to avoid excessive transpiration, place in sand, and carry on when rooted.

Cuttings can be made as late as early June if small pot plants are desired. These make nice plants for table use.

Thursday, Dec. 26.

Look over your plants; see that they are well watered and have good light conditions. The terrarium may need a bit of air to keep out excessive moisture. Keep the poinsettia plant at about 60 degrees and never permit it to be subjected to draughts, or the leaves will turn yellow and drop.

It hardly pays to keep the plant over for another season, but one may attempt it as an experiment. After flowering, let it rest by withholding water; the leaves will fall and the stems look like dead sticks.

Set pot and plant in basement until spring when it can be cut back, repotted in good soil, and plunged in a sunny spot in the garden. Cuttings can be made of the young growths that appear along the stems.

Friday, Dec. 27.

Keep the window boxes filled with evergreens watered. Mulch rhododendrons with about six inches of leaves. It is a good plant to make a new cut at the end of the Christmas tree and stand in a bucket of sand saturated with a 10 per cent sugar solution. This will preserve the needles and keep them from falling.

Do not topdress lawns with stable manure because weed seeds may be introduced. A heavy application will likely kill the grass.

Use little, if any, fertilizer to house plants on dull days. Use a complete plant food when the plants are in active growth. Commercial foods are best and especially where organic manures cannot be had or are difficult to obtain.

Saturday, Dec. 28.

An aquarium in the home will interest every member of the family. Success depends on maintaining a proper balance between the fish and the plant life. Stock the aquarium with fish and water loving plants in such proportion that each will supply the needs of the other.

Cover the bottom with coarse sand; an inch layer will suffice. Plant in it a collection of plants like the vallisneria, sagittaria, cabomba, parrot's feather, or any other that is obtainable.

Scavengers may be added, such as fresh water snails, tadpoles; a single snail and two tadpoles will be enough for each gallon of water.

CAROLS, CANTATAS HAIL CHRISTMAS

STUDENTS JOIN IN GOOD FELLOW SING TOMORROW

Hundreds to Meet at Tribune Tower.

Hundreds of students from six Chicago High schools and one junior college will join voices tomorrow afternoon in the fifth annual Good Fellow Carol Sing. The program of Christmas music will be given in the court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio from 3:45 to 4:15 o'clock. The first 15 minutes of the program will be broadcast over W-G-N.

School musical organizations taking part include mixed choruses from Lindblom, Hirsch, Senn, Waller, and Steinmetz High schools and Wright Junior college. From Farragut High school will be boys' and girls' choruses, and Austin will be represented by its boys' and girls' glee clubs and senior and junior choirs. The sing will be presented thru the coöperation of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago public schools.

Carols on Program.

Carols to be sung include the favorites of the Christmas season. They are: "Silent Night," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," "Joy to the World," "Deck the Halls," "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," "The First Noel," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "Here We Come A-Caroling."

Each school group will be under the immediate supervision of its musical directors. The directors are: Austin, Hazel E. Lloyd, Marion McDonaugh, and Edna Pohlmann; Farragut, Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson; Hirsch, Helena L. Kane; Lindblom, Joseph R. Taylor; Senn, Dr. Samuel Burkholder; Steinmetz, Harriet Calverley and Willard L. Groom; Waller, Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, and Wright Junior college, Erhardt Bergstrasser.

Students from this section of the metropolitan area taking part are the following:

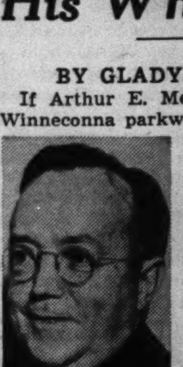
The nurses' alumnae of Little Company of Mary hospital will have a dance Saturday evening in the Hotel Knickerbocker. Miss Frances Keating, alumnae president, is dance chairman.

Fun's in Store When Art Dons His Whiskers

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

If Arthur E. Mealiff of 431 West Winneconna parkway ever writes his autobiography he might call his story "Recollections of Santa Claus." He has collected more than 15 years of recollections already, for he's been acting the part of Santa "ever since all my friends began getting married and having families." Mealiff is a bachelor.



Arthur E. Mealiff.

At first he rented his costumes, but he decided he was sort of a permanent institution five years ago, so he bought the outfit. It's been a good investment, Mealiff believes. He began by playing Santa to a few friends' children, and his "clients" have increased. One of these days, he thinks, he may find himself being Santa to another generation.

Santa Runs on Time.

As an employé at the 4-H club national headquarters Mealiff is accustomed to working with youth. He runs his Santa Claus performance on a business basis, adhering to the routine of keeping appointments and promises.

He says: "I arrange a time schedule first. I begin about 6 o'clock the evening of Christmas eve and work until after 10. Last year I covered 82 miles and visited 15 families. I went as far south as Ivanhoe, west to Beverly Hills, and east to the lake."

He calls his first family to say that Santa is on the way. The parents have their sack of presents on the front porch and "Santa" is advised in advance as to whether he can produce the sled or skates or bicycle requested. In other words, Mealiff delivers alibis and presents both.

He picks up the sack on the way into the house and he adds to it a box of candy for each child, his own gift to his young "clients." Once inside, he produces a fat list of names to which a fat red pencil is tied. He inquires the names of the youngsters, then hunts on his list. When he finally finds the right ones he makes a ceremony of checking, while small Susie and Johnny grow impatient.

The Forgotten Man.

"Once I've delivered the goods," says Mealiff, "I'm about the most forgotten man in town. Parents have a difficult time prying the youngsters away from the toys long enough to tell Santa 'thanks.'"

Each father on Mealiff's list calls the next one on the schedule as Santa drives away. The drive is part of the fun of being Santa. Art likes to get a chauffeur when he can, and then Santa himself sits in the back seat amid his fat bags. Youngsters on the streets are usually pretty startled to see what looks like a sure-enough Santa Claus delivery service.

"I used to wear a mask," he says, "but I find that isn't so realistic as makeup and whiskers. I used to stuff myself with pillows, too, but I don't need them any more. Now I can be Santa 'as is.'"

Some of his youngsters have grown out of the Santa Claus age and each year others take a sophisticated view of the whole affair. Last year Mealiff called to see if his services were wanted at an old friend's. The young son answered the phone and sounded so grown up that Mealiff stated his business.

It's All O. K., Art.

Said sonny: "O. K., Art. Come ahead."

Another youngster reported to her mother that she'd "examinated the chimney and it certainly isn't big enough for Santa." So Santa was instructed to explain he liked to use elevators these days. And a third child remarked after Santa's visit last year, "Gee, Santa sounds just like Art Mealiff."

Art Mealiff worried that he might not be on hand for this Christmas. He is a captain in the reserve medical administration corps and expects to be called soon. He is an ex-service man, having served in hospital companies with the 33d division in France.

There are many ex-customers on Mealiff's lists now. He says his little patrons have to be content with a card "when they move out of my territory."

AUBURN LAKES TO HAVE SACRED YULE DIORAMA

"The First Noel" is the name the East Auburn Improvement association has given the diorama that will be built on an island in the center lagoon of Auburn lakes, Normal avenue and Winneconna parkway. Life size figures and animals will be shown in a full size stable. The figures will include representations of the Three Wise Men, Mary, Jesus, and Joseph.

The scene will be lighted, and there will be music every evening from today thru Jan. 3. The traditional brilliant star will shine over the center of the stable, and white balsams, set at either end of the picture, will have blue lights.

This is the first Christmas project undertaken by the improvement association. Residents around the lakes are coöperating by lighting their homes. Arthur E. Mealiff is president of the association, and Harry William Godley is secretary. The latter is credited with the idea of the Christmas plan.

Reverence and Gaiety Mingled in Family Christmas

The Christmas season is one of piety as well as joy and gaiety to those of Dutch descent and the church plays an important part in the celebration. The season is one in which entire families attend church together. The Chester L. Evers family, 344 East 134th street, will attend Christmas services in the First Reformed church of Roseland, one of the eight churches of Dutch background in the Greater Pullman area. The Evers family, at the church steps, are left to right, Phyllis in her father's arms, Chester Jr., James, Donald, Arlene, Mrs. Evers, and Richard. The children's ages are 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12. The girls are the youngest. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

URGES EXTENSION OF POLICE RADIO TO ALL TOWNS

L. J. Laird Has Meeting with Chiefs.

Lester J. Laird, chief of highway police in the sheriff's office offered the Cook county radio, finger print, and police file services to police chiefs of towns and villages in the southern part of the county at a special meeting in Homewood early this week. His offer is a step in building up the county police communication system.

Other officers at the meeting included Lee Fetcher, chief communications officer for the sheriff's office, and Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of Homewood.

Laird explained the advantages of a two-way radio system in police cars in a plea for installing such a system thruout the southern Cook county area. He asked that a one-way system be used if a two-way is not possible just now. He pointed out that the one-policeman village needs a two-way radio far more than the 10-policeman town.

The present county communication system has 40 outlets extending as far north as Kenosha, as far west as Elgin and Aurora, south to Kankakee and Urbana, and east to Gary and the Indiana State police. This entire network is available to the small town police force equipped with a radio.

Extension of the radio service will be discussed again at a meeting of the Illinois Police association. Mayors and village board chiefs from the southern county area will be invited. The meeting will take place sometime within the next two weeks.

YULE PARTIES PLANNED IN TWO SO. WEST PARKS

Two parks on the southwest side are planning Christmas parties for their communities. The first party will be tomorrow evening at Armour Square park, 33d street and Shields avenue. It will be sponsored by the community council and the park district.

Only children under 12 years of age are invited, and the entertainment will feature a movie depicting the story of Christmas and a visit from Santa Claus. In charge of party arrangements are Frank Bova, Mrs. Charles Hurry, R. W. Quisenberry, and Mrs. Anna Morfise.

The second party will be given on Friday afternoon at Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue, for members of the park's gymnasium, crafts, artcraft, and music classes. More than 400 are expected to attend and all will be presented with fruit and candy. A feature will be a group of 30 dancers from the Schultz Dance studio. Arrangements are in charge of Robert P. Bantz, the park supervisor.

SEMINARY PRESIDENT WILL SPEAK BEFORE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Speaker, music, and decoration at Orchestra hall tonight will set off the spirit of the Christmas season. Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester Theological seminary, who will be introduced by the club's president, Clifford W. Barnes, will address the Sunday Evening club on the topic "Bombing Planes and Christmas Carols."

Dr. Albert W. Beaven.

Dr. Beaven held but one pastorate, previous to his present office, that of Lake Avenue Baptist church for 20 years. Under his leadership the membership was doubled and a church plant erected costing more than $250,000. He has served also as president of the Northern Baptist convention, the Federal Council of Churches, and the New York state council of churches. A prolific author, he is perhaps best known for his book "Fireside Talks with the Family Circle."

At the 7 o'clock informal meeting the musical feature will be the singing of carols by 100 children of the Civic Music association under the direction of Max E. Oberndorfer.

KIWANIS CLUB TO PLAY SANTA IN ENGLEWOOD

The Kiwanis club of Englewood will do its part in helping to make Christmas cheerful for unfortunate families. For many weeks members have been collecting food, toys, and candy which they will distribute on Tuesday in the community. The Wentworth school, 69th and Sangamon street, has been made headquarters, and Claude Williams, principal, has been helping direct the work. The club will also entertain 50 boys and girls with gifts, singing, and games. The children were selected by the underprivileged child committee of the club headed by Ed Bradford.

Plan a Christmas Program for Oak Forest Infirmary

The Lutheran Welfare society has arranged a Christmas program for Oak Forest infirmary at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Children of the Zion Lutheran school in Roseland will present the "Christmas Story," and the choir of Hope church, 64th street and Washtenaw avenue, will sing anthems.

SIX BOY SCOUTS ON SO. WEST SIDE GET EAGLE RANK

Five Also Are Given Palms Honor.

Eagle rank, highest honor in Scouting was awarded recently to six boys in the South West district of the Chicago Council of Boy Scouts, according to W. Arthur McKinney, Chicago Council Scout executive. The boys are: Bruce Kerney, Troop 608; Peter Van Brussel, Troop 611; Tom Byrnes, Troop 614; George Johnson, Troop 629; Ernest Haack, Troop 680; and Victor Kaupas, Troop 684.

Palms for winning more than the 21 merit badges required for Eagle rank have been awarded to Richard Heil, Arthur L. Manning, assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 629; Rawley Handbury, Louis Muys, and Robert Fitzgibbon.

WILSON COLLEGE STUDENTS TAKE SALES POSITIONS

Two hundred students of Wilson Junior college, 6800 Stewart avenue, have been placed in retail sales positions for the Christmas holidays that will bring them an estimated $3,000.

The students have been placed thru the combined efforts of the Wilson Junior Executive's club; Lyle Tussing, college placement counselor, and Frederick D. Hess, coördinator and sponsor of the group.

All of the students have been given special retail merchandising training, and have learned how to operate a cash register, store arithmetic, gift and plain wrapping, and selling suggestions. By means of these jobs, many of the students are working their way thru school. Many of the jobs have been given voluntarily by members of the Englewood Business Men's association.

Southwest Social Club Selects Staff of Officers

New officers of the Southwest Social club were chosen at a recent meeting, and Andrew Rieder will lead the group as president. Other officers are A. H. Senf, vice president; William Kober, secretary, and Otto Taschler, treasurer.

ORLAND PARK CLUB'S CHORUS WILL SING CAROLS FOR VILLAGE

Mrs. H. Adele Cooper, music chairman of the Orland Park Woman's club, will direct the club chorus in Christmas carol programs to be broadcast thruout the village. Their first broadcast from the village hall will be at 7 o'clock this evening. They will sing at the same time tomorrow evening and Christmas eve. The chorus program includes familiar Christmas songs, and it represents a Christmas present to the community from the woman's club. Mrs. Charles Maddox is president of the Orland Park club.

SHERMAN PARK LIBRARY TO HAVE YULETIDE PARTY

The Sherman Park branch library, 5440 South Racine avenue, will hold a Christmas party on Tuesday afternoon. Reading will be laid aside for a few hours and a Christmas play and a program of songs will be given.

The Library Boys' club will present a play, "The Christmas Jest," and choruses from Visitation High school, Libby Elementary school, and St. John of God school will sing Christmas carols. Another feature will be a violin trio—Mary Calascibetta, Ruth Girten, and Dorothy Day—from Visitation school.

The Library Girl's Nature club will present a friendship ring about the Christmas tree, and at the close of the program every one will join in singing carols. The party will be under the supervision of Mrs. Yolanda D. Yates, children's librarian. Miss Anna I. Kelley is the branch librarian.

GIRL STUDENTS MAKE DOLLS FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

Eight southwest side girls, students at the Institute of Modern Business, 624 South Michigan avenue, will begin distributing dolls to needy children tomorrow. Scores of dolls and many sets of dresses were prepared by the girls during recess periods for the last two months. The girls are Dee Rosner, 5523 Ada street; Doris Swanson, 8732 Carpenter street; Madge S. Shimkus, 4644 Hermitage avenue; Vermona Wagner, 5933 Mozart avenue; Mollie Abbott, 11114 Bell avenue; Jane Barnett, 6412 Wood street; Felicia Groves, 5537 Wood street, and June Gregg, 839 West 51st place.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

YOU can't scare Leurs F. Stevens of 8131 Merrill avenue. He considers himself a lucky boy, even tho he was 13 years old recently on Friday the 13th, has 13 letters in his name, and 13 letters in his address. He also has been reminded that his sister, Jane, was born on Aug. 13, and his dog, Laddie, on Sept. 13. It doesn't mean a thing, he maintains.

If you have time this week drive down Eggleston avenue between 71st and 72d streets and look at the Yuletide lighting. Thanks to Mrs. C. F. Gunther, the residents again have decided to string Christmas bulbs up and down the street in honor of the holiday season. Two years ago Mrs. Gunther started the custom by making a house to house canvass and selling her neighbors the idea. She feels that her project has been a success because a "steady stream of cars passes thru the block" looking at the lights every year.

"The sight of it instills in our hearts more than ever before that grand old message, 'Peace on Earth,'" says Mrs. Gunther who lives at 7143 Eggleston avenue.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN COLLINS, 226 East 76th street, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently with a party attended by 60 relatives and friends. Mr. Collins, who was on the South Park police force for 25 years, was born in Chicago. His wife, Annie, was born in Ireland. They have three sons, two daughters and seven grandchildren. The sons are John, a police officer, of 6926 Wabash avenue; William of 5201 South Union avenue, and Joseph, who lives at home. The daughters are Mrs. Harry Miller, 222 East 76th street, and Mrs. Michael Scahill, 7043 South Eberhart avenue.

Another golden wedding was observed recently by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen Barton, 5424 Cornell avenue. The Bartons were born in Marion, Ill., and married in Murphysboro, Ill. They have lived in Chicago for 32 years. Mr. Barton is a retired inspector of stations and transfers for the Illinois Central railroad.

Gene Katsion, 3008 Arthington avenue, is the most recent member of the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. boys' staff. He formerly was associated with the Sears Roebuck "Y," where he was director of boys' basketball leagues and volunteer gym director. Mr. Katsion will be volunteer and game room supervisor and assist in the direction of the Saturday afternoon club program.

TWELVE students of Thornton Township High school in Harvey were given cash awards by the Illinois Automobile club recently as authors of the best essays dealing with traffic safety problams in an essay contest. In the order the awards were presented, the winners are: freshmen, June McMurtrey, Betty Frebel, Julie Ogden; sophomores, Marion Prentiss, Manfred Wenzel, Grace Ravesloot; juniors, Calvin Low, Mavin Willyne Stranger, and Jack Willner; seniors, Maebelle Tibbie, Marjorie Edwards, and Albert Ohlsen. A total of 3,000 essays were submitted by Thornton students.

Mrs. Mary K. Sheehan, ticket agent for the Illinois Central railroad in South Chicago, retired last week after 27 years of continuous service. She began her years with the road on Oct. 9, 1913, while her husband, Peter, was a freight agent there. He retired after 52½ years of employment in 1932 and died four years ago. Mrs. Sheehan lives at 9050 South Baltimore avenue.

THE Biesel family is "arty" in the real sense of the word. Fred Biesel and his wife, Frances, who live at 5542 Dorchester avenue, are both exhibiting their work in the current art exhibit at the clubwomen's bureau in Mandel Brothers store. Mr. Biesel's father also is a well known artist and Mrs. Biesel's sister, Gertrude Strain, has been an art patron for many years. Mr. Biesel is assistant state director of the Illinois unit of the Federal Art project.

HARVEY TO VOTE JAN. 7 ON CIVIL COURT FOR CITY

Harvey citizens will vote Jan. 7 upon the establishment of a city court in the suburb. Announcement of the balloting was made by the board of election commissioners. The court would have the same jurisdiction as a Circuit court within the city limits of Harvey. It would be similar to the city courts in Chicago Heights and Calumet City. These courts try civil cases only. Harvey residents now must file such cases in Chicago.

Creation of a city court is backed by the Harvey service organizations and the Harvey-Calumet Bar association. John Yates, president of the Bar association, in expressing the lawyers' support of the measure said, "Harvey is nearing 20,000 population. Altho our connections with the city are good for trading, we find it inconvenient to go to Chicago for court work. We think a city court would facilitate our work. We believe that a city court would be a help to keep the city a unit and to keep up morale. In other words, we could use a city court to keep local affairs at home."

If a city court is approved on Jan. 7, a second election will be held to choose a judge. Harvey organizations supporting the court include the Kiwanis, Rotary, chamber of commerce, and Optimists.

YULE MESSAGES TO HIGHLIGHT CHURCH RITES

Special Music Will Mark Programs.

Choir programs and candlelight services are on church calendars for Christmas. The Yuletide theme will be carried in church messages today and will continue in many services set for tomorrow and Tuesday and Christmas day itself.

The choir of 75 voices at Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 6359 South Marshfield avenue, will present a cantata, "The Prince of Peace," at 8 o'clock this evening. The services at 11 o'clock this morning will include a Christmas sermon by the Rev. Clifton C. Cox, pastor, special music, and christenings.

The church Sunday school program will take place at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening with Santa Claus as one of the guests. A candlelight communion is announced for 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, and there will be Christmas day services at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. There will be christenings on Wednesday morning also.

Plan Special Music.

A Christmas message and music will be presented at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Englewood Baptist church, Englewood and Stewart avenues. A candlelight procession and a special musical program will take place at 7 o'clock this evening. Milam Jordan, cornetist, will be one of the soloists. The Rev. Howard A. Vernon is the pastor.

The McKinley Park Methodist church choir of 30 voices will sing at a Yuletide candlelight service in the church at 38th street and South Washtenaw avenue at 8 o'clock this evening. Mrs. Mabel Hildebrecht is choir director, and F. F. Hoffman is choir president. The McKinley singers will present this same program at the Broadway Methodist church next Sunday and at the Community Methodist church on New Year's eve.

Morgan Park Baptist church will be the scene of the 9th annual candlelight service at 7:30 o'clock this evening. The church is located at 110th street and Oakley avenue. This program of the church choirs has become a tradition in the Ridge and neighboring districts. The director is Mark Hallett.

Offer 3 Celebrations.

Our Redeemer Lutheran church at 6430 Harvard avenue will have three Christmas celebrations. The first will take place at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. The second will be candlelight worship at 6 o'clock on Christmas morning.

There will be antiphonal singing by choir members in the balconies and galleries. The Rev. Guido Schuessler will preach, and the associate pastor, the Rev. Luther Schussler, will chant and the Junior Girls' chorus will respond with the Ungemach liturgy. The third service will be at 10:45 o'clock Christmas morning.

The 5th annual candlelight choral worship of the choirs of the Lutheran church of St. John the Divine, 105th street and Oakley avenue, will take place at 11:30 o'clock on Christmas eve. A repetition of the service will be presented at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. The choirs will go to Christ church, Orland Park, to give the service at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon and will repeat it at 7:30 o'clock next Sunday evening at the Church of the Immanuel in Mokena.

St. John the Divine.

Other Christmas celebrations at St. John the Divine include a children's carol service at 7:15 o'clock Tuesday evening and another service at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. The topic of the Rev. R. L. Sommer's Christmas morning sermon will be "The Honest Joy of a Genuine Christmas."

Today will be observed as Christmas Sunday at Thoburn Methodist church, 64th and South Paulina streets. Dr. John H. DeLacy's sermon topic is "The Hope of the World," and he will preach at 11 o'clock this morning. The pastor will baptize children and receive members into the church.

Will Sing Cantata.

"Yuletide Memories" is the name of the Christmas cantata the Thoburn choir will sing at 7:45 o'clock this evening with Archer Ballantine as director and Zena W. Thomas as organist. The church's annual Christmas entertainment will take place at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

The Zion Lutheran choir in Tinley Park will present a cantata, "King All Glorious," at 8 o'clock this evening and again at the same time next Sunday evening. Mrs. Melvin Rensink is the director of the 36 voice choir.

Cantata in Riverdale.

H. Alexander Matthews' cantata, "The Story of Christmas," will be sung by the mixed choir and children's chorus of St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran church, 138th street and Leyden avenue, Riverdale, at 8 o'clock this evening. Erich O. Haase is director, and Gerhardt Becker, organist of Zion church, 113th street and Edbrooke avenue, will be accompanist.

A musical program will be presented at the Bishop Cheney Memorial church, 70th street and Yale avenue, at 11 o'clock this morning. There will be a candle light service at 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night. This will include special music directed by C. Gordon Wedertz, organist.

A STREET CAR SUPERVISOR.

On Friday, Dec. 13, I was riding east on a 59th street car. As usual, this car, which carries WPA workers, was filled, a number of passengers hanging on the steps.

When the car reached Ashland avenue at about 4:30 o'clock the operator was loudly reprimanded by the supervisor for being one minute ahead of time, notwithstanding the fact that he was ordered to leave the terminal two minutes ahead of schedule.

As we continued east the stopping places were jammed with people and the passengers resented very much the Hitler tactics of the supervisor to the operator, who found it impossible to handle the waiting passengers.

These conditions should be investigated.

DAILY RIDER.

WANTS CARS TO 67TH.

Pity the street car riders who live south of Kedzie and 63d. We wonder if the street car company knows about us or cares. We pay our fare and ride to 63d street. Then what happens? We walk. The end of the street car line is 67th street, and once in a while a car goes that far. Otherwise, we luckless folk who live beyond 63d spend our time walking or waiting. Provisions for switching at 67th are good. At 63d, that performance ties up traffic and adds to that congestion we hear so much about, but nothing is ever done about it. E. K.

URGES BUSES FOR HARLEM AVENUE.

The people in the Bridgeport section, unincorporated territory on Harlem avenue from 7100 to 7900 south, should start an improvement club. The club should ask the Chicago and West Towns railways to put a bus line on Harlem avenue from the car line at 63d street to run on Harlem from 6300 south to 7900 or farther.

The Southwest Towns bus line or South Suburban bus line could put buses on Harlem avenue from 63d to 111th street where hundreds of new homes are being built. J. J.

Two South Side Orators Win in College Contest

Two south siders won in the oratorical contest conducted by the Fox Secretarial colleges, 79th and Halsted streets and 75th street and Exchange avenue, recently. They are Mae Rose Van Emelen, 1474 East 69th street, first place, and Ned Van Dellen, 8158 South Sangamon street, second place.

ST. XAVIER ALUMNAE, STUDENTS PLAN TO OFFER YULE DANCE

Anne O'Donoghue.

The annual Christmas dance for students and alumnæ of St. Xavier college will take place in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel Thursday evening. Betty Jane Burke, 7215 South Park avenue, is general chairman of the committees. Other committee members are Kathleen O'Donnell, Mary Jennings, Betty Connelly, Mary Ellen O'Connor, Celeste Fahey, Arline Connelly, Betty Croaker, Patricia Lawson, Adrienne Higgins, Dorothy Fitzpatrick, Mary Agnes Cmarik, Jeane Couber, and Anne O'Donoghue.

SALVATION ARMY YULE PARTIES TO CHEER NEEDY

Southwest Children to Be Entertained.

Salvation Army settlements will be opened this week for Christmas parties dedicated to many families who might lack a holiday celebration otherwise. Two of the four large parties planned by the Army's family service department will take place on the southwest side at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. One will be at the Englewood corps, 6405 Emerald avenue, and the other at the Salvation Army settlement, 3053 Normal avenue.

More than 400 boys and girls will be entertained at the Englewood corps. Brig. Hubert Burtenshaw, the Army's ace drummer, will be chairman at Englewood and will play a bass drum solo as part of the entertainment.

Maj. T. H. Martin of territorial headquarters will be chairman at the settlement party, and a group of Army musicians will give the program. Santa Claus will visit both parties, which are financed by current kettle donations.

Will Greet Doctors.

Doctors who volunteer their services at the settlement will be entertained with their families at a settlement party at 8 o'clock on Christmas eve. There will be a corps party on Christmas eve, also. The Englewood corps Home league will entertain members and friends at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, and the corps Sunday school will celebrate Friday evening.

Holiday observance at the corps at 1138 West 59th street will open with the Scandinavian service, Jul-otta, at 6 o'clock Christmas morning. The corps will have a carol service Wednesday evening. A Sunday school party is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening; Girl Guards of the corps will celebrate at 8 o'clock Friday evening.

There will be a Christmas tree party for neighborhood children at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. And another carol service will take place at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, and a candlelighting ceremony at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening.

At Chicago Lawn.

Festivities at the Chicago Lawn corps, 3301 West 62d place, begin with a party at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Corps leaders will be hosts to Army members and friends at the Clearing outpost, 6343 South Central avenue, at 8 o'clock Friday evening.

A Christmas pageant with a musical background, given by the young people of the corps and outpost, will be given each evening. Gifts and candy will be distributed to children at both events. Maj. Arvid Hamilton commands the corps and supervises the outpost.

Capt. Eric Ekstrom, commander at the Roseland corps, 115 East 111th street, has announced a Jul-otta service there at 6 o'clock Christmas morning. The Rev. John Ward of the Baptist Old People's home will be the speaker. Col. William H. Barrett, chief secretary for the central states territory of the Salvation Army, will speak at the Roseland corps at 8 o'clock Friday evening. Old country holiday observances will be presented in a special program there at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

INFANTS' CLASS SAVES PENNIES FOR YULE GIFT

The infants' class at St. Paul's Episcopal church, 4945 South Dorchester avenue, will hold its "Little Shoes for Little Feet" ceremony at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the class, all under 6 years old, will place on the altar two baby stockings, each of which will contain a check for $25 and which will represent a year's savings of pennies, nickels, and dimes.

After the ceremony the checks will be delivered to the stockyards district office of the United Charities where they will be used to buy shoes for needy children.

Brighten Christmas Party

CHILD DANCERS, ACTORS TO OFFER PARK PROGRAMS

Three Parties Planned on Southwest Side.

Chicago's parks join other Chicago agencies in the observance of the holiday season with parties and special entertainments. It is customary for all parks to note the time of year in some manner, and several supervisors have announced parties.

A Christmas party will take place at Cornell square, 51st and Wood streets, at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. Children of the park classes will give a play, "The Toymaker's Doll." Members of the park dancing classes will present specialty numbers. These performers include Dorothy Pichal, Arline Halyka, Lorraine Siska, Helen Lach, and Marge Matzkamin. Robert Wach is Cornell supervisor.

Program by 50 Dancers.

A Yule party at Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue, is set for 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. The event will be in the park gymnasium and will be for those enrolled in park crafts, artcraft, and music classes.

Youngsters in the children's classes at Gage park, 55th street and Western avenue, will be entertained in the fieldhouse assembly hall at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Gage Park Woman's club and the Southwest Business Men's association will coöperate with the park staff in providing entertainment and candy for the boys and girls. Children of the Civic Music association will sing and several children will give dances.

At Armour Square.

The children's party at Armour square, 33d street and Shields avenue, will take place at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. The Armour Square Community council and park district will be co-sponsors.

OFFICE WORKERS TEAM UP FOR HOME BUILDING

38 Purchase Acre Tract at Miller, Ind.

A novel plan was unfolded last week for converting an undeveloped part of Miller, Gary's oldest community, into Marquette court, the small home owners' Shangri-La. The plans were made by the Steel Employés Housing Association, Inc., a nonprofit organization formed by 38 white collar workers in the Carnegie-Illinois plant as a means of pooling their resources to build their own homes.

Marquette court will be 12½ acres of hilly, wooded terrain next to the new, modern William A. Wirt public school and a half mile from the beach. All streets will be dead end streets, no two houses will be exactly alike, and trailers, beauty parlors, gas stations, and other commercial ventures will be forbidden. Under the coöperative system the cost to owners is expected to be about 20 per cent less than if they had bought land and built homes individually.

Improving the Land.

Work on improving the land was begun recently. By next spring 20 of the proposed homes will be rising simultaneously and the other 18 dwellings will probably be built within three years. Since the tract has been cut into 60 lots, the association will sell the remaining 22 lots later.

The prolog to the coöperative scheme goes back to a year and a half ago when Willard J. Palmer, a clerk in the metallurgical department, began to yearn for a home. He soon discovered that land prices and the cost of building in Gary were too high for his income bracket. He found, too, that many of his friends wanted to own homes in Gary and were confronted by the same problem. They began talking about some type of joint venture.

Word of the idea soon spread thru the plant and Mr. Palmer and his friends gradually were approached by more than a score of employés from various departments. All were genuinely interested in doing something. After a few meetings, committees were delegated to interview contractors, land companies, appraisers, etc. The plan took shape and the group was incorporated.

They Find Aid.

In its organization and operation, the association received valuable advice from Earl Moore, until recently the plant's general superintendent, and A. M. Roberts, Gary works auditor.

Finally the 12½ acre tract was purchased from the Gary Land company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, at $1,000 an acre. A total of $22,000 is being spent for general improvements, such as sidewalks, sewers, grading, etc., and $2,000 was necessary for other expenses. The land, then, cost the association $36,500. To cover this, stock was sold at $50 a share.

Each member will draw the location of his lot out of a hat. Then the remaining 22 lots will be sold, probably at par value, to outsiders.

Financed by FHA.

The project is financed by the Federal Housing Authority, which requires a down payment of 10 per cent. Most of the members already have paid for their lots, however, according to the association's board of directors.

By building their homes in groups of 10 or more, members will save 10 or 15 per cent on construction costs. They may build any type of home they wish, providing it costs at least $3,500. All members must build within five years, and the style of the house must be passed on by the building committee.

The tract is located between Birch street and Grand boulevard. Streets will enter from Grand or Birch and end in circular courts. Alleys will not be big enough for automobiles or wagons and public utility connections, such as gas mains, light, and telephone wires, will be hooked up from the rear, rather than the front of the residences.

Mr. Palmer is president of the association, assisted by C. L. Meyette, vice president; Miss Vera Newcomb, secretary, and Clayton Ebert, treasurer. The board of directors consists of the above men and Roscoe Stewart, Paul Thomas, Earl Weaver, William Grundeman, and J. G. McCall. They are from the metallurgical, time, engineering, physical testing, industrials relations, and blast furnace electric departments.

HELPING OTHERS TO BE RULE OF ENGLEWOOD CLUB

Citizenship Class to Stress the Idea.

Altruism will keynote 1941 programs of the Englewood Woman's club, 3d district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, according to Mrs. Wirt R. Neel, program chairman. Mrs. Neel says this plan is in response to the "need of education along the lines of understanding sympathy and brotherly love in the chaotic world of today. . . ."

Mrs. Wirt R. Neel.

The American citizenship class will stress altruistic values as compared to love of power and greed. This class meets at 1 o'clock every Monday afternoon at the Englewood Masonic temple. The class leader is Miss Lily Houts.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

The international relations committee has sent a Christmas box for children of South America. Mrs. W. D. Lear is chairman of the committee. The Indian welfare committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. George Spears, has mailed a Christmas box to the mission at Cass Lake, Minn.

Hamilton Park Women.

A party for club members' children and for less fortunate youngsters in the community and those enrolled in the park gymnasium classes will take place at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. Burr Tillstrom, magician, will entertain the boys and girls with his latest feature, "St. George and the Dragon." There will be a Christmas movie, also. Each child will receive a box of candy and fruit. Mrs. Claude A. Biehl, club social chairman, and James H. Lackey, park director, are in charge of the party.

Marquette Manor Women.

A short business meeting, conducted by Mrs. W. C. Hewitt, club president, will take place in Marquette park fieldhouse at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Children and grandchildren of members will be entertained at a party following the business session. Santa Claus will be there and will have a gift for every child.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

The public welfare and Indian welfare committees have been busy with Christmas philanthropies for Oak Forest infirmary, the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children, Park Ridge school, and Indian reservations. Christmas gifts have been provided for 125 men and 50 women at Oak Forest. Children of the Home for Dependent Children at 107th street and Prospect avenue have written letters to Santa Claus. Club members have taken over the letters and are trying to collect the articles requested.

Students at the Park Ridge School for Girls will be remembered with tooth paste, brushes, combs, powder, nail files, sweaters, mittens, and skirts.

Indian welfare committee workers have collected warm clothing for children on reservations, and the club also is sending financial help to the Indians.

Will Live in Texas

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Caley, 9721 South Winchester avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Margaret Jane, to Robert J. Murphy, son of Mrs. Cornelius Murphy of San Antonio, Tex. The ceremony will take place Thursday morning in St. Barnabas' church, 102d street and Longwood drive, and will be followed by a wedding breakfast at the Hotel Shoreland. After a New Orleans honeymoon, the couple will go to San Antonio to make their home. Miss Caley is an alumna of Northwestern university, and Mr. Murphy attended Armour institute.

BESSEMER PARK WILL GIVE TWO YULE PARTIES

Bessemer park, 89th street and South Chicago avenue, will have two Christmas parties tomorrow afternoon. A party for the girls' group between 8 and 14 years old will take place at 2:30 o'clock in the girls' gymnasium. It will consist of entertainment and refreshments.

The party for boys of the same age will be held in the boys' gym under the supervision of James Diamond, men's gym instructor. There will be entertainment and refreshments.

PLAN TABLEAUX ON YULE THEME FOR JUNIOR CLUB

Chicago Lawn Unit Will Meet Tomorrow.

Members of the Chicago Lawn Junior Woman's club, are keeping up club activities along with the preholiday rush. They'll meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in Marquette park fieldhouse, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue. Mrs. J. Stanley Fagerstrom, program chairman, has announced an evening planned around the Christmas season.

Four departments will present Christmas tableaux. The departments and pictures are: Philanthropy, "The Nativity"; American home, "The Madonna and Child"; drama, "Enchanting Christmas Moments"; literature, "'Twas the Night Before Christmas;" music, "The Carolers," and art, "The Town Crier."

Englewood juniors have been planning social activities for the new year. Their calendar includes an informal dancing party for the last of January, a roller skating party in February, and a bridge party and fashion show in the early spring. A formal spring ball will climax the year's program.

Miss Barbara Houts, president, is to present a money making scheme to the club at an early meeting. The plan calls for the division of the organization into five groups, each of which will work on a project to raise funds for philanthropy.

'Y' RESIDENTS TO GIVE PARTY FOR 50 YOUTHS

Fifty worthy boys of the Hyde Park, Oakland and Kenwood communities will be fêted at the annual Christmas party sponsored by residents of the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 East 53d street, tomorrow evening.

Joseph Weisner, chairman of the arrangements committee, said that approximately $200 will be raised in order to provide jackets, games, candy, fruit, nuts, and entertainment for these underprivileged youths.

The program arranged by the committee will consist of a romp in the gym, a swim in the "Y" pool, entertainment by a magician, ice cream and cake, and a visit from Santa Claus.

Heads Dance Group

Miss Mary Margaret O'Flaherty of 3936 West 62d street is a committee chairman for the Skyscraper ball Mundelein college alumnae and students will give Friday evening in the Drake. Miss O'Flaherty is a member of the college of the Student Activities council.

BRANCH LIBRARY BOOK REVIEWS TO BE CONTINUED

The noon hour book reviews have been so successful at Auburn Park branch library, 749 West 79th street, that a new series has been planned to follow the current talks which will end Tuesday. The lectures take place at 12:30 a'clock every Tuesday afternoon.

Reviews will be resumed Jan. 7 with Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls." "The Illinois," by Charles Gray is the Jan. 14 book, and "Fame Is a Spur," by Howard Spring, will be discussed on Jan. 21.

The attendance has been growing, according to Miss Blanche McLaughlin, librarian. A record of 24 came to hear the talk on the coldest day of the season. Neighborhood store clerks, teachers, bankers, and laborers have been noted in the audience.

Kozminski P.-T. A. to Hold a Meeting and Play Cards

Members of the Kozminski Parent-Teacher association will meet at the Home Arts guild, 205 North Michigan avenue, at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning. A food demonstration will be a feature of the morning program. Luncheon will be served and cards will be played during the afternoon. Mrs. Abe Levinson is chairman of reservations. Mrs. Leo R. Cohen is cochairman.

Eiche Turners of Roseland to Hold Yuletide Festival

The annual Christmas festival and gymnastic exhibition of the Eiche Turners of Roseland will take place this afternoon and evening at Turner hall, 165 East 115th street. Gym classes with members ranging in age from 4 to 65 years will give exhibitions of skill. Children will sing Christmas carols. Dancing will follow the gymnastics. William Modrow of 11624 Wallace street is president of the Eiche Turners, who recently celebrated their golden jubilee as an organization.

DEFENSE NEEDS STRESSED IN NEW R. O. T. C. CLASSES

Tilden Youths Train for Officers' Duties.

With the advent of selective service, the increased defense program of the army, and the need for trained officers to handle new recruits, more and more attention is being paid to the development of potential officers in the R. O. T. C. units of the nation's high schools.

In the Chicago High schools that boast R. O. T. C. units, careful and thoro training has become the order of the day in an effort to instill in high school youths the basic principles of army work. Altho the graduate of a high school R. O. T. C. unit is given no official ranking, he does possess a grounding in army work that has proved invaluable when he is called to training.

Have Special Classes.

Typical of the work being done in Chicago High schools is the practical training system for officers established at Tilden Technical High school. Under the direction of Technical Sergt. Michael J. Moore, military instructor, the unit has set up a series of training schools that covers thoroly the various duties of commissioned and noncommissioned cadet officers.

These training schools have been made compulsory for the cadet officers, for in them they learn the fundamentals of the position they hold. The schools are divided into three general classifications: Officers and saber school, noncommissioned officers school, and guidon and guide school.

The officer class meets three days each week and covers principally drill, command, and theory. This class is under the direction of Maj. Robert Szyman and Capt. Arthur Adams. Enrolled in the school are:

William Deeley, Emmanuel Riff, Chester Nelson, Edward Osajda, Steve Antal, Owen Bush, Curtis Galinski, Herman Jackson, George Katsaros, Henry Knutson, Carl Labus, Marshall McGinnis, Jack Payne, Joseph Tague, Ned Vuchomanovich, and Earl Wilson.

Training in Saber Use.

For those officers who carry a saber, a school of instruction in the manual of its use has been started. Under the direction of Maj. Walter Landini and Capt. Arthur Adams, commissioned and picked noncommissioned officers meet every evening after classes to practice use of the saber. Enrolled in the class are:

Three evenings a week the noncommissioned officers gather for instruction in drill, command, and theory, so that they may be well versed in the subjects when they are called to duty as an officer. Much of the unit's success depends on the efficiency of its noncoms. This class includes:

School for Sergeants.

To produce expert guidon sergeants a school has been set up for the best man in each company, in which expert instruction is given under the direction of Capt. Emmanuel Riff. The cadets were chosen for their neatness, dependability, and knowledge of drill and theory. Enrolled in the school are Lavere Doyle, John Pauly, Jack Pomy, Russell Rune, Donald Ayers, Eugene Bladowski, James Dial, and Melvin Kopping.

To handle crowds during parades and reviews, a group of cadets is being trained in a guide school. The men work out twice a week under the direction of Capt. Riff. The guide roster includes William Workman, Robert Ashton, Jeffery Barnes, Robert Brown, John Kleinow, Robert Marikas, Robert Nelson, Dick Nisely, Robert Pfister, Perry Ringer, Wesley Sehnert, and Frank Scesney.

Study Good Fellow Music

Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for Chicago public schools, and Joseph R. Taylor, Lindblom High school choral conductor, study a musical composition in preparation for the Good Fellow choral sing tomorrow afternoon in Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and W-G-N. Seven high school choirs and Wright Junior college singers will take part in the program.

On Dance Committee

The St. Barnabas Young People's club holiday dance will take place Saturday evening at the Del Prado hotel, and Miss Kathie Welsh of 10340 South Prospect avenue is assisting on the dance committee.

Off the Trail

with HAROLD SMITH

Recent thawing has removed most of the ice from the south and southwest side horse trails, correcting a condition that marred enjoyment of riding for several days.

Mrs. M. C. [Eugenia] Cannaven, 7206 Crandon avenue, recently brought her mare, Princess McDonald, to Keith Line's Midway Riding academy. Previously the horse was kept in Gene Fletcher's private stables near Naperville.

Mrs. Fred E. Huff has moved one of her three horses to Midway from the Olympia Fields Country club, where she rides during the summer. The horse she chose for her winter riding in the city was Laddie Boy, a walk-trot gelding.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe, an ardent horseman, usually rides on the bridle paths in the vicinity of the South Shore Country club. His three-gaited horse is called Honey Dare.

Harry Strickland, manager of the South Shore stables, reports a revived interest in jumpers among his riders. Recent converts to this branch of horsemanship include Patricia Poister, Mary and Frances McGuire of 4822 Ellis avenue, and Sally Miller of 4926 Kimbark avenue. Miss Miller recently brought two new thorobreds to the stable.

SOLDIERS TO AIR CHURCH SERVICE ON W-G-N TODAY

A van of trucks from Fort Sheridan and a fleet of military cars from Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., will roll up to W-G-N's studios this morning to unload United States army soldiers and airmen who will participate in a unique Chicagoland Church hour. The special services, under the direction of Roland B. Bach, assistant chaplain of the 6th corps area, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 a. m. over W-G-N.

The Chanute Wing chorus, a group of 25 aviators, will sing camp songs. The Fort Sheridan chorus of 25 voices, under the direction of Prof. Carl Carlstedt, also will sing on the program.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel will extend Christmas greetings to camps thruout the 6th corps area which extends over Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The caravan of Fort Sheridan trucks will be accompanied by a motorcycle escort in order to speed up the return trip, for the chorus is scheduled for a camp program an hour after the W-G-N broadcast.

The Chicagoland Church hour is a regular Sunday morning feature on which city churches of all denominations are invited to broadcast. The series is under the direction of Dr. John Evans, religion editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

CAROLS FROM 7 NATIONS SLATED BY NORTHERNERS

Carols from seven nations will highlight Northerners' special Christmas eve program to be heard from 9:30 to 10 p. m. over W-G-N.

Irene Verner, soloist, and the Northerners' octet will sing "Irish Wren Song" from Ireland, "The Holly and the Ivy" from France," the Wassail Song" from England, "Mexican Shelter Carol" from Mexico, "The Christmas Bells" from Italy, "When the Saviour Christ Was Born" from Poland, and the American "Shepherd's Story."

Other program highlights will be Miss Verner's solo presentation of Mozart's "Allelulia" and the octet's "Sing a Song of Sunbeams," "Sleeping Beauty Waltz," and "Nocturne."

ANNA NEAGLE IN 'NO, NO, NANETTE' ON CHICAGO HOUR

Movie's Radio Premiere on W-G-N Thursday.

Anna Neagle, distinguished British actress, will make her second appearance of the year on W-G-N's main studio next Thursday evening when the radio première of her newest musical picture, R-K-O's "No, No, Nanette," will be presented on In Chicago Tonight. The picture will open at the Palace theater Christmas eve.

Last spring Miss Neagle came to Chicago and was starred in a radio adaptation of her picture, "Irene," which was an exclusive feature of W-G-N and the Mutual network. The radio version of "No, No, Nannette" will be presented from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

All-Star Cast with Her.

An all-star cast of Chicago radio actors will be featured with Miss Neagle. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will provide the lively musical back drop required for this musical show.

When Miss Neagle came to America two years ago, she was asked by Hollywood producers to make herself known to American audiences. She followed this advice with customary energy and traveled a total of 46,000 miles by air making personal appearances.

Makes Two Musicals.

Into nearly every state in the nation Anna Neagle followed her first American film, "Nurse Edith Cavell," to appear before the audiences that acclaimed her work on the screen. As Anna Neagle, herself, the versatile British girl was even more enthusiastically received.

As a result of her air junkets to meet America in person, the public clamored to see Anna Neagle as her singing, dancing, personable self in a movie. "Irene" and "No, No Nanette" were the results of this demand.

CHRISTMAS NOTE ON CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Two Yule Songs.

A program of familiar music blended with Christmas favorites will be presented on the new Chicagoland Concert hour tomorrow evening. Two Yuletide solos by Marion Claire will feature the concert, which will be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Michael Wilkomirski, W-G-N concertmeister, will be the instrumental soloist.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker of the evening. Col. McCormick has announced that his weekly talks will be devoted principally to vital, close at hand topics, to "things which we all want to have accomplished but which we have not yet found means of achieving."

Two Holiday Songs.

For her two holiday season solos, Miss Claire will sing "Hail Ye Tyme of Holliedayes" and "Away in a Manger." Miss Claire also will join the augmented chorus in presenting the evening finale, the waltz from Oscar Straus' "Waltz Dream." Wilkomirski will play Schumann's "Traumerei."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the Symphony orchestra in presentations of Straus' "Emperor Waltz," Mozart's "Minuet in G Minor" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor."

The Complete Program.

The program:

Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor....Brahms
Orchestra.
[a] Hail Ye Tyme of Holliedayes. Branscombe

STEELMAKERS TO ADD 40 MUTUAL STATIONS JAN. 5

Employe Talent Show Will Have 91 Outlets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

On Nov. 8, 1937, a small station in Wheeling, W. Va., put on a new program, called Musical Steelmakers. Heralded by a mill whistle this new show featured amateur talent recruited entirely from the ranks of employés of the Wheeling Steel company and members of their families.

The next year Musical Steelmakers expanded to a four station Mutual network, with W-G-N as one of them. This fall the number of stations reached 51.

On Jan. 5, 1941, the mill whistle of the Musical Steelmakers will be heard over 40 additional Mutual stations—bringing the show's regular network to 91 stations.

How It Got Started.

The program got its start when John L. Grimes, executive of the company, discovered that the Welsh, Italian, and Polish stock in Wheeling bought more musical instruments, played more and better music per capita than in any other town in the United States.

Grimes encouraged the development of company entertainment groups; then fathered the first Musical Steelmakers broadcast which headlined employé-family talent. The program grew up in the midst of a wave of amateur shows, but unlike many of these it took permanent root and grew as they went into a decline.

Several of the performers of the first broadcast are still with the Musical Steelmakers of today. Tommy Whitley, who began as saxophonist in the band, is now leader of the orchestra. The Old Timer, popular master of ceremonies who regales listeners with his Scottish twang, also is among the faithful performers who have been on the show since its inception.

Typical Program Today.

Typical of the Musical Steelmakers shows will be the one to be broadcast at 4 p. m. today. From Beech Bottom, W. Va., seven girls will come to the stage of the Capitol theater in Wheeling to headline the broadcast with a holiday inspired presentation of "The Birthday of a King." The youngsters—Erma Maley, Shirley Lee, Martha Lydick, Ina Clair de Nichols, Marjorie Kull, Marjorie Wallace, and Shirley Stuck—all are children of employés.

As her Christmas contribution, Dorothy Ann Crowe will present "O, Little Town of Bethlehem." Whitley and the orchestra will add to the holiday spirit with "Siberian Sleigh Ride." The Steele Sisters and Regina Colbert will sing "Winter Wonderland," and Ardenne White will present "Sacred Hour."

Poet Priest to Be Guest of Farm and Home Hour

Rev. Francis C. Young, nationally known poet priest, pastor of St. Juliana parish, Oceola and Touhy avenues, Chicago, will be heard in his 13th annual Christmas broadcast, which is known as "Father Young and His Christmas Carols and Poems," over a coast to coast NBC network at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday. He will make a guest appearance on the National Farm and Home hour.

Willie Howard Is Guest on Mutual Show of Week

Willie Howard, dialect comedian, will be guest on the Show of the Week from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Buddy Clark will match wits with the wise-cracking funnyman. Vincent Lopez and his orchestra and Ann Barrett, jitterbugger, as well as Buddy Clark, who sings tenor, will provide music.

'Second Shepherd's Play' on Great Plays Hour

Adaptations by Ranald R. MacDougall of the "Second Shepherd's Play," attributed to Don Randall, a monk of Chester Abbey in Chester, England, and believed to be England's first comedy, and of the Wakefield "Nativity," an elaborate verse play which originated in Coventry but whose author is unknown, will be presented on the Great Plays broadcast at 2 p. m. today over WENR.

'THE NEW MOON' NEXT OPERETTA IN AIR THEATER

Miss Claire, Thibault to Be Starred.

Next Saturday's presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air will bring Sigmund Romberg's operetta "The New Moon" to W-G-N and Mutual listeners from 9 to 10 p. m. "The New Moon" is the third operetta by Sigmund Romberg to be produced by the Theater of the Air this season.

Two radio favorites, Marion Claire and Conrad Thibault, will star in the leading rôles. Miss Claire is one of the best known sopranos in the light opera field.

Thibault, who has supported Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King" and "Rio Rita" in this season's Theater of the Air productions, has gained fame in recent years as a radio baritone. He studied in New York and Philadelphia, making his debut with the Philadelphia Grand Opera company and later singing leading rôles in the Chicago and San Francisco companies.

The W-G-N concert orchestra and augmented chorus will be conducted by Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company. The entire operetta is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N.

The operetta is noteworthy as containing some of the best of Romberg's music—in particular, the crooning melody, "Lover, Come Back to Me," also "One Kiss," "Wanting You," "Softly as in a Morning Sunrise," and the smashing "Stout-Hearted Men."

Churchill Christmas Gift, Subject of Review Stand

An authority on international law and an expert in British history will discuss Great Britain's war aims on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Kenneth W. Colegrove, chairman of Northwestern's department of political science, and Clyde L. Grose, professor of history, will be speakers. Because Prime Minister Winston Churchill is expected to clarify Britain's war objectives soon this week, the program has been entitled "Churchill's Christmas Gift."

Santa's Helper

BASEMENT ROOM IS BENEFIT TO ENTIRE FAMILY

Heavy Duty Floor Helps in Practicality.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Does a basement game room and recreation retreat pay its way?

We'll say so—where a recreation room is definitely slanted to serve all the family.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Milliner, 1216 William street, River Forest, there is just such a room. It possesses those assets which contribute to its popularity and success. It is all things to all the family, an extra room which relieves the living room above from need to serve as study, dance floor, game room, and parlor.

There is crying need for such space in many homes not palatial in size. Where people are heard to say: "We had our basement all fixed up and after our first housewarming party, no one uses it," the fact is often revealed that it is very nicely furnished indeed, but not abounding in homey provisions for mixed ages, and the use of various family members.

Floor for Dancing.

There was no economy of ideas in the finishing of Mr. Milliner's basement recreation room.

Because a dance floor could be used, Mr. Milliner had the floor covered with a heavy composition material, impregnated with asphalt. This is a type of floor often seen on sun-decks in recently built or remodeled homes. It will take a great deal of hard wear. It is dark green and varnished and waxed for dancing.

Because a quiet room was desired and because there was a certain dampness in the air on occasions, the outer walls were furred before putting on the plank type wall finish, in natural light shade, and sound absorbing tile ceiling was installed. There is a large brick fireplace, and the furnishings are informal and appropriate to the family use of the room.

Space for Extra Room.

Some new homes will be built next year without basements, and with utility room and storage space on the first floor. Other homes will be built with what we call a half basement, a shallow space about half the depth of the usual basement, large enough to house the home heating plant and with room besides for some storage area.

However, conventional size basements will appear in the greater number of homes with opportunity below "deck" for heating and laundry facilities, generous supply of storage room for household tools and yard equipment, and then some space besides for an extra room, if desired, at time of building or later.

Such an extra room—a playroom for stormy days, a recreation and game room for people of different ages and tastes—justifies the expense of finishing it. There is common sense back of its appearance on the family scene.

Stairs Should Be Safe.

Take a room of average size, and the larger the better if the family is a growing one, and the chances are the windows are average size, or should be. And the stairs should be safe and well lighted, and provided with a rail.

There are wall boards and insulating boards which can be left in their natural finish, and the trim can be inexpensive and painted. Or it can be of some hard type board which isn't expensive and yet has a nice rich look. If such games as pingpong are to be played it is well to play safe and keep the lights flush with the ceiling.

If there are young children, a side of a wall can be given over to them, with a play table which opens out when they want to use it and then drops against the wall when their bedtime arrives and other family members take possession. Wall cupboards are valuable for storage purposes.

Bar with Outlets.

A snack or counter refreshment bar at one end of the room is a big drawing card. It can have a plug-in strip at the back for electric percolator, toaster, etc. A shelf overhead can hold decorative dishes and glassware, and a cupboard underneath can accommodate food staples, linens, silver and other needed "kitchenette" accessories.

Or if there is some one in a family with a special hobby, and precious little room in the house proper to indulge it, then some corner of such finished space can probably be found to solve THAT problem.

Holiday Harmonizers

The Steele Sisters get their heads together for a little close harmony in loveliness. It's the same effect when they blend their voices in a little close harmony over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 4 to 4:30 p. m. each Sunday. The girls are featured on the Musical Steelmakers show. Left to right, they are Lucille Bell, Harriett Drake, and Lois Mae Nolte.

STUDENTS MERGE TALENTS IN AN ART CALENDAR

62 Wood Cuts Used for Illustrations.

The first joint project of all Chicago high school art departments was published last week in the form of an engagement calender illustrated with 62 woodcuts made by students in the various schools.

Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art for the schools, was in charge of assembling the material, and said that the first edition of 2,500 was already sold and that a second printing of 1,000 had been contracted for.

The four district art supervisors also helped in the work. They are Miss Jane Palczynski, Mrs. Ellen Link, Miss Mabel Williams, and Miss Agnes Fenerty.

In a general way the subject matter of each woodcut follows the season in which it is used. In the summer pages there are farm scenes, scarecrows, swimming, and other pastimes. In December there are Christmas designs, and during the school months pictures of student activities. The scene for the first week in September, the opening of school, portrays a boy in jail.

Makes Cover Design.

The cover design, a picture of a farm yard, was done by Theodore Frano of Von Steuben High school.

School representatives who made wood cuts for the calendar are:

Harper: Ann Regin, Betty Lantry, Freeman Elliott, Jean Baltusnik; Hyde Park: Virginia Walker; Lindblom: Florence Baim; Phillips: Doris Sigmon; Parker: Elizabeth Hegin.

Kelly: Stanley Kazdailis; DuSable: Amelia Stewart, Lilford Starcks, James Cadell; Calumet: Shirley Meyer, Jeanette Loring, Loren Fry, Moynette Berglund, Marian Ogren; Hirsch: Ethel Erickson, Ruth Holman, Jeanne Fletcher, Adele Deam.

Other Student Artists.

Lane: D. Kolenda, Frank Fritzmann, Norman Harris. Lake View: Margaret Camardo, Lorraine Gross. Sullivan: Peggie Kirsten.

Farragut: Ray Henning. Manley: Eleanor Sughero, Beatrice Starr, Helen Patt. Flower: Evelyn Snoka, Evelyn Kalita. Marshall: James Angarola.

De Soto Isabellans to Play Santa Claus to Orphans

De Soto council, Ladies of Isabella, has placed an order for skates, cameras, and other toys with Santa Claus and he will deliver them in person at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Angel Guardian orphanage, 2001 Devon avenue. Each child also will receive a stocking filled with nuts, fruit, and candy.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 23.

Dip the ends of cut poinsettia stems in boiling water or sear over a flame. It does no good to use chemicals altho one or two will preserve the flowers for a day or so, but no longer. Under ordinary conditions most cut flowers will keep with only an inch or two of water. Experiment with the use of chemicals, the amount of water to use, temperature, etc.

Growing plants without soil or in water and chemicals offers opportunity to try the new method and compare it with plants growing in soil. Soil, at best, simply holds the plant in place, anchors it securely, but the food must be taken up when it is in solution. Soils are often deficient in food elements and these must be supplied.

The difficulty when growing plants in rooms is usually a lack of light or sun, hot, dry atmosphere, a stuffy condition, a lack of knowledge of how and when to water, and often starvation.

Tuesday, Dec. 24.

Sometimes a leaky gas jet or stove will cause plant leaves to drop. The Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers are susceptible to gas. Keep the soil moist for dry soil also causes leaves to wither.

About the only way to get rid of poison ivy is to dig it out bodily and burn it. Keep away from the smoke when it is burning.

If young trees have not been protected against the attacks of rodents, protect them without delay. Tar paper, small meshed screening, or other material can be used. Mulch bulb beds if it has not been done.

Wednesday, Dec. 25.

Cuttings of rose stems can be used for propagating purposes. Cut just below a leaf or node, leaving one leaf above. Place the cuttings in a box of sand or sandy soil and cover with glass. Water well the first time and sprinkle sufficiently to keep moist. Shade for a few days, but remove at night. Pot when rooted. In spring, plant out in the garden.

Cuttings also can be made of the favorite chrysanthemum if large specimen blooms are wanted. For cutting material, use the growths that come from around the base, cut back the leaves to avoid excessive transpiration, place in sand, and carry on when rooted.

Cuttings can be made as late as early June if small pot plants are desired. These make nice plants for table use.

Thursday, Dec. 26.

Look over your plants; see that they are well watered and have good light conditions. The terrarium may need a bit of air to keep out excessive moisture. Keep the poinsettia plant at about 60 degrees and never permit it to be subjected to draughts, or the leaves will turn yellow and drop.

It hardly pays to keep the plant over for another season, but one may attempt it as an experiment. After flowering, let it rest by withholding water; the leaves will fall and the stems look like dead sticks.

Set pot and plant in basement until spring when it can be cut back, repotted in good soil, and plunged in a sunny spot in the garden. Cuttings can be made of the young growths that appear along the stems.

Friday, Dec. 27.

Keep the window boxes filled with evergreens watered. Mulch rhododendrons with about six inches of leaves. It is a good plant to make a new cut at the end of the Christmas tree and stand in a bucket of sand saturated with a 10 per cent sugar solution. This will preserve the needles and keep them from falling.

Do not topdress lawns with stable manure because weed seeds may be introduced. A heavy application will likely kill the grass.

Use little, if any, fertilizer to house plants on dull days. Use a complete plant food when the plants are in active growth. Commercial foods are best and especially where organic manures cannot be had or are difficult to obtain.

Saturday, Dec. 28.

An aquarium in the home will interest every member of the family. Success depends on maintaining a proper balance between the fish and the plant life. Stock the aquarium with fish and water loving plants in such proportion that each will supply the needs of the other.

Cover the bottom with coarse sand; an inch layer will suffice. Plant in it a collection of plants like the vallisneria, sagittaria, cabomba, parrot's feather, or any other that is obtainable.

Scavengers may be added, such as fresh water snails, tadpoles; a single snail and two tadpoles will be enough for each gallon of water.

OFFICE WORKERS TEAM UP FOR HOME BUILDING

38 Buy Acreage at Miller, Ind.

A novel plan was unfolded last week for converting an undeveloped part of Miller, Gary's oldest community, into Marquette court, the small home owners' Shangri-La. The plans were made by the Steel Employés Housing association, Inc., a nonprofit organization formed by 38 white collar workers in the Carnegie-Illinois plant as a means of pooling their resources to build their own homes.

Willard Palmer.

Marquette court will be 12½ acres of hilly, wooded terrain next to the new, modern William A. Wirt public school and a half mile from the beach. All streets will be dead end streets, no two houses will be exactly alike, and trailers, beauty parlors, gas stations, and other commercial ventures will be forbidden. Under the coöperative system the cost to owners is expected to be about 20 per cent less than if they had bought land and built homes individually.

Improving the Land.

Work on improving the land was begun recently. By next spring 20 of the proposed homes will be rising simultaneously and the other 18 dwellings will probably be built within three years. Since the tract has been cut into 60 lots, the association will sell the remaining 22 lots later.

The prolog to the coöperative scheme goes back to a year and a half ago when Willard J. Palmer, a clerk in the metallurgical department, began to yearn for a home. He soon discovered that land prices and the cost of building in Gary were too high for his income bracket. He found, too, that many of his friends wanted to own homes in Gary and were confronted by the same problem. They began talking about some type of joint venture.

Word of the idea soon spread thru the plant and Mr. Palmer and his friends gradually were approached by more than a score of employés from various departments. All were genuinly interested in doing something. After a few meetings, committees were delegated to interview contractors, land companies, appraisers, etc. The plan took shape and the group was incorporated.

They Find Aid.

In its organization and operation, the association received valuable advice from Earl Moore, until recently the plant's general superintendent, and A. M. Roberts, Gary works auditor.

Finally the 12½ acre tract was purchased from the Gary Land company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, at $1,000 an acre. A total of $22,000 is being spent for general improvements, such as sidewalks, sewers, grading, etc., and $2,000 was necessary for other expenses. The land, then, cost the association $36,500. To cover this, stock was sold at $50 a share.

Each member will draw the location of his lot out of a hat. Then the remaining 22 lots will be sold, probably at par value, to outsiders. Before this the valuation of each lot will have been determined by establishing a mean between the appraisals of three neutral experts. Each lot is expected to be worth slightly more or less than $600, depending on its location. Members may trade with one another after the drawing.

Financed by FHA.

The project is financed by the Federal Housing Authority, which requires a down payment of 10 per cent. Most of the members already have paid for their lots, however, according to the association's board of directors.

By building their homes in groups of 10 or more, members will save 10 or 15 per cent on construction costs. They may build any type of home they wish, providing it costs at least $3,500. All members must build within five years, and the style of the house must be passed on by the building committee.

The tract is bounded by Birch and Henry streets and Grand boulevard and the railroad right of way. Streets will enter from Grand, Henry, and Birch and end in circular courts. Alleys will not be big enough for automobiles or wagons and public utility connections, such as gas mains, light, and telephone wires, will be hooked up from the rear, rather than the front of the residences.

Mr. Palmer is president of the association, assisted by C. L. Meyette, vice president; Miss Vera Newcomb, secretary, and Clayton Ebert, treasurer. The board of directors consists of the above men and Roscoe Stewart, Paul Thomas, Earl Weaver, William Grundeman, and J. G. McCall. They are from the metallurgical, time, engineering, physical testing, industrials relations, and blast furnace electric departments. All members are 30 to 45 years old.

Strolling Christmas Carolers for South Side

Among the many young carolers whose voices will echo thruout the south side this week are these pupils of the St. Cyril grammar school, sporting brightly colored costumes and lanterns. Together with many other groups from neighboring schools organized by Jackson park, they will wander thru the streets of the community tomorrow afternoon, as well as in the park. They also will be heard at the La Rabida sanitarium. The children are (left to right), front: Margaret Reid, Eleanor Durkin, and Geraldine Walsh, and rear, John Francis Payne, Jack Helmick, and Mickey Goggin. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BERNICE MATTHIESEN PRESIDES FIRST TIME AS BETHEL QUEEN

Miss Bernice Matthiesen presided for the first time in her rôle of honored queen of Bethel No. 13, Order of Job's Daughters, at a Christmas party last night in the Midway Masonic temple, 61st street and Cottage Grove avenue. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. J. Matthiesen, 7630 South Park avenue.

Other new officers are Carolyn Hipsher, Miriam Petty, Phyllis Minter, Bernice Ready, Vera Daniels, Virginia Mero, Grace Ohman, Jean Sedlack, Lois Lampert, Lucille Gass, Marion Wright, Fayre Glaver, Irene Brown, Marjorie Aborn, Harriet Ward, Flora Jane Perkins, Audrey Rettke, and Norma Jean Glover.

Seven candidates were initiated at the meeting and there was a collection of canned food for the children of the Protestant Child Haven.

SOUTH SIDERS TAKE VACATIONS IN SUNNY SOUTH

South siders continued to leave Chicago by auto, train, and plane last week in search of warmer climates. Others were scheduled to begin holiday vacations in Florida or the far west during the next few days.

M. B. Read, 6529 Kenwood avenue, left by auto last Wednesday for Las Cruces, N. M., expecting to stay there until Jan. 3. He was accompanied by his wife, who has made the journey with him many times before. They intend to rest and visit with Prof. M. A. Thomas of New Mexico State college.

Among the south siders who already are sunning themselves in St. Petersburg, Fla., are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bufe, Miss Elizabeth Faulkner, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ziebell, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Burton, Miss Lila Erwin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Herman, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Mullen, Mrs. Bertha Tennie, and Mrs. Emma Wallace.

RUSSELL SQUARE CLUBS UNITE TO AID NEEDY FOLK

Group Directs Work Over Holidays.

More than a dozen persons are coöperating with the Russell Square Community committee in raising funds to provide for the community's needy families during the holiday season.

Sylvester Lulinski, truant officer of the neighborhood parochial and public schools, is in charge of the distribution. He is assisted by the technical and lay staff of the committee in the study and choice of needy families. Representatives of social and religious groups will make up the baskets of food, toys, and other articles.

Work with Fund Aids.

They are working closely with the local representatives of Mayor Kelly's Christmas fund, the School Children's Aid society, and other agencies operating in the community. The local members of the mayor's fund are Michael Bulawski, Ray Kozlowski, Jack Przbylinski, John Script, Anthony Kamraczewski, and Steve Mazurek.

Local groups aiding in the enterprise are the Turrets Pleasure club, the Bu-Chi Pleasure club, Rolling Echoes, senior and junior Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish, the St. Michael's Girls sodality, the Brandon Speed Boys Athletic club, the Beta Epsilon fraternity, the Harry Wegner's Jolly club, the Merry Moods, the Sullivan P.-T. A., and the Sisters of Nazareth of the St. Michael's school.

800 on Committee.

More than 800 residents of the community are now members of the Russell Square Community committee, whose area extends from 79th street to 86th street and from Yates avenue to Lake Michigan. The committee, which was incorporated in 1938, has a recreational program for 3,000 children and adults and sponsors the St. Michael's Boys club.

Business Students to Give Dolls to Needy Children

Ten south side students at the Institute of Modern Business will begin distributing dolls to needy children tomorrow for Christmas. Scores of dolls and dozens of extra sets of dresses were prepared by the girls during their recess periods for the last two months. The girls are June Busch, Patricia Anne Crowe, Suzanne Daleanes, Margaret Knirk, Frances Hoffman, Jean Miller, Anna Mae Moran, Frances Rosenborg, Shirley Van Reeth, and Patricia Wilkus.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

YOU can't scare Leurs F. Stevens of 8131 Merrill avenue. He considers himself a lucky boy, even tho he was 13 years old recently on Friday the 13th, has 13 letters in his name, and 13 letters in his address. He also has been reminded that his sister, Jane, was born on Aug. 13, and his dog, Laddie, on Sept. 13. It doesn't mean a thing, he maintains.

The Business Girls' club of the South Chicago Y. W. C. A. will give a benefit Christmas party for small children at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the "Y." Main attractions will be a huge tree and Santa Claus. On the committee are Ruth Fritz, Dorothy Cook, and Cecilia Strobot.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN COLLINS, 226 East 76th street, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently with a party attended by 60 relatives and friends. Mr. Collins, who was on the South Park police force for 25 years, was born in Chicago. His wife, Annie, was born in Ireland. They have three sons, two daughters and seven grandchildren. The sons are John, a police officer, of 6926 Wabash avenue; William of 5201 South Union avenue, and Joseph, who lives at home. The daughters are Mrs. Harry Miller, 222 East 76th street, and Mrs. Michael Scahill, 7043 South Eberhart avenue.

Another golden wedding was observed recently by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen Barton, 5424 Cornell avenue. The Bartons were born in Marion, Ill., and married in Murphysboro, Ill. They have lived in Chicago for 32 years. Mr. Barton is a retired inspector of stations and transfers for the Illinois Central railroad.

Mrs. Mary K. Sheehan, ticket agent for the Illinois Central railroad in South Chicago, retired last week after 27 years of continuous service. She began her years with the road on Oct. 9, 1913, while her husband, Peter, was a freight agent there. He retired after 52½ years of employment in 1932 and died four years ago. Mrs. Sheehan lives at 9050 South Baltimore avenue.

THE Biesel family is "arty" in the real sense of the word. Fred Biesel and his wife, Frances, who live at 5542 Dorchester avenue, are both exhibiting their work in the current art exhibit at the clubwomen's bureau in Mandel Brothers store. Mr. Biesel's father also is a well known artist and Mrs. Biesel's sister, Gertrude Strain, has been an art patron for many years. Mr. Biesel is assistant state director of the Illinois unit of the Federal Art project.

SEEK TO REMEDY DANGERS AT GARY ROAD JUNCTION

Motor Club Scans Plan for U. S. 12 and 20.

Special committees to solve certain traffic problems in northern Indiana were named at the third meeting of the new Lake County Area council of the Chicago Motor club recently in Gary.

No. 1 puzzle is the junction of U. S. 12 and U. S. 20 on the outskirts of Gary. The committee for this consists of Harold Moore of the club's traffic engineering department; Laurence Kane, city traffic engineer of Gary; Otto Gray, chairman of the Gary traffic commission; Carl Taylor, captain of Gary police, and W. P. Cottingham, secretary of the city plan commission. It will consider first a channelization plan designed to use all available space at the junction, prevent head-on collisions, and make it easy for drivers to follow the route they wish without interfering with each other's progress.

Seek Uniform Lights.

Another committee, headed by Harold Van Dusen of the Gary Post-Tribune, will seek a uniform program on signal lights, traffice markers, and other aids, in all cities in the county. The group was instructed particularly to study the arrangement of globes in a traffic signal. The national code specifies that red should be at the top.

Members of the committee are Charles Hobbs of the motor club's Gary office; D. C. McClellan, Gary Optimist club; Walter D. Conroy, chief of police in East Chicago; Thomas J. Martinson, chief of police in Hammond, and W. L. Farquharson, Gary Land company.

The council decided to extend its membership into smaller communities of the county. Chairman C. A. Boughner announced that he would name a membership group within a short time.

Mr. Boughner also said that a special committee will be named at the January meeting in Hammond for the proposed superhighway from Chicago to Michigan City—the foremost project on the council's committee.

Urge Curb Extension.

The club's engineers submitted a preliminary report on traffic conditions on Chicago avenue in East Chicago. Their first recommendations included extension of curbs at the intersection of Baring avenue to eliminate the circular form of the sidewalks, which the engineers point out would be dangerous when the state installs traffic signals there.

The report showed that vehicular and pedestrian counts do not justify installation of lights at Chicago avenue and Euclid street. The suggestion was made that street car loading platforms should be considered for pedestrian protection.

Another new project, the channelization of traffic at Wabash, Bridge, and 5th avenues, was accepted by the council. The request was sent to motor club engineers with suggestions to study the right to make turns into Wabash on the red light, so that traffic would not be backed onto the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

SEMINARY PRESIDENT WILL SPEAK BEFORE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Speaker, music, and decoration at Orchestra hall tonight will set off the spirit of the Christmas season. Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester Theological seminary, who will be introduced by the club's president, Clifford W. Barnes, will address the Sunday Evening club on the topic "Bombing Planes and Christmas Carols."

Dr. Albert W. Beaven.

Dr. Beaven held but one pastorate, previous to his present office, that of Lake Avenue Baptist church for 20 years. Under his leadership the membership was doubled and a church plant erected costing more than $250,000. He has served also as president of the Northern Baptist convention, the Federal Council of Churches, and the New York state council of churches. A prolific author, he is perhaps best known for his book "Fireside Talks with the Family Circle."

At the 7 o'clock informal meeting the musical feature will be the singing of carols by 100 children of the Civic Music association under the direction of Max E. Oberndorfer.

Adrian Dominican Sisters Will Be Guests of Alumnae

Chicago chapter of the Alumnae association of Siena Heights college and St. Joseph academy, Adrian, Mich., will entertain the Adrian Dominican Sisters at a Christmas party this afternoon in St. Philip Neri hall, 72d street and Merrill avenue. Mrs. Winifred Bell is program chairman and Miss Helen McCarthy is chairman of the party.

Hundreds of students from six Chicago High schools and one junior college will join voices tomorrow afternoon in the fifth annual Good Fellow Carol Sing. The program of Christmas music will be given in the court between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio from 3:45 to 4:15 o'clock. The first 15 minutes of the program will be broadcast over W-G-N.

School musical organizations taking part include mixed choruses from Lindblom, Hirsch, Senn, Waller, and Steinmetz High schools and Wright Junior college. From Farragut High school will be boys' and girls' choruses, and Austin will be represented by its boys' and girls' glee clubs and senior and junior choirs. The sing will be presented thru the coöperation of Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago public schools.

Carols on Program.

Carols to be sung include the favorites of the Christmas season. They are: "Silent Night," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," "Joy to the World," "Deck the Halls," "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," "The First Noel," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "Here We Come A-Caroling."

Each school group will be under the immediate supervision of its musical directors. The directors are: Austin, Hazel E. Lloyd, Marion McDonaugh, and Edna Pohlmann; Farragut, Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson; Hirsch, Helena L. Kane; Lindblom, Joseph R. Taylor; Senn, Dr. Samuel Burkholder; Steinmetz, Harriet Calverley and Willard L. Groom; Waller, Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, and Wright Junior college, Erhardt Bergstrasser.

Legion of South Shore Plans Yule Party Today

Santa Claus will distribute Christmas stockings and favors at the party for children to be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock by South Shore Legion post headquarters, 2216 East 71st street. Clement Cody is entertainment chairman.

100 Neighborhood Children Guests of Salvation Army

One hundred neighborhood children will be guests of the Grand Crossing corps of the Salvation Army tomorrow afternoon in the corps hall at 909 East 75th street.

CAROL SINGING TO MARK YULE ON SOUTH SIDE

Music to Be Heard in All Areas.

Christmas carols that have been used to celebrate the Yuletide season in Christian countries for more than 1,000 years will echo again thruout the south side and suburbs this week. The carolers, most of whom will be children, will be dressed in robes or costumes. They will represent churches, schools, clubs, parks, and steel plants.

Students from the St. Cyril, Scott, Wadsworth, Hyde Park, and Mt. Carmel schools and Loretto academy will join in singing carols around a huge Christmas tree on the football field at Jackson park beginning at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Ornaments made in artcraft classes will decorate the tree.

Afterward groups of 10 each will visit different parts of the neighborhood and continue their singing. They will wear red and green hoods and caps and carry lanterns.

Steel Workers to Sing.

As in former years, the carolers of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's Gary Works plant will make a tour of hospitals, churches, and orphanages until Christmas day. Dressed in old English costumes, they consist of two groups of eight men, who alternate the appearances. Last Friday they were heard in Chicago's loop. They also appear in Chicago institutions.

Carolers representing Carnegie-Illinois South Works plant in South Chicago are augmented by the Good Fellow club girls' glee club. They will sing in the loop tomorrow. Both plants will be decorated with wreaths and enormous Christmas trees. Most conspicuous decoration at the Gary works is an illuminated 35 foot Santa Clause straddling the underpass at the Broadway entrance. The music played by Howard McNeil, a plant chemist, on the electric organ in Santa's stomach is broadcast for a quarter of a mile.

Sing for Shut-Ins.

The young people of the Ingleside Methodist church will go caroling tonight and on Christmas eve. They will sing for shut-ins at the Jackson Park hospital, Illinois Central hospital, and the Augustana Home for the Aged.

The pre-Christmas ceremonies at the Ingleside church will be climaxed at 4:30 o'clock today when the choir sings "The Adoration" by George Nevin. The senior and young people's choir will participate in the service. An unusual combination of caroling and echoes will be used to open the program. Solo parts will be taken by Mrs. Gladys Houlden, Mrs. Ude Koerner, Mrs. Carl Falk, Albert Stack, and Kenneth Reynolds.

As a prelude to today's 11 o'clock service the junior and angel choirs will sing carols. Choruses from Handel's "Messiah" will be offered during the service.

Candle Light Singing.

Robed carolers will sing by candle light while the congregation is assembling at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon for the vesper hour in the sanctuary of the United Church of Hyde Park. Under the direction of Dr. Philip Mathisen, a pageant entitled "And It Came to Pass" will be presented. The story is built around Longfellow's poem "The Golden Legend" and will be told in seven episodes with costuming, symbolism, and music. Mrs. Charles Robbins, 4829 Kimbark avenue, is general pageant chairman.

The church will use living dioramas to portray the Nativity Tuesday evening at the 53d street and Blackstone avenue entrance. A scripture reading by Dr. George M. Gibson and carols by the choir, accompanied by the organ, will precede the diorama exhibit.

Participating in the pictures will be Harold Blim, Floyd Buck, Dr. Mathisen, Gomer Jones, Marian Shaw, Dan Krogh, Bob Glaves, and Ronald Lorber.

Audience Will Join.

The audience will join in the singing of Christmas carols this evening at the St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran church service for Dolton and Riverdale. "The Story of Christmas," a cantata by H. Alexander Matthews, will be offered by the mixed choir, assisted by the children's chorus of the upper grades. About 120 voices will participate.

The choirs of Bethesda Lutheran church, 105th street and Avenue J, will give their annual Christmas concert and candle light service at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Twelve Christmas anthems will be sung and five soloists will be heard. Gustave Peterson will direct the choirs. The Rev. Oscar Mattson, pastor, will talk on "The Voices at Christmas."

Christmas carols from all countries have been chosen by Fred Cronhelmer, choir master and organist, for the midnight Eucharist service at St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue, Tuesday evening. A boy choir of 50 voices will sing the service beginning with carols at 11 o'clock and continue with the communion service at 11:30 o'clock. In addition to the carols, they will sing Pergolesi's "Glory to

HAMMOND STREET SIGNS.

As one who was obliged to drive thru Hammond recently, let me write an open letter to the city officials or whoever is responsible for not having streets properly marked. I knew where I wanted to go—that is, I had the address—but because I was not familiar with the streets, I had to look for their names. This, it turned out, was unfortunate.

The names are on little signs high up on poles where motorists cannot see them unless they stick their heads about a foot out of the car windows. And even from that angle you can't read the name, simply because the sign is so old and so dirty as to be illegible.

Since the address I looked for was in the downtown area I was forced to drive up and down the streets many times and finally ask a passerby for help. After all, you can't stop you car in heavy traffic, get out and climb a pole to find out where you're going. Or can you?

TRAFFIC LIGHTS NEEDED.

Automobile accidents would decrease if the city would install stop and go lights at Clark street and Archer avenue. One of the many accidents at the corner occurred early Sunday morning.

Two automobile drivers, without the knowledge of danger, collided with such terrific force that one car made two complete turns, landed over a curb, and was finally stopped by iron rails that pierced the front fenders. That accident resulted in the death of one driver and serious injury to two women.

I hope that in the near future lights will be installed for the safety of all.

LAUD'S WABASH "Y."

Here's one person who appreciates the wonderful work the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A. is doing in providing a Santa Claus and a real Christmas party for the poor and needy little colored boys and girls in the south central district. I know a few who are ecstatic at the prospect of attending and I understand there are several hundred more like them. Mr. Arthur and his staff seem to know who are the kids who need this most and how to treat them. I know the party Tuesday will be a big success because it always has been in the past.

God in the Highest" and "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah."

Hear Church Quartet.

The traditional candle light vesper service of the Kenwood church, 4600 Greenwood avenue, will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Participating in the service is the church quartet under the direction of Gavin Williamson, organist and music director. Carols of many countries will be sung.

Beginning at 6 o'clock on Christmas morning, St. John's Methodist church, 7350 Jeffery avenue, will offer a musical program beginning with chimes and the organ music amplified from the belfry. Twenty minutes later carols will be sung by the waites, and at 6:30 o'clock there will be a candle lighting ceremony. This will be followed by the recessional and an elaborate pageant entitled "The Pageant of the Holy Nativity."

Among the numbers to be sung are "Glory to the New Born King," "Merry Christmas," "We Wish You a Merry Christmas," "It Is the Blessed Time," and "Go Tell It On the Mountains." Ninon Walden is musical director, and Florence Campbell is dramatic director.

Crerar Memorial Presbyterian church choir will present a cantata, "The Story of Christmas," in the church at 81st street and Calumet avenue, this evening. The choir is directed by George De Ment, 8027 Michigan avenue, and the organist is George Flora, 6704 Emerald avenue.

Choirs to Be Heard.

Dr. Thomas Pender, minister of St. James Methodist church, 46th street and Ellis avenue, will preach on "The Star of Hope" at the 11 o'clock service today. The program by the senior, junior, and treble choirs, augmented by the Cathedral singers and soloists, will include "The Shepherd's Story" [Dickinson], and three traditional songs, "Sleep, My Savior, Sleep" [English], "In Dulci Jubilo" [French], and "Silent Night" [German].

St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran church, 7619 Dorchester avenue, will hold a candle lighting service at 6 o'clock Christmas morning at which the Rev. A. E. Schwartzkoff will deliver a sermon on "Unto Us a Child Is Born." The mixed chorus will sing "Awake, Shine, for Thy Light Is Come."

On Christmas eve at Salen Lutheran church, 74th street and Calumet avenue, the choir, under the direction of Miss Grace Lindberg, will sing carols beginning at 11:45 o'clock. At midnight the Christmas matins will be observed. The choir will have a candle lighted processional.

Party Chairman

Miss Lucile Olson, 8639 Drexel avenue, is chairman and hostess for the Christmas party to be given this afternoon by the Park Manor Junior Woman's club for members and friends.

GROUP FORMED TO OUTLINE 'Y' ADULT PROGRAMS

A council of men's and women's activity representatives was given power to plan, coördinate and develop the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. adult programs by the "Y's" board of directors at its last regular meeting, according to John Hanberg, chairman.

The program planning council chose as its first chairman Edward J. Kozak, active leader of coeducational events at the "Y." Other officers are Miss Eugenia Kegowicz, secretary, and Philip McLaughlin, treasurer.

CHILDREN HAVE YULE PARTIES AT 'Y' BRANCHES

Chicago Y. M. C. A.s will express the Christmas spirit by giving parties for neighborhood children, distributing baskets to needy families, caroling and staging candle light services. At the South Chicago "Y" 400 boys from 34 parochial and public schools attended a party yesterday given by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th].

On Christmas eve the "Y" hotel will hold a special candle light service in the main auditorium. Wallace Bruce Amsbury will read Dickens' "Christmas Carol" during the evening service.

The Hyde Park "Y's" 21st annual party for boys will take place tomorrow evening. More than 80 boys from the Oakland, Kenwood, and Hyde Park neighborhoods will attend.

Camera Club Party.

The Jackson Park Camera club will hold its annual Christmas party Thursday evening in the Gladstone hotel, 6200 Kenwood avenue.

South Siders Have Roles in Show for Boys' Club

The Jack and Jill players will give four playlets before the Lawndale Boys' club Friday evening. South siders in the cast are Greta Goldberg, 7038 East End avenue; Willard and Donna Jean Jabusch, 9641 South Seeley avenue; Nancy Kriz, 2226 Lowell avenue, and Renee Matthews, 6928 South Clyde avenue.

KEN-ROSE CLUB WILL ENTERTAIN 75 GIRLS FRIDAY

Each Is to Receive a Personal Gift.

Seventy-five girls in the community will be guests of the Ken-Rose Woman's club of the 2d district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Friday afternoon at the annual Christmas party in the Palmer Park Community house. The girls, who will be accompanied by their mothers, will receive personal gifts. Candy, ice cream, cookies, and milk will be served to the girls by the Kodandekgissie Camp Fire Girls, who also will act as ushers and lead members and guests in the pledge to the flag.

Entertainment will be supplied by children of the Ken-Rose members, including a dialog entitled "Before Breakfast," by Paul Haserodt and Betty Smith; music by Patsy Evans and the Sheldon Heights High Hatters band, a dramatic excerpt by Patsy Gray, piano playing by Jerry Washburne, Marilyn Paul, Shirley Matson, Lorraine Kiefer, and Lucille Brink, and singing by Marguerite Weber.

Christmas carols will be sung by members and guests under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Helland, music chairman. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Mrs. P. S. Haserodt, program chairman; Mrs. H. H. Weber, social chairman; Mrs. John Gray, literature; Mrs. J. O. Peterson, child hygiene; Mrs. W. G. Leith, American Home, and Mrs. Helland.

Windsor Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. Frederick Julstrom will entertain the garden department of the club at a Christmas party in her home, 7647 Colfax avenue, Friday afternoon.

Woodlawn Woman's Club.

The club's bureau of volunteer social service reports that it has made its 23d annual contribution of four suitcases to the Juvenile court for its wards. New wearing apparel was furnished by the members of the club. Each suitcase contained a sweater and skirt set, house dress, pajamas, housecoat, slip underwear, hose, handkerchiefs, bedroom slippers, sewing kit, tooth brush, tooth paste, and comb.

The suitcast project was started by the federated clubs at the suggestion of Miss Mary A. Bartelme, former judge of the Juvenile court. Members of the bureau are Mrs. Leslie E. Harden, chairman; Mrs. Warren H. Lutton, co-chairman; Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Desmond Hall, Mrs. Walter Hipple, Mrs. Roy McNiece, Mrs. E. W. Olson, and Mrs. S. N. Moore.

CHURCH GROUP PLANS TO GIVE PAGEANT TODAY

Bryn Mawr Players of the Bryn Mawr Community church, 7000 Jeffery avenue, will start off the church's pre-Christmas celebrations this afternoon with a pageant. The play, which will begin at 5 o'clock, will be directed by Mrs. George E. Q. Johnson. Music will be supplied by the Junior choir and the Young Men's Glee club.

On Christmas eve the annual candle light service will be held at 8:30 o'clock. The Bryn Mawr choir will lead the congregation in the service. Soloists will be Elizabeth Brown, Beulah Edwards, Reid Hillyard, Lawrence Veit, and Maurice Cherest.

Other events for the holiday season are the Fellowship dance Friday evening, a program by the primary department of the church school this morning, a play by the low junior department, and another play by the junior and senior girls of the high school department.

South Central Legion Aids Give Party This Afternoon

The auxiliary of South Central post of the American Legion will hold its Christmas party at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 2902 Wentworth avenue. Each child present will receive a gift from Santa Claus. NAZI GERMANY TO BE THEME AT TEMPLE ISRAEL

Author to Talk on Own Experiences.

Gregor Ziemer, author and foreign correspondent, will deliver an address entitled "An American in Nazi Germany" at Temple Isaiah Israel, Hyde Park boulevard and Greenwood avenue, at 8:15 o'clock this evening. He will be guest speaker before an expected audience of 1,600 members of the South Side B'nai B'rith lodge and it's Women's auxiliary.

Author of "2,010 Days of Hitler," Mr. Ziemer also is a former correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune and the London Daily Mail. He lived in Nazi Germany for 11 years and traveled over 100,000 miles in Europe on various assignments.

Entertainment at the meeting will be furnished by Miss Olivene Johnson of the Chicago Opera company.

Children to Celebrate.

The children of Temple Isaiah Israel school will hold their Chanukkah celebration at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Temple auditorium. The junior dramatic group, under the direction of Miss Irene Lorraine, will present a play called "The Enemies of Israel."

The lighting of candles will follow, and the children will be given candles and menorahs to be used in the home during the week. In the spirit of Chanukkah, the sisterhood will present each child with a box of candy and a "draidel" to be used in the traditional Chanukkah games.

The Temple Seniors will be hosts to a group of children from the Hyde Park Neighborhood club at a Chanukkah party at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the community house.

The Brotherhood of the South Shore Temple will sponsor a fathers', sons', and daughters' banquet at the temple community house next Sunday evening. The musical portion of the program will include radio entertainers, sports celebrities, and the WLS Prairie Ramblers. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

DEFENSE NEEDS STRESSED IN NEW R. O. T. C. CLASSES

Tilden Youths Train for Officers' Duties.

With the advent of selective service, the increased defense program of the army, and the need for trained officers to handle new recruits, more and more attention is being paid to the development of potential officers in the R. O. T. C. units of the nation's high schools.

In the Chicago High schools that boast R. O. T. C. units, careful and thoro training has become the order of the day in an effort to instill in high school youths the basic principles of army work. Altho the graduate of a high school R. O. T. C. unit is given no official ranking, he does possess a grounding in army work that has proved invaluable when he is called to training.

Have Special Classes.

Typical of the work being done in Chicago High schools is the practical training system for officers established at Tilden Technical High school. Under the direction of Technical Sergt. Michael J. Moore, military instructor, the unit has set up a series of training schools that covers thoroly the various duties of commissioned and noncommissioned cadet officers.

These training schools have been made compulsory for the cadet officers, for in them they learn the fundamentals of the position they hold. The schools are divided into three general classifications: Officers and saber school, noncommissioned officers school, and guidon and guide school.

The officer class meets three days each week and covers principally drill, command, and theory. This class is under the direction of Maj. Robert Szyman and Capt. Arthur Adams.

Training in Saber Use.

For those officers who carry a saber, a school of instruction in the manual of its use has been started. Under the direction of Maj. Walter Landini and Capt. Arthur Adams, commissioned and picked noncommissioned officers meet every evening after classes to practice use of the saber.

Three evenings a week the noncommissioned officers gather for instruction in drill, command, and theory, so that they may be well versed in the subjects when they are called to duty as an officer. Much of the unit's success depends on the efficiency of its noncoms.

School for Sergeants.

To produce expert guidon sergeants a school has been set up for the best man in each company, in which expert instruction is given under the direction of Capt. Emmanuel Riff. The cadets were chosen for their neatness, dependability, and knowledge of drill and theory. Enrolled in the school are Lavere Doyle, John Pauly, Jack Pomy, Russell Rune, Donald Ayers, Eugene Bladowski, James Dial, and Melvin Kopping.

To handle crowds during parades and reviews, a group of cadets is being trained in a guide school. The men work out twice a week under the direction of Capt. Riff.

FIRST HONORS GIVEN TO NEGRO BOY SCOUT UNIT

Is Only Group of Race to Achieve Rank.

First honors recently were conferred on members of the Tuscarora Explorer patrol of Boy Scout Troop 535, sponsored by St. Edmund's Episcopal church, 5831 Indiana avenue. The unit is said to be the first Negro troop in the nation to win this achievement, which is given for passing certain tests in the Explorer division of the advanced scouting program.

Must Be First Class.

Members of an Explorer patrol must be first class Scouts and over 15 years old. Activities in the Explorer division usually require extended hiking trips. New members of the patrol are James Bundle, John Murchison, Garrett Brice, Albert Riggs, Harold Wyatt, and Earl Green.

The last group of South Shore district Scouts to be promoted was headed by Howard Haas, 7401 Crandon avenue, who received the Gold Palm for additional merit badges over the required 21 for Eagle rank. New Life Scouts are Charles Krause, Arthur Rubenstein, Charles Rysdon, and Norbert Glowacki.

New Star Scouts.

Good Fellow Music

Dr. Helen Howe, Chicago public high school music director, and Miss Helen L. Kane, music director at Hirsch High school, look over their sheet music in preparation for the Good Fellow carol sing in front of the Nathan Hale statue in Tribune Square tomorrow afternoon. Dr. Howe and Miss Kane will be choral conductors of singers from six high schools and one junior college on the program, which will begin at 3 o'clock. Seven hundred singers will be heard. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

'THE NEW MOON' NEXT OPERETTA IN AIR THEATER

Miss Claire, Thibault to Be Starred.

Next Saturday's presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air will bring Sigmund Romberg's operetta "The New Moon" to W-G-N and Mutual listeners from 9 to 10 p. m. "The New Moon" is the third operetta by Sigmund Romberg to be produced by the Theater of the Air this season.

Two radio favorites, Marion Claire and Conrad Thibault, will star in the leading rôles. Miss Claire is one of the best known sopranos in the light opera field.

Thibault, who has supported Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King" and "Rio Rita" in this season's Theater of the Air productions, has gained fame in recent years as a radio baritone. He studied in New York and Philadelphia, making his debut with the Philadelphia Grand Opera company and later singing leading rôles in the Chicago and San Francisco companies.

The W-G-N concert orchestra and augmented chorus will be conducted by Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company. The entire operetta is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N.

ANNA NEAGLE IN 'NO, NO, NANETTE' ON CHICAGO HOUR

Movie's Radio Premiere on W-G-N Thursday.

Anna Neagle, distinguished British actress, will make her second appearance of the year on W-G-N's main studio next Thursday evening when the radio première of her newest musical picture, R-K-O's "No, No, Nanette," will be presented on In Chicago Tonight. The picture will open at the Palace theater Christmas eve.

Last spring Miss Neagle came to Chicago and was starred in a radio adaptation of her picture, "Irene," which was an exclusive feature of W-G-N and the Mutual network. The radio version of "No, No, Nannette" will be presented from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

All-Star Cast with Her.

An all-star cast of Chicago radio actors will be featured with Miss Neagle. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will provide the lively musical back drop required for this musical show.

When Miss Neagle came to America two years ago, she was asked by Hollywood producers to make herself known to American audiences. She followed this advice with customary energy and traveled a total of 46,000 miles by air making personal appearances.

Makes Two Musicals.

Into nearly every state in the nation Anna Neagle followed her first American film, "Nurse Edith Cavell," to appear before the audiences that acclaimed her work on the screen. As Anna Neagle, herself, the versatile British girl was even more enthusiastically received.

As a result of her air junkets to meet America in person, the public clamored to see Anna Neagle as her singing, dancing, personable self in a movie. "Irene" and "No, No Nanette" were the results of this demand.

CHRISTMAS NOTE ON CHICAGOLAND CONCERT HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Two Yule Songs.

A program of familiar music blended with Christmas favorites will be presented on the new Chicagoland Concert hour tomorrow evening. Two Yuletide solos by Marion Claire will feature the concert, which will be aired from 10 to 10:45 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Michael Wilkomirski, W-G-N concertmeister, will be the instrumental soloist.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker of the evening. Col. McCormick has announced that his weekly talks will be devoted principally to vital, close at hand topics, to "things which we all want to have accomplished but which we have not yet found means of achieving."

Two Holiday Songs.

For her two holiday season solos, Miss Claire will sing "Hail Ye Tyme of Holiedayes" and "Away in a Manger." Miss Claire also will join the augmented chorus in presenting the evening finale, the waltz from Oscar Straus' "Waltz Dream." Wilkomirski will play Schumann's "Traumerei."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the Symphony orchestra in presentations of Straus' "Emperor Waltz," Mozart's "Minuet in G Minor" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor."

The Complete Program.

The program:

Hungarian Dance No. 1, G Minor....Brahms
Orchestra.
[a] Hail Ye Tyme of Holiedayes. Branscombe

Chicagoland Concert hour programs are presented in the main audience studio of W-G-N under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production. Listeners desiring to attend the Chicagoland Concert hour may obtain tickets by addressing their requests to W-G-N.

SOLDIERS TO AIR CHURCH SERVICE ON W-G-N TODAY

A van of trucks from Fort Sheridan and a fleet of military cars from Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., will roll up to W-G-N's studios this morning to unload United States army soldiers and airmen who will participate in a unique Chicagoland Church hour. The special services, under the direction of Roland B. Bach, assistant chaplain of the 6th corps area, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 a. m. over W-G-N.

The Chanute Wing chorus, a group of 25 aviators, will sing camp songs. The Fort Sheridan chorus of 25 voices, under the direction of Prof. Carl Carlstedt, also will sing on the program.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel will extend Christmas greetings to camps thruout the 6th corps area which extends over Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The caravan of Fort Sheridan trucks will be accompanied by a motorcycle escort in order to speed up the return trip, for the chorus is scheduled for a camp program an hour after the W-G-N broadcast.

The Chicagoland Church hour is a regular Sunday morning feature on which city churches of all denominations are invited to broadcast. The series is under the direction of Dr. John Evans, religion editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Hobby Club Party.

The Girls' Hobby club of the Brighton Park library, 4144 Archer avenue, will hold their annual Christmas party Thursday.

Poet Priest to Be Guest of Farm and Home Hour

Rev. Francis C. Young, nationally known poet priest, pastor of St. Juliana parish, Oceola and Touhy avenues, Chicago, will be heard in his 13th annual Christmas broadcast, which is known as "Father Young and His Christmas Carols and Poems," over a coast to coast NBC network at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday. He will make a guest appearance on the National Farm and Home hour.

STEELMAKERS TO ADD 40 MUTUAL STATIONS JAN. 5

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

On Nov. 8, 1937, a small station in Wheeling, W. Va., put on a new program, called Musical Steelmakers. Heralded by a mill whistle this new show featured amateur talent recruited entirely from the ranks of employés of the Wheeling Steel company and members of their families.

The next year Musical Steelmakers expanded to a four station Mutual network, with W-G-N as one of them. This fall the number of stations reached 51.

On Jan. 5, 1941, the mill whistle of the Musical Steelmakers will be heard over 40 additional Mutual stations—bringing the show's regular network to 91 stations.

How It Got Started.

The program got its start when John L. Grimes, executive of the company, discovered that the Welsh, Italian, and Polish stock in Wheeling bought more musical instruments, played more and better music per capita than in any other town in the United States.

Grimes encouraged the development of company entertainment groups; then fathered the first Musical Steelmakers broadcast which headlined employé-family talent. The program grew up in the midst of a wave of amateur shows, but unlike many of these it took permanent root and grew as they went into a decline.

Several of the performers of the first broadcast are still with the Musical Steelmakers of today. Tommy Whitley, who began as saxophonist in the band, is now leader of the orchestra. The Old Timer, popular master of ceremonies who regales listeners with his Scottish twang, also is among the faithful performers who have been on the show since its inception.

Typical Program Today.

Typical of the Musical Steelmakers shows will be the one to be broadcast at 4 p. m. today. From Beech Bottom, W. Va., seven girls will come to the stage of the Capitol theater in Wheeling to headline the broadcast with a holiday inspired presentation of "The Birthday of a King." The youngsters—Erma Maley, Shirley Lee, Martha Lydick, Ina Clair de Nichols, Marjorie Kull, Marjorie Wallace, and Shirley Stuck—all are children of employés.

As her Christmas contribution, Dorothy Ann Crowe will present "O, Little Town of Bethlehem." Whitley and the orchestra will add to the holiday spirit with "Siberian Sleigh Ride." The Steele Sisters and Regina Colbert will sing "Winter Wonderland," and Ardenne White will present "Sacred Hour."

Jan Peerce on Air.

Jan Peerce, tenor, will be featured as soloist in a presentation of Kodaly's "Psalms Hungaricus" during the Radio City Music Hall on the Air broadcast at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL. Erno Rapee will conduct the orchestra in Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor.

BASEMENT ROOM IS BENEFIT TO ENTIRE FAMILY

Heavy Duty Floor Helps in Practicality.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Does a basement game room and recreation retreat pay its way?

We'll say so—where a recreation room is definitely slanted to serve all the family.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Milliner, 1216 William street, River Forest, there is just such a room. It possesses those assets which contribute to its popularity and success. It is all things to all the family, an extra room which relieves the living room above from need to serve as study, dance floor, game room, and parlor.

There is crying need for such space in many homes not palatial in size. Where people are heard to say: "We had our basement all fixed up and after our first housewarming party, no one uses it," the fact is often revealed that it is very nicely furnished indeed, but not abounding in homey provisions for mixed ages, and the use of various family members.

Floor for Dancing.

There was no economy of ideas in the finishing of Mr. Milliner's basement recreation room.

Because a dance floor could be used, Mr. Milliner had the floor covered with a heavy composition material, impregnated with asphalt. This is a type of floor often seen on sun-decks in recently built or remodeled homes. It will take a great deal of hard wear. It is dark green and varnished and waxed for dancing.

Because a quiet room was desired and because there was a certain dampness in the air on occasions, the outer walls were furred before putting on the plank type wall finish, in natural light shade, and sound absorbing tile ceiling was installed. There is a large brick fireplace, and the furnishings are informal and appropriate to the family use of the room.

Space for Extra Room.

Some new homes will be built next year without basements, and with utility room and storage space on the first floor. Other homes will be built with what we call a half basement, a shallow space about half the depth of the usual basement, large enough to house the home heating plant and with room besides for some storage area.

However, conventional size basements will appear in the greater number of homes with opportunity below "deck" for heating and laundry facilities, generous supply of storage room for household tools and yard equipment, and then some space besides for an extra room, if desired, at time of building or later.

Such an extra room—a playroom for stormy days, a recreation and game room for people of different ages and tastes—justifies the expense of finishing it. There is common sense back of its appearance on the family scene.

Stairs Should Be Safe.

Take a room of average size, and the larger the better if the family is a growing one, and the chances are the windows are average size, or should be. And the stairs should be safe and well lighted, and provided with a rail.

There are wall boards and insulating boards which can be left in their natural finish, and the trim can be inexpensive and painted. Or it can be of some hard type board which isn't expensive and yet has a nice rich look. If such games as pingpong are to be played it is well to play safe and keep the lights flush with the ceiling.

If there are young children, a side of a wall can be given over to them, with a play table which opens out when they want to use it and then drops against the wall when their bedtime arrives and other family members take possession. Wall cupboards are valuable for storage purposes.

Bar with Outlets.

A snack or counter refreshment bar at one end of the room is a big drawing card. It can have a plug-in strip at the back for electric percolator, toaster, etc. A shelf overhead can hold decorative dishes and glassware, and a cupboard underneath can accommodate food staples, linens, silver and other needed "kitchenette" accessories.

Or if there is some one in a family with a special hobby, and precious little room in the house proper to indulge it, then some corner of such finished space can probably be found to solve THAT problem.

Holiday Harmonizers

The Steele Sisters get their heads together for a little close harmony in loveliness. It's the same effect when they blend their voices in a little close harmony over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 4 to 4:30 p. m. each Sunday. The girls are featured on the Musical Steelmakers show. Left to right, they are Lucille Bell, Harriett Drake, and Lois Mae Nolte.

62 Wood Cuts Used for Illustrations.

The first joint project of all Chicago high school art departments was published last week in the form of an engagement calender illustrated with 62 woodcuts made by students in the various schools.

Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art for the schools, was in charge of assembling the material, and said that the first edition of 2,500 was already sold and that a second printing of 1,000 had been contracted for.

The four district art supervisors also helped in the work. They are Miss Jane Palczynski, Mrs. Ellen Link, Miss Mabel Williams, and Miss Agnes Fenerty.

In a general way the subject matter of each woodcut follows the season in which it is used. In the summer pages there are farm scenes, scarecrows, swimming, and other pastimes. In December there are Christmas designs, and during the school months pictures of student activities. The scene for the first week in September, the opening of school, portrays a boy in jail.

Makes Cover Design.

The cover design, a picture of a farm yard, was done by Theodore Frano of Von Steuben High school.

School representatives who made wood cuts for the calendar are:

Harper: Ann Regin, Betty Lantry, Freeman Elliott, Jean Baltusnik; Hyde Park: Virginia Walker; Lindblom: Florence Baim; Phillips: Doris Sigmon; Parker: Elizabeth Hegin.

Kelly: Stanley Kazdailis; DuSable: Amelia Stewart, Lilford Starcks, James Cadell; Calumet: Shirley Meyer, Jeanette Loring, Loren Fry, Moynette Berglund, Marian Ogren; Hirsch: Ethel Erickson, Ruth Holman, Jeanne Fletcher, Adele Deam.

Amundsen: Mary Abele, Bob Rohrhoff, Alice Peterson, Helen Johnson, Faith Olson, Betty Cunningham, Gloria Peterson, Marge Wade, Astrid Johnson, Rosemary Goldfein, Lorraine Kramer.

Other Student Artists.

Lane: D. Kolenda, Frank Fritzmann, Norman Harris. Lake View: Margaret Camardo, Lorraine Gross. Sullivan: Peggie Kirsten.

Farragut: Ray Henning. Manley: Eleanor Sughero, Beatrice Starr, Helen Patt. Flower: Evelyn Snoka, Evelyn Kalita. Marshall: James Angarola.

De Soto Isabellans to Play Santa Claus to Orphans

De Soto council, Ladies of Isabella, has placed an order for skates, cameras, and other toys with Santa Claus and he will deliver them in person at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Angel Guardian orphanage, 2001 Devon avenue. Each child also will receive a stocking filled with nuts, fruit, and candy.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 23.

Dip the ends of cut poinsettia stems in boiling water or sear over a flame. It does no good to use chemicals altho one or two will preserve the flowers for a day or so, but no longer. Under ordinary conditions most cut flowers will keep with only an inch or two of water. Experiment with the use of chemicals, the amount of water to use, temperature, etc.

Growing plants without soil or in water and chemicals offers opportunity to try the new method and compare it with plants growing in soil. Soil, at best, simply holds the plant in place, anchors it securely, but the food must be taken up when it is in solution. Soils are often deficient in food elements and these must be supplied.

The difficulty when growing plants in rooms is usually a lack of light or sun, hot, dry atmosphere, a stuffy condition, a lack of knowledge of how and when to water, and often starvation.

Tuesday, Dec. 24.

Sometimes a leaky gas jet or stove will cause plant leaves to drop. The Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers are susceptible to gas. Keep the soil moist for dry soil also causes leaves to wither.

About the only way to get rid of poison ivy is to dig it out bodily and burn it. Keep away from the smoke when it is burning.

If young trees have not been protected against the attacks of rodents, protect them without delay. Tar paper, small meshed screening, or other material can be used. Mulch bulb beds if it has not been done.

Wednesday, Dec. 25.

Cuttings of rose stems can be used for propagating purposes. Cut just below a leaf or node, leaving one leaf above. Place the cuttings in a box of sand or sandy soil and cover with glass. Water well the first time and sprinkle sufficiently to keep moist. Shade for a few days, but remove at night. Pot when rooted. In spring, plant out in the garden.

Cuttings also can be made of the favorite chrysanthemum if large specimen blooms are wanted. For cutting material, use the growths that come from around the base, cut back the leaves to avoid excessive transpiration, place in sand, and carry on when rooted.

Cuttings can be made as late as early June if small pot plants are desired. These make nice plants for table use.

Thursday, Dec. 26.

Look over your plants; see that they are well watered and have good light conditions. The terrarium may need a bit of air to keep out excessive moisture. Keep the poinsettia plant at about 60 degrees and never permit it to be subjected to draughts, or the leaves will turn yellow and drop.

It hardly pays to keep the plant over for another season, but one may attempt it as an experiment. After flowering, let it rest by withholding water; the leaves will fall and the stems look like dead sticks.

Set pot and plant in basement until spring when it can be cut back, repotted in good soil, and plunged in a sunny spot in the garden. Cuttings can be made of the young growths that appear along the stems.

Friday, Dec. 27.

Keep the window boxes filled with evergreens watered. Mulch rhododendrons with about six inches of leaves. It is a good plant to make a new cut at the end of the Christmas tree and stand in a bucket of sand saturated with a 10 per cent sugar solution. This will preserve the needles and keep them from falling.

Do not topdress lawns with stable manure because weed seeds may be introduced. A heavy application will likely kill the grass.

Use little, if any, fertilizer to house plants on dull days. Use a complete plant food when the plants are in active growth. Commercial foods are best and especially where organic manures cannot be had or are difficult to obtain.

Saturday, Dec. 28.

An aquarium in the home will interest every member of the family. Success depends on maintaining a proper balance between the fish and the plant life. Stock the aquarium with fish and water loving plants in such proportion that each will supply the needs of the other.

Cover the bottom with coarse sand; an inch layer will suffice. Plant in it a collection of plants like the vallisneria, sagittaria, cabomba, parrot's feather, or any other that is obtainable.

Scavengers may be added, such as fresh water snails, tadpoles; a single snail and two tadpoles will be enough for each gallon of water.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Part 7 TRAVEL

DECEMBER 22, 1940.

Miss Jean Matthiessen has been at home in Winnetka since Wednesday to enjoy the holiday season with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Matthiessen, who presented her to society at an early autumn tea. Miss Mattiessen is a student at Vassar college.

Miss Margaret Lindsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lindsay of Winnetka, arrived at home Thursday from Vassar college to spend the holidays with her family. She and the other 54 debutantes of this season will be busy day and night for the next two weeks, for there are parties planned for them during every waking moment of their vacations.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Miss Lydia Elliott shares with Miss Matthiessen and Miss Lindsay the distinction of being a debutante and a Vassar girl. Miss Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Elliott of Winnetka, made her debut at a tea in September.

Miss Barbara Warner, daughter of the John Eliot Warners of Winnetka, came home from the Erskine Junior college yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Wheeler will give a tea-dance at the Casino on Dec. 28 for their debutante daughter and niece.

Miss Martha Stevens, debutante daughter of Mrs. M. Simpson Stevens of Lake Forest, is going to college at Northwestern, so she has been here for all of the debutante festivities. She and her mother are spending the winter at the Homestead in Evanston.

Hostesses Busy with Christmas Entertaining in Chicago and Southern Resorts

By Cousin Eve.

Quite a few citizens are already skipping off to Florida and not taking Christmas on the chin this year. After meeting up with the Christmas spirit in State street, they feel entitled to something extra special, no doubt, and vanish on the stylish new trains with their pretty new clothes.

Chicago hostesses at Palm Beach try to fill the aching Christmas voids in the hearts of their friends by having big all-day parties with turkey, wassail, and whatnot. Notably Mrs. Frank V. Skif and Mrs. Frank Butler, who have lovely houses and send out invitations weeks in advance.

But people miss much by running away and sidestepping our home grown holidays. Give me the woodsy smell of pine and hemlock against the coconut palms of Florida. And the jolly carols of street singers and Christmas chimes are worth no end of sighing by the sad sea waves.

At home there are chances, too, of being a good fellow—scores of chances. A man I know carried a Christmas basket to an address in our district. There in a cold tenement nine small children were huddled round a mother. A few crusts of bread were their sole food. The father of the brood had disappeared—he couldn't take it. Under the law it will be many weeks before they can receive the dole.

The visitor left two Christmas baskets, but even that was a short allowance with so many little mouths to feed.

There's a society in New York collecting overcoats. They have collected thousands of men's warm coats to ship overseas. And undoubtedly hundreds of these have gone down to Davy Jones' locker and been added to the wastage of the world. It's not exciting or romantic to give to hobos, but one never sees a threadbare derelict on Lake Shore drive in the biting wind without wondering just who is our neighbor and where lies our duty.

• • •

Very little news comes from our friends overseas. There's Jean Schloesing, former French commercial attaché in Chicago, one of the world's most charming men, who is a prisoner of war in Germany.

Miss Jane Hardy, the Francis H. Hardys' bud, arrived at home from Sweet Briar college yesterday to spend the holidays with her family in Winnetka. Miss Mary Macfarland, who also goes to Sweet Briar, will come the day after Christmas to spend the balance of the vacation with Miss Hardy.

Yuletide Fetes Fill Calendars of Hostesses

He volunteered for active service in France, went abroad in January, and became a captain of a machine gun company. Chafing at inaction in the trenches, he volunteered for military duty in Norway and was taken prisoner very shortly after his arrival at Oslo. Schloesing has written to various people in Chicago from the German prison camp, but of late nothing has come thru.

There is a stony silence also from Herman Gade at Mesnil-St. Denis. His house party of German officers is still going forward in the old sixteenth century château. This in ordinary times is far too cold to live in after November, and is closed usually for six months of the year. Jack Gade, United States naval attaché at Lisbon, now in New York, has heard indirectly from his brother. He is well and in receipt of funds from home.

From Mrs. Dudley Root, the patriotic Ellen, who rushed back to France in April, the silence is even more stony. Very possibly she is basking in the sunshine at her villa on Cap Ferrat. Her daughter, Denyse, who wisely waited in Chicago, has become engaged to Ernest Eversez and will be married in January. Nobody knows whether Ellen Root will be home for the wedding of her only child.

The Harold Bodmans with Mrs. Nicolas de Teresa arrived for Christmas. They, too, had a bad case of travelitis in April and set out for Italy and their delightful Florentine villa. They expected to remain on in Italy and felt quite secure and snug among the hills of Florence. But in October bombings over the magnificent old city of the Midicis were numerous and the Bodman family soon journeyed to Rome. Here they were held by one thing and another until lately, when by plane they reached Lisbon and sailed on an American ship.

On the home front there are many charming things to do—people to see, books to read. Of these, "Cabbage Holiday," a short tale of a short trip to England, would make a monk laugh. And yet practically nobody in the Chicago sector has read it.

The sedate set was out in numbers Friday night for a dinner-dance at the Casino. There were dinner parties great and small, and the charming club had all its Christmas fixings on to usher in the holiday season. In the outer foyer, black marble with a huge mirror as its main wall, a tall silver feather, graceful as could be, figured as a Christmas tree. At the side, the pale walls flaunted painted clusters of big black feathers, a fancy dating back to the days of Rue Carpenter.

The Casino has settled now as to color and design into something harmonious and elegant for all seasons. Among the hostesses Friday night were Mrs. James Douglas, Mrs. Warren Fairbanks, Mrs. Hal C. Bangs, Mrs. Robert McC. Adams and a Dutch treat table. There was excellent dance music—and complete absence of jazz—which noises seem to have got on everybody's nerves during our present war tension. There also was a floor show of the sort one hears chirping on the radio—and 'way off in the corner, the usual bridge games.

There were some unusually pretty frocks, too. All this chatter about not having any smart new clothes is a species of war talk. Mrs. Douglas, tall and slim, had on the evening's most glamorous costume. It was absolutely stunning—of taupe gray satin with a flock of white birds flying across the full skirt and another flock streaming off her right shoulder. I love gray evening gowns any-way, and another winner was Mrs. Hamp Winston's, of short steel gray fringes, that danced delightfully with a sort of frou fróu when she danced. Doris Winterbotham's cloud of dawn gray tulle also was a perfect thing of beauty for her light Bermuda tan. Janet Adams, in white lace with nosegays of cherry, and Polly Perry [the Casino president] in rose satin, were charming.

The supply of bachelors in town is running short these days. Lots of them seem to be getting married.

Apropos, there was an amusing story at Mrs. Walter Kirk's last opera luncheon concerning a dinner-dance. And those young men who don't answer their dinner invitations. The party in question was the most hotsy-totsy of the season and two brothers on the north shore had failed to reply. Finally the social secretary called their domicile and the boys' father came to the telephone. He was told that his sons were remiss, having failed to answer their invitations to the Tiptop's dance which was imminent—"how about it?"

Here the social secretary had the surprise of her life. In a tremendous huff papa said his boys never answered invitations from people they didn't know. And that was that! Seems the world is coming to its jolly old senses in social matters.

• • •

While the Casino dinner was under way a party was going forward at the Racquet club—very gay, too, but of a different complexion, as it were. It was a sort of aftermath of the Willkie campaign where a thousand colored voters in the district had voted for Wendell Willkie and the North Side Civic league had gone in debt $500. In order to pay off this debt, a famous Negro choir was giving a concert in a La Salle street church, and a committee headed by Mrs. Winfield Ellis and Mrs. Ballard Moore had sold tickets all over town. So great was the enthusiasm at the idea that $900 was raised by the Civic league and the church was crowded to hear the spirituals and other lovely choir music.

A dinner for 80 at the Racquet club preceded the concert and here came the surprise of the evening, when Larry Adler appeared with his famous harmonica, contributing his bit to the popular cause.

A list of patrons and dinner givers would include those men with their wives who figured prominently as new Young Republican leaders in the last election. Also the gay younger set which holds forth in this popular club, and meets there often for bowling.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank did wonders in bringing Democrats into the Willkie fold in the November election. She ran a large organization and at the same time was rebuilding her unique double house in North State street. Many years ago this was two houses, and Arthur Heun amalgamated them into one cheerful domicile of the English basement sort.

Now that young Janet Fairbank is careering in New York and has her own apartment there, the house was far too ample for one chatelaine, much addicted to travel. So the owner decided to chop it in two, and the Jack Murphys are taking the lesser half. Mrs. Fairbanks keeps her long, handsome living room, scene of many distinguished parties. Peggy Murphy seems to have got a roof garden or something rarely delectable from her half, and everybody' is pleased.

A housewarming in the double menage is one of the prospects of the New Year.

Mrs. Joseph Coleman's at home late Sunday afternoon was for Mrs. Norma Bartlett of Santa Barbara, sister and guest of Mrs. Robert Dunham. The party was given in Mrs. Coleman's apartment at the Ambassador East, and at its peak, if some of the guests hadn't gone home, a line would have formed at the left. The charming hostess—for long years Chicago's most popular belle—was the first president of the Casino club and president and promoter of the modern handsome Passavant hospital.

Mrs. Coleman, in a couleur de rose tea gown, was receiving an unusually distinguished array of guests with her usual verve. There were Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Col. George Langhorne, the George Ranneys, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mrs. Garfield King, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Mrs. Wallace Kirk, Charles Y. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Odell, Mrs. William Scudder, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Sprague, Ove Vett, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Johnston, Mrs. Barrett Wendell—and on and on.

Russell Tyson, who also was a guest at Mrs. Coleman's party, this week became chairman of a new oversea activity, "The Chicago Committee for Aid to China." The organizing heads met Wednesday for luncheon at the Nanking restaurant, where they were the guests of Walter James, a leading Chinese citizen of Chicago. Over heaping bowls of chop suey, the board was appointed and discussion took place as to this and that. Acting with Russell Tyson are William B. Hale, vice president; Mrs. Joseph Valentine, secretary; Stephen Y. Hord, treasurer, and Col. George Langhorne.

Nobody need sigh and pat his lean purse ruefully, for this society will act mostly as a clearing house, to receive and forward moneys collected by groups in the middle west. Money may be earmarked—for medical use, for the coöperatives, for children. Offices of the committee are 424 Monadnock building. Mrs. George R. Wilson is in charge and the voluntary workers are all Chinese.

There was an exceedingly nice party Sunday afternoon at the Historical society, where the navy, the army, and a large gallery were guests of the Military Order of the World War. Col. Harold Sperling was in the midst of an oration when we arrived, which ended when he cited the Hon. Charles S. Dewey to receive the military order's medal in behalf of the historical society.

The medal was accepted and placed in a fine cabinet by Mr. Dewey with appropriate remarks—[Charles was himself an officer in the navy in the old days. A reception followed in the senate chamber, where two Christmassy tea tables were laid out, and Mrs. John Downes and Mrs. William Wolleson of Great Lakes presided at one table and Mrs. Harold Sperling and Mrs. Robert McC. Adams sat at the other.

MARRIED TO DOCTOR

Mrs. Eliot Foltz is the former Miss Virginia Ann Snorf. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Delford Snorf of Wilmette. The wedding took place in October. Dr. and Mrs. Foltz are at home on Chicago's near north side.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

The British custom of dressing small brothers and sisters alike has been popular in American families for come time. This year's version of the mode is a precisely tailored one, the result being that the little girl looks trim and sweet in her outfit, and the small fellow manly and dashing. The design offered in the pattern today is one all youngsters will like, and it makes up especially well in checked woolen with washable blouses as companion pieces.

The skirt and trousers, all dressy details eliminated, have sturdy, comfortable shoulder straps which button onto the waistband. The blouses have either long or short sleeves and their buttoned-down-the-front bodices are topped by shirtwaist collars.

Style No. 3419 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material for trousers and cap; 1⅜ yards for boys' shirt; 1¼ yards for girl's skirt and cap; 1¼ yards for blouse for the little girl.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Auxiliary of Legion Busy in Holiday Role

From one end of the state to the other the American Legion auxiliary is spreading Christmas cheer this week. There is not an ex-service man or woman in any of the 21 war veterans' hospitals in Illinois who will not receive a gift of his or her choice from the auxiliary this Christmas.

Hundreds of members are decorating Christmas trees in the hospitals, and are giving Christmas parties. A Christmas celebration is being planned especially for mental patients by Cook county units.

Some 1,900 children of veterans are to share in the festivities. These children who are cared for in various institutions also will receive gifts of their own choosing. In addition, units thruout the state will give hundreds of Christmas parties for other underprivileged children. Mrs. Joseph Mieczynski of North Chicago, department president, is in general charge of these activities.

The Big Sisters personally have filled 700 Christmas stockings for children of St. Dominic's parochial school, the Illinois Technical school, the Geneva State Training School for Girls, the Frances Juvenile home, and for other youngsters in whom they are interested.

The seventy young girls whom the Big Sisters are helping thru school are receiving special gifts and will be entertained during the holidays. Baskets of groceries, clothing, and layettes also will be Christmas gifts to the unfortunate from this organization.

Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Big Sisters, also has arranged to supply suitable clothing for 50 colored children who are making their first communion Christmas eve, and to have a Christmas breakfast and well filled stockings for them afterward.

The 1940-1941 series of Christmas cheer parties given by the Ladies of Isabella at various institutions in and about Chicago enters its most crowded week today, with 20 scheduled between now and next Sunday night. Miss Anna M. Pontius, new supreme grand lady, will be present at a majority of them. In this she will follow a tradition established by the late Mrs. Emma Huising Wall, her predecessor. Miss Pontius was vice supreme grand lady of the Ladies of Isabella during the 16 years that Mrs. Wall was supreme grand lady.

The fact that this also is the busiest season of the wholesale lapidary business, which she and her brother jointly own and conduct, is not allowed by Miss Pontius to interfere with her Christmas activities. Besides attending a great many parties she has been chairman of two already held.

Her own Christmas will be a merry one. A family party for 14 is to be held at the apartment in Rogers Park which she shares with two brothers. Born and reared in Chicago, Miss Pontius bought the precious stones for her business before she became its treasurer.

Today the 30 Chicago circles of the Daughters of Isabella will take part in a food shower at the Council of Catholic Women home at 2501 West Monroe street. There will be open house at the home, and packages will be received from 11 o'clock on. Miss Agnes Goodman and Mrs. Agnes O'Malley will be co-chairmen. The individual circles also are distributing Christmas baskets, are giving Christmas parties for underprivileged children, and are sharing in the C. Y. O. Christmas party. Mrs. Sarah Ann Peterson, state regent and diocesan chairman, is in general charge.

A yuletide event for board members of the First district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will be an open house from 2 to 5 o'clock Friday at Mrs. George Hanly Nippert's home, 5913 Winthrop avenue. Mrs. Nippert is district president. Mrs. Arthur W. Nelson and Mrs. Thomas Clyne are handling arrangements.

The Mid-West Horticultural society will have a Christmas party Friday evening in the Garfield Park administration building. Mrs. George J. Reiter, president, will review Alice Bretz's "I Begin Again," and Mrs. Kathryn Mohr will sing. There will be a grab bag and refreshments. Dr. August Koch, Frank K. Balthis, and R. J. Mohr will answer questions on horticulture.

Mount Mary College Mothers and Daughters will hold their annual holiday luncheon and card party Monday, Dec. 30, at the South Shore Country club. Mrs. W. P. Reynolds is president.

The Alpha Omega sorority of De Paul university will hold its annual Christmas formal dance Friday evening in the Electric club. Miss Josephine Messineo, president, is arranging the party, with Miss Lorraine Miller and Miss Dolores Dressels as co-chairmen.

Another Christmas party of the week will be the supper-dance of the Chicago City association, Theta Pi Alpha, Thursday evening at the Bismarck hotel. Miss Betty Purtell is chairman.

When Chicago Was Young

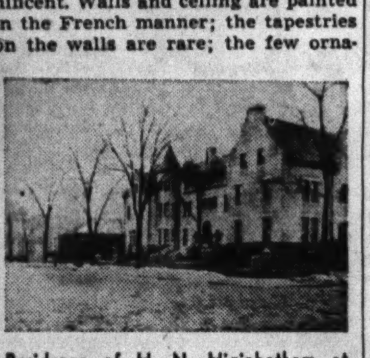
By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Dec. 18, 1892.

Dear Julia: Parties! Parties! We are having so many here in Chicago that I am reduced to a state of exhaustion trying to attend the ones I'm invited to. Why don't I regret them, do you ask? I just can't bear to miss any of them.

The most brilliant of the past week was the "comingout" reception of Florence Higinbotham at the beautiful graystone mansion of her parents, 2838 Michigan avenue, built not so very long ago, and one of the show places of the south side. The receiving hours were from 8 to 11 and during that time I suppose more than 800 people thronged the great house which is said to be not only one of the finest in our city but one of the most notable in the United States. The interior is as impressive as the outside, the drawing room in the style of Louis XV. being particularly magnificent. Walls and ceiling are painted in the French manner; the tapestries on the walls are rare; the few ornaments very expensive. I was especially interested in the statue of Cupid, just arrived from Rome, the work of Harriet Hosmer, American sculptress.



Residence of H. N. Higinbotham at 2838 Michigan avenue as it appeared at the time of the debut of Florence Higinbotham.

The debutante received many flowers from friends and these added to the luxurious appearance of the rooms. We felt as we entered that this might be the home of a potentate of the age of fable. The parents stood near the door, giving every one a hearty welcome and the young bud offered her hand with friendliness. "Bud" is the word our papers are beginning to use to describe the debutante—rather an apt appellation since she is young and flowerlike and about to blossom into a society personage. Young Florence Higinbotham looked sweet in her princess gown, trimmed with sable bands. I presume Miss Dodd, head of Field's dressmaking department, designed it, since Mr. Higinbotham is a partner in that firm. Miss Dodd has beautiful taste and I always like to have a gown made by her, but it is a strain on one's purse. My last dress from her hands cost $375. No ornaments were worn by the young debutante, but she carried a bouquet of violets. A courtly old gentleman—a southerner visiting Chicago—touched her flowers, as he bowed before her and said gallantly: "Flora's offering to modesty," a rather pretty sentiment, if old fashioned.

Up on the third floor, in the sumptuous ballroom, Johnny Hand's orchestra was playing Strauss waltzes and the young people hurried up to dance, but we older ones stayed down in the dining room, where Kinsley served delicious refreshments from a table of the new round style, or else we strolled thru the downstairs rooms, all so elegantly furnished. Valisi's Italian orchestra furnished music down there.

Chicago's most exclusive and important social set was present—the Harry G. Selfridges, apparently as much in love as ever, after two years of married life; Chauncey J. Blair, with his beautiful wife, who was Miss Molly Mitchell before her marriage; Henry A. Knott and his lovely wife, a Waller; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Lancaster, of whom I am fond; the Arthur Dixons, the Cyrus H. McCormicks, and so on. O yes. I had a nice chat with Mrs. John A. Logan, widow of the civil war general.

The National Council of Women has been holding its annual meeting at the Palmer House and I went in to hear one session, for they welcomed interested visitors. They are agitating principally for three reforms: Universal divorce laws in all the states; equal wage for men and women doing the same work, AND sensible dress for women. The first mentioned reforms were overshadowed by the interest taken in the dress question. The gowns were tried on by some of the ladies and every one oh-ed and ah-ed. The costumes are revolutionary, with short skirts which strike between the top of the shoe and the knee. The short skirt has not been officially decided on but probably will be. Mrs. May Wright Sewall of Indianapolis, president, said it will free a woman's hand, as she will not need to hold up her train crossing the street. I don't like trains for street wear, but dislike to seem odd. Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Lorado Taft's "The Fountain of Time."

The long procession marching thru the years
From yesterday to now, moves, as it must,
On to tomorrow, and
The waiting dust:
Inevitable, . . . lagging as it nears
The end. The slowly-plodding feet are held
To ways they never knew, yet follow, blind . . .
Those narrow trails that ever onward wind
Till heart is stilled and rebel blood is quelled.
So the great sculptor hewed them
as they passed . . .
Youth, with its head flung high, age
moving slow,
The haughty empress-queen of long ago,
Caesar and conqueror, conquered here at last
Fighting the drive of time . . . ah,
they would stay!
But time, relentless, pushes them away.

Vacationing? Send for List of Wardrobes

What should you do when you hire a maid? For tips on hiring and managing domestic help, read the booklet, "Maid Service for the Average Family," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

Winter vacationists this year will stay closer to home, the French and Italian Riviera and the rest of the Mediterranean being a little noisy and not too peaceful. But there will be winter vacations nevertheless, and other warm, sunny spots in other longitudes where one can rest the body.

When you have decided where you want to go, we will be glad to help with any wardrobe problems by sending you a chart of minimum wardrobe requirements for a January or February vacation. Included in the information is a list of the average temperatures for this season in the various popular winter spots. Just send us a self-addressed, stamped envelope and the mimeographed sheet will be yours.

The length of time you are away from home will, of course, influence the size of your vacation wardrobe. For a month's stay you will need more than for two weeks. Plan carefully so that you will have enough clothes for all requirements. It is a most uncomfortable feeling to attend a function and be inappropriately dressed. The ideal situation is to strike a balance—not too few and not too many. Too many clothes and quantities of luggage are a nuisance to the average traveler, and too many clothes stuffed into not enough luggage ruins the clothes with wrinkling, besides making every repacking job at the stopovers a case for a professional "trunk sitter."

The greater proportion of any traveling wardrobe, whether it is summer or winter, should be given over to sports clothes or tailored attire. They will take care of just about any daytime necessity. For train travel, dark tailored clothes are the best. For boat wear, light spectator sports items are the rule. Also on the boat it is permissible to wear active sport clothes, such as slacks and play clothes, when the climate permits. If it is to be a cruise, evening clothes will have to be included. Except for the first night out, it is customary for first class passengers to dress for dinner. Even on boats on which the class of passage makes dressing optional there is the captain's dinner which makes at least one evening dress a "must have."

Lingerie should be the kind that you can launder yourself, easily and quickly.

See that the hats you include are small, easy to pack, and the kind that stay on the head in a stiff breeze without having to be held in place.

Remember there is a mimeographed sheet of additional wardrobe hints for a stamped, self-addressed envelope for those who are in the market.

Fruit Pie Plate.

A special fruit pieplate is now on the market; it is extra deep, has an inner rim to make crimping the edge easier, and beyond that has a curved "juice-catcher" rim.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

This is one day of the year when we bask in the warming glow of the thousands of little good deeds which have accumulated thruout the previous 12 months, when we muse over the "thank-you" file which records the happiness and gratitude of those who have been helped thru the generosity and coöperation of our faithful readers.

Perhaps it is the contrast of the deepening gloom of the rest of the world, but the work which has been accomplished in the past year seems to have a shining worth to it. Every small bit of help we were able to give seems to stand out brightly, a part of a great network of happiness spread over the shabby, discouraged places of the city. Such simple kindnesses are the bulwark of our way of life: consideration and kindness to those in need are an important part of democracy.

We have contacted thousands of men, women and children during the year, both those in need and those offering assistance, and feel we have accomplished much of permanent value. More and more of our donors have taken the trouble to mention how very much they've enjoyed their "adventures in giving" and to send words of appreciation for the work being done. A reader wrote recently: "I felt good all day long. The woman you sent came for the buggy early this morning, and she seemed so happy to have it and so sincere in her thanks that I felt a pleasant little glow long after she left. A very little effort and no sacrifice on my part brought me a lot of happiness!"

From an elderly invalid: "I want to thank you for the lovely package of things you sent me. I received everything I needed. I will be indoors now for the remainder of the winter, but I am happy, as God is so good to me and you have sent me so many friends. I shall call all these things my Christmas presents, and may God bless you and your readers!"

A woman who has been sorely tried by poverty and ill health wrote: "I received your note and called for the stove immediately. I am writing to thank you. No one knows how we really needed it. Because my husband is seriously ill and I have five small children, it is a great blessing to have our home comfortably warm for the first time this winter."

From the mother of a large family: "Just a line to thank you for helping my little girl get a winter coat. A woman called here and brought her a beautiful new snow suit. I am returning the other slip you sent for a coat, since her suit is nice and warm, and I hope some other little girl will be as thankful as we are for your help."

From a woman who was desperately in need: "I am indeed grateful for your help, as I was destitute, and I can't tell you how much it means to me: It makes one realize that in a world so filled with hardship and sorrow there is still kindness and good will. My gratitude and best wishes . . ."

"Thru you I have come in contact with such grand and generous folks, no longer do I think the world has grown selfish and cold. I wish I could shake your hand and thank you in person. As you know, we have no one, kith nor kin, we are just two lonely old persons and your help meant everything to us."

"Nothing that I may write can fully express the deep sense of gratitude and obligation I feel for the great kindness you have shown me. Some time ago I asked for some very necessary clothing and a radio, since because of paralysis I am a shut-in. Everything requested has been granted in abundance. For this I feel truly grateful and trust that God will enable you to carry on and will bless a work that is truly great."

These are but a very few of the hundreds of equally sincere letters of gratitude in our files. Sharing these is the only return we can make for the kindness of those hundreds who stand by at all times, watching this column for every opportunity to help the less fortunate.

My deepest gratitude and a Merry Christmas to all!

his sign since Rolanne lies rather far north in Quebec, nearly 50 miles beyond the St. Lawrence and not directly on any route regularly traveled by men from lower Quebec or from New York and other states who go into the forests of Chicutimi to hunt or to fish. However, Crispin and Benoite, his wife, were a patient and a thrifty pair; and if they put up a guest even once a fortnight in the best bedroom, they considered it well worthwhile.

On this cool, autumn evening, suddenly some one stopped. It had been most clear that he had been about to drive by when he spied Crispin's sign. Then he made up his mind very quickly; he halted in a cloud of dust, backed his car, and hailed Benoite:

"You've room for me tonight?"

She understood that and promptly assured him, whereupon he drove into the yard, went with Crispin to look at the room, approved it and immediately engaged it.

Crispin was much pleased for, having closely observed the stranger, he had named a very good price and there was no haggling about it.

Stranger Carries New Fishing Tackle

The guest—he said his name was John Winter—obviously was a gentleman. He said he had driven up from Vermont which agreed with the Vermont license on his car.

The car was a roadster, black and very dusty. It was not a new car; but the fishing tackle carried in the car all was new. None of it had been used. Plainly, the stranger had spent 50 to 100 dollars—depending on prices others would have named to him—for the purpose of hooking a penny's worth of fish. Well, Crispin knew that many men from the states indulged in such extravagances; but not so many from Vermont.

Crispin appeared to be a slow and stupid man; and he was slow in his movements but he was not at all stupid. In fact, he made a very minute and careful study of any stranger he met; and he did this without seeming to.

. . . .

After dinner in the lodge room of the Commercial house in Paignton, N. J., Howard Ristine announced to the jury: "Arrangements have been made for a special treat for us this evening. Paul Rogell has consented to play for us some popular tunes and also some serious music, together with one or two of his own composition. He plays the piano, as you all know; and he also plays the organ; and so, by courtesy of the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Paignton—where they have a wonderful new organ—Paul will play a recital for us this evening."

June applauded, as the others were doing, and when the rest arose, she grasped her handbag from her lap and stood up. She did not accompany Cora to her room. June went only as far as the hall where she found some of the men waiting near the elevator and she joined them.

"Swell evening," Mr. Knapp commented, placing himself beside her.

June nodded.

"Cool and clear; and the moon'll be up," Mr. Knapp added cheerily. "Kind of nice idea—driving to a chapel in the moonlight to listen to the organ."

"Yes," June agreed.

June moved away from Mr. Knapp; she needed to be alone but it was impossible. Cora and Mrs. Enderberry and Mrs. Wescott were coming from their rooms, and Mrs. Enderberry said, "Anything I can do for you, dearie?"

June shook her head. No one could help her; no one. She had to make her own decision for herself; and when she made it—how did a girl go about the awful business of accusing, of murder, the man she had meant to marry?

The rest of the men gathered and the jury once more was carefully counted by the constables and, in groups of four, herded into the little elevator to make the descent to the street.

In front of the hotel was an empty bus with special policemen on duty to keep everybody else at a distance from the guarded 12.

As she walked between the policemen, June felt a sudden pang of guilt. She knew there was no need now for this careful protection; there no longer was any purpose to be served by keeping these jury people away from their homes. June Stranton could and ought to end this now senseless isolation; and she would not have to say a word. She could do it merely by opening her handbag and taking out Ned's letter to her and giving it to Mr. Ristine to read.

She would have to explain it after he had read it; she would have to answer an awful lot of questions; but that was all she would have to do at first — just open her handbag and hand the letter to Mr. Ristine.

Or even to Cora.

June took a seat in the bus, avoiding Mr. Ristine and also avoiding Cora. It was Mrs. Enderberry who plumped down beside June.

June lost something of her feeling of guilt in regard to the jury; but she knew that Geoffery Wardlan could not prefer being locked in his cell and being brought to trial again in the morning for the murder of the woman he had adored.

The jail was behind the courthouse and June got a glimpse of barred windows as the bus hurried past.

The church was nearly a mile from the square. It had a new organ, but the building itself was very old and there was a graveyard beside it which no longer was used, for it had become filled more than a century ago. Thin, stone slabs stood in their silent, ragged rows, and, above them, the tall white spire tapered toward pale stars. The moon already was bright; it lay in the east, lower than point of the spire; it was round and yellow, casting purple shadows before the jurors as they walked from the bus toward the church door and casting long purple patches in front of the headstones over the graves.

"There are two men in that corner," Tom Knapp said to June, "who were killed in the battle of Princeton; and one who was wounded at Monmouth and died a year later. Three from Washington's little army. Did you know it?"

"Not that there were three," Joan replied.

"One's named Helmer—the one wounded at Monmouth,' Cora spoke a little proudly. "He's my great-great-grandfather; and my great-great-grandmother Abatha—who was Trimble—is beside him." And Cora drew in a long, deep breath of determination.

"Your people have lived here a long time, Cora," Mrs. Wescot said kindly, "and have played an honorable part in the history of the country."

"Yes," Cora agreed, almost timidly. "Yes, they have; tho they've not done much since the civil war." But tonight—the thin girl was thinking—a Helmer again is going to play her part; nothing like fighting at Monmouth or at Gettysburg yet a part of appreciable importance and an honoring, perhaps—or certainly by tomorrow even—her name, Helmer, would be in the headlines and repeated on the radio. "Cora Helmer," they would say, "Miss Cora Helmer of Paignton courageously——" Yes, they probably would say "courageously" and they ought to say it; for it would take courage to do what she had to do. Courage.

That Samuel Lownes Helmer whose name now scarcely could be deciphered on that old, scarred headstone; he had had courage; and so must have Abatha, his wife.

Cora was very excited. She could not yet describe to herself exactly what she had to do, but it was completely clear to her that the time had come when she must act.

She did not attempt to keep close to June as the jurors entered the church. Cora delayed a little and, when June took a seat in a pew near the front, Cora placed herself across the aisle and in the row behind.

Paul Rogell Plays His Own Composition

Paul Rogell went directly to the organ loft and impatiently touched the keys. The new organ was magnificent in volume and of splendid tone. Paul longed to bring into voice, under his fingers, the theme measures of his symphony; but instead he pressed down the keys for the opening chords of "Ole Man River." His second request number was "Humoresque"; next "The Last Roundup" and "The End of a Perfect Day." It was after "Mandalay" that, quietly, Paul introduced the first motif of his own—the melody of his love theme, suggested by the infatuation of Geoffrey Waldron for Lily Leam.

Paul longed to turn to see if June were recognizing it; he was playing it to her and for her. She would nod at him, he thought; however, he did not turn. He played another passage, which represented an entirely different sort of passion—violent, selfish, and willful. . . . The two themes never intermingled; they alternated, but they never met—as the two lovers of Lily Leam never met. . . . Paul pressed down sudden, shocking notes; the death theme, tones of merciless murder and instant destruction.

There was a moment of awful violence; then silence and a pause after which the first motive—the infatuation theme—rose again but in agony; for the first lover was being told of the death and accused of it.

At last Paul turned and looked at June. He had felt that his music must have been reassuring to her; having told her of his themes, he had been sure that she, at least, could interpret the message of these tremendous tones of the organ which proclaimed that Geoffrey Wardlan was guiltless and that the murder was done by the unnamed violent and willful lover; and therefore June Stranton need be in terror no longer at the thought of having to vote the death sentence for the prisoner on trial.

Paul almost stopped playing when he saw her. He was not close enough to make out her expression but her attitude was unmistakable and he saw that, instead of reassuring her, his music seemed to have increased her trouble. She gave him no nod nor any sign of appreciation or approval; she simply sat still and staring, lost in that agony of her own.

Cora saw this, too. Cora did not analyze the message of the music but she felt its powerful emotionalism. It roused Cora and made her want to act. She got up and moved into the pew beside June.

June Asks Constable to See Her Father

June immediately moved away. She went down the aisle to the rear of the church where, a few minutes ago, a couple of the constables had been standing, but now nobody was there and as she approached the doors to the vestibule, she heard voices in argument.

"I tell you that ye can't do it!" she heard in the positive tones of the Scotch constable, Mr. Falkirk. "Ye can have one word of conversation with none of the jury—none of them —and especially with her."

Two men, younger men—newspaper men, June guessed—spoke at the same time and she did not hear their words but she heard clearly Mr. Falkirk's rejection of whatever they said; and Mr. Falkirk gave a direction to the constables and police who, evidently, were in the vestibule with him and himself opened the door and confronted June.

"You?" he said, in his surprise. "You here? What are you doing here? What have you heard?" And June knew then that she was the juror with whom the newspaper people wanted the word of conversation and she was the juror especially to be denied.

"I heard they wanted me, Mr. Falkirk," she said.

"In your seat, ye heard them?"

"No; I got up."

"Why did ye get up and come back here?"

"I wanted to ask you something."

"Me? What?"

"Can I have a moment this evening to talk with my father?"

"With your father, why?"

"I need to."

"For per-rsonal r-reasons? Pur-rely per-rsonal r-reasons? On nothing having anything to do—even most indir-rectly with the trial?"

June shook her head.

"Ye mean no?" Mr. Falkirk demanded.

June shook her head again.

"Then ye know what the answer-r must be."

June stood, staring at him. The church suddenly was in silence; Paul had stopped playing. He did not desert the organ; he kept his seat, but the others left the pews and gathered about June.

"What is the matter?" Mr. Ristine, the jury foreman asked Mr. Falkirk.

The florid-faced Scotsman considered very seriously before he replied: "Wait here, all of ye; and discuss nothing ber-ring on the trial, as usual. I've a bit of telephoning to do; then I may have something to say to you." He nodded at Mrs. Lennon and the two men constables who had returned from the vestibule; and he went to the door leading—some one said—to the pastor's study.

After 10 minutes, he returned. "I've conferr-red with the judge and with attor-rneys for both sides, both Mr. Netley and Mr. Tor-rpen and they agree 'twill be no mistrial; for the matter has nothing whatever to do with the trial or with any item of evidence; but since it has somewhat come to the notice of all of ye—that is, that there is an attempt tonight to reach one of ye with a question—I am allowed to bring it to her, but before all of ye, so none will imagine it is perhaps something bear-ring on the trial.

"It's this, Miss June Stranton. Your Mr. Melbourke can't be found."

"What?" June cried.

"He's not to be found—that's all," the Scotsman tried to make little of it. "So far as is known, nothing has happened to Mr. Melbourke; but he does seem to have vanished; and some who are interested have asked to inquire of you—since you, Miss Stranton, are affianced to him—if you could give them any help in locating him."

"How long ago," June heard herself ask, "did Ned—Mr. Melbourke vanish?"

"He seemed to have been missed, first, two days ago."

June had no idea of the length of her delay before she replied: "I can not give any help in locating Mr. Melbourke."

While they were making ready for bed, Mrs. Enderberry and Mrs. Wescott were even more talkative than usual, whereas June Stranton and Cora Helmer had scarcely a word to say to each other. Mrs. Lennon, noticing this, decided to spend the night in the room of the older women.

Mrs. Lennon had reached the conclusion that June's evident distraction had been due to concern over her personal situation; and Mrs. Lennon had expressed herself to Mr. Falkirk:

"Miss Stranton got on the jury impulsive-like; and now she's sorry."

So Mrs. Lennon satisfied herself that she understood June's disturbance. The constable left the door open thru the bathroom so that she could glance in at Cora and June; but, almost immediately after retiring, Mrs. Lennon was asleep. Mrs. Wescott and Mrs. Enderberry slept.

June lay wide awake and Cora Helmer never in her life had been further from sleep. She felt that she had come to her great occasion, to the one chance ever to be given her in her life to lift herself above the oblivion of the ordinary, to perform one signal, enduring service. Tomorrow, when it would be all over, she would return—undoubtedly—to resume her old dull place in the little bookkeeping booth in the rear of Beckley's hardware store; she would set herself again to entering items charged and overdue and typing out bills for little sums just as before; but she would not be the same.

To herself, and to others, she would be different ever afterward; no longer just a drab, tall, thin bookkeeper, but almost—perhaps almost a personage. Every one who would come in would look for her and many were sure to find need to buy something in the store just to speak to her; and whenever she waited on a customer, now, he would be sure to speak of it afterward.

He would want to say, "Cora Helmer who . . . yes, she waited on me. I spoke to her." For Cora Helmer would be known for a rare and important public service which she would have performed. Geoffrey Wardlan especially would be grateful to her. Newspapers thruout the nation, and the radio chains, would print and repeat her name. For a few days—or hours, at the very least—she would have nation-wide fame.

She had not lost her opportunity because she had failed to denounce June at the church when Mr. Falkirk was telling her of Mr. Melbourke's disappearance. That would have been a mistake, then—altho at the time Cora had called herself a coward for keeping silent. If she had spoken and accused June Stranton of concealing special and personal knowledge of the case, how could Cora Helmer have proved it? Cora had within herself the utter conviction, the feeling of complete certainty, that this was so; but she had no proof, nothing tangible.

And there was proof—and something tangible—to be had. It was in June's handbag. Cora could not imagine in what tangible form it existed, but she was sure that something was there—some object which, during the last day especially, had become of enormous concern to June.

Today, June scarcely had let her handbag out of her grasp, and never out of her reach; tonight she had taken it with her and laid it on the shelf above the washstand even while she brushed her teeth; and, for the first time, she had not left it merely beside the bed on the little table, but had taken it to bed with her and pushed it under her pillow.

June slid her hand under her pillow and touched her handbag. For the hundredth time she repeated to herself the reply she had given Mr. Falkirk. It had been a true one, of course; for she had no idea to what place Ned might have gone; but she knew why he had fled. She had had in her hand at the time, as now she had under her pillow, the complete and perfect explanation of his disappearance. She had had only to give it over to Mr. Falkirk and she would have set the world at Ned's heels—his picture posted in every police station, his description telegraphed everywhere. Ned—whom once she had meant to marry. How could she betray him?

Motif of Paul's Music Echoes Within June

But she must save Geoffrey. Phrases of Paul's infatuation theme and then the death moti and awful moment of accusation echoed within her, powerful and appealing.

It was a relief to June to be able to lose herself, for a few moments, in the memory of the music and to think of the music for itself.

Now Ned claimed her again.

His disappearance meant, of course, that he had ceased to trust her; or rather that he did trust her to do the right and lawful thing; the thing which, of course, she was bound to do. If he had trusted her not to do it—if he had remained and each day showed himself to her in court as he had done on the afternoon when she was first sworn in—he would have made her duty far more terrible to perform. Then, could she have done it at all—when to accuse him would have meant his immediate arrest and arraignment for the murder?

But now, he had vanished. No one could find him. He had declared, by his disappearance, that he knew that she had no choice but to speak.

Yet, where was he tonight? At this very hour, he must be hiding somewhere and very likely with a radio before him which he tuned to news announcements to learn, from the broadcast, whether the girl who had worn his ring had now betrayed him.

Under her pillow, June's fingers felt thru the handbag the crisp paper of his letter; and she could not help thinking how, under the bedclothes, she could tear the letter into bits and, with the scraps in her hand, hurry into the bathroom and wash them into the waste-pipe, before any one could interfere, and lose them forever.

June jerked. Some one was leaning over her; and a hand was under the pillow, pulling the handbag from her grasp.

CHRISTMAS DATE

By IDA M. EVANS

(Copyright: 1940: By Ida M. Evans)

She now knew that all along she had hoped—hoped. (Posed by Ginger Rogers)

"MED!"

Because it was Med Ellsworth!

Striding across the icy pavement of 67th street, beyond the blue and silver frosted window of Parfums, Inc. That familiar swing of long legs, the well remembered crunch of quick heels on frozen curb. Med!

The blood pounded in Lynn's chest. Involuntarily she had called to him. So many the months! So lonely the year.

He heard, thru the pavement mob of pushing Christmas shoppers. His dark head jerked around. Their eyes met, clung.

His arms were filled with packages. Red and silver cellophane, silver stars on blue wrapping paper. He wore a new overcoat and the gray and white muffler his sister Elsa had given him Christmas before last.

In the past, Lynn had always wanted to pull Med's muffler up against the close clipped back of his dark head. The barber might as well shave that exposed back of head! In winter, too. Winter in New York comes with frozen paws from Greenland.

Had he been here in New York all these months?

Toward him she eagerly pushed, dark blue eyes aglow.

"Med——"

"Lynn! Hello! Say, I'm in a frightful hurry—see you later."

And he had jerked his eyes away and walked faster.

A florist's long box—roses?—a florist's square box—orchids?—a gown box, long and holidayishly elegant—candles and tree ornaments, tinsel and—ah! The unmistakable sleek gray and gold wrapping paper of a Parfums purchase. Fourteen inches by eight by three. That would be the popular priced Toiletries. Sixty-five dollars.

Lynn Drayham knew packages. Holiday or run of the year. She had worked at Parfums for three years.

There are women who prefer the least of Parfums glass stoppered bottles to a contented landlord. There are men—with money—who annually thank God for Parfums, where a gift buyer can't go wrong.

Even the Parfums salesgirls, after years of handling them, sniff with love the silver and onyx and rose crystal vials, the gold and platinum and emerald topped wee flasks whose scents entrance a world.

Lynn's lunch time had run over. Drug stores had been jammed with shoppers reaching for wrapped sandwiches. But, paralyzed, she stood to stare after Med, hurrying from her voice, from her.

He was cruel. So he had excellently filled whatever hole in his life had been dug by her thoughtless self?

Joy went out of her dark blue eyes. Vitality went from her long, rather lovely face. She now knew that all along she had hoped—hoped.

Her feet were cold. But the warm flower-fragrant air of the perfume shop almost nauseated her. Even after she had got out of street clothes and into her crisp black and white taffeta uniform, the pale green glass counters were dim to her hurt eyes. Lacquer and chromium urns blurred, so that she almost crashed into one.

A year ago, on Christmas eve, she had almost crashed into one—in her rush to get out of her uniform at closing time because Med was waiting outside for her, his nose red and arms filled with packages.

Glenda had gone home, upstate, to spend the holiday with her apple-raising parents. Nancy, telephone operator, had to work. So the small apartment which the three girls shared was all Lynn's and Med's for a few hours.

Med worked in a steamship office, for $35 a week. They had decided seven months was long enough to be engaged. Lynn would keep on at Parfums.

"Because I do like it, Med. It's stirring. Today four Broadway stars were in. And one of the Dead End kids. Besides two radio singers."

And would she be glad to separate from Glenda and Nancy! She liked both girls, but Glenda was messy in the icebox. Mayonnaise dripped over white enamel. Cole slaw strewed over left-over-T-bone. Nancy liked to burn incense.

Med was neat, considerate, loving, generous, clean, loyal, and honest.

His sister Elsa had once said: "When you're married, give Med a break, Lynn. He's the kind who'll eat canned beans so his wife can have nail enamel."

"Elsa, because I work in a shop where the cheapest perfume is $18 an ounce, doesn't mean that I'm a glamor addict."

"Med took care of mother. Helped me and Johnny. He's a duty addict."

"I love him so much it hurts."

"All right. Forget my impertinence, Lynn."

"You weren't impertinent. Just a case of sister love."

Lynn had gone to tell Elsa what she thought of the unfair difference between Med and Parke Chatow, heir to a headache nostrum.

The difference ran to $35,000,000. Parke Chatow was Broadway playboy number one. The type that keeps shops like Parfums, Inc., out of the red. He was big, blond, laughing after his first or his fourth cocktail.

Good to his mother, too. She lived on Long Island. Once a week his huge black roadster collected two tickets for him because he raced in late afternoon to have tea on her east terrace.

His wife had been lovely gray-eyed Deloise Holger, of the Gramercy Park Holgers. Reno.

"Elsa, his monthly account runs to four figures! At Christmas he simply wades in and picks perfume bottles up like marbles for chorines, Wall street secretaries, dowagers on Long Island, the ex-wife of a pugilist, manicure girls, models, radio singers, Broadway stars, Hollywood darlings who happen to be in town, wives of senators."

Elsa heard. Elsa said, dry cleaning her salesman husband's ties, "It sounds fantastic and unfair. But generous, too."

Fate Elects Lynn to Wait On Parke Chatow

Under Elsa's neat yellow head was a brain, Lynn thought.

Generous was the word, Lynn decided, last Christmas eve. Fate elected her to wait on Parke Chatow. Older saleswomen were busy. Salesmen were engaged. Even Elbert Sutege, owner and manager, was attending to an imperious dowager whose sire had sold furs to Dutch settlers.

Monsieur Sutege's gestures were emphatic. His grandsire had distilled scents from fields of carnations and lilies. Not from white jars in laboratories. Sutege mourned for an older, sweeter era.

Parke Chatow came in with vim and laughing eyes and a Scotch breath and the smell of Havana cigarets and a topcoat from a Piccadilly tailor. Opulent Fifth avenue snow on the topcoat shoulders.

Like a lord with largess, Parke Chatow had careened down the pale green velvet carpet of the main aisle. Or like a head waiter?

But he proved to be particular about choosing containers for high priced scents. He might have been a housewife in a pantry.

He wanted cut glass for a dowager who liked Nuit de Amor, but disliked swing and streamlined limousines. Cloisonne for an old lady who lived in Newport with her memories. Platinum and sapphires and Noir Nuit for lovely rowdy Lilly Carr, whose hip dance convulsed Broadway audiences. Platinum and amethysts for lovely lesser young things on stage or at microphone, whom he had met at night clubs or on Florida beaches.

Finally, with the list cared for, he had laughed down at Lynn:

"You've been an angel. Glad you reminded me that opera singer had been dead 10 months. She was a good old soul. To me and to others. Now—choose something for yourself."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Chatow. Mr. Sutege would object."

"Oh, he would, would he? Monsieur Sutege, ankle over here!"

Elbert Sutege ankled over. Gallic black eyes well pleased.

"This young lady has cared for my wants like a mother. May I not give her a slight token of my gratitude?"

Monsieur Sutege may have deplored the advent of white jars from laboratories as against the passing of fields of carnations and lilies. But he had no prejudice against playboys' whims.

"I am glad that Miss Drayham has pleased you. Certainly she may accept a vial from you."

Miss Drayham and Monsieur Sutege had exchanged a glance of polite liking, which in the girl's dark blue eyes had almost bubbled, like champagne.

She had chosen, or Parke Chatow had chosen, a yellow glass bottle with a yellow glass stopper. Jeune Delight.

Would Glenda envy her! Nancy likely would mooch most of it.

Parke Chatow departed, inebriated. Afternoon departed, in a scurry of yellow arc lights and gay cellophane and shoppers hurrying to motor cars.

Lynn had scurried to change from her black and white taffeta uniform, to meet Med, red nosed and parcel-laden outside. Crowded and happy the subway car.

"O, Med, I love you. I love the season. I love the snow."

She had squeezed her hand under his parcel gripping arm. But when she had mentioned the snow, her dark blue eyes clouded. Med certainly needed a new overcoat. The sleeve she cuddled was darned at the wrist.

"Thank the Lord that Glenda and Nancy aren't home. I've got oysters to fry. And butter. Sweet butter. And paprika."

"Oh, Med, how wonderful."

"Lynn, you look so sweet with snow on your face."

"Med, you didn't get a new overcoat."

"Where I work, overcoats hang in a locker, believe it or not."

"I know. All day. But not all night. Or early mornings."

"No one sees an overcoat in a subway. Houdini couldn't."

Ah, well, if he preferred to sink his money in a gift for her, she would not preach. There were the January sales.

Oh, blessed relief to sit together on the davenport, without Glenda or Nancy.

"Med, what did you get me?"

Because Lynn was one of the women who knew from instinct that men like excitement over their buyings.

"A toothbrush."

"I know it will be something darling, because you always guess what I want the most."

"Hope I guessed right, honey!" he said, kissing her ear.

"Med, I got something darling! From Parke Chatow. You know—the rich young man that gives a five dollar tip to manicurists? He had 82 women on his perfume list! I gasped when it added up! And Monsieur Sutege looked like a full moon in August! And Monsieur Sutege said it was perfectly all right for Mr. Parke Chatow to give me a small token of appreciation for my efficient service." And Lynn had giggled out of sheer delight in the evening and Med's close arm.

She had shown Parke Chatow's little token to him. She had taken off tenderly the white cellophane wrapping.

"It is only a $37.50 item. Thirty-two fifty for the two ounces of Jeune Delight. Five for the yellow bottle. But it was sweet of him, don't you think?"

"Sweet," Med had agreed.

The strained voice had caught her attention. And even then a faint horror had come upon her.

"Med, give me my gift! I gave you the brushes."

"It isn't really right to give presents on Christmas eve. I like to wait until tomorrow."

But she had snatched at the small package in his hands. Not much blue paper with silver stars had been needed for its wrapping.

He had tried to keep it from her. His lips were tight. His eyes were veiled.

But she got it, held it away from his hasty hands. Opened it.

Yellow glass vial. Yellow stopper. Jeune Delight. One of the Parfums cheaper items. Thirty-two fifty for the perfume. Five for the delicate yellow glass container.

Amount of Gift Just a Trifle to Parke

A trifle, the amount, to Parke Chatow. An overcoat's equivalent to Med Ellsworth.

Med's twisted face! The way he said, trying to grin.

"Anyhow he and I have the same kind of taste."

Lynn had stared down at the small blue and silver card:

"Love and kisses from your adoring Med."

"Med, darling! I wish he'd gone and jumped in some lake!"

"Forget it, honey. Just duplicate presents. It happens at weddings, too."

Wretchedly he had said, "I got yellow glass to match your hair. He, too?"

"I don't know or care! I hate him."

"Why?"

"For spoiling our evening—your gift." She had had to fight back tears.

"Forget it, Lynn."

So they had tried. She had. Med had. But gayness had gone elsewhere. She had not been able to put out of her mind how long and earnestly

Next Sunday—"THE HOURS THAT SHINE IN THE DARK," BY KATHERINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

Med, poor boy, had saved to buy the lovely trifle for her.

Toward the end of the evening, Med had looked tired. Dispirited.

"Well, it won't happen next year. Because we'll be buying an extra chair for our living room," she had said, too brightly.

"Sure," he had agreed and had risen to get his shabby overcoat.

They saw the New Year in together. Went to pictures. Phoned each other noons.

That is, for a short while. Then Med had quit his job, or been laid off. He got another, selling tickets for an inter-state bus company. More pay. But the bus office was in the state of New Jersey. Ferry, subway, and bus between his rooming house and her shared-by-three apartment.

Time to come. Time to go.

"You don't get enough sleep, Med."

He quit his job, or was laid off. Became upstate representative for a company which supplied linens to hotels. Got into New York City once a month or so.

O, Med had not done the thing with crudeness

"Listen, Lynn, let other fellows take you out whenever you feel dull. It'll be all right with me—see?"

Two months. No trip into New York City. A brief hour or two. Three months.

She had beaten down her pride and gone to Elsa in Queensborough. Elsa had had twins and was preoccupied.

"Lynn, I don't see Med any oftener than you do. But——"

"Tell me, Elsa!"

"Listen, Lynn; he has not really said a word you could pin anything on. But Med's terribly proud and—self-conscious. And we all loved mother, but she was always wanting something he couldn't quite afford. Of course he didn't make a lot. Well, I don't suppose Med ever had enough socks."

"But I——"

"Maybe Med got fed up. Or—gave up before he started."

"Elsa! Because I work in a shop which caters only to the rich and silly spenders, doesn't mean I'm silly and a spender!"

"Of course not. Only——" and Elsa's light blue eyes had become thoughtful and embarrassed—"only you have the kind of face that can get you a husband with money, Lynn. Don't try to be modest with me."

Lynn had blazed with temper.

"I've not been used to expensive perfumes or fur coats! I came to New York from our small frame house in Pennsylvania because I'm the oldest of a country doctor's six children. You were born in Queensborough, so you wouldn't know what that means, Elsa! And because I was lucky enough to be waiting in an employment office when the emergency call from Parfums came over the phone——"

"That's what Med said."

"Med said what?"

"That probably you were actually hungry—for what you'd never had. For what he, poor lamb, could likely never give you!"

"Nonsense! He means he felt disappointed because a duplicate made his present a flat one."

"Please remember Med's my brother, Lynn!"

"I understand you and Johnny Berren's sisters don't kiss when you meet!"

Lynn Repents Taunt to Med's Sister

Later Lynn had repented the white-hot taunt. Elsa had been sweet. She had told Lynn that she herself had not seen Med for months. He was working for a rich stockholder in the bus company. In Albany.

Glenda had married. Replaced by Cindy who worked in the public library and liked to discuss literature. Nancy had gone to Chicago to work for a woman politician. Nancy had been replaced by Joan from Barton's. Joan wanted to get into Parfums.

Albany. So he need never see her again—unless he so desired. Maybe the stockholder had a daughter? Who shopped in New York.

The air of Parfums was heavy after the clean cold outdoors. Emotion was heavily present in Parfums at any time.

Lynn handed a silver and cobalt flask to an angry large woman in mink who exclaimed "Good heavens! No!" at the price, then mused and muttered and ordered it sent to herself, with "Love and best wishes" on the card.

In her wake was a small, timid woman in shabby black Melton cloth coat who wanted "Something very inexpensive, my dear. I broke a bottle my daughter got last year and must replace it."

A tall sleek broker ordered a dozen Ciel Amour in amethystine crystal bottles. The dozen names read like Earl Carroll's Vanities.

A short sleek broker ordered six of a kind, in silver and turquoise crystal, for daughter, son's wife, secretary, niece, aunt, and friend. "And they'd like coal oil if it came from this place," he moaned.

Then came a file of younger and poorer men. Who had waited until the 24th, last pay day before the 25th.

One bought a rose crystal bottle. Passional Dream. His young gray eyes were dreamy and determined. He counted out the last two dollars in quarters and dimes. He told Lynn, recognizing a sympathetic ear: "Say, she's tops. She mentioned this. I'd like to give her a barrel of it."

One bought a silver and blue crystal bottle of Reverie Du Nuit. He wore spectacles. He said: "Do you think a girl with blue eyes who likes romantic books would like this?" anxiously.

Firmly Lynn told him that the girl had not yet been born who did not like crystal and Reverie Du Nuit.

She could not say how she knew that the next was a husband. Perhaps the monthly gas bill which protruded from his billfold. His overcoat was lightweight. He took a long time to choose a black crystal vial with a chromium stopper. "That looks swell," he consulted Lynn.

"Swell. She'll love it."

"She's dying," he said abruptly. "Next year——" He darted out.

"Stop it," Lynn told herself fiercely, and welcomed two mink-clad, frivolous, greedy babes from Broadway as if they were a sedative.

"Listen, if a Mr. Bevan orders anything in this place for me, change it to——" She had a list written. Lynn saw that it included practical colognes.

Then her attention wandered. Parke Chatow was in the main aisle, bearing down on her. Slightly unsteady on his feet. Well, the aisle was over filled. Perhaps he was merely careful to choose not to jostle other customers.

She wished that one of the other salesgirls would take his order. Bad enough to remember what he had all unwittingly done to her life.

Unwittingly, tho.

As last December, he was blond, laughing, with a Scotch breath and the fragrance of Havana cigarets. Opulent Fifth avenue snow on his shoulders. A brown topcoat which did not need a price tag of three figures.

And the same list, with a few added names.

Lynn saw, tho, that the lines from his nostrils to mouth were deeper cut. His over-bagged eyes were ineffably weary. Of life? Of what?

She tried to beckon Mabelle, the oldest saleswoman, who would relish the sales slip. Mabelle had a Hollywood star in tow.

Parke Chatow boredly rattled off names and crystals, silver and emerald-topped stoppers, scents. Then he stared at Lynn.

"You took care of me last year, didn't you?"

"Yes, Mr. Chatow."

"Beautifully, too. I recall. But—weren't you going to be married?"

Lynn wet her lips and her pencil.

"The wedding didn't happen."

"So? Why? O—sorry. None of my business."

"It—it just didn't happen. No real reason."

"Often there is no real reason," he said, and stared past her head as if he saw something uglier than the pastel fresco of the Parfums wall.

He came back to the time and place. His list was long, as last year. Longer. The lines from nostrils to chin were deeper cut. They were furrows of discontent.

Whatever he had done to others, he had done worse to himself. Lynn checked rapidly names and colors of crystal, metals, semi-precious stones in stoppers, precious stones for a favored few.

Suddenly he said, hand lax on a yellow crystal stopper:

"Tonight is Christmas eve."

"Yes, Mr. Chatow. The yellow crystal for Miss Carr?"

"Do you like Christmas eve?"

"I hate it!"

"So do I. You seem a nice child. Can't we hate it together?"

She was astonished and dubious.

"Both of us are lame ducks apparently," he went on, carefully. "Can't we limp a few hard hours into eternity? If we waken with a headache, can't we forget matters worse than a brief headache?"

Lynn's head ached now. Parfums was a spacious shop. But the day and the cumulative odors of countless opened vials, the crowding women and men, the whir of voices, the swish of saleswomen's taffeta uniforms, like a great soft sledgehammer in a huge cruel hand.

She looked up into the man's compelling eyes. Heartache in his eyes. Sorrow in her own. And the two emotions met and clamped as if for mutual solace.

Why not? What had Elsa said, in a sister's jealousy: "Lynn, you've the kind of face to get a rich husband."

Parke Chatow was rich and fate-beaten. Some woman had hurt him. His lovely-eyed wife, Deloise Chatow, whose classical face had been boon to rotophotographers for a decade.

Med would be chagrined! He would see her face, his Lynn's face, in Sunday supplements, tennis racquet or hunter's crop in her hand. He would be sorry? Surely!

Lynn did not pause to reflect that a desire to hurt one man is a poor excuse for marriage to another man.

But the promise of marriage lay in Parke Chatow's oddly serious eyes. And his words were an echo of what lay in his eyes.

"Possibly we might discover before midnight that we might find the next year and years to come more endurable together than apart?"

Lynn Makes a Date with Parke Chatow

She said slowly, "Perhaps."

"Your address? Shall I pick you up at eight? And won't you be glad to leave this smelly shop, my child?"

"Yes—yes—I'll be glad," she replied, breathlessly, and watched him remove his dark glove to write down her address.

"Hand that damned list of names over to another salesgirl," he said, absently. "Tell her to fix it up. And I don't care who gets rose crystal or who gets platinum and sapphires."

He was gone, shoving imperiously thru the mink coats and lapin capes and the overpowering scents.

Lynn looked dazedly after him—looked back because a woman had taken his place before the glass counter. A lovely-eyed woman whose perfect profile was curiously familiar——

Deloise Holger Chatow. All readers of Sunday supplements knew the face, the proud gray eyes.

She had heard. Lynn was suddenly scarlet, as if she had been caught in theft.

The ex-Mrs. Chatow laughed lightly.

"My poor girl, don't be embarrassed. Yes, I heard. But I've divorced him, you must know."

"I—I know."

"He's a perfect right to spend his evenings as he—he chooses. I'd gladly help him in any way in my power."

So smooth and sweet and insolent the voice. So unhappy the eyes.

Lynn stammered, aware of M. Sutege within earshot, unaware of aught else but the misery in Deloise Chatow's gray eyes:

"Then perhaps you'd look over this list of names and addresses. He has a habit of not knowing who has died since last year."

Deloise Chatow took the list. The hand in the expensive glove trembled, as if it touched something precious.

"Good heavens! Mother Chatow's old nurse has been dead for two years. And this girl from Broadway—really, this is inexcusable even for Parke. Doesn't he read the papers?"

"She is the one who jumped from the 18th story window?"

"Yes. The one. And I am sure Marian Adams is somewhere in poor France where Jeune Delight would never reach her."

So lightened the voice, so quick the pencil.

Lynn said, moved by what impulse no one could ever say.

"He—he said he and I were both lame ducks. So perhaps we could limp together thru a hated Christmas eve."

"He said—that?" Pencil poised, was immobile.

"He hates Christmas eve. And I hate it. That was all, Mrs. Chatow."

"It was two years ago tonight—I see. He is generous to a fault. And I don't—didn't like faults. Miss—I don't know your name."

"He doesn't, either. It is Drayham."

"Miss Drayham, I'll make out a check—1,000—10,000—50—if you'll not meet him tonight. For if you do, I'll take him away from you—I'll humble myself—beg him to come back to me—and he is soft-hearted—ridiculously soft-hearted——"

Lynn put a vague hand across her aching forehead.

"My father is—was—a country doctor. You wouldn't know what that means, Mrs. Chatow. But he seldom sent a bill even to people who could afford to pay." With sudden passion: "If you offer me a check, I'll throw its pieces in your face!"

"My poor child, I didn't mean——"

"Go away! But—try to be good to him. He—he is sweet."

The customers came in more hordes. Eager women, perplexed men. Over all the scent of synthetic lilies, gardenias, carnations, oriental mixtures, violets, and fruit blossoms.

Lynn's head pounded, like an engine at detested work. Vaguely she was glad that Parke Chatow no more would dread Christmas eve. And vaguely she was glad that Med, her poor Med, had a new overcoat.

But, chiefly, she wanted to be alone. Cindy had a date with a junior professor from City college. Joan had a date with a coat salesman. Lynn would fling her hot face and aching forehead downward on the davenport and taste the sweetness of solitude, tears, terror of the future and loneliness.

The afternoon was gone. In gray dusk, in hurrying gift-bearers. Five o'clock—six. The last flurry of Parfums packages to be wrapped and delivered.

Salespersons changed from black and white taffeta uniforms into street wear.

Wearily Lynn took her seasonal check from M. Sutege who said Noel when he meant Christmas.

Wearily she went out into the too glittering street, the honk and shout and crunch of the street.

Some one caught her arm.

"Lynn!"

Med! Red-nosed. Arms empty of packages. Med—looking at her with actual hunger in his eyes.

Did she dream? She was so tired. She could not say.

"Lynn! I thought I was doing you a favor to go away and stay away—but when you called to me this noon—and I saw your dear loving eager eyes—O, Lynn, I was an idiot! Do you still care—do you?"

Med Guides Lynn to Subway Entrance

He had hold of her arm. He was guiding her toward the subway entrance. Ah, the dear familiarity of arm and direction!

"Gosh, I hope Glenda and Nancy have a date——"

She giggled. "It's Cindy and Joan. They're worse! But they both have a date tonight."

"Have you a date—tonight?"

"I could have had one."

"Why of course you could! With your face, you could have a million dates any time you put up your finger!"

He piloted her toward the curb.

"Med, you've forgotten the way to the subway."

"Lynn, I want to explain that I simply couldn't stop a second at noontime. You see, my boss' daughter came up to New York to shop. She's a grand old girl, but she gets impatient when her arthritic knee hurts. Lynn, woud you mind leaving New York? I've got a grand boss and he'll understand what it takes for a married couple to live on——"

"You've got a new overcoat."

"Yes."

There was a minute of constrained silence.

"Honey, I haven't bought you anything yet. So you needn't fear another duplicate."

"O, Med! He passed me up this year. I wish he had—last year."

"I read he was drinking hard," commented Med, comfortably. "But that's his business. Lynn, I've got the boss' car. We could take a ride to Connecticut, where there's 24 hour license service."

"I think so, too." She cuddled her hand under the new overcoat sleeve. "Before you think up a good excuse for walking away from me again. O, Med!"

"Now, what?"

"I never thought we'd have this Christmas date!"

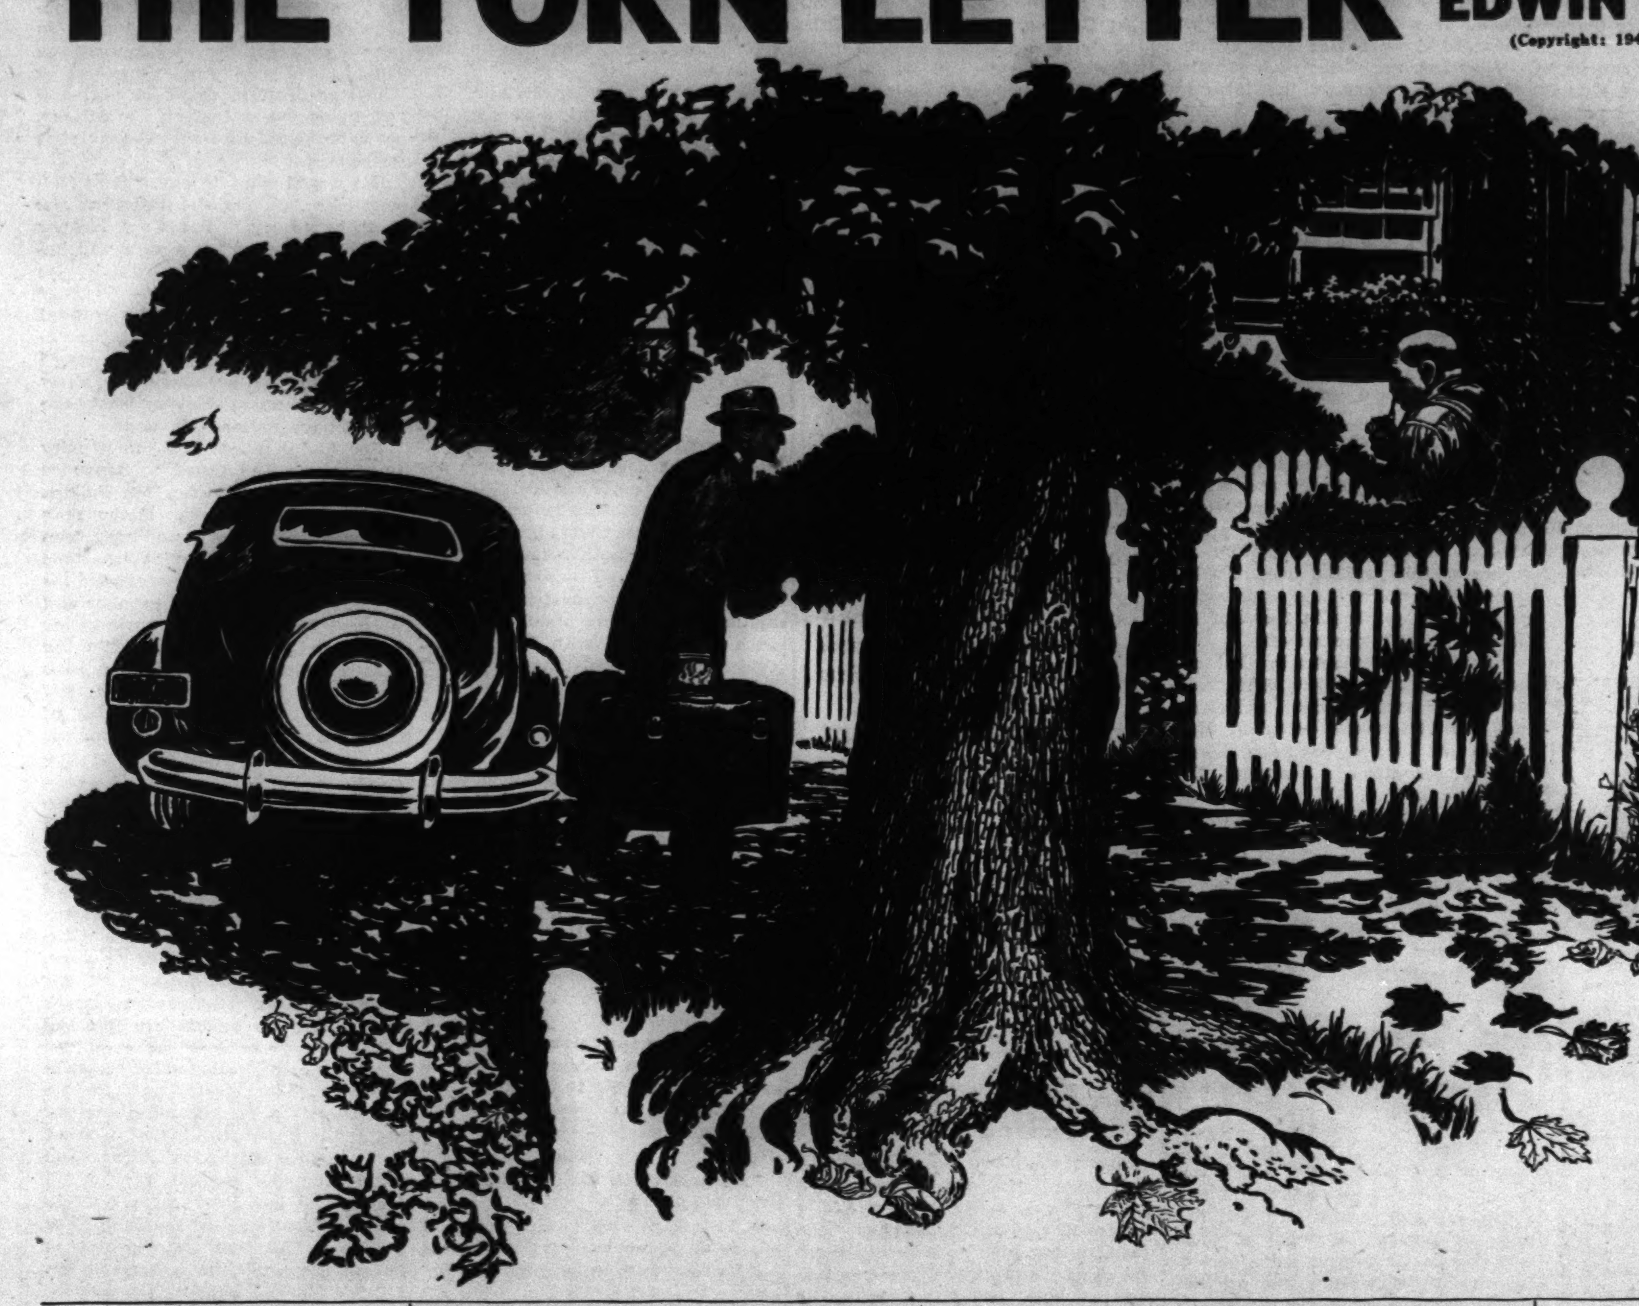
"We-ell—I intended all along to scout around and see how the land lay—with you," he grinned.

"Med—give me my gift . . ."

THE TORN LETTER

By EDWIN BALMER

(Copyright: 1940: By Edwin Balmer)



Crispin was much pleased, for, having closely observed the stranger, he had named a very good price and there was no haggling about it.

What Has Gone Before

June Stranton returns from a vacation in Europe and is met at the docks by her fiance, Ned Melbourke, wealthy young man about town. Instead of driving her home Ned tries to force her to elope. When she refuses he demands the return of a special love letter he sent her and which June has been treasuring. They quarrel and June goes home alone. She finds she has been called for jury duty on a murder trial, and she welcomes the opportunity to get away from Ned for a while. Lily Leam, the murdered woman, was an actress who rented a place near the Stranton estate in New Jersey. Geoffrey Wardlan, a research chemist, who lived in a cottage on her place, is being tried as her murderer. Ned makes a scene trying to reach June in the courtroom and afterward sends her a note in her suitcase which Tano, her maid, has packed for her, but the police matron holds the note for June until after the trial. Paul Bogell, a childhood friend of June's, is also on the jury. Flora List, Lily Leam's maid, testifies about her mistress' love affair with Wardlan, but admits that a cigaret lighter found in Miss Leam's room did not belong to him. June notices the lighter is identical with one she sent Ned from Paris. Mr. Felladay, formerly one of Ned's guardians, calls on June's mother and tells her Ned has sold a lot of real estate and has disappeared with a large amount of cash. Bianca, Lily Leam's housemaid, testifies she found evidence of another visitor besides Wardlan the night Miss Leam was murdered. The room was disarranged and strewn with cigaret butts, while Wardlan had always been neat. June remembers how untidy Ned always was. Cora Helmer, June's juror roommate, notices that June is upset and suspects that June knows something she is holding back. Paul, who is composing a symphony on the trial, also notices June's nervousness.

INSTALMENT XII.

"'MY DEAREST,'" the lawyer read. "'How fast we have flown beyond friendship and how far! But I can doubt nothing that we have done. I can not doubt you; and never, never myself. When I am close to you, I feel——'"

The courtroom had become completely silent, except for the sound of Mr. Netley's voice as he repeated the more intimate passages of the love letter. No one stirred, least of all June who sat tense and taut, listening for some mention of Ned.

She did not expect to hear his name read; for it had become clear to her that Geoffrey Wardlan never had known the identity of the rival who, so cautiously and secretly, had called at the manor.

June realized that, at the time he had written this letter, Wardlan could not have learned even of the visits of his careful rival. No sense of uncertainty could have assailed him when he put on paper these words to his lover.

The prosecutor finished the first letter and laid it aside. He took up the second which, evidently, was shorter.

"'You will be away from me tomorrow,'" Mr. Netley read and commented: "This letter begins without salutation. It reads: 'You will be away from me tomorrow; and that will be the first day, since we met, that I may not see you; and, consequently, I find myself unable to accomplish anything of importance. I blunder and am stupid at my work; I cannot rely on any result I have recorded tonight. My mind is not on what I have been doing. A week ago, I would have said that such a situation was the height of absurdity; I would have considered it impossible for me. But I can neither sleep nor work; I merely move about now while the night drags thru; for tomorrow—tomorrow you will be away from me——'"

Prosecuting Attorney Reads the Torn Letter

Where had Lily Leam gone away from him? June wanted to learn, as she listened. To be with whom? With Ned?

June sat back a little less tensely as the lawyer laid down this letter and picked up the third.

"I will now read to you the torn letter," he announced; and he carefully unfolded the sheet and displayed it. "This, as you can see, has been torn. I present it to you in precisely the state it was found among Lily Leam's effects. Obviously it had been torn, by some one, into very small scraps; and then carefully and patiently the scraps were reassembled, fitted together and pasted in place. In sequence, it seems to follow the letter I have just read. It is undated but can be placed by the time when Miss Leam was away from the manor for a short time.

"'O, my dear, come back!' it begins. 'Come home to me. I wander without you. You have left me in a loneliness I never dreamed could be; but I wouldn't exchange it for any other condition, except one with you. . . .'"

June's breathing stopped; she clung with desperate hands to the sides of her chair.

These were the words of her letter! Ned's letter to herself! These were Ned's words to her which she had read over and over so many times that she had memorized them. She tried, indeed, to tell herself that the words were reaching her not from the lawyer's reading of the torn letter but that she was supplying them to herself, substituting Ned's phrases for some others which really were being read.

"'. . . Why, out of all bodies, all beings—forgive me, if I say all souls—one alone lives for another, I do not know. I only know that it is so with me. . . .'"

June no longer could argue against herself. She was hearing these words spoken; the lawyer was reading them from that violently torn and patiently repaired sheet of paper. Ned's own words but never Ned's own words. Originally, he never had written them. Always that letter from him had amazed her—the one from him which she had preserved. Why, she had it here with her now. In her handbag on her lap, she had it—every line, every word of the love letter written by Geoffrey Wardlan to Lily Leam and which somebody had taken and torn into bits; and somebody else had pieced together again.

Ned had torn it! He would have, if he were angry or jealous. His strong, violent fingers would have shredded it into these bits. He would have strewed them about; and then, after he had gone, Lily Leam had picked up every little scrap and fitted them together again so she could keep her letter.

Was that what had happened?

June Imagines Ned Copying Lily's Letter

Before he had torn it, Ned must have copied it. June closed her eyes. Yes; she could see him doing that, too. He had gained possession of it somehow, perhaps before Lily Leam received it; or perhaps afterward; perhaps he had taken it from her. What difference did it make exactly how he had obtained it? He had had it and he had read it—a letter such as he never had written, and never could write, himself.

Lily Leam must have received it, June now reckoned. Ned had seen the effect of it upon her. Ned had sneered at it; but he was envious, too. And thinking of herself—June—he had copied it to try it on her. Ned had a scheming, practical streak like that; he would let it interrupt even his anger. So, by himself somewhere, he copied it; and then he took the original back to Lily Leam and tore it in front of her and tossed the bits about. But he made from his copy the letter which had reached June at Mentone. Ned had no idea that she ever possibly could learn of the original letter; at that time he could have had no idea that he was to kill Lily Leam.

It a little shocked June to realize that she was charging Ned with the murder; all but this admission of it had been accomplished in her before. Nothing less fitted the manner of Ned's meeting her when she had landed and his demand that she marry him—after she had told him how she had read and reread his letter.

It—or rather the original which Geoffrey Wardlan had written—must have been printed in the newspapers during the summer when she was away. She had not seen those newspapers; but Ned knew that the letter was sure to be printed again. So she must be his wife before it publicly appeared; and he must have back the copy he had mailed her abroad.

Then his talk with her over the phone when she told him she was going to the jury at Paignton. She understood that now; and why he attempted, so crazily, to reach her when she first came out of the court house, a member of the jury; and why he had watched, that night, outside the hotel.

Where was he now?

June arose. She had not the slightest recollection of anything that recently had transpired but she was aware that court was being adjourned. She had no difficulty at all in standing or in walking out with the rest of the jury. Cora Helmer, beside her, had neither need nor excuse to help her; and Cora watched her closely but did not touch her. June marched across the square as steadily as any of the others; and she felt not the slightest uncertainty of her step; but she did not hear what other people were saying.

It made no difference, she knew; for the jury only chatted about nothing at all, when they were walking. When she reached her room—hers and Cora's—she did not want to lie down or even to sit on a chair. She stood at a window, holding her handbag. She had not laid it on her dresser, as she had been doing; she kept it clasped in her hand, very tightly.

Cora noticed that.

. . . .

The telephone at Emory Stranton's residence kept ringing and ringing. Old Boles, who had his instruction, always answered:

"No, sir. Mr. Melbourke is not here. . . . No, sir, I have not seen him today. I have no information to give out in regard to Mr. Melbourke. . . . No, sir, it is impossible to call Mrs. Stranton to the telephone. Mrs. Stranton has nothing to say in regard to anything."

Mr. Stranton Informed of Ned's Disappearance

It was a little after four in the afternoon when the bell rang again and this proved to be a call from Mr. Stranton's office. Boles went to Tano and she tapped on Mrs. Stranton's door.

Elaine was lying down but she could not sleep nor could she really rest.

"Tano?" she challenged quickly.

"Yes, madam. It is Mr. Stranton, who wants to speak with you."

Elaine sat up but waited a full minute before she reached to her bedside table for the telephone.

"What is it, Emory?"

"The newspapers have been calling me, Elaine," she heard. "And now two men are here in the office. About Ned."

"What about Ned?"

"They are looking for him."

"Why are they looking for him, Emory?"

"Because they can't find him. They say he has disappeared."

"Why—do they say?—has he disappeared?"

"They don't know—or they won't say; but they are putting it in the papers tonight that he has disappeared."

"That all, Emory?" Elaine asked, too quickly.

"All? What do you mean?"

"I mean, is that all they are saying about Ned just—just that he has disappeared?"

. . . .

About a mile out from the little town of Rolanne, Quebec, Crispin Laverdiere had posted before his cottage and beside the road a neatly lettered invitation to passersby to stop the night: "Tourists Entertained," in both English and French.

He had not had much luck with

Leader's Rare Talent Guides Club Programs

By Betty Browning.

There is a deep silence as 300 women suddenly stop talking. Out upon the platform of Fullerton hall in the Art institute Mrs. Charles S. Clark has stepped with gentle authority.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark.

Tall and slender in her dark dress with its Christmas sprig on one shoulder, a crest of white feathers upon her silver hair, she stands for a moment and smiles as 300 faces, most of them long familiar, turn to her expectantly.

Then, "Merry Christmas to you!" she says in her soft, clear voice. "And now, won't you say 'Merry Christmas' to your neighbor?" A chorus of "Merry Christmas" in the packed hall, and another session of the conference of club presidents and program chairmen has begun.

No two meetings ever begin the same way. In the more than 20 years since Mrs. Clark has directed the conference upon its unprecedented and unduplicated course she has brought to the task the inventiveness and the vitality that crop out, too, in her poetry and in her numerous philanthropic activities.

And she has brought to it, also, other qualities, hard to define, that make for constant freshness. A noun and an adjective, "charm" and "warm hearted," come closer, perhaps, than any other words to describing them. Friends of hers use another word, too, "spirituality."

Sometimes the conference opens with a little anecdote, one of those stories that bring Mrs. Clark frequent invitations to speak at luncheons and dinners. Usually the audience reads together a litany or poem, published at the head of the program, that Mrs. Clark herself has written.

What follows always is unpredictable: a succession of speakers, singers, dancers, and others who possess a variety of talents. Their appearances are limited to eight minutes, except by special permission.

Some of them are world famous artists who have come from far corners of the country to address the conference audience. The roster of those who have been presented before the conference since Mrs. Clark organized it during the world war is virtually an artistic and intellectual "Who's Who."

Others, and these are the particular concern of Mrs. Clark and her aides, are the young artists, the would-be professionals who hope by recognition at the conference to take their first steps toward fame. Many of these have waited months or even years for these eight minutes.

It is interesting to note how Mrs. Clark or the department head, music chairman, travel chairman, drama chairman, or whichever chairman it may be, who sponsors the artist, sets the stage for him by her introduction. In a few words the mood appropriate for his particular talents is established.

Preparation for the artist's appearance, particularly a young artist's appearance, extends far beyond words, however. Except in the case of a few celebrities, all who appear before the conference are given auditions. The various departments of the conference provide volunteers who judge the auditions.

The music chairman, who presents a young soprano, for instance, may have heard her two years earlier and may have sent her back for more training. She even may have arranged for that training. Or she may have provided certain social contacts needed to give her poise.

One story is told of the chairman whose singer, by now her protége, turned up for a conference appearance without a suitable costume. The chairman dashed home, took her young daughter's cherished new ball gown out of the closet, whisked it back to the Art institute, and the singer carried off the appearance with flying colors.

Great appearance may represent fame and fortune for a young artist. More than one well known personality has recalled with gratitude the helping hand given him by the conference early in his career, and in turn has been glad to lend a helping hand to other conference "alumni" who seek to establish themselves in the arts.

• • •

An appearance before the conference means not only that an artist has attained a certain standard of excellence. In more practical terms it means that an audience of club leaders, all of them entrusted with the task of selecting programs for their organizations, has heard him.

That, in most cases, leads to engagements lucrative enough to furnish a career in itself, or at least a stepping stone to greater things.

Many musicians have been freed by these engagements from the drudgery of work which made study impossible, and so have been able to prepare themselves for greater success.

There is another side to the conference, too, the side of the 300 women in the audience. They have come from points all over the middle west to obtain the best possible programs for their organizations.

It was while Mrs. Clark was president of the Englewood Woman's club, during the last war, that she conceived the idea of a clearing house whereby artists and audiences might be brought together for the mutual benefit of each. The first year a half dozen Chicago clubs joined in the venture. It met with such success that scores of others applied for membership.

Now it is a sort of accolade for a club to be in the fellowship of the conference. It means that that club is sponsoring the best available type of program, is having a share in developing that type of program, and is doing its share financially to make it possible.

Interestingly enough, the plan has worked out to make better artists available at lower fees. By making possible several bookings at about the same time in one community an artist is enabled to make special rates for organizations which otherwise might not be able to procure an artist of his calibre.

Thus the conference achieves its double objective: to raise the standard of club programs and to foster talent.

During all the years since she founded the conference Mrs. Clark has remained its president, tireless in its service.

So, too, are the women with whom she carries on its activities: Mrs. R. W. Martindale, Mrs. Victor Munnecke, Mrs. Harvey A. Bush, Mrs. A. H. Sweet, Mrs. R. E. Pattison Kline, Mrs. J. Marc Fowler, Mrs. A. H. Goodhue, Mrs. Otto A. Sjostrom, Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Mrs. Guilbert Klinefelter, Mrs. Howard M. Prime, Mrs. C. H. Challen, Mrs. Oscar Shanks, Mrs. Paul A. Grundman, Mrs. Lowell Hoit, Mrs. S. V. Robuck.

These women, like Mrs. Clark, bring to their respective departments, drama, travel, gardens, decorative arts, to mention but a few, a similar broad experience in organizations and in other fields of activity, and a similar diversity of talents and interests.

TO BE MARRIED DEC. 26

Miss Mary Virginia Draper, whose engagement to Harry Cambron Neil of Chicago is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Draper of Evanston. The wedding is planned for Dec. 26 at St. Mary's church, Evanston, with a reception following at the Orrington hotel. Miss Draper attended St. Mary's Academy and is a graduate of Northwestern university. Mr. Neil, a son of Mrs. C. T. Neil of Scottsdale, Ariz., is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Year 1940 Is Pleasant One in Art World

By Eleanor Jewett.

Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas!

We feel this morning as tho we should like to tie the loose ends of the year together and hand them to you with a smile. It would be a marvelous handful! The art world of 1940 has been on the whole a pleasant one, studded with many interesting and brilliant exhibitions. Some new faces have been met with, to our advantage, and our old friends seem to have gone forward in their difficult pursuit of fine painting.

We can look back, today, as well as forward; next Sunday we shall have deliberately set our eyes on the new year, but today there is still time to savor the many perfect things 1940 brought. Young Leopold Seyffert Jr. and his portraits was one of 1940's good gifts; and the brilliant interiors by Elizabeth Hoopes. We met the genius of another second generation painter when the Carson Pirie Scott galleries brought us the water colors of young Wyeth, son of the famous illustrator, N. C. Wyeth.

The Roullier galleries gave us the delightful paintings of Stokely Webster, whose father was a celebrated figure in the world of letters on the north shore. Herb Olsen, at the O'Brien galleries, continued to affirm his worth in water colors, and Shirley Friend repeated her success in portraiture. The last young painter to have been introduced at the O'Brien galleries is Jay Datus whose forceful handling of paint [he has a sculptor's touch] filled us with satisfaction. He is becoming the fine painter his first work presaged.

Nineteen hundred forty may very well go down in art history as the last year of the decadent first half of the present century. Daniel Catton Rich, fine art director of the Art institute, has given it as his opinion that: "Realism and GOOD PAINTING are coming in again." Many of us have considered that good painting was decidely a minus quantity in much of the painting and sculpture of the last 20 years; it is cheering to know from an official source that this type of art is becoming outmoded. Mr. Rich is echoing sentiments which we have heard from other sources both here and abroad since 1934. He is the first to put an accent on "realism," but the good painting has been looked for for some time.

The Art institute is showing in its 51st annual American Paintings and Sculpture show in the east wing galleries a decided return to good painting. There are many paintings of charm, interest, brilliance, and quality on the walls. The emphasis on sculpture is a stunning feature and one which all of us would like to see retained in future shows. Perhaps from these exhibitions pieces may be acquired thru the Ferguson fund to lend beauty to our parks, school grounds and boulevards in accordance with the often expressed wish of the late Mr. Ferguson who enjoyed sculpture so greatly in the French and Italian towns on his many trips abroad.

Another current exhibition at the Art institute which is a holiday "must," is the showing of 37 new miniature rooms by Mrs. James Ward Thorne. This series of tiny interiors deals with American homes and covers a period of time from the Colonial days to the present. The rooms are beautifully installed and each is a gem. The burden of infinite detail attached to the work of making each room authentic has been carried by Mrs. Thorne as tho it were a feather. She has spared nothing to achieve perfection. The results are amazing. Here is a child's paradise adults can share, or, change it about, an adult's paradise that children can enter. The rooms are for every one. Mrs. Thorne strikes a universal note, perfection in miniature. Students of interior decorating and professionals will find a wealth of material for study; those of us who are not professionals but merely in search of something we like will do well here too. The miniature American rooms are a MUST.

The galleries about town are still hung with gay Christmas shows. The sparkling water colors by Charles O. Longabaugh, Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, make one of the most tempting exhibits. A great many visitors have not resisted, but have picked up a Mexican scene or a Michigan landscape to give or to keep for Christmas. Mr. Longabaugh packs so much beauty, vitality, decorative quality and good painting into these little sketches that they are all but irresistible and [we are letting ourselves go commercial for a last time this Christmas] at their amazing price, $6 framed and $5 unframed, we doubt that one will be left on view after Christmas eve.

In the same gallery is a case of engaging pottery by Hazel Hannell and V. M. S. Hannell. There are many very nice pieces in the collection, including several bowls of pleasing shape and color. Here again are original works at a low price. Mr. and Mrs. Hannell show a group of paintings, but we could not raise great enthusiasm over these, altho they may appeal to some one else's taste. After all we can only speak for ourselves and when it comes to likes and dislikes far be it from us to force any one to agree. Fred Biesel, who is an authority on the WPA—a supervisor, or some such important figure, we understand—has paintings on view here too, as does Frances Strain, his wife. Fred Biesel is one of The Ten, a group of modern artists which exhibits every year in the Marshall Field galleries. He could have a lighter hand, a more facile imagination and a greater ability as a draughtsman without harming his work, which leans a bit to the drab and heavy side of realism [a frightful school with horrible potentialities that we hope does not come too greatly into favor]. Frances Strain show an exquisite lithograph, "Boy with Bouquet."

Here is a painter who is so introspective he sets a pretty problem for a psychiatrist. The titles are as involved as the compositions, even Miss Kuh cannot fathom the significance of "Omphlao Centric Lecture," a picture of a young woman with her head amazingly split and a flashy diamond in her hand. We think this a comparatively easy riddle, obviously, taking the woman with the title, Klee is simply stating in politely obscure language that here is one of those confounded woman lecturers who has made a good thing out of it and she hasn't any brains but who cares as long as money can talk and if that diamond in her hand isn't worth a bird in the bush then he will let them get busy about that right fork of her head which simply tells the world that brains so far as Omphlao is concerned are a dead weight but words, O Centric, Centric, and Concentric, too, if you get what I mean, that's a lecture worth hearing and CAN I Give? I'll tell the world!

Klee's "Fleeting Ghost" is almost too obvious; it has been bought and will undoubtedly bring a great deal of Christmas cheer to her new owner. Scrooge's ghost is just around on the other side. "Secret Writing" is a positive fact, very like; "Relapse of a Convert" [not convict as elsewhere reported, but not by us] is just one of those sad things that don't bear talking about, and a pair of snails are VERY chummy in "Weekend on the Seaboard." Or should it be "Weak End?" Anyway, if you like riddles, Klee is your man.

Milton Caniff, creator of Terry and the Pirates, is being given a one man show at the Julien Levy gallery, New York. Walt Disney has paved the way for other artists than painters and sculptors to exhibit formally. Mr. Caniff is the first comic strip cartoonist to be honored with an exhibit by a major art gallery.

"HUASTECA CANYON"

Charles O. Longabaugh, one of finest American artists working in water color today, has a sparkling Christmas exhibit of Mexican and Michigan scenes at the Club Woman's Bureau, Mandel Brothers. The exhibit closes Dec. 28; do not miss it.

Turkey "Steaks."

Turkey "steaks," consisting of slices of the larger pieces of meat, both light and dark are now sold in many butcher shops and served in some hotels.

Antiques Make Choice Gifts for Christmas

"Popular Furniture Styles," a new booklet by Edith Weigle, tells which periods are most in favor with home owners and apartment dwellers, and answers questions about the mixing of styles and of woods. Price 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

Two famous collections, one of antique silver and the other of antique furniture, rare books, china and crystal, prints and paintings offer a wealth of suggestions to the late Christmas shopper who is searching for something of superior beauty and quality.

A great number of the pieces of furniture, now on exhibition here, are fine examples of the best craftsmen of 18th century England. Among them are also choice items of the Regency period, now so popular in decoration. There are, as well, a few early American items, and a number of reproductions.

There is an interesting old rosewood table from the library of Charles Dickens at Gad's Hill, and a distinguished original Duncan Phyfe card table, once in the Francis Rawle collection. This table is of mahogany and satinwood with claw feet, a lyre base, and several small brass mounts. It is a rarely beautiful antique.

There are a number of dining room chairs in the collection, sets of from 2 up to 12. Antique chairs of this type are becoming extremely difficult to find in sets, so collectors should take note of this opportunity to acquire them.

An unusual piece is a chair-back settee, in the Chippendale style, of dark mahogany with black haircloth seat. It dates back to 1770 and has been exhibited at Memorial hall in Philadelphia. Nearby is a Chippendale tea table of great beauty from the Paxson Temple collection. Mr. Temple was a Pennsylvania collector of rare American and English antique furniture.

Many of the items in the antique silver collection rank with museum pieces. There are 20 tea and coffee services, 16 of them complete, a large number of flat ware services, and 11 dozen silver service plates. Small objects, suitable for Christmas gifts are: Trays, coffee pots, cream jugs, spoons, candlesticks, urns, candle snuffers, and decorative dishes.

Tucson Retains Western Charm in Modern City

By Lolita Linn.

TUCSON, ARIZ. "Dedicated to the little burro. Without his aid many of these trails might never have been opened." Thus Reg Manning opens his "Cartoon guide to Arizona," a jaunty little volume whose delightful line drawings and gentle humor have endeared it and Arizona to millions of readers.

But even the most willing burro—and he was never that—could have carried us over the 3,000 trail miles which we have covered since we left Chicago a little more than a week ago.

Appropriately enough, the trail has ended at Tucson. A modern city which has preserved much of the color and charm of the ancient walled village to which the first overland stage came in 1855.

The traveler of today, protected from storm and hardship, his way eased by minds and hands trained only to give service, feels very fortunate when he thinks of the hardy folk who came by stage to Tucson twice a week, weather and Indians permitting. If they wanted to go on to California, they left the stage at Yuma for a long burro ride across the desert.

No doubt the old stagecoach drivers were colorful characters and good oopy. But we wonder if they had the tradition and technique of the skilful people who passed us safely and swiftly across the continent. There was the Pullman conductor who looked like a college professor, black ribboned nose glasses and all, but who stage managed in faultless style his little drama of comfort and security—a drama heightened in effect by the awesome scenery rushing by.

The railroad and U. S. highway 66 share the historic Santa Fe trail which at Window Rock in the Navajo country passes the site of old Fort Defiance. In 1858 the first Arizona camel train left the fort for California. Reg Manning tells us that this was one government experiment which did not work out. Camel transportation never became popular in Arizona. Somehow the cowboys did not feel any great kinship with animals which could go several days without a drink. And Arizona mules, usually not too fastidious in their tastes, developed a decided aversion for the perfume the camels were using and were apt to stampede whenever they saw a hump looming upon the horizon.

The bus driver who took us from Phoenix to Tucson, looking for all the world like Gary Cooper, has no sealed mail cars to insulate him from his passengers. He is a bit of a cynic, for he knows that there will always be one little boy on the bus who will develop a yen for an ice cream cone just when the schedule is most in danger. And he counts noses anxiously like a mother of a too large brood whenever the bus stops. He talks to himself when motorists cannot make up their minds. But he never fails to slow up when a desert dog crosses the highway, and the dogs never fail to wave their plumed tails in salute when the bus passes by. These lean and hungry brutes, squatted by the side of the road, look like lonely hitch-hikers. Every once in a while one of them finds his way to a luxurious desert resort and is transformed by the guests into a pampered dude. We knew one last year who deserted the desert permanently for Lake Forest.

The modern streamlined bus follows the route of the old Butterfield Stage Line into Tucson—past the Casa Grande ruins. This four story combination fort and apartment building was fashioned of huge mud blocks by the canal builders about the 14th century. It is a mystery how these early Arizonians traveled, for the horse came in with the Spaniards at a much later date.

Sixty years ago Harry Arizon Drachman, who has the distinction of having been the first white child born in Arizona, saw the first passenger train come to Tucson. Tuesday he was on hand to welcome the first streamliner, the Arizona Limited. Mr. Drachman is not sure that the "yippees" were quite as loud or the revolver shots as earnest on Tuesday as they were 60 years ago. Certainly, the military band of old Fort Lowell was missing. The fort, which guarded Tucson for many years, languished and died when Geronimo and his Apaches ceased making trouble.

But we doubt if the first train carried any prettier girls than Miss Betsy Nehf of Phoenix and Miss Betty Procter of Tucson, who traveled to Chicago to make the maiden trip on the streamliner. When we saw them, the girls were still very much excited about their visit to Chicago—about the opera, the night clubs, and the Christmas throngs on State street. If they wore their white Stetson hats and cowboy boots to the opera, the "Jewels of the Madonna" must have had to take second place.

Miss Procter is the daughter of the John M. Procters of Tucson. Mr. Procter is the chairman of the Arizona state highway commission and manager of the Pioneer hotel in Tucson. The Procters recently announced Betty's engagement to Henry [Hank] Leiber of the Chicago Cubs. Both Betty and Leiber, whose home is in Phoenix, attended the University of Arizona.

Among those who left the streamliner at Tucson were Sir Thomas Beecham and Lady Beecham of London, the Joseph C. Wahlers of Evanston, and Barney Goodman of Kansas City. Mr. Goodman is the owner of the colorful and historic Santa Rita hotel at Tucson.

The Charles A. Dohertys of El Conquistador hotel and their cocker spaniel, Maximilian, were at the train to meet Mrs. Doherty's mother, Mrs. William De Bock of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Maximilian had come especially to meet his pal, Pudgy, but, alas for Pudgy, in the tumult of a maiden trip he had been left behind in Chicago to follow on a less distinguished train.

Gov. R. T. [Bob] Jones and Mrs. Jones and the other members of the official party went on to Phoenix, the terminus of the Arizona Limited, and another big celebration.

Gala Parties Mark Holidays in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

December days may be all too short, but in Palm Beach nights are long and given over to merry-making as yuletide draws near. Gay house parties make the tropical welkin ring. The arrival of the college set for the holidays further gears society to high speed.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The island is gemmed with living Christmas trees, dazzling in the sunlight and scintillating in the dusk. Poinsettias flame on garden walls while scarlet bougainvillea and the crimson star-like blossoms of ixora hedges add to the natural Christmas decorations of Palm Beach.

World avenue again is a Santa Claus lane, a gorgeous blur of jeweled light outside and lighted jewels inside display windows. A system of loud speakers carries Christmas carols—soft and low—to the ears of shoppers and chauffeurs. The local committee of the British American ambulance corps, headed by Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, sponsored the singing of carols by a pretty young girl Wednesday afternoon. There was a large crowd on hand to hear the singing. It was so warm that Santa Claus, sweltering in red flannel and a dense barrage of beard, valiantly wielded a palm leaf fan.

Family dinner parties will take precedence over other events on Christmas day, but a huge crowd has made reservations for dinner at the Everglades club. This will be the first time Christmas dinner has ever been served at the club.

Mrs. Grant Warren Spear has as her holiday guests at La Boliche Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rooney [Emily Spear] of New York. Mr. and Mrs. George Rasmussen Jr. of Evanston are with Mrs. Rasmussen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Watt Jr., on Jungle road.

The Franklin Millers and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strong, and small Cara Strong are at their Australian avenue villa. The Strongs occupy the guest house across the patio from the larger house. En route to Palm Beach, Mrs. Miller stopped in Birmingham where she was honor guest and speaker at a luncheon and reception given by the Alabama Pen Women.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rich of Santa Barbara, Cal., are guests of Mrs. Rich's aunt, Mrs. James H. Kennedy of Boston, at Kenlewinai. Mrs. Kennedy gave a dinner in their honor Tuesday night.

• • •

Mrs. J. Hill Whiting is expected soon from Chicago to join her daughter, Mrs. Jesse Spalding, at her Seaspray avenue home. Mrs. Frank O. Butler has opened her villa on Via Bethesda, where she will be joined after Christmas by her son, Paul Butler, and Mrs. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Nelson Tevander have as guests their daughter, Mrs. John Winchester Holman; Mr. Holman, and small Ann Holman of Ardmore, Pa. Nelson Tevander Jr., who attends Choate, arrived late this week for the holidays.

Wolcott Blair spent a week in Palm Beach but returned to New York before the holidays.

TO BE MARRIED IN JUNE

The engagement of Miss Barbara Ann Bartling to Clark Parker Beverly has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Bartling of Kenmore avenue. Mr. Beverly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Beverly of Evanston. The wedding will take place in June.

Hot Springs to Hear Carols on Christmas Eve

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 21 [Special].—For the 10th consecutive year this spa's citizens and visitors will pause in the Christmas eve rush for a 30 minute program of caroling and tableaux.

The park at the head of Bath House row, overshadowed by a bluff and bordered by dozens of living Christmas trees, forms the natural amphitheater for the community observance.

At 9:30 p. m. Tuesday the carolers, wearing white vestments and carrying lighted candles, will march down the mountainside over two winding paths. The program will open with a bell solo and close with a choral benediction. The four tableaux, like the carols, will present the story of the Nativity.

Miles of evergreen roping are to be interspersed with varicolored lighting. Giant Christmas trees will sparkle in the lobbies of the leading hotels.

There will be Christmas frolics and dances at the Arlington, Eastman, and Majestic hotels and Club Belvedere.

Wardrobes Are Styled to Suit Type of Travel

By Rea Seeger.

Midseason vacations no longer are the choice of merely a few lucky persons. During the last few years thousands of gadabouts have split their vacation allotments, some even exchanging the summer fortnight for the fun of a midwinter, two week disappearance from routine. Fashion showings of clothes for these migratory souls, launched in December, have the same appeal as those presented in June or July.

Some of the most significant new trends have begun in December. Prints, pastels, silks, and new silhouettes, after being tried out on the southbound travelers in midwinter, jell into fashion importance and either return to play the summer circuit or come back in some revised or adapted versions that go around all the following summer as very high fashion.

Where you plan to spend your winter vacation decides the sort of wardrobe you need. Chicago shops and stores are filled with gay, bright ideas, and you'll need stern control to pass them by. Exotic prints in cotton, the newest textures in linen, the smartest of crisp cottons are piled up on the counters in the departments where you buy from the bolt, or the same lovely flowered and printed stuff is available in smooth daytime, street, travel, and evening gowns.

Knitted costumes are staging what is unquestionably the biggest revival of the times. Hand knitted suits, dresses, and outfits that look like suits, ensembles of dress and long coat, make the ideal costume for actual travel. These slide under fur coats as well as fur trimmed winter coats and come not only in handsome dark tones, but in the loveliest and most flattering of pastels, bright shades, and dull whites. While these knits are not especially inexpensive, they're worth every cent marked on the tags, as they are superbly made, fashioned to preclude any hazards of sagging seams.

Less expensively priced, but every bit as smart and sleek, are the stunning new machine made costumes with extremely interesting textures or stitched rib, diagonal, nubby, and so on. These are the surprising new knits that hang on a hanger without sagging. You no longer take your choice from shapeless looking models folded or piled on a shelf. Colors range in the same delightful assortment available in the hand knits. New models stress a smooth streamline, a snappy air, and the casual smartness of the smartest of tweeds. Added to all that, they may be packed with just average care.

Whether heading north or south, you'll need a tailored or semitailored suit. There are dozens of grand new ideas designed especially for the train, plane, or boat. Soft woolens, angora fleeces, tweeds as highly colored as a sunset, or delicately pastel, come in powdery pastels, soft blurred plaids and checks, or the classic trim affairs of botany flannel. Skirts are short and snap with the precisely pressed, inverted plaits. The jackets are fitted, slightly longer than last year and, altho tailored, have a soft outline particularly easy to wear. These, too, slide under fur coats and fabric coats with face framing collars of fluffy fur.

If you crave more snow and more cold, and plan to spend every day in the open with husky winter sports, the showings of winter sports clothes have evrything to make that vacation unmarred by any worry about suitable costumes. New ski suits, literally bales of new sweaters, all kinds of businesslike outfits of wind and water repellent fabrics, light as a feather, are matched by an equally large assortment of spectator sports costumes, with the same joyous color schemes and less attention to featherweight fabrics.

Topcoats and jackets, resplendent with bright red and green embroidery, with trim of sheepskin and fluffy teddy bear cloth, are especially plentiful. So are the classically tailored slacks and shirts to wear indoors after a full day in the open. Socks, mufflers, lounging slippers of knitted wool, gloves, mittens, caps, suspenders and similar necessary extras are ready for the first rush of shoppers.

If you plan to bask under the southern constellations, to loll on sandy beaches acquiring a midwinter suntan, the shopping tasks are easy and plentiful. Play suits, new swim suits, including the sensational grass skirt model, printed silk dresses for afternoon or sightseeing, separate skirts of flannel and thin wool, all the newest linens, the snappiest of printed seersuckers, chambrays, and voiles are ready to be made or be selected and ready to wear.

Hats, gloves, and the important new footgear, plus all the fresh new costume jewelry and accessories in brilliant pastel or subdued colors, now are out further to tempt the nomads suddenly aware that it's time to get away as soon as they can manage the expedition.

"Rockin' Hoss" Does a Tour of St. Augustine

By Hal Foust.

Twelve year old Norma and I climbed into the back seat of one of four surreys parked at the cedar and palm shaded plaza here.

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA.

"Get up, Rockin' Hoss," said the Negro driver, who, like the others in his trade peculiar to this highly unusual town, was wearing a stovepipe hat.

"Rockin' Hoss," he continued, glancing over a big shoulder, "that's my hoss' name and my name's Willie. I shows you-all all the sights for $1.50 an hour."

• • •

It's a luxurious form of sight-seeing for those wearied by travel from the north. Automobiles are too fast. We lolled in warm sunshine, a guide book opened on my knees. Willie's thick tongue wasn't always comprehensive to a Yankee.

At the end of the Plaza de la Constitution we saw the slave market [no comment from Willie]. It's a roof over a low platform, built in 1824 to replace a 1598 auction block. We saw the old Spanish cathedral with a sun dial over its entrance. We paused to admire the expansive Ponce de Leon hotel with its red towers, belfries, and tile roof.

"Five acres of roof there," said Willie. "It cost $3,000,000 to build in 1888 and is open only three months of the year. Minimum rate for a room is $14 a day."

[We're not trying to spell phonetically. It would be difficult reading.]

Willie waited for us while we inspected Fort Marion, the oldest fort in the United States, begun in 1672, finished in 1756, and now administered by the national park service with a 10 cent admission fee. It's a low quadrangle with four bastions, a moat, two watch towers, and old cannons peering from its flat roof. The material is coquina, a soft limestone formed by nature by cementing shells and corals. A guide showed tourists a small, windowless room that he described as a Spanish torture chamber.

The admissions to this fort are a fairly good gauge of the volume of Florida's winter travel business. November of 1940 was 20 per cent above the same month of last year. Attendants said December seemed to be maintaining this all-time record pace.

Willie took us to the tiny shrine of Nuestra Senora de la Leche, where the first mass was said in America, on Sept. 8, 1565. On the altar is a replica of the original shrine, a statuette of Mary nursing Jesus.

Willie drove us by a Spanish cemetery where lichen and ferns grow on low coquina crypts in a grove of oaks and cedars heavy with Spanish moss. He drove us to the Fountain of Youth, an attractive, 30 cent concession, with a spring marked by a stone cross set in the ground supposedly by Ponce de Leon in 1513. In the garden are two barnacle covered ship cannon and a similarly aged anchor, possibly relics of Jean Ribauts or Sir Francis Drake's fleet.

• • •

We saw the home and the churches built by Henry M. Flagler, retired New York oil man, who in the 80s first saw the future of the east coast of Florida as a resort area. We saw the city gates, dating back to 1620.

We saw much more. We recommend St. Augustine as a stop on any Florida visit. We recommend the surreys as a sight-seeing conveyance. We even recommend Willie and his Rockin' Hoss.

When Bermuda Was Wild.

When the first selttlers landed in Bermuda, they found the islands "overgrown with many tall and goodly cedars, infinite palmettos, mulberries, and wild olives."

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We wish to visit Yosemite park when we go to California this winter. How do we get there? —L. J. L.

Yosemite valley is less than a day's drive from either San Francisco or Los Angeles. It is reached overnight by train, and motor coaches make round trips from Merced to the park daily.

Which state has the highest percentage of native born population? —B. W.

North Carolina, with 99.6 per cent.

What are the sports facilities in the winter resorts of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan? —M. S.

Nearly all of them have ski tows, and many of them have accommodations for skating, tobogganing, bob sledding, ice boating, snowshoeing, skijoring, cutter riding, and dog sled mushing. Some of them provide ski runs ranging up to 3,500 feet. Instructors are available, and skiis and other paraphernalia may be rented.

How high are living costs in Rio de Janeiro? —G. A. K.

For the most part they are remarkably low. Bus rides are to be had for as little as 1 cent, and the most expensive movies are less than 25 cents. Board and room at good hotels costs less than the price of a room, without meals, in most cities of similar size elsewhere in the world.

When is the best time for bob sledding at Lake Placid? —T. C.

From Christmas to the end of February.

Miami Orange Bowl Festival Lasts 4 Days

Miami's 7th annual Orange Bowl festival promises to outshine its predecessors.

MIAMI, FLA.

The celebration is built around the football game on New Year's day, which this year will see the Mississippi State and Georgetown elevens clash for an unofficial north-south championship.

More than a quarter of a million people will be in Miami for the four day festival, which will start on Dec. 30 and continue thru Jan. 2. Even before either competing team had been selected football tickets had been bought by residents of 21 states.

Among the events on the program will be a midwinter outdoor fashion show in Bayfront park. The bandshell there is to be rebuilt to accommodate a stage setting from which the festival queen and her royal court will see the display. Elevated ramps 250 feet long will run out over the heads of spectators.

As a prelude to New Year's eve, there is to be a day of funmaking arranged by Shriners from all parts of the country. Sixty eight temples were represented last year, and more than that are expected for this year's festival. On the same evening there will be the King Orange Jamboree, a street parade with more than 60 electrically lighted floats, and about 3,000 musicians in 40 bands.

New Year's day will bring a morning session at the Tropical Park horse track, and at 2 p. m. the whistle will blow to start the football classic in the Orange bowl. With some 40,000 persons crammed into the stadium for this contest, an estimated 15,000,000 will be listening in on their radios.

All day long on Jan. 2 there will be boat races in Biscayne bay. Craft of all types and sizes will compete. This is to be a curtain raiser for the marine pageant that night, when between 200 and 300 decorated yachts parade across the bay. The causeway will be used as a reviewing stand. Following this will be a fireworks display.

Other events are casting and bowling tourneys, champion skeet shoot, social events, teas, dances, receptions.

Brazilian Parks.

Brazil has two national parks and is planning several more. Its best known includes the Organ mountains, which form part of the backdrop for the magnificent harbor of Rio de Janeiro.

'All Clear' Signal Given on Travel to Old Mexico

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The "all clear" signal on travel to Mexico was sent by the American Automobile association today to its 725 affiliated motor clubs and branches thruout the country, with the recommendation that these clubs resume active encouragement of Mexican touring.

In making this announcement, Russell E. Singer, general manager of the A. A. A., pointed out that the organization had not discouraged travel in Mexico, but since early in September had refrained from recommending tours to that country.

"The effect of our action today," he said, "is to turn off the yellow 'caution' light and to give the green 'go' signal on motoring over our southern border.

"All indications are that, with the removal of threats of disturbance, travel to Mexico will break all records. The previous record was established in 1937, when more than 30,000 cars, carrying nearly 100,000 passengers, crossed the border at Laredo, Tex. Since that time, travel to Mexico has been adversely affected, first by the Cedillo outbreak, next by a flood which washed away several bridges, and finally by this year's election difficulties."

Panama Arranges All-Expense Tours

COLON, Panama—All expense tours for winter visitors in this republic have been arranged by the Panama National Tourist commission. The duration is from 1 day to 21.

Hialeah Is Idol No. 1 of Lovers of Spectacular

By Frederic Babcock.

MIAMI, FLA.

The newcomer's first view of Florida isn't too reassuring. If, as we did, he comes in by railroad from the west at this time of the year, he is apt to get the impression that the state's press agents have been more interested in telling about the wealth of the vegetation than in mentioning the poverty aspect of some of the scenery.

Our introduction to Florida's northwest corner seemed to be a succession of swamps, stunted pine trees, grassless lawns, and discouraged palm trees. There were yellow rivers, and red cliffs, and stretches of white soil such as one associates with clay and alkali. The homes of the Negroes were drab, unpainted shacks, and those of the white people weren't much better. Mule carts appeared to be the favored means of transportation.

The picture improved as we continued eastward. The trees were taller, the soil richer, and the houses more like real homes. The farms around Tallahassee were manifestly producers. The moss on the cypress trees gave them the look of bearded gentlemen. Flowering quinces dolled up the view. There were many autos. Even the people were happier.

By the time we had reached Jacksonville, 20 miles from the Atlantic, we had revised our opinion of the sunshine state. After the semidesert of the hinterland, Jacksonville was a huge, modern, cosmopolitan oasis.

The trip down the Atlantic coast, with its string of sparkling resorts—Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Daytona, and all the rest—brought about another revision upward in our opinion. We were beginning to conclude that perhaps the publicity men had told the truth after all. We got rid of the last remaining doubt when we landed in booming, fun seeking, diamond studded Miami. If there was ever a place devoted to unalloyed enjoyment of life, this was it.

But we didn't succumb completely to Florida's charms until we paid a visit to Hialeah Park. For the worshipers of the spectacular sort of beauty, this is idol No. 1. It is the siren of the world's race tracks. So far as we have observed, not even Paris' Longchamps, nor Chicago's Arlington, nor anything in Latin America can compare with it.

Pink flamingoes and white flamingoes—more than 400 of them—scarlet ibis, black swans, and white swans put on a fashion parade the like of which never reached Michigan avenue. Royal palms, imported from South America; hot house plants, gathered from everywhere; fountains, terraces, hedges, and an artificial lake join in a show of studied brilliance such as you might expect to find only in Lake Forest or Westchester.

• • •

The landscaping in 200 acre Hialeah cost a quarter million dollars. Ten years ago it was a piece of wasteland, as unattractive as anything we had seen in northwestern Florida. Today it is a mass of trees, shrubs, and flowers.

It is this park, perhaps more than anything else, that is giving Miami its name of the world's pleasure capital.

Of the city itself, more later.

AT SEA, BUT WITHOUT SEASICKNESS

A fish fry, with the ingredients caught from the dock of a tumble down shack 11 miles off shore in Biscayne bay, near Miami. Visitors to Florida are renting ground under water, at $1 an acre, and building shacks with nearly all the comforts of home. [Acme Photo.]

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THOSE CHRISTMAS CARDS.

Green Bay, Wis., Dec. 9.—To the Travel Editor: With Christmas just around the corner, many of the shut-ins who have heard from your readers may be wondering how to dispose of the Christmas cards they have received in former years.

I covered a three-panel screen with some of my choice ones. It is quite attractive, and brings to mind many of the kind folk I have heard from. Another use is to frame some of the lovely art numbers to be found in Christmas cards, having the frame rather deep, if possible, and adding handles at the sides, thus making an interesting tray. Of course, the scrapbooks nearly every shut-in makes claim a large share of the greetings.

Others may have other ways of using these cards. If so, I would be glad to hear from them. My address is 866 Howard street, Green Bay.

[MRS.] ANNA L. HENDRICKSON.

ANOTHER GENEROUS OFFER.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—To the Travel Editor: Perhaps this will be out of line with the policy of your department, but I thought I would suggest it anyway.

A Wisconsin women's group, looking for some way to be useful, but with no large amount of funds at its disposal, thought there might be, in this vicinity, some Wisconsin-born shut-ins who might like some small attentions. These attentions could include the sending of cards, cheery letters, and flowers, the paying of visits, and transportation to doctors or clinics.

If any natives of Wisconsin, now living in the Chicago area, wish such a service, we shall be pleased to supply it. Those interested can write me at 552 Brompton avenue or phone me at Bittersweet 1933.

MRS. R. M. MYERS.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—To the Travel Editor: Some time ago some one sent the name of Lillian Mikulecky, 1511 South Kolmar avenue, Chicago, to THE TRIBUNE, and she derived great pleasure from the response of cards and letters. I wonder if you couldn't print her name again at Christmas time. She has been ill for three years, and the family finances are exhausted. There is only part time work for them, and that does not bring in much money. The family includes five adults and one small child. They are not on relief. I would appreciate your co-operation in helping this courageous group at holiday time.

[MRS.] BERTHA HAVLAN.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other Tribune readers are invited to send cards and letters to those unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests have been received since the last previous list was published:

Mrs. Johanna Malin, South Shore hospital, 8017 Luella avenue, Chicago. [Mrs. Malin is 83 years old and has been in the hospital for more than a year with a broken hip.]

Mrs. William Gordon, Ludowici, Ga. [Mrs. Gordon has been confined to her bed with tuberculosis for 15 years and has not been able to speak for 12 years.]

Chester Nieffenegger, box 525, Malad City, Idaho. [Chester has been confined to a wheel chair most of his life.]

Mrs. Anna B. Adams, box 68, Cayuga, Ind. [Mrs. Adams is 73 years old and alone most of the time. She has been under the doctor's care ever since her eldest son died on Christmas eve of last year.]

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Maxfield, 1542 Fullerton avenue, Chicago. [Our correspondent writes: "A shower of cards and letters at Christmas time or on New Year's day would cheer them up, as they are old and lonesome. The doctor is no longer practicing, and his wife is not well."]

Clara Nollau, room 502, Deaconess hospital, 6150 Oakland avenue, St. Louis, Mo. [Our correspondent writes: "For the second time Miss Nollau recently underwent an operation for cancer. For years she devoted herself to her family. She does not know that this will be her last Christmas."]

Charles Schlottman, 6 South Monterey avenue, Villa Park, Ill. [Mr. Schlottman is nearly 70 years old and is totally deaf.]

They All Stop Off at Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Planning for tourist entertainment, and community effort to provide all possible facilities for visitors' recreation and pastime, have combined to make Daytona Beach one of Florida's best liked winter vacation centers.

Of the hundreds of thousands of northerners who will visit the state this winter, comparatively few will fail to place Daytona Beach on their list of places which should be visited if they are to see Florida at its best. Thousands of them will make this their home for the winter months and from here will tour the points of interest at leisure.

For several years Daytona Beach has advocated a "stay thru May" campaign. In the last 25 years the city has grown from "the prettiest winter resort" to a popular year 'round resort, with increasing popularity among both northern and southern visitors. At the same time it has had a remarkable growth in permanent residences.

Rail Journey to Mexico Is Like a Life of Ease

By Alden Powell.

MEXICO CITY.

As in other recreational journeys, the travelers who seek sanctuary in Mexico are turning from the responsibilities of the steering wheel to let the engineers and conductors of the thru trains manage the job.

The way to relax is to relax at the start of a vacation and receive the full benefit from it. Then it is not necessary to come home to get rested. It is a great deal easier to sit back in the cushions and revel in the passing scene. Air conditioned cars make the transitions from one temperature to another a matter of course.

Connections for Mexico are made easily from any city in the United States. A favored transfer point for all territory excepting the far west is St. Louis, from which all-Pullman flyers run directly to Mexico City.

The passing scene is full of interest, whether in the Texas oil country or the neighborhoods of historic cities on this side of the border or, again, in the agave studded deserts and the cultivated highlands between Monterey and the capital. Darkness comes too soon when native villages keep one glued to the window or stops en route permit strolls along the platforms amid the mêlée of venders, dogs, burros, and babies.

Formalities at the border are easy enough for everybody, but the traveler by train has no directions to seek. He simply remains where he is.

While prices are given in pesos below the border, American money is accepted and it is not necessary to make exchange until one reaches his hotel in Mexico City.

In Mexico most of the popular places are reached by the network of the railways. Some can be visited by short daylight rides. Others are at distances spanned by overnight sleepers.

Whether the tourist wishes to seek the more remote realms such as Tehuantepec, where the women reign; the nearer archeological riches of Mitla, near Oaxaca; the beauty of Michoacan, home of the Tarascan Indians; Guadalajara and its environs, where native crafts flourish; the kaleidoscopic range of climate and verdure in a trip thru Jalapa and the jungle to Vera Cruz, or the market in Toluca, he will find every place accessible.

TAMED BY TOURISTS

Pelicans and sea gulls have found they can save a lot of energy by just sitting around and accepting donations from anglers, who usually give them the smaller fry caught at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Forms of Coral.

Brain coral, found in shallow waters around Bermuda, is shaped to resemble the human brain. Other specimens found on the sandy bottom of the sea and on rocky ledges are graceful sea rods, sea fans, and scarlet and green sponges.

Big Scale Wrecking.

To construct a street, the Avenida Rio Branco, thru its business center, Rio de Janeiro, had to tear down about 600 office buildings and houses. More than 100 feet wide, the avenue today is lined with shade trees.

Chinese New Year Observed Jan. 26 in San Francisco

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 21.—Jan. 26 is to be a red letter night in San Francisco's Chinatown, world's largest outside the orient. It will be Chinese New Year's eve.

Amid rituals as old as civilization, 20,000 Chinese say "Kung Hor Sun Hay!"—welcome to the new year. Oriental customs and ceremonial rites are consummated before the gaze of western eyes. Strange costumes are seen on women and children in the district.

Thruout the lantern lighted section are sidewalk stalls, filled with lily blooms, cherry and almond branches, citrus fruits, lichee nuts and assorted sweetmeats. The early hours of New Year's eve are like carnival time, with jostling crowds making purchases and keeping up a patter of sing-song Chinese. There is occasional battery of firecrackers.

For seven days and nights there are ceremonies, carried out with the pomp and pageantry that have come down thru the ages in the civilization of old Cathay. There are religious services in the joss houses and in private homes; feasts of the lanterns; banquets; and the culmination of the occasion—the dance of the Buddha Lion thru the streets.

Six young Chinese boys guide the great silken lion from store to store, and at each place of business it receives gifts of money, wrapped in lettuce leaves. This money goes to charity—usually to the Chinese hospital.

Among other things, the Chinese adjust their money matters at the beginning of the new year. All outstanding debts are paid in full—the slate is wiped clean.

COL. BOWDEN WILL SELL
at Public Auction
2 GILMORE ESTATE FARMS
TUESDAY, DEC. 31, 1940.

FARM NO. 2, containing 320 acres, and FARM NO. 3, 160 acres; known far and near as a portion of the SUPERIOR FARM land owned by the GILMORE ESTATE. Sale to take place on each farm; Farm No. 2 at 2 p. m. and farm No. 3 at 3 p. m.

THESE TWO ATTRACTIVE FARMS ADJOIN.

Located 3½ miles N. W. from Gibson City, Ill., only a short distance from the famous highway, Route No. 47. This 320 acre farm is rated as one of the best stock farms in the productive state of Illinois. Owning a farm in Ford County, Township of Drummer, is something of which to be proud. Lying in one block of Section 27 is this rich farm, soil that will produce with wonderful results. Soil that has thousands upon thousands of tons of the best manure spread upon it, together with the profitable way this splendid farm has been farmed and tilled for a number of years, makes this 320 acres the best purchase in any state.

BUILDINGS A GREAT ASSET
$30,000 WOULD NOT ERECT THEM TODAY.

9 room house; hardwood floors; all conveniences; basement under the entirety; built-in cupboards; attractive throughout; surrounding are several lovely shade trees. A glorious place to live, as one look will convince. No. 2 farm has a house for the farm foreman. 3 BARNS: [1] dairy and stock bank barn 40x60; [2] cattle and horse barn 40x60; [3] small barn. New crib house; extra large inside elevator; double garage; tool house; blacksmith shop; poultry house; hog house; 3 deep wells which afford plenty of good drinking water for the household and an abundance for the large amount of stock raised on this never failing farm. Open for inspection until the auction.

NO. 3 FARM contains 160 acres, adjoining No. 2 farm on the northwest side, being the N. W. quarter of Section 27, Ford County Drummer Township, about 4½ miles from Gibson City. Only a short distance from the concrete highway No. 47. This farm has been known for many years as one of the best 160 acres for production. Soil is easy to cultivate; loc. very good, and splendid for clover production. There are very few 160 acre farms for sale. Don't fail to be on this farm and ready to bid at 3 p. m. sharp.

GOOD IMPROVEMENTS. 6 room frame house; large porch; full basement; shade trees surround the home. Two wells of splendid drinking water. NEW BARN 32x40. Double corn crib; granary overhead; machinery shed; double garage; hog and poultry houses. WHAT ABOUT GIBSON CITY? One of the best towns in the state, on routes 9, 47, 48. Less than 3 hours' drive to Chicago. Gibson City is surrounded by one of the best farming sections in the state. Wonderful railroad advantages.

ATTEND THIS AUCTION.
IT'S THE BEST METHOD OF OBTAINING TRUE VALUE.

10% of the purchasing price is to be paid as soon as the farm is bid, and balance and final settlement on or before March 3, 1941, at the office of Rathje and Woodward, attorneys, Wheaton, Ill.

Bert Lahr and Lunt and Fontanne Here This Week

3d Major Ballet Company to Visit City

By Edward Barry

This week Chicago's dance public will celebrate the opening of the season's third major engagement by a major ballet company. Col. Wasily de Basil's Ballet Russe paid us a visit in late October and early November, and Richard Pleasant's Ballet theater was here all during the opera season. Next Thursday night the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Leonide Massine, artistic director, will take over the Auditorium for an 11 day, 15 performance engagement.

The number of dance companies visiting Chicago this year and the unfortunate fact that two of them use the expression Ballet Russe in their official titles have doubtless created a great deal of confusion. As a contribution to the work of straightening matters out, let it be put down here that the group moving into the Auditorium this week is the one whose roster includes among others Leonide Massine, Alexandra Danilova, Alicia Markova, Mia Slavenska, Nathalie Krassovska, Igor Youskevitch, Frederic Franklin, André Eglevsky, Marc Platoff, and Roland Guerard. This roster does NOT include Tatiana Riabouchinska, Tamara Toumanova, Irina Baronova, nor David Lichine, all of whom are members of the De Basil company.

The group arriving Thursday carries Efrem Kurtz and Franz Allers as conductors. Antal Dorati is with the other outfit.

The répertoire for this engagement includes six novelties and a judicious selection from the best liked works of other years. The novelties are as follows:

"The New Yorker." General design by Rea Irwin, choreography by Leonide Massine to music by George Gershwin. Introduces cartoon characters of Peter Arno, Helen Hokinson, William Steig, and other artists of the New Yorker magazine.

"Vienna — 1814." Choreography by Leonide Massine to music by

A scene from "The Nutcracker."

Weber. Décor by Stewart Cheney. Pictures a victory ball held in Vienna to celebrate Napoleon's defeat.

"Poker Game." Choreography by George Balanchine, music by Igor Stravinsky, décor by Irene Sharoff. Tableaux based on poker hands, ending with a straight flush in hearts.

"The Nutcracker." Choreography after Petipa, music by Tschaikowsky, décor by Alexandre Benois. The famous fairy tale ballet whose music is universally familiar but which has not been done in America in its complete dance form in recent years, if ever.

"Serenade." Choreography by George Balanchine to music by Tschaikowsky. Décor by Gaston Longtemps. An abstract, nonstory ballet in which the action follows the design of the music.

"Baiser de la Fée." Choreography by George Balanchine. Music by Igor Stravinsky after Tschaikowsky. Décor, content, and general character at present unknown.

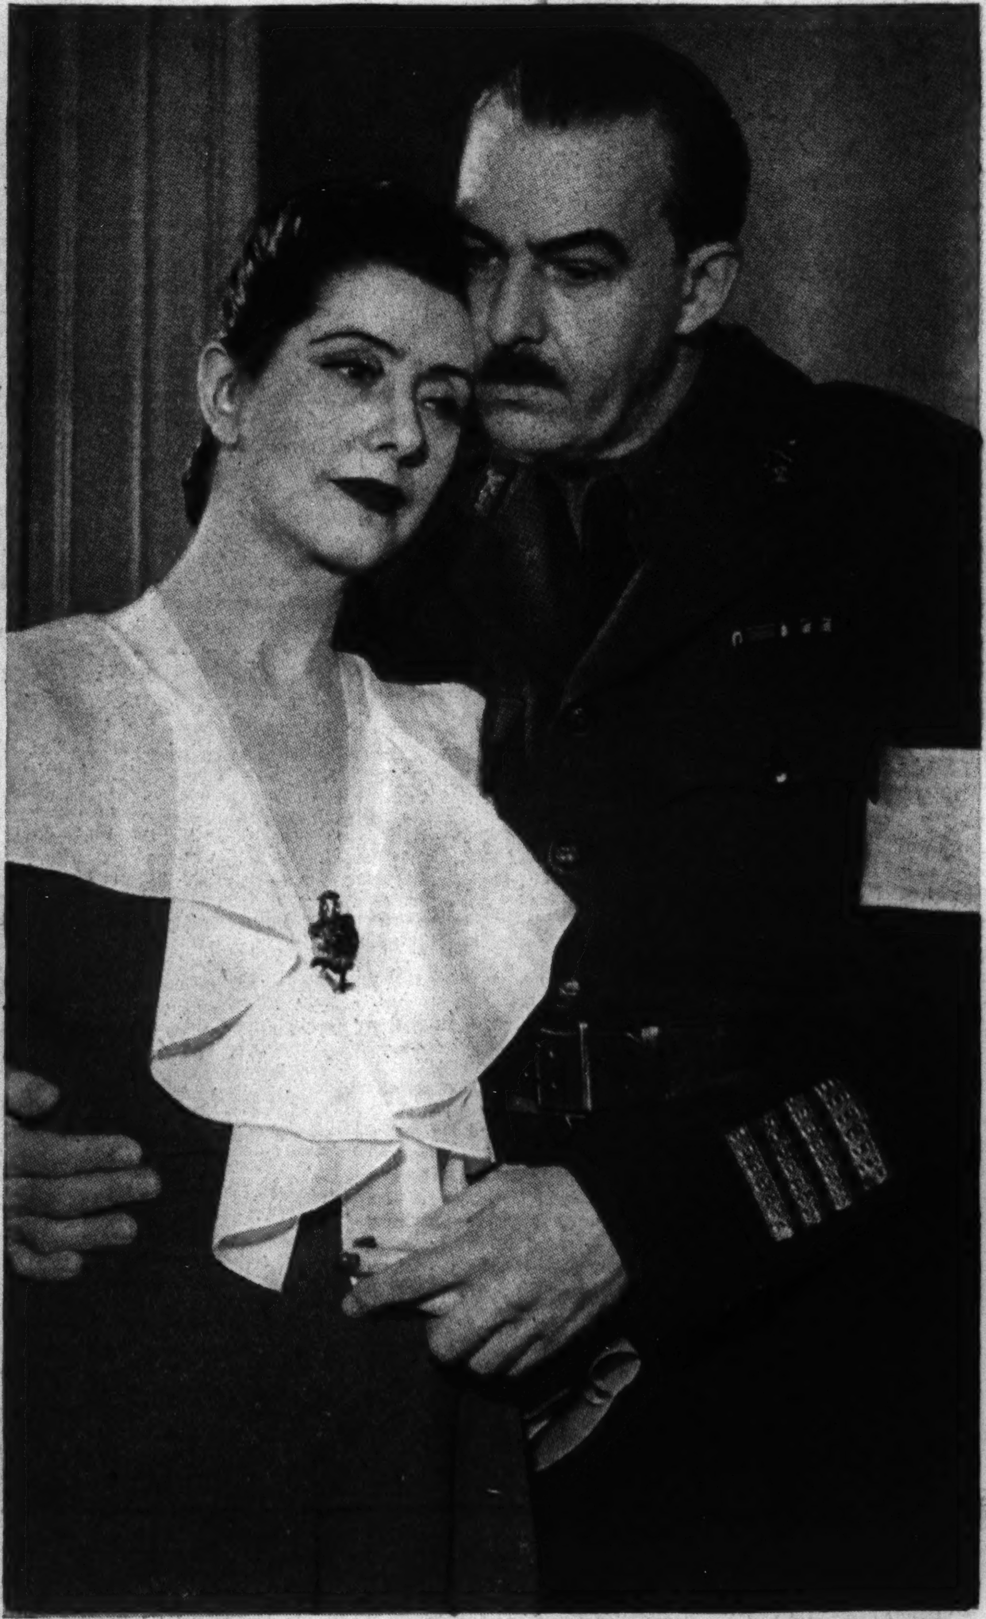
The riotous Bert Lahr and Frances Williams have the leading roles in "Du Barry Was a Lady," which will brighten the loop with its quips and songs when it opens tonight at the Erlanger theater for an indefinite run.



On Thursday night Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt return to Chicago in Robert E. Sherwood's latest play, "There Shall Be No Night," due in the Grand Opera house. The engagement is limited to three and a half weeks.

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, headed by Leonide Massine, begins its annual winter season at the Auditorium theater on Thursday. Above is one of the company's great ballerinas, Alicia Markova, costumed as "The Bluebird."

Jeanette Lauret will dance Zobeide in "Scheherazade," currently in the répertoire. When the ballet troupe concludes its stay on Jan. 5 it will have presented six works new to Chicago in addition to standard items.

Two Smash Hits Add Luster to Drama Fare

By Cecil Smith

Two celebrated smash hits, which could hardly be less similar in nature, arrive in Chicago this week to add luster to the holiday season. Tonight the Erlanger theater, vacated only last night by Ruth Chatterton and the "Pygmalion" company, offers B. G. DeSylva's long-awaited musical comedy, "Du Barry Was a Lady," with Bert Lahr and Frances Williams heading the list of performers. On Thursday evening, the night after Christmas, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will come down from a week's vacation at their farm in Wisconsin to give Chicago its first sight and hearing of Robert E. Sherwood's powerful and emotional drama, "There Shall Be No Night."

Beyond the mere fortuity of circumstance, there is certainly no reason for combining discussions of these diverse attractions in a single column. Since the calendar alone demands this peculiar coalition of materials, let the calendar also dictate the order in which they are dealt with.

Anybody who has not heard about "Du Barry Was a Lady" never reads either national magazines or eastern newspapers. This "heavy" production (in trade parlance, a show is "heavy" when it has lots of settings and costumes to move with it on tour) opened in New York in November, 1939, and left New York in November, 1940, rounding out a run of 51 weeks. (What is there about this mystical total of 51 weeks, anyway? "The Little Foxes," in similar manner, disdained to fill out a complete year.)

The plot of "Du Barry Was a Lady" hinges upon a strange experience which overtakes Bert Lahr in the first scene. We discover him as the washroom attendant of a night club, rejoicing in the possession of a winning sweepstakes ticket. Some one else covets the ticket, and places knockout drops in the liquor with which Mr. Lahr is celebrating his good fortune. It is a well known fact that Mr. Lahr does not react to anything in the way that you and I would. Instead of passing colorlessly out of the picture, he allows the potion to spirit him, in dreams, back to the court of Louis XV, where, with something of a Connecticut Yankee twist, he makes the acquaintance of the lovely and seething Countess Du Barry (in this case Frances Williams)

That is all you need to know about the basic situation of "Du Barry Was a Lady." But this synopsis does not hint at the untamed, unafraid humor which courses thru this boisterous piece, nor does it suggest the visual allurements provided (a) in the realm of nature, by the beauties of cast and chorus, and (b) in the realm of art, by Raoul Pène du Bois' dealings with costumes and décors. Then there are Cole Porter's musical score and Cole Porter's lyrics. And

Theater Public Turns to Less Expensive Entertainment

Producers Find Audiences Are After Bargains

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Being gluttons for punishment, the nation's picture promoters of the drama sent us another play last week. This one, the fourth this season, is called "Every Man for Himself" and has Lee Tracy as a star. Two years ago it was called "Once Upon a Night" and was refused by the audiences that saw it tried out here and there. Since then, of course, it has been rewritten in part by its author, Milton Lazarus.

However, there is nothing half so dead as a dead farce. The pulmotors seldom do any good. The only thing that helps is to get a particular farce before audiences of a particular breed.

Verily, there is no accounting for tastes in the theater. Whoever would have believed that "Charley's Aunt" could, after 48 years, have been revived for a Broadway run? or that "Tobacco Road" would last into its eighth year? These are changing times.

The other night at a Jimmy Savo performance in his one man show, "Mum's the Word," a man sitting in the first row laughed so hard, and swayed from side to side so violently, that he literally fell off his seat. And he was not liquored, either. Yet there were whole sections of the audience that had no trouble at all in restraining their joy. There is nothing more uncertain than the American's sense of humor, for all it is his greatest boast.

This "Every Man for Himself" farce is, like a majority of farces that fail, built entirely on a false premise. A Hollywood playwright stays drunk for four days, forgets everything that has happened to him, including a story he has outlined and sold to a big producer, and yet appears as smart and dapper at the play's opening as tho he had just finished dressing for dinner.

You can see it would take a bit of tall lying to the audience to convince it that anything this fellow has to say bears any relation to the probabilities of even a wild adventure. And by the time the lying is over interest in the characters or what happens to them has cooled. After that the whole thing has to be rebuilt with new situations and new complications, and on the success or failure of these the fate of the piece depends.

Lee Tracy.

These rebuilding situations in "Every Man for Himself" include one in which a lovely lady walks out of the hero's bedroom wearing his other pair of pajamas [very pretty] and announcing that she is not sorry for anything that has happened. Another is the arrival of a New York gangster, public enemy No. 1, who is reputedly the girl's guardian and who insists on marrying her. And, to provide a third complication, the girl is already engaged to the picture promoter to whom the hero has promised his story.

These are all exaggerated but workable farce complications. Their success depends on the skill of their juggling. In this instance not much skill has been employed and it is only the highly energized performance of Tracy that holds them together.

• • •

But, as said, there is still a chance for "Every Man for Himself" if a proper audience can be found for it. This audience, in the estimation of Robert Crawford—who has turned another farce, "Separate Rooms," into a money maker at popular prices, after the reviewers frowned upon it—is a movie audience.

Therefore Mr. Crawford is proposing to Mr. Tracy that he [Crawford] take over Mr. Lazarus' play, sell it for cut-rate prices, and make a play for the movie-going public at approximately picture prices.

I have an idea that Mr. Crawford has something worth considering in his argument. It has been apparent for some time, as your correspondent has pointed out with persistent frequency, that [1] theatergoing is too expensive for the huge public that depends on the movies for entertainment and [2] tastes in entertainment, especially comedy entertainment, have been noticeably changed by 20 years' contact with the films.

How else can the sweeping and continued success of such farcical entertainment as "Hellzapoppin'" be accounted for? Twenty years ago it would have been quickly dismissed as second class vaudeville. How else can the success of the "Charley's Aunt" revival be explained? It still is not only a wildly exaggerated farce, but one that has been revived and imitated literally hundreds of times in the 48 years of its life.

"Separate Rooms" is helped by being cheaply bold in its sexy situations, as well as by its movie player cast, but it never could have been sold at normal legitimate theater prices to any except a picture minded public. "Johnny Belinda," which is fundamentally sound emotional drama, would also have been criticized out of the theater except for its cheap tariffs and its appeal to that same picture trained crowd.

Two Celebrated Smash Hits Add Luster to Chicago Stage Fare

despite the enraged correspondent who wrote in to tell me a thing or two last year when I said I liked Cole Porter better than Victor Herbert, I still think Mr. Porter knows the business of writing show music about as well as anybody does.

Mr. DeSylva, the producer, and Herbert Fields coöperated in writing the book. The skilled Robert Alton devised and directed the dancing. In addition to Mr. Lahr and Miss Williams, the cast includes Ruth Bond, Benny Baker, Oscar Ragland, Ronald Graham, and Walter Armin.

And now, if we can make a swift change of mood, let us consider "There Shall Be No Night." Here again I have no need to tell you much, for this is one of the most written about plays of the past year; and altho the play slipped up on the Pulitzer and New York Critics' Circle prizes, to the benefit of "The Time of Your Life," the balloting of the judges in the latter competition [the only one made public] showed a considerable leaning toward Mr. Sherwood's play.

Mr. Sherwood tells us that the writing of this play was a matter of quick inspiration. The playwright's concern with international affairs and his passionate hatred of war have been matters of public knowledge ever since "Idiot's Delight." This play, much more moving than "Idiot's Delight," was written during the Russian campaign against Finland. Before the production actually reached the stage, the Finnish war was sadly over, and Mr. Sherwood had to make changes in the script to bring the story in line with recent realities.

The first news of the play was made public here in Chicago, when Mr. Sherwood was taking a look at his "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" at the Grand Opera house. In an unguarded moment, Mr. Sherwood told something about another play of his to Ashton Stevens which he did not tell to the rest of the Chicago critics. Fearing that we would be very, very angry because Mr. Stevens had scooped us [he didn't know how accustomed we are to that], Mr. Sherwood quickly released the news that he had completed a new play about the Finnish war. It was to be called "Revelation," and the Lunts would act in it right away. The title was changed to "There Shall Be No Night," but the Lunts did act in it right away, and still are, fortunately.

When the drama was first presented before a New York audience early last April, public response was instantaneous and profound. Altho a few abortive attempts had already been made by other authors, Mr. Sherwood was the first playwright to succeed in reaching an American audience with an emotionalized message about the war in Europe. Whatever the actual intellectual clarity of "There Shall Be No Night" may be—and there is room for hot debate upon this point—the burning sincerity of the author shone, and still shines, fiercely in every line of the text. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, fired by this sincerity, conceived a performance, with the aid of their fine supporting company, which must be all Mr. Sherwood could possibly wish.

"There Shall Be No Night" grapples with the problem of human action and ethical principles in a world swept by inhuman, incomprehensible conflict. The personal dilemma of Dr. Valkonen, a Finnish scientist forced by the invasion of his homeland to reassess his standards of patriotism and his code of personal behavior, provides the central substance of the play. The psychological power of the play comes from the skillful way in which Mr. Sherwood has identified the tragic disruption of Dr. Valkonen's family with the large issues of strife, conquest and political absolutism.

The play is produced coöperatively by the Theater Guild and the Playwrights' company. Richard Whorf, who plays an important rôle, designed the settings. Mr. Lunt directed. In addition to Miss Fontanne, Mr. Lunt and Mr. Whorf, an altogether notable cast includes Sydney Greenstreet, Maurice Colbourne, Montgomery Clift, Elisabeth Fraser, Brooks West, Edward Raquello, Charles Ansley, Thomas Gomez, William Le Massena, Claude Horton, Phyllis Thaxter, Charva Chester, Ralph Nelson, and Robert Downing. The engagement at the Grand Opera house extends only until Jan. 18.

King's Jesters Return to Blue Fountain Room

By Will Davidson.

The little band that wasn't there for two years is back in the Blue Fountain room of the Hotel La Salle, and from opening night appearances the King's Jesters are going to establish another enviable record.

More new shows for the coming weeks: Maggi McNeills has come home from a long success at Armando's in New York, to appear for several weeks at the Pump room. The beautiful Maggi has the masterful Mr. Malneck as her co-star. . . . The Palmer House is going to give Eddy Duchin a prize winning show when he opens in the Empire room Jan. 16. Maurice and Cordoba, dancers; Eddie Howard, the careful "Careless" singer; Parker and Porthole, ventriloquist act; Lorraine Sanchi, one of the loveliest of the Abbott graduates, who will dance in the Little Show, and the Merriel Abbott girls in new routines. . . . Howard McCreery and his new orchestra open Friday in the Balinese room of the Blackstone hotel. . . . Emil Coleman, who closes at Chez Paree tomorrow, will play in the Drake hotel's Gold Coast room on New Year's eve. Ramon Ramos will be in the Camellia house, of course. . . . A brilliant new suburban cocktail lounge has just been opened at Villa Moderne on Skokie highway. It is the "Leopard room," a handsome bistro decorated in jungle motif by Hanns Teichert. . . . The opening of Mike Todd's Theater restaurant is now set for Friday night.

Drama Notes

"Pygmalion," with Ruth Chatterton, Barry Thomson, and Dennis Hoey, did not leave the city last night after all. After four days' holiday lay-off the Bernard Shaw comedy will reopen at the Harris theater Wednesday evening, remaining there thru Saturday, Jan. 11. The behind-the-scenes tours for student parties will continue thruout this extension of the engagement, with Jus Addiss, the excellent and articulate stage director, explaining the mechanical procedures of stage production to these student groups. Any such groups wishing to make this backstage tour during the holidays are invited to apply by letter to Mr. Addiss at the Harris theater. In moving to its third theater in the space of a month, incidentally, "Pygmalion" seems to be setting a new precedent.

It will be the return engagement of "Ladies in Retirement" which finally pushes "Pygmalion" out of the Harris on Jan. 12. This magnificent performance of an excellent murder melodrama retains intact the cast which won such approbation during its brief two weeks' engagement early in the fall. Flora Robson is the star, with the quite stellar collaboration of Estelle Winwood, Isobel Elsom, Jessamine Newcombe, and Patrick O'Moore. Originally produced by Gilbert Miller, "Ladies in Retirement" is now touring under the Theater Guild banner.

Looking ahead a week farther still, the new Dennis King musical, "She Had to Say Yes," will open at the Grand Opera house on Sunday, Jan. 19, the evening after the departure of the Lunts. In addition to Mr. King the cast includes Marcy Wescott [lately of "Too Many Girls"], Charles Walters [last seen here in "I Married an Angel"], Paula Stone, Wally Vernon, Ralph Magelson [seen and heard in "The Great Waltz"], Edwina Coolidge, Leslie Austin, Harry Bellaver, and Robert Sidney.

Mildred Weitz of "New Pins and Needles," the Labor stage revue at the Studebaker theater, shatters all theater tradition by saying that she wouldn't mind a bit returning to her sewing machine, at which she worked before the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union allowed its thoughts to travel toward the stage. A versatile girl, Miss Weitz used to play on the union basketball team. When a sprained knee kept her out of the game she decided to try out for the original "Pins and Needles," which then was in the preparatory casting stage. In that first show she quickly won fame thru her performance of the hit song, "Nobody Makes a Pass at Me." Her special feature in "New Pins and Needles" is entitled, "Oh, Give Me the Good Old Days."

Vaudeville

That famous troupe of little people known as Singer's Midgets are to be seen on the stage of the Oriental theater this week in an elaborate show, replete with elephants, ponies, dog and deer. In addition the stage presentation offers the Musical Scrapbook, featuring Preston Sellers, Penny Lynn, Tommy Richard, and Charlie Stone, and the Oriental theater orchestra. On the screen is "Men Against the Sky," with Richard Dix, Kent Taylor, and Emund Lowe.

While the film, "Tin Pan Alley," is being held over for a second week at the Chicago theater, the stage revue is new, offering two production numbers—"Jingle Belles" and "Christmas Concerto." The performers in these include the Varsity Eight, the Arnaut Brothers, Margery Daye, Truzzi, and the theater's ballet.

Ada Leonard makes her debut as an orchestra leader this week at the State Lake theater where she is leading the All-American Girls' band. Other acts on the vaudeville bill include Vic Hyde; Winnie Mae; Cele, Edith and Joan, and Chester Fredericks. "Blondie Plays Cupid," with Penny Singleton, is the film.

"Christmas Belles," with Pinky Lee, Stella Mills, Claire Scott, Jean Carter, Frank C. Smith, and Ted Kent holds the stage at the Rialto theater.

Zino Francescatti to Be Soloist with Chicago Symphony

Noted Violinist Will Appear in Three Concerts

By Cecil Smith.

Zino Francescatti, the brilliant French violinist, returns to Chicago to appear as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall, both in this week's Thursday evening and Friday afternoon concerts and in the Tuesday matinée concert Dec. 31. Mr. Francescatti made his Chicago debut with the orchestra slightly more than a year ago, playing Mozart's Third Concerto in the Tuesday concert and Paganini's First Concerto in the Thursday-Friday pair. This season he will let the Tuesday subscribers hear the Paganini, and will present his interpretation of Lalo's popular "Spanish Symphony" on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Mr. Francescatti was born in Marseilles 35 years ago. The Italian character of his name is explained by the fact that his father was a native of Italy, altho he later became a naturalized French citizen. The father was both a violinist and a cellist, and gave his son his entire professional instruction.

Shortly before the German occupation of Paris, Zino Francescatti closed his apartment in Paris, and managed to reach this country with his wife, coming by way of Portugal. Since that time he has had no word from Paris, and does not know the fate of his musical library or his collection of paintings.

In addition to Mr. Francescatti's solo appearance, the Thursday-Friday concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week are distinguished by the world première of Nicolas Miaskowsky's new "Symphonic Fantasy" in F minor. This concise work, written in a single movement, was written by the Russian composer in response to a commission from the orchestral association, and the score is dedicated to the orchestra in its golden jubilee year.

Miaskowsky's tribute to the orchestra is well deserved, for the "Symphonic Fantasy" will be the ninth of his works to be conducted in Chicago by Dr. Frederick Stock. The sixth symphony, in E-flat minor, has attained real popularity here, and has figured on Chicago Symphony orchestra programs in nine separate seasons.

The new Miaskowsky score will be preceded by Hans Pfitzner's Overture to the opera "Das Christelflein." For the most part Pfitzner's music has disappeared from view without ever having enjoyed anything approaching a fair representation in Chicago, altho the composer is still living. The opera "Palestrina," first produced in Munich in 1917, won widespread praise for its expressive music, and was widely staged in Germany. It was never tried out here, because its unusual plot included no love interest, but centered its attention upon Palestrina's composition of liturgical religious music, and upon his legendary appearance before the Council of Trent in 1562 to plead for greater purity in the style of 16th century church music.

"Das Christelflein," likewise denied any representation upon the Chicago stage, employs a libretto based upon a medieval miracle play in which the Christ Child, disguised as an elf, intercedes in heaven and succeeds in providing a fine dinner for a poor family. The opera was first given in 1906.

The complete Thursday-Friday program, with Dr. Stock conducting, is as follows:

Overture to "Das Christelflein"....Pfitzner
Symphonic Fantasy, F minor....Miaskowsky
[First performance]
Scènes de Ballet, Opus 52.........Glazounoff
Spanish Symphony.........................Lalo
Zino Francescatti.
"Emperor" Waltzes.......................Strauss

A popular concert will be played on Saturday night, with Dr. Stock conducting this program:

Overture, "Carneval"....................Dvorak
Symphony No. 1, E-flat major, "The Rustic Wedding"..............Goldmark Tone Poem, "Don Juan"..............Strauss
Suite, "Ruses d'Amour"..........Glazounoff

Tomorrow evening in the Great Northern theater the Illinois Philharmonic choir of 40 mixed voices will collaborate with the Illinois Symphony orchestra in a program devoted partly to Christmas music. Ralph Rose, conductor of the orchestra, and Adalbert Huguelet, conductor of the choir, will share the direction of the concert.

The choir and orchestra together will offer the first Chicago performance of Three Carols by Peter Warlock. The real name of Warlock, who died in London in 1930, was Philip Heseltine. In his historical and critical books and articles upon old English music, he wrote under his real name, employing his nom de plume only for his musical compositions.

Also new to Chicago in tomorrow evening's Illinois Symphony orchestra program are Russell Harvey's transcription of Palestrina's "Adoramus Te" and "Sanctus." Esther Payne, pianist, will be soloist of the evening, playing John Alden Carpenter's Concertino for piano and orchestra. The program follows:

"Adoramus Te" and "Sanctus"...Palestrina
Transcribed by Russell Harvey.
[First performance]
Suite, from "Christmas Eve".........................Rimsky-Korsakoff
Concertino for piano and orchestra..Carpenter
Esther Payne.
Three Carols..........................Warlock
[First time in Chicago.]
Alborada del Gracioso.....................Ravel
The Sorcerer's Apprentice...............Dukas

Notes of Music and Musicians

On Wednesday night the Yale Glee club will make its first Chicago appearance since 1936 with a Christmas concert in Orchestra hall. The 55 members of the famous student ensemble are led by Marshall Bartholomew of Yale university's music faculty. The program is devoted to student and Christmas songs from all over the world, American folk songs, and songs of Yale. In addition a quartet drawn from the glee club and "The Whiffenpoofs of 1941," an inner circle of the ensemble, will offer special groups of musical numbers.

Marshall Bartholomew.

At 4 a. m. on Christmas morning the vested Schola Cantorum of Old St. John's, 18th and Clark streets, will sing, unaccompanied, an entire liturgical Gregorian mass, "Kyrie Fons Bonitatis," from the altar of the church. Likewise, the complete chant Proper of the Mass will be sung. Gerald Devlin, organist and choirmaster, will direct as well as intone all the chants. The choral program prior to the mass will offer traditional hymns; French, German, and English carols; and two carols in polyphonic style by Mr. Devlin.

Raymond Haugen, pianist, will offer a recital in the Auditorium recital hall this afternoon. On the program are listed Mendelssohn's Variations Serieuses, Op. 54; Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 53; four Chopin études; the Etude in D-flat major and the Dance of the Gnomes by Liszt; and an Intermezzo and Rhapsodie by Brahms.

Christmas music will be played and sung at all three services in the Fourth Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Chestnut street today. Maurine Parzybok, contralto, will be the soloist at the 11 o'clock service, singing an aria from Saint-Saëns' Christmas Oratorio and Bach's "My Heart Ever Faithful." The choir will sing anthems by Healey Willan and Walter Flandorf. At the vesper service at 4 o'clock Vaughan Williams' Fantasia on Christmas Carols and two works by Bach will be featured by the choir. Vaughan Williams' "The Pageant of the Holy Nativity" will be given at the evening service at 7:30. Barrett Spach will direct the choir and play the organ thruout the day's services.

Bach's Magnificat will be sung by the choir of the First Congregational church of Oak Park under the direction of Else Harthan Arendt this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Marion Schroeder will be the soprano soloist.

The Civic Music children's choruses will sing more Christmas carols around town this week. At 7 o'clock tonight they will perform for the Sunday evening club in Orchestra hall. Tomorrow at 12:30 they will sing in Lyon and Healy's, Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard, and at 2 o'clock at the Little Traveler, Geneva, Ill.

The first of this week's two major presentations of Handel's "Messiah" will take place in Orchestra hall this afternoon when the Swedish Choral club will give its annual performance of the oratorio under the direction of Harry T. Carlson. The soloists will be Hilda Ohlin, soprano; Sonia Sharnova, contralto; Joseph Laderoute, tenor, and Herbert Gould, bass. Stanley Martin will function as the organist, and 50 members of the Chicago Symphony will serve as the orchestra.

On Friday night in the same hall the Apollo Musical club will sing its traditional Christmas week performance of the "Messiah," conducted by Edgar Nelson. For this rendition the soloists will include Kathryn Witwer, soprano; Ruth Slater, contralto; Robert Topping, tenor, and Bruce Foote, baritone. Members of the Chicago Symphony will again assist in the accompaniments.

Paul Draper, tap dancer, and Larry Adler, harmonica virtuoso, desert their customary resorts—night clubs, musical revues and vaudeville—to offer a formal recital in the Civic theater tonight. Both have a right to such action, since they are preëminent performers in their respective fields and because they draw much of their material from serious and even classical sources. Furthermore as guest soloists their names have been coupled at various times with such dignified orchestras as the London Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony, the Sydney [Australia] Symphony, the Kansas City Symphony, and Chicago's Woman's Symphony.

Paul Draper.

Mr. Adler's contributions to tonight's program include the first movement from Bach's Concerto for two violins, the Vivaldi Violin Concerto in A minor, and selections by Ravel, Debussy, Kreisler, and Granados. Mr. Draper will dance to music by Scarlatti, Handel, Bach, Paradies, Brahms, Debussy, and Johann Strauss. Together the performers will collaborate on Gershwin's "It Ain't Necessarily So."

Scholarship at Princeton Open to Chicagoans

By the Rev. John Evans.

The committee on scholarships of Princeton university announces the establishment of a new scholarship, in the awarding of which preference will be given first to residents of Chicago and its suburbs, and second to residents of Illinois—the Bradford Hill Whiting memorial scholarship.

This scholarship was founded this year by Mrs. Adele H. Whiting in memory of her son Bradford of the 1934 class. It will be available to a student entering Princeton university as a freshman in the fall of 1941. The scholarship carries an estimated annual maximum stipend of $1,000 from which the committee may allocate to the recipient the entire amount, or a smaller stipend in accordance with his financial need, provided, however, that the amount granted shall be sufficient to permit the holder to meet all expenses without outside work, so that he may give full time to his studies and participate in the general life of the university.

Students applying for the Bradford Hill Whiting memorial scholarship should write to the secretary of the university committee on scholarships, 9 Nassau Hall, Princeton, N. J.

American universities and colleges are maintaining their student enrollments in spite of educational uncertainties arising from the selective military service act, and other consequences of the European war. This is revealed by the studies of Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, published in the current issue of School and Society, under the title "Statistics of Registration for 1940."

Of 647 institutions listed both last year and the current academic year, 348 report slight gains in attendance, 296 report insignificant losses, with three having precisely similar figures for both years. However, a decrease of 2 per cent in the number of 1940 freshmen in five large fields of study in 643 institutions would appear to forecast a somewhat lower enrollment for 1941-'42.

The report states that many collegiate administrators consider the figures on current attendance as satisfactory which is due, they claim to two factors: 1. The provision of the draft act which permits students to defer the beginning of their service until the close of the present academic year, and 2, the continuance of NYA payments for an average of $15 monthly for work performed by undergraduates, and $30 for graduates, which payments involve approximately 10 per cent of the enrollment of full time students.

Another Ballet Group to Visit City This Week

Among the familiar works in the company's 1940-'41 répertoire are the intoxicating "Gaité Parisienne," done by Leonide Massine to Offenbach's tinselly music; "Spect de la Rose," one of the works in which the legendary Nijinsky became famous; "Scheherazade," the most overwhelming of "story" ballets; "The Fantastic Doll Shop," one of the gayest and most imaginative works in the list; "Bacchanale," the Dali surrealist ballet to Wagner's music; Stravinsky's great "Petrouchka," and those two fragrant perenniels, "Les Sylphides" and "Swan Lake."

The schedule of the engagement follows:

Thursday evening, Dec. 26: "Poker Game," "Capriccio Espagnol," "The Nutcracker."

Friday evening, Dec. 27: "Serenade," "Baiser de la Fée," "Gaité Parisienne."

Saturday afternoon, Dec. 28: "Poker Game," "Spectre de la Rose," "The Nutcracker."

Saturday evening, Dec. 28: "Les Sylphides," "Scheherazade," "Vienna—1814."

Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29: "Fantastic Doll Shop," "Baiser de la Fée," "The New Yorker."

Sunday evening, Dec. 29: "Les Sylphides," "The New Yorker," "Bacchanale," "Capriccio Espagnol."

Monday evening, Dec. 30: "Scheherazade," "Afternoon of a Faun," "The Nutcracker."

Tuesday evening, Dec. 31: "Serenade," "Poker Game,' "The New Yorker," "Vienna—1814."

Wednesday evening, Jan. 1: "Swan Lake," "Petrouchka," "Gaité Parisienne."

Thursday evening, Jan. 2: "Swan Lake," "Fantastic Doll Shop," "Afternoon of a Faun," "Capriccio Espagnol."

Friday evening, Jan. 3: "Serenade," "Poker Game," "The Nutcracker."

Saturday afternoon, Jan. 4: "Sylphides," "Petrouchka," "Vienna—1814."

Saturday evening, Jan. 4: "Swan Lake," "Scheherazade," "Gaité Parisienne."

Sunday afternoon, Jan. 5: "Serenade," "Bacchanale," "Spectre de la Rose," "Vienna—1814."

Sunday evening, Jan. 5: "Baiser de la Fée," "The New Yorker," "The Nutcracker.'

Recordings

Victor has recently brought out new recordings of two standard concertos—one for piano, the other for violin.

The first is Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 3, in D minor. Sergei Rachmaninoff himself plays the piano part and the orchestra is the Philadelphia, under Eugene Ormandy's direction. The interpretation is undoubtedly a definitive one, and the recording is first rate.

The other concerto is Beethoven's single essay in this form for violin. It is played by Jascha Heifetz and the NBC Symphony orchestra, with Arturo Toscanini conducting.

Among new Victor single discs are Gaetano Maria Schiassi's "Christmas" symphony, recorded by Arthur Fiedler's Sinfonietta. The Trapp Family choir, with Franz Wasner directing, is heard in Luther's carol, "Away in a Manger," and in a composition of Dr. Wasner himself, "Children's Blessing." There have been good re-recordings in the popular priced black label series, of "Little Child of Mary" and "Oh Gathering Clouds," sung by John McCormack.

Beethoven's Sixth symphony [the "Pastoral"] is now available in the black label series. It is effectively performed by the Vienna Philharmonic orchestra under Bruno Walter's direction.

Good Morning!

The grand state of "Arizona" has not been neglected by the films. It introduced the first out-of-door talkie —"In Old Arizona" with Edmund Lowe and Warner Baxter. . . . Later featured in "Arizona" was Mr. John Wayne, and a vehicle y-clept "The Arizona Kid" was honored by Mr. Baxter's presence. . . . Now, as Maj. Bowes would say, "The wheel spins—" and, again we have—"Arizona."

This time Clarence Budington Kelland's absorbing story, which ran serially in a weekly periodical serves as basis for a movie on which has been expended much money, time and talent. It's a zestful, colorful production starring Jean Arthur, whom I can never see too often, using as her running mate that talented young William ["Golden Boy"] Holden, who holds up his part well even tho it's not quite down his alley and presenting a supporting cast ably fitted to portray the characters they were called upon to represent. The picture was filmed almost entirely in Arizona.

It shows Miss Arthur as Phoebe Titus, first white woman of the locality, a pioneering, indomitable beauty who bakes pies first for a living then turns freighter and, with her partner, Solomon Warner, carries on a successful business for a time tho Indians beset her and crooks connive to outwit her. Her hard road is lighted by her love for Peter Muncie, a young Missourian, who has paused in Tucson long enough to fall in love and then gone on to California because of the roving fever in him. . . . But he's promised to return—and return he does to join forces with his beloved in her many faceted battle against man and the desert.

Miss Arthur, as is her custom, gives all she has—and it's a-plenty. She's a handsome creature in mannish garb and a darling when she dresses up like a lady. . . . Mr. Holden, while capable, is far from my idea of the Peter Muncie I visualized the while I knitted and my husband read aloud the Kelland yarn. . . . Too soft and gentle. . . . Warren William is a properly deadly Carteret, albeit rather unnecessarily theatrical. . . . Edgar Buchanan [a dentist who wanted to be a movie actor, and, believe me, IS] gives a chuckle-inspiring characterization as the local judge, a puffy unsmiling little chap.

See you tomorrow.

Movie Xmas Baskets

The motion picture exhibitors
Of C-H-I-C-A-G-O
On the morn of December 23d
Want you to a party to go.
It's their annual Christmas
Party for
Needy families of OUR TOWN
And they hope that their invitation you
Will certainly not turn down.
Admission to theaters will be
Non-per-ishable food,
A can, a case or a carton,
What'e'er you can spare will be good.
'Twill be put up into baskets
And given to the poor,
And you'll have made folks happy
Which is what Xmas is for. [Well—isn't it?]
[The while you see a movie
Minus the usual price.]
These annual basket parties
For all concerned are nice!

Story of First Christmas Is Dear to Child

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In the rush and bustle of Christmas, do you forget to tell the Christmas story? No Christmas season should be allowed to pass without the children hearing the age old narrative, without their having seen in their mind's eye the deep blue night sky and Mary and Joseph journeying under it nearly 2,000 years ago, seeking shelter for the Baby that was to be born. No Christmas should pass without their imaginations being captured by the rich picturesqueness of the Three Kings of the East traveling under the same starry sky with gifts for the little Jesus, or without their thinking of the humble shepherds kneeling in adoration within the stable.

In this troubled, war torn world let us not only remember ourselves, but let us bring before the spiritual eyes of our children the birth of the little baby who, when he became a man, preached peace and the love of man for man. He brought a new order into the world, an order which is not lost and will some day rise again in other lands. Let us, who are at peace here in America and who stand for human freedom, be sure to tell the simple and beautiful story of the birth of Christ.

Find a quiet time, some afternoon or evening in the midst of Christmas preparations, and in simple language, if your boys and girls are little, tell them about the first Christmas. Pictures they see and carols they hear then take on new meaning. For the older children you can read the story from the Bible. Perhaps you might read parts of it to the little children, but only after you have told it to them in your own words.

No matter how often you may have read it to yourself, I think it wise to re-read the narrative in the Bible to yourself first. There may be parts you omitted last year that you will include this year, since children grow in understanding, and what they could not comprehend then they may be able to take in now that they are older. Of course, if you have the James Moffatt translation instead of the King James version of the Bible, the language and style will be more familiar to a child than the stately beauty of the classic translation.

Another object in re-reading the story in the Bible before you read it to the children is this: That you can visualize new questions they may ask and think out your answers. Their growing intelligence creates different curiosities about various aspects of the story, especially as you may include parts you have previously omitted.

Voter Group Notes Upward Trend of Women Lawmakers

An upward trend of women lawmakers is noted by the National League of Women Voters in its biennial recording of women in state legislatures, made public last week. The number of women in state legislatures has swung upward from 130 in 28 states in 1939 to 140 in 29 states in 1941. Eight women will take their seats in the 77th congress when it assembles Jan. 3, as compared to five, who took their seats two years ago.

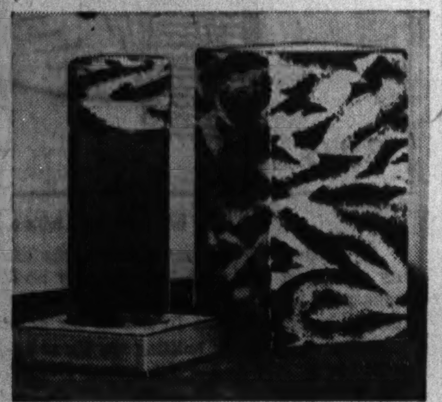
Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

"Scentiments" bath set of powder, cologne, and bath crystals in sweet clover, honeysuckle, or lilac. $2.50. The delicate coloring of this package, together with the blonde wood and soft-lustre metal used in the containers present an appeal to the feminine eye.

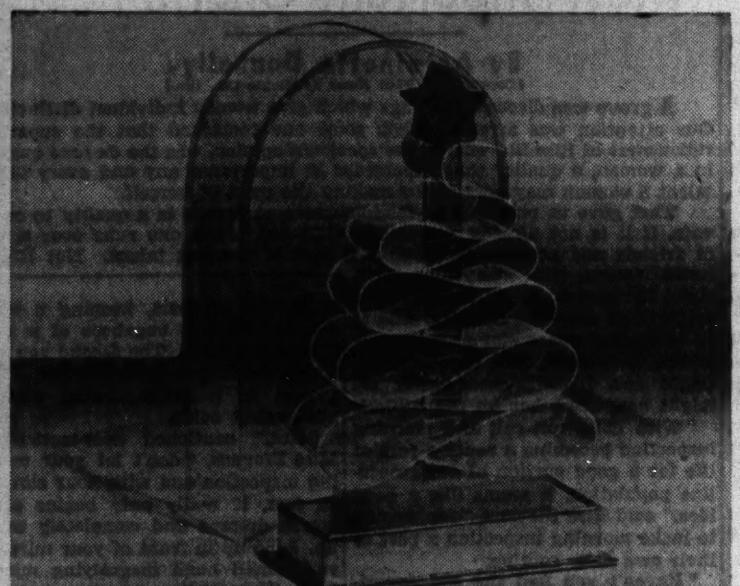
In a handcut ballet-dancer bottle, a new perfume that manages to be both gay and sophisticated. The gold box has a blue-mirrored interior, the dancer bottle an airy net skirt. $25.

One of the most beautiful and distinguished of fragrances in a toilet water. The handsome bottle has a new one-hand atomizer stopper. $3.50. This distinctive fragrance carries a light air of sophistication in its wake that adds to its charm.



Cologne for the frankly sophisticated. It's a worldly, smart kind of fragrance; the outer box and stopper are done in leopard skin cloth. $1.50.

To tuck in the toe of her stocking: A small bottle of American Beauty perfume held snug in a Christmas bell. $1.00. Cologne in the same fragrance, $1.00. The excellent reproductions of the rich warm fragrance of the American beauty rose are presented in containers copied from an old American glass decanter.



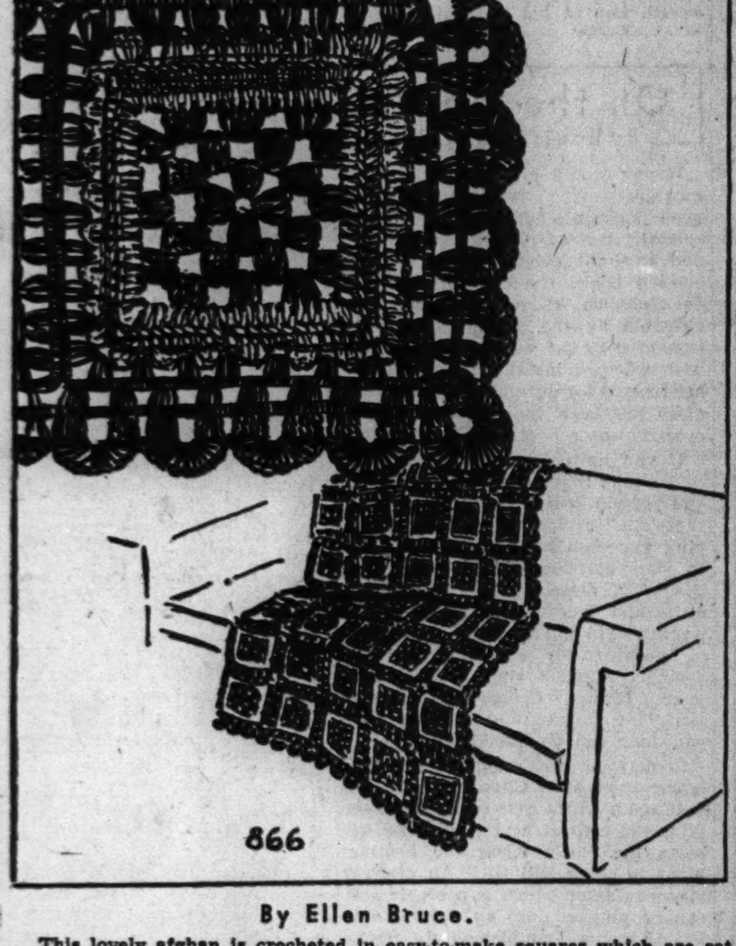
The trunk of this modernistic Christmas tree is a vial of perfume, with a star shaped stopper. Three fragrences and three color combinations. $1.00. Like a tree in a church window, its glowing branches send out rays of Christmas cheer thru the transparent case.

For specific information about these Christmas beauty gift ideas telephone Miss Nangle at Superior 0200, or write to her in care of The Chicago Sunday Tribune, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fresh Fruits in Ice Cream.

The way to avoid hard frozen pieces of fruit in ice cream made of fresh fruit is to crush the fruit thoroly first, and then to let it stand with sugar awhile. An easy way to crush fresh pineapple is to run it thru a meat chopper.

Squares for an Afghan



By Ellen Bruce.

This lovely afghan is crocheted in easy-to-make squares which are set together when all are completed. The border is an interesting shell stitch. An afghan of this type is especially colorful, because each square may have several different colors for the centers. Any scrap bag will offer innumerable colors which blend harmoniously.

For instructions in crocheting the squares for this afghan, No. 866, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Motto Done in Cross-Stitch

By Nancy Cabot.

There is no more effective motto than this ancient truth depicted in cross-stitch. This is an ideal "consolation present" for those who are living away from home or whose home is nearest their hearts. It may be embroidered on oyster white linen or cotton, Indian head, or linen crash. When completed, the picture measures 14 by 18 inches. The pattern includes instructions and an illustrated color chart.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the cross-stitch motto, No. X-644, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Conference to Discuss Trends of Family Life

The American family and its place in the nation's life will be discussed by experts from all parts of the continent when the National Conference on Family Relations holds its third annual meeting Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at the Stevens hotel. "Trends and Resources in Family Living" will be the theme of the meeting.

Arthur J. Todd of Northwestern university will preside at a general session on "Trends in Family Living" Thursday. Dr. Adolf Meyer of Johns Hopkins university, Prof. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago, and Faith M. Williams of the United States department of labor, will be among the speakers.

"The Family in War Time" will be the theme of a session Thursday evening. Dr. Meyer, who is president of the national conference, will preside.

National committee meetings Friday morning will be followed by a general session on "Community Resources for the Conservation of the Family" at which Helèn Gregory MacGill, judge of the Vancouver, B. C., Juvenile court, will preside.

Miss Sophonisba P. Breckinridge of the University of Chicago will preside at a dinner meeting at which Katharine Lenroot, chief of the United States children's bureau, will discuss "The Government, the Child, and the Family."

A general session on "Community Resources for the Conservation of the Family" will follow with Mrs. W. F. Dummer of Chicago presiding, and Dr. Charles W. Gilkey of the University of Chicago speaking for religion, Ernest R. Groves of the University of North Carolina, for education, and Maurine B. LaBarre of the Family Welfare Association of America, for social work.

Adjustments in engagements and marriage will be among the topics discussed at final sessions Saturday. E. W. Burgess of the University of Chicago, and Paul Wallin of New York, will talk on this subject.

Mrs. Helen Robbins Bittermann of Columbus, O., one of the supporters of the proposed equal rights amendment to the constitution, will discuss the amendment at a luncheon to be sponsored by the Illinois Women's division of the National Woman's party, nonpartisan sponsor of the amendment, next Saturday at the Central Y.M.C.A. Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair, chairman of the division, and other delegates will report on the recent party convention in Washington, D. C.

Problems of refugee adjustment in the United States, Jews in South America, and Palestine at war are among the topics to be discussed at the annual Chanukah seminar of the American Jewish congress' youth division next Sunday afternoon at the Hotel Sherman. Meyer Halushka, Jewish labor leader, and Morris Sonnenschein, will be among the speakers, and a concert will follow.

The Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations will present Sidney Jacobs, editor of "The Advocate," Chicago Jewish weekly, as speaker at its meeting tomorrow afternoon at 316 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. Max Biesenthal heads the organization.

Miss Mary B. Gilson, assistant professor of economics at the University of Chicago and specialist in industrial relations, will speak before the Women's American Ort, Jacob Spitzglass chapter, tomorrow afternoon at the Congress hotel. Miss Gilson's subject will be "The Effect on Society of Incentive and Opportunity for All." Mrs. J. A. Kohn heads the chapter.

Dr. Mary B. Gilson.

Dr. Lennox Mills of the department of political science at the University of Minnesota will speak on "The Threat of Japanese Advance to the South and the Effect Upon the United States and Great Britain," following a dinner Friday evening at the Chicago College club. Dr. Mills will illustrate his talk with motion pictures taken by him in the far east.

New Brace Shop to Be Dedicated by Rabbi Louis Mann

Rabbi Louis L. Mann this afternoon will officiate at the dedication of a new brace shop recently completed by the Chicago Club for Crippled Children in the A. C. Meyer Orthopedic center, adjacent to the Michael Reese hospital.

Organized in 1934 to aid needy crippled children, the organization opened its first brace shop a year later at the hospital. The new shop was equipped at a cost of $8,000 to meet the increasing demands of the club's activities.

A trained nurse is provided by the organization to care for the patients who come to the shop, and members volunteer their services. The club has provided a variety of equipment to the hospital, and each year gives parties for crippled children. Mrs. L. C. Witt is president.

Streamline the Holiday Meal; It's Modern!

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Some traditions are good and worth preserving; some are undesirable and should live only in books or in the memory. One of these less desirable traditions still prompts cooks to load their Christmas tables with many rich foods which tempt the diner to eat himself into a state of stupidity, after which he is mighty uncomfortable unless he can retire to sleep away the afternoon.

The groaning boards of the Christmas feast are a remnant of ancient gluttonous celebrations. There is no room for gluttony in modern dining. It is ignoble, extravagant, and dangerous to health. And besides, few modern homes contain enough cooks to supply a large number of dishes of food.

Just because the modern Christmas dinner has been cut to a third of the proportions of one served 50 years ago, it must not be called stingy. It still is a feast, but it's a sensible, well balanced feast which needn't do bodily injury to any one at the table.

Compare these two Christmas menus to contrast holiday customs of 40 years ago and today.

CHRISTMAS DINNER, 1900.
Oysters on the Halfshell
Meat Soup [venison, beef or rabbit]
Boiled White Fish
Maitre d'Hotel Sauce
Roast Goose, Apple Sauce
Canvas Back Duck
Boiled Potatoes — Mashed Turnips
Creamed Parsnips — Stewed Onions
Boiled Rice — Lobster Salad
Christmas Plum Pudding
Vanilla Ice Cream
Mince Pie — Orange Jelly
Delicate Cake — Salted Nuts
Candy — Fruit
Coffee

CHRISTMAS DINNER, 1940.
Chilled Fruit Cocktail
Roast Goose, Sage and Onion Stuffing
Mashed Potatoes — Giblet Gravy
Buttered Peas — Celery and Olives
Hot Rolls, Jelly
Tossed Green Salad, French Dressing
Raspberry Sherbet with Thin
Fruit Cake Slices
Coffee
Nuts and Mints

Our first reform consisted in making the holiday goose the only meat at the feast. We've eliminated the oysters [altho oyster or shrimp cocktail might have been used in place of the fruit appetizer in the 1940 meal], meat soup, whitefish, lobster salad, and duck. The second important reform was cutting out the extra heavy desserts. Mince pie and plum pudding are fine for Christmas supper, but pretty heavy after the big meal.

Potatoes and rice serve the same place in the menu, and the 1940 meal cuts out one of these starches. As for vegetables, we consider one green vegetable sufficient. Two may be served, but aren't necessary. And we never should use two strong-flavored vegetables, such as onions and turnips, in the same meal. The 1900 cook may be excused from poor taste in combining vegetables because of the fact that these winter vegetables, onions, parsnips, and turnips, were almost the only ones available.

And the cook of 40 years ago couldn't possibly have served a green salad. Modern food distribution methods have provided us lucky 1940 cooks with many such blessings which we often fail to appreciate. Why, we can even serve fresh strawberries for Christmas dessert this year if we like!

Many women have told me that since they've begun to simplify their holiday menus they and their families and guests all have enjoyed Christmas more. And it seems to me that this year, of all years, it would be most inappropriate for us Americans to load our Christmas tables, thus emphasizing the terrible contrast between our lot and that of our unhappy fellow men across the sea.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is not enough to know the underlying strategical principles and the bids derived from them. The next step is to know by what bidding device a bid that tells one thing about the hand is distinguished from a bid that means quite another thing. The answer is, by associating a bid with a definite bidding level.

There are seven levels or rounds of bidding, starting from one-odd and ending with seven-odd. In addition, there are three basic positions—the opening, responding, and defending hands. Theoretically, therefore, there are 21 bidding situations, and to each situation it is possible to attach a bid containing a special meaning as to the strength of the hand or the bidding zone to which it belongs. In addition to these 21 "cells" wherein an egg of bridge wisdom could be deposited, some players pervert minor suits from their natural state to behave in a special manner. Also, the same bidding level may be used to indicate a bid with a double or even triple meaning, like some English sounds—"two, too, and to," or "pair, pare, and pear."

Fortunately, in bridge there are only two important situations where three different strategical bids live within the same bidding level like the rattlesnake, the prairie dog, and the burrowing owl in Arizona. This occurs in suit bids of one and two by the responding hand—the one-round forces which may show a strong hand, the beginning of a sign-off, or a simple takeout.

The opening suit-bid and suit takeout of one [approach bids] occupy the one-odd level. Forcing bids occupy the level of two-odd in the opening hand, and in the responding hand the levels of two or three [depending on whether a lower or higher-ranking suit is jumped].

The minimum responses occupy the "berths" left vacant by the forcing bids in the one and two level—the one-odd for one no trump, and the two-odd level for an incipient sign-off. The defending hand had to forge two new tools—the takeout double and the single jump overcall—to meet the problem of displaying strong hands at the level of one or two-odd; while the problem of forcing partner with a powerful game or slam hand in the defending hand was solved by a type of forcing bid common to all situations: The immediate overcall of the suit bid by opponents. The level of three-odd for the opening hand is occupied by a bid which is used to show a powerful trump suit, with little emphasis, as in the two bid, on the bidder's honor tricks. Other three bids and most four bids are shutout bids.

We have seen that, by assigning a specific bidding level to a special kind of bid, partner [and, alas, the opponents] can identify the particular type of his partner's unseen hand. He will know the number of total winners, the number of defensive honor tricks, the length of most of his suits, and even the chance of scoring game, slam, part score or the danger of being heavily penalized. All this is made possible by another basic principle of bridge—the principle of limit bids.

Practically every bid carries with it the information that that particular hand has a certain minimum of honor strength and suit lengths. These minimum requirements as to honor strength or length of suits will vary greatly according to the particular kind of bid as recognized by its particular bidding level and position. You can jump your partner's opening three no trump bid directly to six no trump if you hold Q J 4 3 2 and an outside honor trick; but you cannot raise your partner's opening four spade bid to six spades even with four honor tricks. It all depends on the agreed minimums which are attached to every bid.

It is also possible to limit the maximum of the hand and thus render the bidding more precise and at the same time more simple. These minimum-maximum limits of each bid form a logical series of inferences.

For instance:

South.	North.
1 heart	2 diamonds or 3 diamonds

Both of North's bids are forcing, but the two diamond response is one round forcing; the three diamond response is a big game force. The usual minimum for a two diamond response is about two honor tricks and the maximum 3½ honor tricks. The minimum for the three diamond response is also 3½ honor tricks, the same as the maximum of the two diamond response; but the maximum of the game-forcing bid is not limited.

This new principle of limiting the maximum requirements as well as the minimum has a profound influence on the later development of the bidding. The reason is that the bid is not only limited from the standpoint of honor strength, and sometimes suit lengths, but whenever possible the bid is restricted to one or two specific types of hand-patterns. Thus, no trump responses, negative or strong, practically always evoke a pattern of 4-3-3-3 or 4-4-3-2 in partner's mind; the suit response, especially when persistent, evokes the image of an unbalanced pattern, with trump length and a singleton lurking somewhere. This aids enormously in suit placing.

It is only fitting that the most important bid of all—the penalty bid—has no specially assigned bidding level. It operates at every level, balancing the weight of all the other bids put together.

The inclusion of the penalty double completes the description of the beautifully logical instrument of bidding on which the player plays. Its scales are made up from various bidding levels. Its "octaves" are the bidding zones. Its notes are the bids which produce a different pitch of inferences as they strike this or that bidding level. Finally, the intensity of its tones and overtones is regulated by the levers of a few basic strategical conceptions—the approach principle, the forcing principle, minimum and shutout bids, and the penalty double.

Thus, we find that it is possible to approximate, at least, the implications of all bids according to zone. To wit:

Minimum Zone: Bids in the minimum zone may say, "Partner, my hand and information I already have on your hand indicate there is no game."

Or they say, "The strength of my hand is strictly limited to what I have already told you, and no more."

Intermediate Zone: Bids in the intermediate zone show that the hand is surely of better than average strength, and may have added values.

Also in this zone are certain bids which may be dropped short of game only if partner has less strength than the bidder has a right to assume.

Game Zone: In the game zone are bids which assure partner that game should be bid on the strength of the bidder's own hand and the information he has already received.

Slam Zone: In the slam zone are forcing bids whose strength is unlimited, and which are indirect slam inferences.

Except in rare cases, however, these bids leave partner the option of signing off at game.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

South's contract is six spades. West opens a club. Assuming that South can see how all the cards are placed, can the contract be fulfilled? If so, how?

Solution: The contract can be fulfilled, double dummy fashion, as follows: Club jack holds and South cashes the ace and king of spades and the diamond ace. He then ruffs a club with the spade ten, and ruffs a diamond with the spade queen. After cashing the heart ace and the remaining clubs, South now exits with the spade nine. East must win and must return a diamond to dummy's Q-10. South thereupon gets rid of his two losing hearts.

It would do East no good to jettison the spade jack on the ace or king. He would avoid the throw-in play, but then declarer would cash all his clubs, discarding hearts from dummy, would cash one high heart, and then ruff a heart with the spade ten. In this case East would be unable to overruff.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Sunday, Dec. 22.

Don't take the big things too much for granted today; watch them carefully. At the same time, be alert for new and better conditions now starting. Week ahead finishes with more opportunity for those who deserve it; work to be one who does.

Alterations Coming.

More people than ever before are questioning the procedures of the past; no longer are we certain that this or that habit of humanity is wise just because it is the way men and women have acted for a thousand generations. We are learning that mankind as we see it today is not necessarily a final goal to which the past has been building, that we are now perfect. We see a future of changes.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead demands sensible care of health, yet more effort; plan a campaign to better yourself and stick to it. Temptations will be to follow feelings in occupation to loss, disappointment. Danger: Feb. 5-19; June 24; July 3.

Tomorrow.

Get in good work early; routine the evening.

Do you want an individual interpretation for your own personal date? Fill out coupon below. Send 10 cents for 1941 horoscope or 5 cents for balance of 1940—both for 15 cents.

Knitted Tie and Socks

By Jean Macdonald.

A knitted tie and matching socks afford an ideal gift for any man at any season of the year. The tie may be knitted in less than a day and the socks may be done in less than a week. With the variety of colors available, it is not difficult to match tie and stocking wool.

For instructions in knitting the tie and matching socks, No. 886, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Fastidiousness Is a Woman's Most Important Charm Factor

By Antoinette Donnelly.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A group was discussing things which give women individual distinction. Our attention was arrested when some one remarked that the superfastidiousness of Rise Stevens, in the speaker's opinion, was the de luxe quality in a woman, a quality that supersedes in importance any and every other talent a woman may possess for making the most of herself.

That gave us pause. Yes, fastidiousness of person is a quality to cultivate, if it is not already possessed. Odd, too, when one runs over a list of friends and acquaintances, that it isn't a common talent. Not REAL fastidiousness, with everything right about the person. So we thought we'd better seek out Miss Stevens, who is an important opera star as well as a fastidious woman, and see what we might see, likewise hear what we might hear from her on the subject.

"With daily roll call and morning inspection becoming a routine part of life for a good portion of our masculine population, it seems like a good idea," said Rise Stevens, "for women to make morning inspection a part of their own daily routine.

"Haven't you had the sad experience of being told by a friend that your slip showed, just after you'd left the house feeling that you really looked the last word in chic and smartness? And how about that hem which invariably comes unsewed when you're on your way to an appointment at which it is essential for you to make an excellent impression?

"Such incidents are not due to accident," stated the youthful singer, who always looks crisp and fresh, as if she had stepped out of the proverbial bandbox. "They result from carelessness."

Fastidiousness is much easier to preserve, Miss Stevens believes, if you put it in routine form. Try laying out your clothes and makeup before plunging into your morning bath, she suggests, keeping a keen eye out for the bugaboos of a well groomed woman. The second you spy a soiled collar, a spotted waist, dirty gloves, or a grime-covered powder puff, set it aside.

"But," cautioned ever-meticulous Miss Stevens, "don't let your morning inspection end with your clothes. In fact, it really only begins after you're dressed and completely made up. Line up in front of your mirrors, your small hand magnifying mirror first. Then, acting as your own top sergeant, try first firing mental questions at yourself. Is there a speck of excess powder left on your face? Does your lipstick crisply and smoothly follow the outlines of the lips, or does it wobble weakly off on the ends? Are the brows well shaped? Are eyes clear and sparkling? Has mascara speckled the lids with a brown, dotted ring, or does it do credit to your artistic attempts? And what about rouge? Does it look like a youthful flush or the result of a day's cooking over a hot stove?"

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

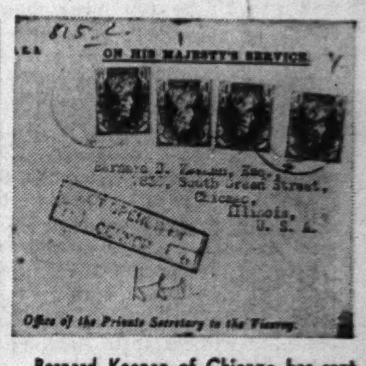
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



Bernard Keenan of Chicago has sent in this Indian cover for illustration. The letter originated in the office of the viceroy of India and bears a rubber stamp impression stating that it was not subjected to censorship. It is an interesting addition to a collection of censor marks.

The 34th example of the Famous Americans series and fourth of the inventors' group was a 5 cent blue stamp issued Oct. 14 to honor Elias Howe. This stamp was placed on first day sale at Spencer, Mass., where 183,434 copies were sold and 126,334 covers received the first day postmark.

The design measures 85-100 by 98-100 inch. The distinctive caption reads "Elias Howe," above the numeral "5," and character "c." The series is printed with curved plates on rotary web fed presses. Three plates were prepared in June, 1940, bearing numbers 22628, 22629, and 22630. Each plate contains 280 stamps subjects arranged in four panes of 70 each. Printing of the 20 million copies required by the postoffice department started Aug. 29, on a press equipped with plate 22628 and 22629. The perforation was taken care of on machines equipped with photoelectric cell controls to insure superior centering.

Elias Howe.

The portrait of Howe used for the design was taken from a reproduction of a photograph in a book entitled, "Master Minds at the Commonwealth's Heart," by Percy H. Epler, published by F. S. Blanchard & Co., Worcester, Mass. William A. Roach is the designer, Leo C. Kaufmann engraved the portrait, Charles A. Brooks and James T. Vail, the frame, and Vail the lettering.

Elias Howe was born at Spencer, Mass., on July 9, 1819. His early life was spent on his father's farm but in 1835 he entered the shop of a manufacturer of cotton spinning machinery at Lowell, Mass., where he became a proficient machinist. In 1839 while employed in Cambridge, Mass., Howe was impressed by a conversation which indicated that a fortune awaited the inventor of a sewing machine. All that was needed was a mechanical method of uniting two pieces of cloth and young Howe attacked the problem with great energy.

In 1844 the thought came to him that it was not necessary to imitate hand sewing and that some other stitch might be employed. He used two threads and made the stitch by means of a shuttle and a bent needle with the eye in the point. His rough model sewed but he needed a precise working model to demonstrate his invention and he had spent his last penny.

George Fisher of Cambridge, the only person who had confidence in Howe's project, supported Howe and his family in the Fisher home as well as providing funds for the model. During the winter of 1844-'45 Howe worked diligently and in April sewed the first seam. By May it was complete and in July Fisher and Howe stepped out in suits which had been completely sewed on the machine. Howe and Fisher obtained patents, and altho Howe passed thru the usual experiences of inventors, he was able to collect royalties from all infringers. Eventually he acquired some wealth and at his application for a renewal of the patent he estimated its value at $150,000,000. Until 1867 all similar sewing machines were required to pay a royalty to Howe. Elias Howe died in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Oct. 3, 1867, at the age of 48.

The telegraph stamps which were issued by the Western Union Telegraph company on Dec. 1 for use in payment of telegraph services will be included in future editions of Scott's United States Stamp catalog. Five values are included in the issue, as follows: 1 cent, yellow-green; 2 cent, chestnut; 5 cent, deep blue; 10 cent, orange, and 25 cent, bright carmine. The stamps will be sold in booklet form suitable for carrying in a wallet and will have face values of $2.50 and $5. The stamps are being inaugurated for the convenience of travelers and others in meeting their daily social and business needs.

David Bushnell chapter, No. 48, U. S. C. S., will sponsor covers for the first day of postal service from the U. S. S. Gar. Send covers ready to go, to Henry S. Wright, No. 5 Brooks street, New London, Conn., by Jan. 15, and include 1 cent per cover for forwarding.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

If you would give the children a nice Christmas present there are very good looking chalkboards made of specially treated plate glass, in black and in light colors. With a light colored board the children can use dark chalks. Such boards are purchasable by the yard, and can be cemented to the wall and reinforced with wood or metal molding. These are treated for durability and because glare has been reduced they lessen eyestrain on school age children.

If you have discovered these last cold weeks that your house is drafty and certain rooms are hard to heat, there's a serviceable weather stripping and sash balance you can give to your existing double hung windows. A channel strip of flexible aluminum alloy will serve as a weatherstrip and act at the same time as housing for an enduring coil spring. A good way to condition your windows. Comes with instructions for installation so your own workman can do the installing.

Something to consider for the house as an after Christmas gift, for that room which gets chilly too soon after the central heat goes down, or stays too chilly when the heating plant is going full tilt. An electric steam radiator which is portable and can be plugged into an electric outlet. Excellent supplementary units, these, for the cold of winter, or for fall and spring.

Resort Clothes Launched Now "Jell" Fashion

By Rea Seeger.

As if by some pre-arranged signal, all the smart designers launch their resort fashions just in time to catch the attention of the travel-minded winter vacationists, along about the first serious siege of cold, blustery, winter weather. This winter vacation idea is far from new or unusual, and whether you trek north for more snow and winter sports, or head south for a January sun tan, the smartest and newest clothes will help you have a grand time.

Shrewd shoppers watch these mid-season collections, for in them will be found the important new early spring trends, the gay colors we'll all be wearing next summer. Play and sports clothes are especially significant, and so is anything that hints of a new silhouette, a color contrast or combine. The same applies to the many possible new details of necklines, shoulders, or sleeves, and sometimes a brand new skirt length is exploited, tried out on the resort audiences and "jelled" into "the fashion" for the spring collections.

Gay new prints always take the spotlight in any fashion show. This year the navy blue and nautical emblems, the patriotic insignia and patriotic combines of red, white and blue, with stars, stripes, and eagles all over belts, jackets, and hats, run the prints a good race for popularity. This year you'll find the floral chintz and cretonnes, and the wall paper prints not only pastel and super flattering, but a decided relief from the exotic, or sophisticated, clash of strong color and pattern. However, this doesn't mean that the bold clear color contrasts are missing.

Slacks, and ensembles that feature slacks, are tailored and fit sleekly. Sloppy slacks and casual lounging outfits have gone. When you wear slacks nowadays you have the same precisely tailored sleekness of a masculine tailored job, and this precludes any but those with flawless streamlines getting into slacks, great to the pleasure of critical spectators. Silk, linen, or cotton dresses are teamed with thin wool jackets. Wool coats of high color, as well as pastels, go south. Maybe the designers recall the chill of the southland last year.

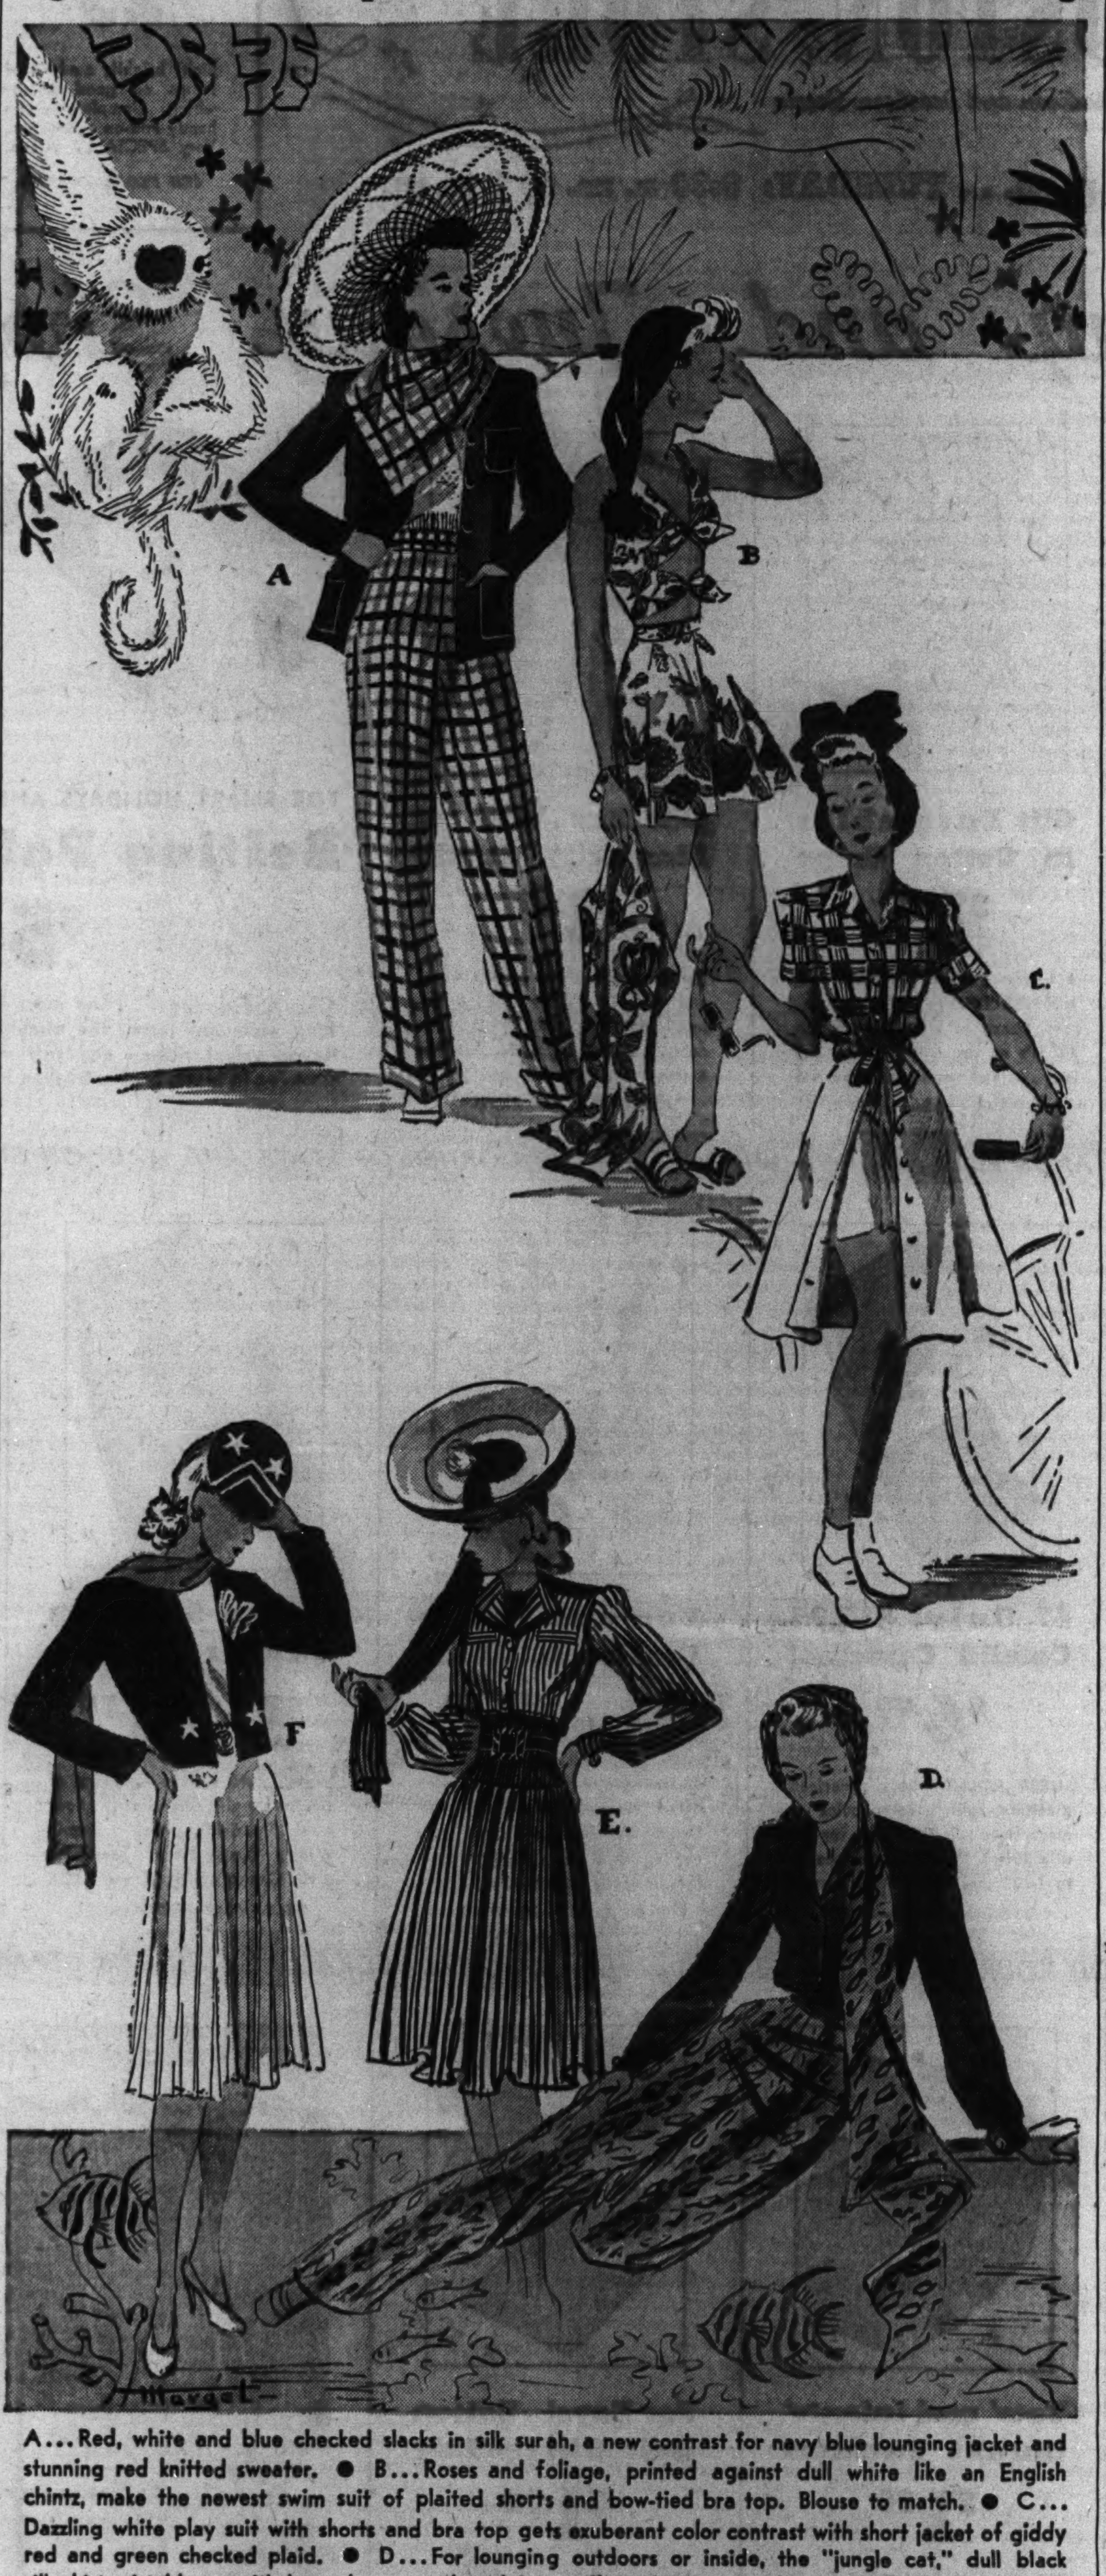
Wool is tremendously important in southern resort wardrobes. You'll find luscious daytime dresses, meticulously tailored two-piece suits, and dress and long coat ensembles of high colored and pastel woolen fabrics, all looking summery in shades but also cozily comfortable even on a chilly day. Some of the high colored suits will slide under fur coats and jackets back home in the snowlines, too.

Swim suits of new colors, new materials, and new designs are sucessfully launched now. So are the beach or lounging outdoor ensembles, the straw skirt [raffia] swim suits, for instance, and the rose patterned white sharkskin affairs, and the new, bold-colored, checked, waist length jackets with dazzling white swim shorts and matching bra. If you want a breath of spring, if you want the first chance at these unusual new fashions, see the current showings now featured in every shop and store in town.

We've sketched six of the newest models just released for fashion approval. They are included in a most outstanding collection of other new southern resort clothes for immediate purchase. For specific information telephone Superior 0200.

Significant Examples of Current Resort Showings



A...Red, white and blue checked slacks in silk surah, a new contrast for navy blue lounging jacket and stunning red knitted sweater. ● B...Roses and foliage, printed against dull white like an English chintz, make the newest swim suit of plaited shorts and bow-tied bra top. Blouse to match. ● C...Dazzling white play suit with shorts and bra top gets exuberant color contrast with short jacket of giddy red and green checked plaid. ● D...For lounging outdoors or inside, the "jungle cat," dull black silk shirtwaist blouse with long sleeves gathered into cuffs, to be worn inside or outside silk slacks, which are patterned in tawny gold and brown like the fur of a jungle cat. ● E...Navy blue and white striped silk used in spectator sports dress which may double as beach costume. Simple, gathered short skirt attached to band defines waistline and accents navy blue sweater that shows around exposed midriff. ● F...Sailor suit of white plaited dress with red leather belt shining with gold metal buckle. Mess jacket is of navy blue wool lined with red, embroidered in gold for monogram effect, and stars. Monkey hat has double chevron in red, pair of stars, and long red jersey scarf to wind around.

Southern Play Clothes Are Native Styles

By Bettina Bedwell.

The natives of this western hemisphere are the big inspiration in the southern play clothes fashions for the first time since folks began heading south in midwinter. Faced with the job of turning out all the fashions when Europe as a source was blacked out, our designers have responded with a 100 per cent native set of styles. I've already mentioned the principal sources of these inspired play clothes. They are primitive Indian, Hawaiian, Pan-American, cowboy, and conscription-conscious clothes that suggest the army, navy, and air force.

What's very important to the ultimate consumer of these play clothes is their modern, American construction. Designed for all the strenuous goings-on to which American women are addicted, the main, practical theme of the southern sports styles could be labeled "on again, off again." Ensembles with interchangeable units, made for a variety of activities, and after-activity rest, dominate. For example, a sports suit becomes a play suit with shorts or pyjamas, and by a modified strip-tease ends up as a swim suit. A pinafore and cowboy shirt, by shedding, become a short play suit, or ballerina dress. Shirtwaist classics have mobile skirts that cover shorts. Exotic sarong skirts, paired with a bra, have as extra units, bathing trunks and blouses, or jackets. Beach coats, tailored as well as a town top coat, are made to pair off with sports dresses and be worn almost anywhere. The jerkin comes in handy as a cover-up for the bra top of sports dresses and of active play suits.

Modern women believe in uncovering to the sun rays of the south, and various exposures for this purpose are a leading feature of the styles that go south. Cutouts, bare midriffs, backless pinafores, etc., are all over the fashion picture.

The armed forces of our nation are suggested in middy blouses to pull over bra-topped costumes, in visored caps and navy tams, in braid trimmings, epaulettes and, above all, in the constant repetition of the red, white, and blue color scheme. "Flag white," which is an off-white shade, is the newcomer in this group.

The colors for these resort fashions are mostly clear, sharply keyed, pastel shades, such as tangerine and orangy red, Eire green, coral, shrimp and strawberry pinks, gold, chartreuse green, cobalt and turquoise blues. The neutrals, such as beige, sand, navy, light browns and grays, are the backbone and background of the styles. Violet is a high style newcomer, but often seen in prints as well.

• • •

Glorious, colorful, exotic, printed patterns are used widely to make resort clothes. Hawaiian flowers, sinuous undersea plant life, tropical flower and foliage designs, and Indian motifs appear on many fabrics. Dotted patterns, stripes and star designs are the more practical motifs on printed materials. There also are plaids and checks, but they are less new looking.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

If there's a style that has taken the fashion world by storm more forcefully than has the jumper dress, we haven't heard of it! "They" are wearing it, like mad, everywhere, so climb on the bandwagon with one or more of these jumper designs.

Some of the patterns adapt themselves to both woolen and silk, and others are suited best to one or the other. While several are casually styled and quite tailored, the rest are dressy enough for many a "date" occasion.

Style No. 3486 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material for blouse, 3¼ yards for jumper. Pattern also includes version with heart-shaped neckline.

Style No. 3354 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 1½ yards of 39 inch material for blouse, 3¾ yards for jumper.

Style No. 3121 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material for blouse, 2⅜ yards of 54 inch for jumper.

Style No. 3410 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for blouse, 2¼ yards of 54 inch for jumper.

Style No. 3360 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material for blouse, 2⅜ yards of 54 inch for jumper.

Style No. 2500 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 1⅛ yards of 35 inch material or ¾ yard of 54 inch for any version, ⅝ yard of 35 inch or ¼ yard of 54 inch for either cap. Caps included at no extra cost in pattern.

Style No. 3359 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 1⅞ yard of 39 inch material for blouse, 2 yards of 54 inch for jumper.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Dec. 22, 1940.

Universal day—Unfortunately, today may not prove to be a very happy day universally, for with that 22 there the news is likely to be very drastic.

January—If 1941 is going to be a three-year for you, then the coming month may seem like a letdown from the gaiety of the holidays because you are going to have to settle down to some humdrum duties. Budgets, income tax returns, bills, etc., will probably occupy your mind and require some serious thought. You will need to put some order and system into your personal and business accounts. Save now, but don't go around with a long face about it. This is good discipline so that you won't start off this three-year too carefree. Take consolation in the thought that it should prove a very pleasant social year, but with temptations to spend and talk too freely.

Would you like to know what kind of a year 1941 will be for you? Send for your personal yearly, monthly, and daily guide.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago. [To the Home Building Editor.]—What can I add to varnish to make my refinished floors have a high shine and gloss?—Mrs. G. S.

Answer: Don't add anything. Use a good grade of floor varnish and then wax. You'll have a beautiful floor then, with gleam and gloss.

* *

Peru, Ind. [To the Home Building Editor.]—Have always wanted a large entrance hall with fireplace in it. We are planning to build in the spring and have been advised that such treatment and planning is old fashioned and extravagant. What do you think?—J. F.

Answer: It is very appropriate for an Early American home. Not extravagant if you can afford so much space given to a hall.

* *

Chicago — [To the Home Building Editor]—I have heard somewhere that there's a control for a heating plant which will anticipate drop of temperature outside and send notice of same to basement heater. Also that it helps in preventing window condensation or vapor on windows. Is there such an aid? Thomas D.

Answer: Yes. See a local heating contractor or send a stamped addressed envelope to this department for manufacturer's name.

* *

Chicago — [To the Home Building Editor—Can light colored bricks in a fireplace be cleaned—and how? J. G.

Answer: Bricks can be cleaned unless they are porous and soot has sunk too deeply into depressions. Try giving bricks a good scrubbing with a scouring powder and then follow by thoro rinsing.

Chicago — [To the Home Building Editor]—How can I remove whitewash from the interior face of my stone foundation walls? Kenneth P.

Answer: Scrub stone thoroly with a weak solution of household ammonia and hot water.

La Salle, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor]—Is there anything to do for paint which remains slightly sticky? This happened to trim of a small farm house. JEROME T.

Answer: Try wiping paint with turpentine which will have a tendency to harden it.

* *

Peru, Ind.—[To the Home Building Editor]—What will clean real leather chairs [white] which have begun to show soil? Any way of restoring glaze? J. K. R.

Answer: Apply a good lather of saddle soap. Or of castile soap. Dampen a cloth in clear water and remove soap, then dry. To restore the glaze, apply the whites of stiffly beaten eggs.

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor]—Would you suggest some simple ways of concealing overhead ducts and pipes in a basement game room? FRED S.

Answer: The market teems with wallboards and insulation boards for just that purpose. Or if you want to be a little different, nail up awning cloth or canvas, like a canopy, to imitate the effect of a terrace awning.

Rufus K. Schriber of Oshkosh Will Wed Nina Tobler

Mr. and Mrs. William Alfred Tobler of Mount Carmel, Conn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Nina Suzanne, to Rufus Kellogg Schriber Jr., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Schriber of Oshkosh, Wis.

Miss Tobler is a graduate of Miss Madeira's school, Fairfax, Va., and of Vassar college, where she received her degree in 1939. She is affiliated with the New Haven Junior league. Mr. Schriber attended the Hotchkiss school and received his degree from Yale university in 1936. He recently returned from a 15 months' business trip to Europe.

Both young people have many friends along the north shore, and Miss Tobler frequently has visited the Nelson Bucks in Evanston.

Phi Sigma Epsilon Plans Party for Greek Relief

Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity, a Greek-American organization of university men and women, will give a Yuletide ball Saturday evening at the Hotel La Salle in order to raise funds for Greek war relief. The members have voted to raise funds for war relief rather than to provide their annual scholarship to a deserving student. Nick Nicopoulos heads the organization.

Christmas Business

By Eleanor Jewett.

I have measured Mother's stockings
And my socks, and I declare
The difference in the sizes
Would be more than I could bear,

For it's two nights until Christmas,
But that Mother says I may
Have one of hers for Santa Claus
To fill. So, Christmas day,

I'll have a proper stocking,
Not a sock, just toe and heel,
But a proper, proper stocking
With a good long way to feel!

And the bulges will be candies
And perhaps a really clock,
And things not even Santa Claus
Could crowd into a SOCK!

The Lady of the House

On Dec. 22, 1620,

"The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rockbound coast,
And the woods against the stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed
When a band of exiles moored their bark. . . ."

The anniversary of the landing of those pilgrim exiles, described so vividly by Bryant, seems somehow to have a special significance this year. I wonder if we are thankful enough for the blessedness of being at home in the homeland.

Five big snows in eight days! And in between, a large and varied assortment of weather from balmy breezes and sunshine to bitter winds and 20 below. Aunt Ella decided we'd count time by snows this season. Four snows ago we rescued the last of the mums; three snows ago we washed the bedroom curtains; two snows ago we sat down involuntarily but emphatically in the middle of an intersection.

The spruce trees looked like old ladies huddled together in friendly gossip, their soft shawls hugged tightly around thin shoulders. The little fat fir that grew all around instead of up looked like a big white hen brooding her nest of snowy chicks.

It all reminded me of "Snowbound" and my visit to the old Whittier farm; the little burying ground where the beloved poet rests; the "garden room" of the Amesbury house where so much of his beautiful, homey verse was written.

"The sun that brief December day
Rose cheerless over hills of gray,
And, darkly circled, gave at noon
A sadder light than waning moon.
Shut in from all the world without,
We sat the clean-winged hearth about. . . ."

On thru delightful pages of his swinging, rhythmic iambics.

When the bell rang that first blizzardy day and I met a grubby looking man at the door, I expected to be asked for some sort of "handout."

"I guess the birds have a hard time finding something to eat today, lady," was his opening remark.

I was about to retort that I had just served the second meal of the day to the particular gang that lived "off" me, when he launched into a recital of how he got interested in birds upon seeing a sparrow extract a big caterpillar from a cabbage in his garden. We were off! Then I realized the snow was blowing in on me and I brought him to the point of his visit, which proved to be carrots. Couldn't I just take all he had left so he could go home and fix himself some lunch?

Striving nobly to resist the insidious collecting bug that is rampant among my friends, I am hunting, rather surreptitiously, for the third of a trio of English prints by Hugh Thomson, issued as colored supplements to Pear's Pictorial, Christmas number, 1896, at "1 shilling complete."

I have a "Canter on the Heath," in which the entire family cavalry seems to have turned out for exercise; the ladies in long skirts and plumed hats; the men in tight breeches and sort of shovel hats. Peasants watching the gay parade.

The other, "Leaving London to Spend Christmas in the Country—Departure from La Belle Sauvage Inn Yard." All full of color and exciting action. I don't know the subject of the missing third. Can some one help me out, or must my "collecting" be thus nipped in the bud?

From a bulletin in "The Swiss Cottager," publication issued by regular shelterers in the Swiss Cottage subway station in London, which came to a young friend here:

"In the matter of tea—please note that hot tea cannot be promised you every night. Up till now it has been provided by the kindness of the local First Aid post workers, and by volunteers. Remember—while you sit, read or sleep in quietness and comfort, other things than tea may be brewing up in the streets! We shall be glad if you can bring your own cups."

As I write my window frames a wintry scene, fit subject for a Christmas greeting card. Just now I saw a flash of blue thru the icicles that frame it—the bluejay swooping down for his late breakfast. A blue bird—portent of happier times to come. And so I hope and pray that to every lady of the house in all the land; to every homemaking, home keeping, home seeking home wanting woman everywhere, there may come at this Christmas her heart's desire. M. M.

Chicago Woman Honored.

Mrs. W. J. Robertson of 4136 North Bernard street was elected grand president of Theta Lambda Gamma at the sorority's recent 25th annual convention.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream.

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

PHOTOS OF THE TWO $2,500 GRAND PRIZE WINNERS WILL BE USED AS MODELS FOR THE POPULAR ADVENTURE CHARACTERS, LEW LOYAL AND BETSY TRUE!

BOYS! GIRLS! If you haven't already done so, send your photograph at once. 20 prizes of $25.00 each are being paid each week to the boys and girls whose photos are published in the Tribune. (See this week's winners at the left.) Two Grand Prizes of $2,500.00 each will be paid at the end of the contest—one to a boy and one to a girl. Their photos will be used as models for Lew Loyal and Betsy True. Their faces will appear in this popular feature. And they will be tried out for broadcasting over W-G-N.

If you are under 15 years of age, paste the entry coupon below on the back of your photograph and send it in. Any snapshot will do. It costs you nothing. You will be made a member of the Lew Loyal Patriots and a beautiful badge will be sent to you.

Watch for winners every Sunday in this section.

GIRL'S GRAND PRIZE $2,500.00
(To The Girl Whose Photograph Is Used As A Model For Betsy True.)

20 PRIZES EACH WEEK FOR 10 WEEKS, $25.00 each . . . $5,000.00
(Each week for 10 weeks the photographs of 10 boys and 10 girls will be selected and published in the Sunday Tribune. $25.00 will be paid for each photograph so published.)

TOTAL $10,000.00

1. Any boy or girl under 15 years of age at the date of entry may compete, except employees of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families. It does not matter where you live. It costs you nothing.

2. Any kind of photograph that shows the facial features may be submitted. No special consideration will be given to expensive prints. Any snapshot will do.

3. Paste on the back of your photograph a coupon from the Chicago Tribune, or a facsimile, giving your name, address and parent's consent. Photographs should be addressed, "Lew Loyal", Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. If you wish your photograph returned enclose sufficient postage. However, the Tribune does not guarantee the safe return of any entry.

4. Each Sunday for 10 consecutive Sundays, starting Sunday, October 27th, the photographs of 10 boys and 10 girls will be published in the Chicago Sunday Tribune. To each boy and girl whose photograph is so published the Chicago Tribune will pay $25.00 in cash, ($500 each week or a total of $5,000 for the 10 weeks).

5. In addition to these Weekly Prizes TWO GRAND PRIZES will be paid, $2,500.00 to the boy whose facial features and personality appear to be the most suitable for the character of Lew Loyal, and $2,500.00 to the girl whose facial features and personality appear to be the most suitable for the character of Betsy True. Every entrant will be eligible for the Grand Prizes whether or not his or her photograph is published during the 10 weeks. No entries will be considered after Thursday, Jan. 2, 1941.

6. By consenting to the entry, the parent, or guardian, agrees that the Chicago Tribune shall have all rights to reproduce the photograph and facial features of the entrant in any manner whatsoever without any other compensation than the cash prize paid; and the Tribune shall have the right to make, at its own expense, any additional photographs of the entrant without any other compensation.

7. Judges will be a Committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decisions in all matters will be final.

OPEN-AIR STUDY FOR THE "EN ARCADIE":
By ALEXANDER HARRISON

On this page, on the front, and on two inside pages of this section are reproductions of some of the paintings which were to be seen in the great Fine Arts exhibit of the World's Columbian exposition of 1893. This exhibit, including loans from the nations of the world, was a remarkable stimulus to the art consciousness of the nation. . . . Story in the Graphic section.

Worthy shrine of its art treasures, the transient Fine Arts building of the Columbian exposition has been acclaimed as one of the most beautiful creations of all time. Its perpetuation was realized when the structure was rebuilt in stone, to become the home of the Museum of Science and Industry. The Art Institute of Chicago was one of the beneficiaries of the world's fair; it received a large gift of cash from the exposition trustees.

Looking at Hollywood

WITH JOHN CHAPMAN

Problem Child Fields Goes Keystone

Hollywood.

IN A LITTLE number called "The Bank Dick" the combined efforts of rose-nosed W. C. Fields and quick-blinking Eddie Cline may well start a new cycle—a reversion to the comedy chase as perfected by Mack Sennett and his Keystone flatfeet.

"The Bank Dick" is a typical Fieldsian enterprise in which the irascible old villain frequents saloons, feuds with children, shocks prim old ladies, and snorts his contempt for bankers. It ends with a wild automobile chase that is right in the Sennett tradition; it is, in fact, right out of the Keystone formula book, employing such gags of 25 years ago as the trench chase. Director Eddie Cline knows them all, for he was a Keystone comedy cop. He was a height man.

Bill Fields is Hollywood's largest and oldest problem child. He has to do things his way. If he wants to start his morning on rum and pineapple juice, neither doctors nor directors can stop him. If he wants to gorge on all the proteins of an Italian dinner at Leone's or Romeo Salta's, nobody in the world can get him to eat a green vegetable. If he wants a certain scene in a picture, they shoot it. A cutter may cross him up by eliminating it later, and this will drive Fields into a fury.

When it is suggested that he is an unreconstructed rebel who rarely bows to any other's judgment he will point out that he has been in show business since he was a little boy and has been a top-flight man almost from the beginning. (The beginning was when he assembled a tramp magician's clothes and props from a junk pile.)

"I've been doing comedy all these years," he will say, "and I don't know what's funny. An audience is the only thing that knows what's funny—so where the hell does an editor or a cutter get off throwing something away before it's tried on an audience?"

When he is reminded that he is strong-headed on the set and that he rarely delivers a line the way it was written—a habit which drives script clerks crazy and sound men into early graves—he has a reasonable defense. It's the way he knows how to work best. And he points out that when he was making "David Copperfield" he did no fooling around with Dickens, but delivered the lines as written.

He won't tamper with an acknowledged masterpiece, but when it's just a bunch of guys making a movie he feels that his way has a fine chance of being as good as anybody else's. More than anything else he would like to play that earlier mountebank, Mr. Dickens' Pickwick. And David Wark Griffith long has wanted to make it for Fields.

For a year or more Bill has lived in one of the older and more conservative sections of Hollywood, where the neighbors include C. B. De Mille and Deanna Durbin. Boss of the house is his long-time maid, Adele, who is from New Orleans. Adele mixes a noble rum and pineapple juice.

Fields works at a large glass-topped desk in a big upstairs sitting room. At his elbow is a push-button switchboard connecting him with loud-speakers and transmitters in every room in the house. There is even a speaker behind the peephole which all California front doors affect, so when a caller arrives Bill can call, "Who's there?" and maybe get an answer. Callers are usually too puzzled by this disembodied voice to reply, so Fields then pages Adele over his system and asks her to go to the door.

About 11 a. m. Bill's secretary arrives. She is young and pretty and blonde, and her name is Miss Boss. It is she who takes care of the bank accounts and answers letters and fends off telephone callers. Miss Boss and her boss have an elaborate wigwag system by which she can indicate who's on the wire without speaking and Bill can signal whether or not he will talk. If he's busy Miss Boss will cheerily say:

"He's out gallivanting around. Yes, he got up early this morning. He's feeling just fine. O, he's probably clambering up and down the hills somewhere."

And he is feeling just fine. His doctor says that organically he is in excellent shape, but he might eat some green stuff once in a while.

Eddie Cline and the Bathing Beauties during his days as a Mack Sennett director.

The association of the Great Man and Eddie Cline has been a happy one, for they have known each other 20 years or more and share a mutual respect. Each probably thinks the other is a little crazy. They made the Fields-Mae West comedy, "My Little Chickadee," together, and now "Bank Dick."

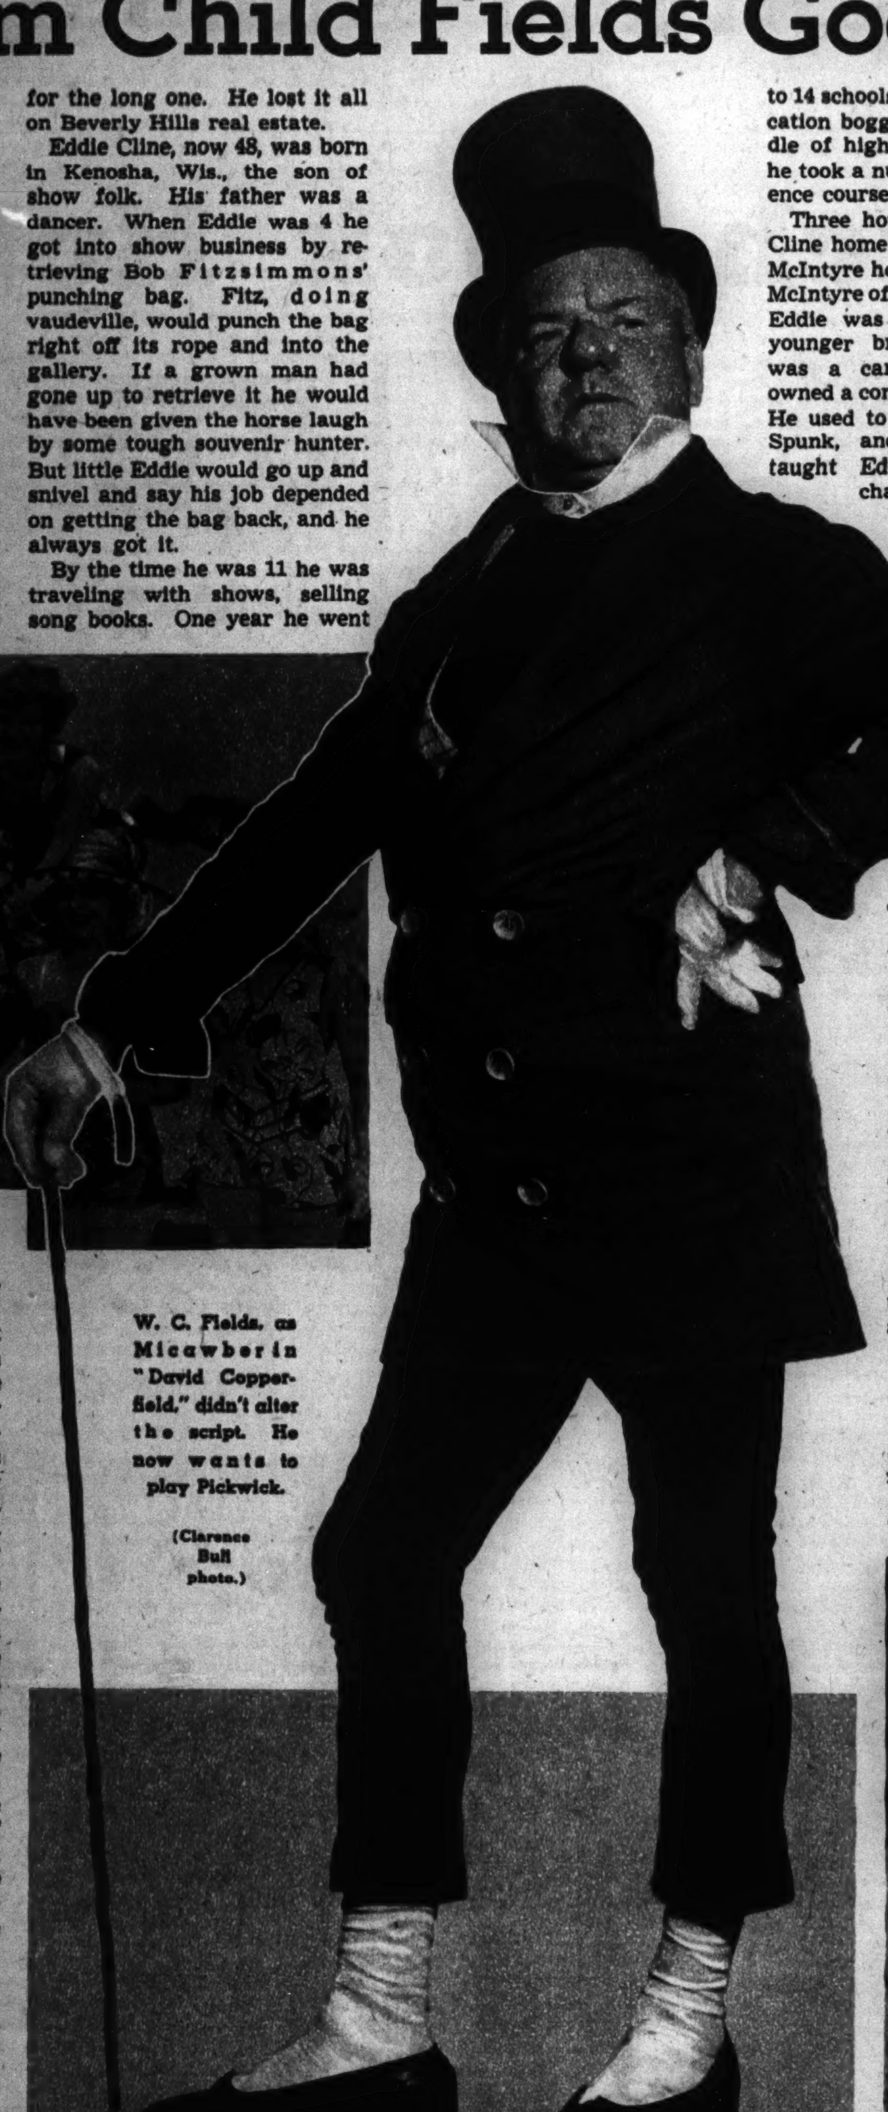
Cline says he doesn't make much money as a director, because he does only the comedies he likes and thinks he will have fun doing. He is heavy-set, has a habit of winking his eyes all the time, and has to act every scene for himself. He can give just as good an imitation of Mae West as he can of Fields. The other day he did a burlesque of Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan that was so funny he was forced to repeat it for Boyer and Sullavan themselves on the "Back Street" set.

He says he can't direct sitting down, because a scene doesn't look right from a chair. The most money he ever made was the year he directed 20 two-reel comedies for Mack Sennett, and one feature picture. He got $5,000 each for the shorts, $15,000 for the long one. He lost it all on Beverly Hills real estate.

Eddie Cline, now 48, was born in Kenosha, Wis., the son of show folk. His father was a dancer. When Eddie was 4 he got into show business by retrieving Bob Fitzsimmons' punching bag. Fitz, doing vaudeville, would punch the bag right off its rope and into the gallery. If a grown man had gone up to retrieve it he would have been given the horse laugh by some tough souvenir hunter. But little Eddie would go up and snivel and say his job depended on getting the bag back, and he always got it.

By the time he was 11 he was traveling with shows, selling song books. One year he went to 14 schools, and his formal education bogged down in the middle of high school. After that he took a number of correspondence courses.

Three houses away from the Cline home in Kenosha was the McIntyre home, where lived Jim McIntyre of McIntyre and Heath. Eddie was friends with Jim's younger brother, Spunk, who was a carnival man. Eddie owned a complete set of Dickens. He used to lend these books to Spunk, and in return Spunk taught Eddie how to short-change. Cline came to California in 1913 with a show that went broke. He opened a song shop in Long Beach; it failed. Then he got on as an extra in an early Paramount film, "Where the Trail Divides." After that he was hired by Sennett.



W. C. Fields, as Micawber in "David Copperfield," didn't alter the script. He now wants to play Pickwick.

During the World war each film company had to make a propaganda picture on food conservation. Keystone had to do one on eating fish instead of meat, and Eddie got the idea of taking 20 Mack Sennett girls, dressing them in bathing suits, and shooting the stuff down by the ocean. Among the girls in this propaganda number were Gloria Swanson, Louise Fazenda, Marie Prevost, and Phyllis Haver. Thus were born the Mack Sennett Bathing Beauties.

Four men were sent to the hospital during the filming of the chase in "The Bank Dick." I asked Cline what the casualties were in the old days, and he said nobody got hurt, because each man was a specialist. Eddie was a height man. He could do hair-raising things on cliffs and tall buildings. Some other guy would be a water man, and so on. They all would double for each other, each doing the kind of thing he knew best—and nobody was ever considered yellow for refusing to do a stunt he wasn't familiar with. This way there were practically no casualties.

The accidents in "The Bank Dick" came during the trench chase, in which a motorcycle cop plunges into a sewer excavation and sends workmen sprawling high into the air. The mechanism of this trick involved a series of catapults and piano wire guides, and not all of the catapults worked properly.

• • •

"Those Keystone gags are still plenty good," says Cline, "and they are being used right along in a lot of so-called high-toned films. Cary Grant steps on Katharine Hepburn's dress and the rear of it tears out. Pure Keystone. William Powell dresses up as a Boy Scout and falls into a bear trap. Same thing."

The chase, of course, is a standard in all western pictures, even the best; but it has been used very little recently for comedy effect.

Cline may make another picture with Fields if Bill agrees upon one or two stories that Universal has submitted. And he wants very much to make a picture with Charles Chaplin. A two-reeler, packing in all the old Keystone gags and stunts it will hold, for the benefit of British war relief.

Director Cline tests Actor Fields' breath for evidence of liquids other than pineapple juice.

OPERETTA 'ROSE-MARIE' ON THE AIR

CHARLES RUDOLF FRIML—usually referred to without the first name—has as honorable a list of operetta successes to his credit as almost any other living composer. One of the finest of these was "Rose-Marie," which appeared in 1924 and which was revived last night by W-G-N's Theater of the Air for a broadcast over the Mutual network.

But before and after "Rose-Marie" reached the stage Friml managed to chalk up such hits as "The Firefly" (1912), "High Jinks" (1914), "Katinka" (1915), "You're in Love" (1917), "Glorianna" (1918), "June Love" (1920), "The Vagabond King" (1925), "The Wild Rose" (1926), and "The Three Musketeers" (1928).

Friml, like his eminent colleague, Sigmund Romberg, has a right to be thought of as an American composer, altho he was born in Europe. All his productions were brought out in this country, and he has been a naturalized citizen of the United States for about 30 years.

He was born in Prague on Dec. 7, 1881, and pursued a conventional but rewarding career as a concert pianist after studying at the Prague conservatory. In 1901 he journeyed to America as accompanist for the great violinist, Jan Kubelik, who died recently, and he appeared in

ROBERT WEEDE

Kubelik's first recital in the Auditorium theater in the season of 1901-'02. He left Kubelik in 1906, touring this country with great success as a solo pianist. He even had occasion to play his piano concerto with the New York Symphony orchestra.

The success of his first venture in the light opera field, "The Firefly," seems to have definitely committed him to this form of creation. As it turned out, he was more than justified in the decision.

"Rose-Marie" was an instantaneous success when Arthur Hammerstein staged it at New York's Imperial theater on Sept. 2, 1924. The title rôle, considered a "juicy" one, was first essayed by Mary Ellis, an American who had already made good at the Metropolitan Opera house and in straight drama and who was eventually to become a star of the English stage. With her in that distinguished first cast were Arthur Deagon as Sergeant Malone, Edward Cianelli as Emile La Flamme, and Dennis King as Jim Kenyon.

"Rose-Marie" has had two motion picture reincarnations. A 1928 silent version revealed Joan Crawford as the heroine, and in 1936 an up-to-date technicolor variant, starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, appeared, blessed with a full measure of Friml's score.

Last night's broadcast of the operetta found the title rôle delightfully sung by Marion Claire. As Sergeant Malone, Robert Weede made his debut on this series as guest star of the performance. He is a baritone from Baltimore who won two important awards in the 1920s, first prize in the National Federation of Music Clubs contest and the Caruso Memorial Foundation award, and in the next decade blossomed into an excellent operatic and concert baritone. He is a member of the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera companies, having sung at the Civic Opera house as Silvio in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and in the name part of "Rigoletto."

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why don't we see more of Donald Woods in the movies? I think whatever studio he is under contract to is missing a lot of talent by not starring him in more pictures. I listen to him every Monday night over the radio, and I want to say that he has the best sounding voice of any of the movie stars that I have heard. The last time I saw him was in "Young America Flies." Will you please tell me a little about him and please print a picture of him in The Sunday Tribune? Lots of luck and continued success. Very sincerely yours,

ELEANOR MAGISEN.

DONALD WOODS

Editor's note: I suppose his radio work keeps him pretty busy. His real name is Ralph L. Zink. He's 31 years old and is married and has a son and daughter. Appeared in stock and on the New York stage before entering motion pictures. Thank you for your kind wishes.

Dear Mae Tinée: I have been a reader of your column for some time, but did not know until now that you are one and possibly the only movie critic that does not fully appreciate the high superiority of Bette Davis, the very greatest actress on the screen.

All the other moving picture reviewers have given her the well deserved title, "Davis the Incomparable," and all the moving picture patrons have given her the title of "Queen of the Movies." So, Miss Tinée, if you want to keep your readers . . (?)

Yours sincerely,

M. L. O'BRIEN.

Editor's note: I don't tell you how to think. Don't you tell me!

Dear Miss Tinée: These words are prompted by the reading of your few—and I do mean few—words anent the movie "Cherokee Strip." I was amazed and, I might add, just a bit skeptical. Altho not in any sense a movie fan, I have been reading your column since my high school days, and that is too many years ago; just by way of showing that I am not attempting to prove that one swallow makes a spring.

The thought occurs to me, Miss Tinée, that perhaps you are getting old. Not old physically, as you were pointed out to me not so many weeks ago, and I will say that you are "spick" where you should be "spick and span" likewise. What I probably mean is that your attitude or point of view is fraying.

Let it be understood that I am not in any way partial to "horse operas," but I enjoyed the picture from start to finish.

It is true it didn't have a bathtub set or a gigolo, and the romantic aspects were subdued. I still believe that a movie can be good without a star-studded cast. Must the hero have a mustache and stay for breakfast in order to merit praise from the critics?

Would I be out of order, Miss Tinée, if I suggested that you actually attend in person the movies you review?

The very best wishes,

FRANK P. MADISON.

Editor's note: You'd be surprised, sir, quavered the poor old thing, but I ALWAYS attend the movies I review—"in person."

Dear Miss Tinée: I am 14 years old, and I have been saving movie star pictures for two years, and I have eight scrapbooks filled now, and out of all of them I haven't any decent picture of Robert Young. I would like it very much if you would print a picture of him. I just saw the picture "Florian," and I think he and Helen Gilbert were excellent.

Thank you.

ADELINE KOSLOSKE.

ROBERT YOUNG

Editor's note: Heavens! Youngless scrapbooks! We must do something about that—and right now. Here's filling the gap. Good picture, too, isn't it?

War on the Atlantic—In Submarine Zone

A TRIBUNE MAN SAILS TO ENGLAND ON FORMER AMERICAN DESTROYER

(Associated Press photo.)

By JOHN STURDY
Chicago Tribune Correspondent

I WAS AMONG those who crossed the Atlantic on the American destroyers that were transferred to the British navy. The vessel upon which I made the voyage was transferred from the United States navy to the Royal navy at an east coast port of Canada. On the night after the day of transfer I went aboard, and early the next day our ship and similar vessels constituting the flotilla sailed for England.

Our ship was the "baby" of the group, with the youngest captain—he was 28—and the youngest crew. We brought up the rear of the line of destroyers, these 21-year-old ships that the United States had given Great Britain in exchange for bases on the Atlantic coast.

Germany, thru the radio, had boasted that we would never reach England. We knew that the U-boats would be looking for us, as it would be a feather in the cap of any submarine commander who sank one of us. But our crews were prepared. Altho obsolete, these former American destroyers were still capable of good speed, and their sterns were loaded down with wicked depth charges.

Once outside the harbor—we had slipped out secretly and with only a couple of naval officers to bid us good-by—we steamed into formation and the first leg of our course was set by the divisional leader. That night we blacked out for the first time, so that not a light showed, and we were at war.

In the days that were to follow we were to see and hear many grim signs of conflict at sea—wreckage of sunken ships floating on the water, and distress signals, and reports of U-boats; and during those days and the long nights the officers and men were ready for any emergency—ready on the gun stations and at the depth charges, prepared for instant attack.

We had been told to get to England as soon as possible. These ships were needed for the convoy work maintaining Britain's trade route across the Atlantic. As a flotilla we presented a fairly effective fighting force, but it wasn't our job to go chasing submarines.

If they chased us—well, that was a different matter. And from that first night the gun crews were posted at action stations, and as we drew nearer England they were changed every two hours, so that there was little rest for any of the men. Some of them were green hands—kids from civilian jobs who had been conscripted into the navy—and they bore the ordeal well, standing by their guns in weather that the veterans agreed was "bloody," huddled on the rolling deck in the wet and cold, with only a hot cup of tea now and again to warm them up.

On the bridge the officers kept double watches. Young as they were, this destroyer service was no new thing to them. They had served at Narvik and Dunkirk and on channel patrol. They had been dive-bombed and torpedoed.

I think they worried more about the weather than they did about U-boat attacks. These were unfamiliar ships, and the trans-Atlantic voyage was a long trip for a destroyer that had not been in commission for a number of years.

Perhaps the weather could have been worse, but not much. Our first meal at sea was the last one to be served on a tablecloth. After that we took our food with one arm around a stanchion, and at night we tied ourselves into our bunks, but not too tightly, for attack might have come at any moment, and we kept most of our clothes on and our life belts around our waists.

Life aboard a destroyer is uncomfortable at any time, but on active service it is one of the toughest jobs in the navy. Destroyers don't pitch, they snap, and when they snap the ship is jarred from stem to stern. There is very little room to move about, and no big easy chairs for the officers in the wardroom. On top of that, in wartime there is need for constant vigilance, of being on deck most of the time in foul weather, of keeping stations at night when the ships are blacked out and no signals are made between the vessels in the flotilla.

The officers cursed at some of the old equipment aboard the ship, but they were delighted with the navigation instruments left them by the Americans. These ships had been completely fitted out down to the smallest item, and the English officers expressed their gratitude in no uncertain terms.

In their lockers they found packages of American cigarets and magazines and books—all gifts from the American sailors who had brought the ships to Canada.

These things, and the radio, and good American food in the icebox, helped to relieve the discomforts of a rough voyage that was fraught with danger. Complete relaxation was impossible, but in the brief hours off duty the sailors did their best to amuse themselves with card games and reading.

They hated the bedsprings in their bunks and tossed them out after a couple of days at sea. They had been used to hammocks, and the motion of the springs was new and unpleasant for the tars.

They ate well—they had more variety in food than they had known in British ships—at least they ate well when the cook was able to prepare anything in his pitching galley. There was more soup spilled than ever got down the throats of the hungry sailors.

They would come down from the gun decks, cold and shivering, their faces red with the force of the wind, and they would gulp hot tea and pray for the soul of the American naval designers who decided that American warships should be steam-heated.

Soon we began to get signals. "Attacked by enemy submarine. Require immediate assistance." We knew now we were in the danger zone, and vigilance increased. Lookouts were posted day and night—high in the crow's nest a seaman, muffled up to the eyes, kept a constant watch.

"Object bearing green twenty, sir," he would report to the bridge. There would be sharp orders. The gun crews would spring to their posts, and the object would be kept in range until it was identified—some lone freighter, steaming her hazardous way across the ocean. We'd let her go, silently wishing her good luck.

We never knew. Perhaps it was her signal we received two days later—"Come quick"—but we were too far away by then to go to the rescue.

"I may not be chasing submarines," the young captain said, "but if one looms up in front of me——" and he left the sentence unfinished. This destroyer was his first command. His previous ship had been sunk in Mediterranean waters.

Life in the wardroom of a destroyer is more democratic than in any other type of ship in the British navy, with the exception of a submarine. The Royal navy is a stickler for rank distinction, but in a destroyer there isn't room for that sort of thing. The captain eats with the other officers, including warrant officers, who would be segregated in a larger ship.

The first lieutenant was 24 years of age, already with a distinguished service cross for boarding a sinking German submarine and capturing the U-boat's code book and papers. The second lieutenant was a volunteer officer, a director of an English railway in civilian life, and the sublieutenant, also a volunteer, had been sunk three times—twice at Dunkirk—and blown clean off the bridge of his last ship. The chief engineer and gunnery officer were older men who had last seen service in submarines.

They had no time for relaxation. They would catch a little sleep now and again, mostly in the tiny wardroom.

We were lucky that nothing heavy broke away in the seas that lashed the slim ship continuously. But the pantry was topsy turvy by the time we reached England, and the silverware marked with the initials of the United States navy took a severe battering.

The officer swore the wardroom steward was topheavy. He was unable to keep his feet and spent most of his time sliding from one side of the room to the other, ending up in a heap on the deck.

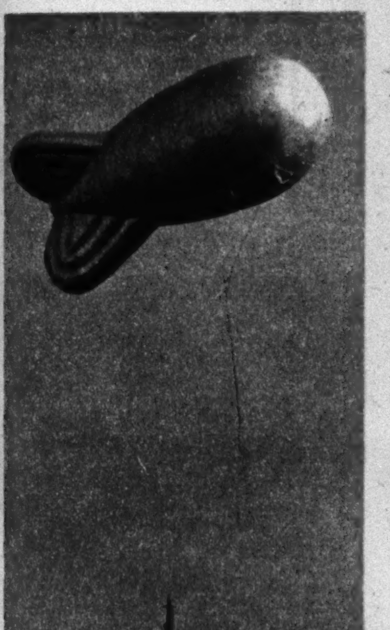
"Duck!" the first lieutenant used to shout. "Here comes Sawyer!"

We were getting near England now, and we passed merchant convoys outbound to Canada—large passenger ships and tubby little freighters, with escort vessels bustling around them. And the British coastal planes were now putting in an appearance, circling over the destroyer flotilla.

Each one was challenged, and antiaircraft guns were trained on it until it gave the correct reply signal. At night the planes would drop colored flares to make their identity known.

The distress signals were still coming in. "Am being attacked; come quick or——" and that was all. Or "Being bombed by enemy aircraft; position——" We were learning for the first time that the Germans had added bomber attack to the war of the U-boats against British shipping.

We were plowing thru heavy seas. To starboard and port of us we saw the other destroyers of the flotilla disappear behind huge waves until only the tips of their masts showed. A gale had blown up, and that night there was nothing but sandwiches served for dinner. Green water came over the forecastle head and swept against the windows of the bridge. The gun crews were soaked to the skin, and the captain's eyes were anxious.



(British Combine photo.)

"Watch those men!" he shouted to a petty officer. "I don't want to lose any hands overboard."

In the morning the wind had gone, but there was still a heavy swell. The eyes of the officers and men were red-rimmed. It had been a bad night—the worst of the voyage.

That morning I stood with the captain on the gun control platform above the bridge. He had been searching the seas with binoculars, and suddenly he turned to me.

"Take these glasses," he said. "See if you can make out something in the water off the port bow."

I looked for several moments. "There's something yellow bobbing up and down."

The captain had another look. "My God!" he suddenly cried. "I think they're men!"

They were men—five British airmen in a yellow rubber boat, bobbing like a cork on the huge waves. The captain gave brisk orders. The destroyer made a neat turn and came up on the windward side of the raft. The water-soaked airmen, clutching the sides of their rubber boat, tried to wave to us, and we waved back.

We came alongside them and a rope ladder was lowered. The first two men had to be pulled aboard, and one slipped and fell into the water. His head had barely disappeared below the surface before a sailor dived from the deck and had him under the arms.

These airmen, suffering from cold and exposure, had been 25 hours in the water, having crashed on coastal patrol, and in their little self-inflating raft had survived the wild gale of the previous night. They were rushed to the wardroom, quickly stripped of their clothes, and rubbed down. The pilot, an American-educated boy, kept asking for his companions.

"How is Harry? . . . Look after Smithers; he got a lot of water. . . . We were expecting to last another couple of days. . . . We had a flask of rum, and I thought we'd have a party tonight. . . . This ship rolls, doesn't it? . . . Give Jones a hot drink; he needs it."

The lips of the men were blue and their hands and feet numbed with cold. One of them looked on the verge of pneumonia. The captain took one glance at him and sent a signal to the division leader:

"Picked up five men—one seriously ill. Request permission to proceed full speed to ———."

The reply came back: "Request granted. Good luck."

And that was how the baby of the flotilla arrived in Great Britain, racing at full speed into port to save a man's life, leaving her sister ships far behind.

• • •

Her performance made the eyes of the officers light up with satisfaction.

"She may be old, and she may roll," the captain said, "but she's a damn good ship and I'm going to be proud of her."

We left the airmen at a British port after the pilot had told us how he and his men had escaped in their rubber boat from their crashed plane, which had broken in half and gone down inside of a minute. All thru the night of the gale these half-frozen men had slapped one another to keep awake.

As for us, we were not out of danger yet. Delayed by a slight collision with a tug, we were late getting to our final destination. We were still at sea when the signal came thru—"Air raid"—and for two hours the gun crews were at attention and the glasses of the lookouts searched the skies for a sign of an enemy craft.

It was just then that the British radio announced our safe arrival in England. We grinned rather grimly about that.

But, if premature, the announcement turned out to be correct. We came into port one morning. All around were warships. We were coming to help out, and the officers and crew felt pretty good about it.

There was no welcoming committee to greet the baby—only a dockyard worker who shouted, "Here comes another of the Yanks." That night we had dinner in the wardroom, and I said good-by to the officers who had been my companions on the long Atlantic trip. Some of them were going on leave, but only for a few days. Then there would be another job—convoy escort, channel patrol, who could tell? Wherever they are, they are on active service against Germany today.

While we were at dinner the air raid siren in the town began to wail.

We had arrived.

Next Sunday—Convoying a fleet of merchant ships.

Match Covers Usurp the Hobby Throne

BOOMING newcomer among hobbies is match book cover collecting. The devotees—and there are thousands of them—declare that their avocation is the least expensive yet most interesting of all collecting hobbies, and they foresee a day soon when the albums of match book covers will rival the stamp collections in public interest.

Already the rarer match books have assumed monetary value among the collectors, and there are several organizations banding together the hobbyists and permitting them to "swap" and buy to fill up a particular series, to complete a state, or to add something especially nice in one of the main divisions, such as states, army, navy, or movie queens. One of the biggest of these organizations is the United Matchonians, with headquarters at Morgantown, W. Va. It has 1,100 registered members.

Leading Chicago collector is Ludwig Schindler, 78 years old, 907 West Sunnyside avenue, who has 40,000 covers, all different, indexed and mounted in 55 albums. Mr. Schindler, who retired from the theater business in 1924, has been collecting covers for the last five years. Some of his covers are shown on page one of this section.

• On page one of this section is reproduced a collection of colorful samples of the match book cover designer's art.

"Collecting match covers is one of the most interesting things a man can do," Schindler asserted. "We don't collect 'regulars,' that is, the ordinary match books most folk are familiar with, unless they're from unusual places or have unusual markings. There are six patented classes of books—the ten strike, which is smallest; the midget, the regular, the feature, the royal flash, and the giant. The giant size is 8 inches long and 2½ inches wide.

"Collectors usually specialize in one or more of the sizes. In addition they want a particular classification. If they collect a series, such as the first and second baseball series (carrying pictures of ball players), they want every one of the series."

Mr. Schindler's collection includes all sizes from all states and from Europe and South America. He sometimes pays as much as 60 cents for a cover. Right now he's looking for the new metallic covers, just out.

Another big-time Chicago collector is Ted Shumon, 2858 Barry avenue, who specializes in transportation and army and navy covers.

There should be plenty of most of the varieties for all the collectors in the game, for the department of commerce estimates that 152,170,571,000 match books were manufactured in the United States alone in 1939.

FIGHTING ICE IN THE AIR

Heat, Chemicals, "Boots" Now Protect Planes

By WAYNE THOMIS

AS EACH winter rolls around the problems of icing on aircraft arise afresh to plague commercial, private, and military flying men. This winter particularly are icing problems in the public eye—both as a result of recent commercial air line accidents in the United States and the air war in Europe, in which German, British, and Italian pilots are combating not only each other but also winter flying difficulties.

Up to this time no really satisfactory answer to the accumulation of ice on airplane wings and control surfaces has been found. The Germans have one preferred system, the British have tried and discarded another, and now are adopting the makeshift that is at this time virtually universal in the United States—the use of rubber de-icing boots that crack off ice as it forms so the wind stream can blow it away.

Not any of these solutions is considered the final answer. All of them have their merits, and it is proposed here to discuss the different methods of attacking the same problem. Briefly, the three solutions are identified as follows:

American — Mechanical dislodging of ice accumulations.

British—Chemical melting of ice to prevent sealing of a bond between accumulation of crystals and the skin of an airplane.

German — Use of heat from motor exhaust to heat wing entering edges, thus preventing the freezing of ice to the aircraft.

Future developments may make it desirable to use all three of these methods simultaneously, or any combination of the three. None can say in this stage of the art of weather flying what the future may bring, particularly now that vast sums of money are available to finance experiments that went begging for lack of support only a short year ago. The following, however, represents a condensed summary of current conditions.

Of the three systems the German is receiving much attention both here and in England because the use of exhaust heat is economically sound. The heat is otherwise wasted, it probably offers the solution to the problem that can be basically the least costly in weight, and it may be the simplest system to install.

At the laboratories of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, Langley field, Virginia, in private industrial laboratories, and in many university laboratories experiments are being conducted to see what problems must be met if exhaust gas heat is used.

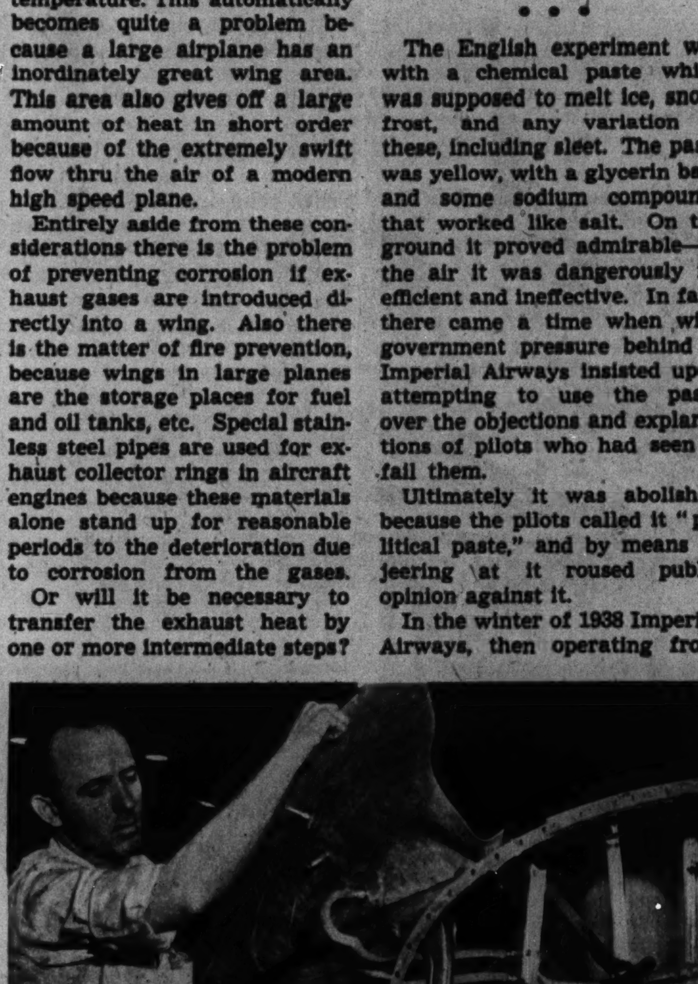
The ideal solution would be, of course, to pipe the exhaust gases directly from the motors into the leading edges of the wings so that the thermal units carried by the flaming gas can be transmitted immediately to the metal skin of the plane. Thus heated, the wing would melt any freezing rain, half frozen hail, or sleety snow.

Presumably the wind stream would sweep the fluid from the melted ice away from the craft. In practice, however, it has been found that while much of the melted ice was swept away, a considerable amount of it slid back away from the leading edge of the wing to an area of wing where the skin was of freezing temperature and there it built up into a dangerous ridge or mount that interfered enormously with air flows and soon amounted to a considerable weight.

This seems to indicate that it will be necessary to heat the entire interior of a wing sufficiently to keep the outer surface of the skin above freezing temperature. This automatically becomes quite a problem because a large airplane has an inordinately great wing area. This area also gives off a large amount of heat in short order because of the extremely swift flow thru the air of a modern high speed plane.

Entirely aside from these considerations there is the problem of preventing corrosion if exhaust gases are introduced directly into a wing. Also there is the matter of fire prevention, because wings in large planes are the storage places for fuel and oil tanks, etc. Special stainless steel pipes are used for exhaust collector rings in aircraft engines because these materials alone stand up for reasonable periods to the deterioration due to corrosion from the gases.

Or will it be necessary to transfer the exhaust heat by one or more intermediate steps?



The most favored de-icing system in America is the rubber boot installed on a leading edge. Air pressure from the engine expands and contracts the boot, breaking ice formation.

Perhaps some sort of steam cooling system can be evolved, similiar to the sealed boiler system that supplies heat to air liner cabin interiors in cold weather.

In such a solution the exhaust heat would be applied to a boiler near the engine. Steam generated there would be directed out to heat the wing and returned to the boiler in the form of recondensed water for another cycle of heating, transformation into steam, and circulation thru the wing. Such systems are now being tried out both here and in England.

The German system is not entirely understood here. Smaller German planes are said to use hot air systems supplied by exhaust gases. These systems heat only the leading edges of wings and make no attempt to prevent ice formation over an entire airplane. For larger German planes an entirely different de-icing system is used, altho again exhaust heat is the source of ice-repellent. It is said that at least one intermediate step between the exhaust gas and the skin of the wings has been introduced.

At this time the German flying technique apparently is to avoid severe icing conditions by staying out of visible moisture when temperatures are within a few degrees of freezing or below. The heating of the leading edges of wings makes it possible for pilots to make instrument or radio landings thru low cloud if it is necessary to stay in the clouds for periods of half an hour or less. For flight periods of longer than half an hour the present German hot-gas system is not practical, if icing conditions are severe.

The English experiment was with a chemical paste which was supposed to melt ice, snow, frost, and any variation of these, including sleet. The paste was yellow, with a glycerin base and some sodium compounds that worked like salt. On the ground it proved admirable—in the air it was dangerously inefficient and ineffective. In fact, there came a time when with government pressure behind it Imperial Airways insisted upon attempting to use the paste over the objections and explanations of pilots who had seen it fail them.

Ultimately it was abolished because the pilots called it "political paste," and by means of jeering at it roused public opinion against it.

In the winter of 1938 Imperial Airways, then operating from Bermuda to the United States, made some experiments with the chemical paste. Results of these were watched by Pan-American Airways engineers at the Port Washington base that both operators were using jointly on Long Island.

"Slinger ring" which sprays anti-freeze solution over propeller to impede formation of ice.

The Pan-American observers reported that the paste failed because of the following:

1. It tended to spread around and blow off the airplane in flight when the air flow buffeted the wings, struts, and cowlings where it was smeared.

2. In severe icing conditions ice formed over the paste, and while there was some melting of the ice at the point of contact with the wings, it was not sufficient to prevent ice formation. Once the ice formed over the leading edge the wind pressure tended to hold it in place and assist in building up more.

3. In conditions of light icing when the paste might have been effective the chemicals in it were too quickly neutralized and did not maintain their strength long enough. For short flights in light ice the results were fair, but these periods were not longer than 10 to 15 minutes because of the quantity of moisture thru which an airplane wing passes in flight.

Net result of the British effort seems to have convinced experts that grease or fluid de-icing alone is insufficient. One of the experiments that seems to have promise at this time is a combination of the chemical de-icing with perhaps the heat. The current thought on this subject seems to be to arrange a constant seepage of chemicals over the leading edge of the wing.

That chemical de-icing is not entirely ineffective has been proved by the success of the propeller de-icing equipment now used. Formation of ice on propellers has the same effect as ice on wings, that is, it reduces the propeller efficiency and ultimately would allow the blades merely to beat the air without effect.

Use of a glycerin-alcohol compound that has been allowed to seep out on the blades at the hub has licked this problem. By experimenting with flow and the resultant spreading of the fluid by the whirling effect of the blade it has been possible to work out these so-called "slinger-rings" so that they spread the de-icing fluid all over the entire propeller and the fluid and centrifugal forces keep the propellers clear.

The American methods of de-icing wings were described in detail in this department in stories last March and April. Briefly stated they consist in installation on wings and tail surfaces of a rubber boot in which tubes are vulcanized. Inflation of the tubes distorts and stretches the outer skin of the boot, breaking the bond that ice makes with the wing and allowing the air flow to get under the ice and blow it away.

There has been a steady improvement in the boot, but even the B. F. Goodrich company, only manufacturer of this type of equipment, admits that these are not the last word in ice elimination. Virtually all the United States air lines and large military and private airplanes are equipped with these boots, which will keep an airplane free from all but severe ice for a considerable period.

The Goodrich company, however, is continuing its experiments with the NACA and the army in an effort to improve its product. One recent laboratory test involved the simultaneous use of the de-icing boot and a chemical reagent that would tend to keep the rubber surface slippery and free from ice, as well as assisting in freeing the bond that ice makes with the rubber surface.

The Christmas Curse

IT WAS a few nights before Christmas, 1934. The campus was deserted and heavy with that special loneliness that comes to a college campus during the holiday season. Four young persons, none of them more than casually acquainted, came together for a Christmas party simply to fend off the unwelcome solitude. After they were assembled it did not seem such a good idea.

ZENGE

"We're certainly deserted ones," said Nona Axtell seeking to enliven the party. "We're like shipwrecked sailors. I think there's a curse upon us."

She felt the lively black eyes of Dr. Bauer upon her. "Don't say that," he protested. "The medieval writers thought that a curse at Christmas time was the most awful thing a human could contemplate."

Nona flushed. "I certainly meant nothing by it," she answered. "We're all so glum. This was to be a party. Why, there isn't even a mistletoe to stand under."

Dr. Atterberry, sitting across from her, smiled wryly. "A woman for you," he said. "They see sex in every great holiday or event. To woman, Christmas means gifts and mistletoe."

Nona rose angrily. "I think I'll go," she said.

The fourth girl, tall, dark haired, her brown eyes darkened almost to black by her pale cheeks, began laughing quietly.

"Aren't we all ridiculous?" she demanded. "Getting together in the Christmas spirit because we're all alone, and then being hateful to each other. Ray, I think you should apologize to Nona, or I'll think she's right; that we are cursed, and with Dr. Bauer's curse of the dark ages, too."

"Of course," Dr. Atterberry agreed. "I do apologize. I don't know why I said such a thing. Walter, a kiss takes away a curse, and I think such a lovely girl as Nona should be permanently under mistletoe." He rose quickly, dashed over, and pecked at Nona's cheek with his lips. They all laughed, the tension was gone, and Dr. Bauer brought out wine.

But the curse remained. By Christmas week, 1938, three of the four were dead, two in murder tragedies that shocked the nation, and the fourth was jailed on a charge of murder.

Altho paired together that evening in 1934, Dr. Walter J. Bauer and Miss Axtell had never been steady companions. He was a professor of chemistry at the College of Osteopathy and Surgery in Kirksville, Mo., and in love with Miss Louise Schaffer, night superintendent of nurses in the Laughlin hospital in Kirksville. Nona, 26 years old, was an English teacher in the Kirksville Junior High school.

Raymond L. Atterberry, 36 years old, was completing his studies for a degree in osteopathic medicine. The tall, pale girl with him was a visitor from out of town. A few weeks after the Christmas party she became ill and died.

The other three, of course, had forgotten Nona's talk about a curse that night on the Kirksville college campus. Dr. Bauer was prosecuting his suit with Nurse Schaffer. Atterberry, after his bad start, began to date Nona, and she was growing fond of him, despite his frequent fits of moroseness.

Miss Schaffer's romance with Dr. Bauer posed a problem. Since her high school days she had been going with Mandeville Zenge, a dairy farmer's son who lived near Canton, Mo. They had planned to be married, but Zenge was continually putting off the date until he could save more money. He said he had to have $1,000 first.

In June, 1935, Dr. Bauer went to the University of Michigan to study. Louise, in love with him, continued to see Zenge, nevertheless, and late in June Zenge told her he was going to buy an engagement ring.

"Don't get it," she told him. "We can't think of marriage any more."

"You're in love with Dr. Bauer," he charged.

"Yes, I am. You waited too long."

"You'll never marry Dr. Bauer," Zenge cried wrathfully.

But on July 14, 1935, Louise and Dr. Bauer were married by the pastor of the First Baptist church in Kirksville. Three hours later Dr. Bauer left for Ann Arbor to resume his studies. They planned to take a honeymoon trip in August, when he had finished his course.

The night of the wedding Zenge called on Louise and learned of the marriage. He had an engagement ring with him.

(Acme photos.)

Zenge returned to Canton, drew out his savings, told his relatives of Miss Schaffer's marriage, and bought a new car.

"I could kill that doctor," Zenge told the car salesman, the husband of one of his cousins. "I'll fix him so he won't be able to treat another girl the way he has Louise."

On July 23 Zenge quit his job in Canton, drove to Kirksville, and took Louise for a ride. He asked her if she was happy and she assured him that she was. When he left he told the girl he was taking a job in Chicago to "forget."

On July 27 Zenge went to Ann Arbor. He learned that Dr. Bauer was staying in room 8 at the Jennings hotel. Zenge took room 7, registering as T. S. Jones of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

On July 30 Dr. Bauer returned to the hotel at 5 p. m. to get his car, a small coupé. As he left, the tall, wiry haired stranger in room 7 asked for a ride downtown. Dr. Bauer agreed.

A few minutes later the man from room 7 pulled a gun. "Drive to Chicago and no funny business," he told Dr. Bauer. "I'm wanted for one murder, and another one won't make any difference."

They drove for nine hours, the man who had won Louise at the wheel, the man who had lost her beside him, darkly studying him.

Early the morning of July 31 the pair arrived in Chicago, and Zenge directed Dr. Bauer to turn into an alley near 72d street and Stony Island avenue. There he bound his victim, and performed a brutal emasculation operation with a pocket knife.

He drove the car to a gasoline station at 71st street and Stony Island, and fled on foot. Dr. Bauer's screams attracted the station attendants, and one drove him to the Jackson Park hospital. Two hours later Dr. Bauer died of shock and loss of blood.

"Before God, who is my witness as I lie here, I don't know of any one who should do this to me," Dr. Bauer told the attending physician before he died.

Zenge sought out William Leinnert, an acquaintance, and Leinnert subsequently told the police. Two days later Zenge was captured at a cab stand in the 4700 block on Madison street. On Oct. 18, 1935, he was found guilty of murder by a jury in Criminal court and sentenced to life.

Louise Schaffer Bauer returned to her career of nurse, and is now a surgeon's assistant in the east.

The strange curse upon that 1934 Christmas party worked more slowly on Nona Axtell and Dr. Atterberry.

He began his practice in Canon City, Colo., and in May, 1937, returned to Kirksville and married Nona. When his bride came to their bungalow home in Canon City, she was greeted with whispered scandal involving William Hoffman, a youth of 20, and Dr. Atterberry, with whom he had been living before the latter's marriage.

Mrs. Atterberry entered quickly into the social life of the town. She suggested that Hoffman find another place to live, but this was not done.

Four days before Christmas, 1938, Dr. Atterberry telephoned his friend, Dr. W. L. Little, deputy coroner, from his house in Canon City:

"For God's sake come over here as quickly as you can. Nona has fallen down stairs. I can't find her pulse. I think she's . . . gone!"

When Dr. Little arrived he found Dr. Atterberry sitting quietly in the living room with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bruce, neighbors he had roused. Hoffman was in Denver. Dr. Atterberry had not attempted to move the body. Dr. Little found it lying at the foot of the basement stairs, clad in a nightgown and robe.

A postmortem revealed several cuts and abrasions, but there was little evidence of bleeding. Two days later, H. D. Harper, Colorado Springs chief of police called in as a special investigator, made this report:

"I am positive she was dead when she was thrown down the stairway."

Dr. Atterberry could not furnish an alibi for his movements 45 minutes before he had called Dr. Little. Hoffman, however, was able to prove that he was in Denver at the time of the murder.

Investigation showed that Dr. Atterberry was living beyond his income, and his wife had $10,000 insurance on her life. The evil stories about Dr. Atterberry and Hoffman again cropped up. Fragments of thread found under Mrs. Atterberry's fingernails matched the cloth of the doctor's topcoat.

The state charged that Dr. Atterberry strangled his wife, dressed her in the nightgown and robe, and tossed her down the stairway. He was found guilty of second degree murder and sentenced to 34 to 37 years in the Colorado state penitentiary.

He is the last survivor of the little Christmas party of four.

Christmas Art Section

CHICAGO was thrilled in 1893 when artists and critics visiting the fine arts department of the World's Columbian exposition pronounced it the greatest and most complete international art exhibit in history, excelling even that of the Paris exposition. Examples of the paintings that helped to provide this unique reputation are published today in full color in the Christmas art section of The Sunday Tribune.

The assembly of such a splendid collection in Chicago, which the world at the time still considered a frontier city, was the result of the labor and coöperation of a group of men led by Halsey C. Ives, chief of the department of fine arts of the World's Columbian exposition, and Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the board of trustees of the Chicago Art institute, which was under construction on the lake front when the fair's beautiful fine arts building was being started.

The World's Columbian exposition exhibit included 10,040 individual works of art and collections. Special commissioners visited most of the countries of the world to obtain the finest examples of art, both ancient and modern. Various foreign governments coöperated, naming art juries to select the best work available within their respective countries. Most of the European masters were represented; Americans shown included Whistler, Sargent, Innes, Stuart, Copley, and Peale.

It's Never Too Late to Spend

By ELEANOR NANGLE

TO ALLAY the panic and nervous remorse that beset all shoppers who have put off until tomorrow what they should have done 10 days ago we offer last-minute gift suggestions to be found in the beauty sections. All the polls of feminine opinion reveal that women particularly like as Christmas presents the little glamor aids that they hesitate to buy for themselves. Dusting powder rates highest among these; toilet waters, colognes, and perfumes come next. And they adore sachets—especially when they're a present rather than a purchase. Such things are often luxuries in a literal sense but downright necessities in the figurative, or feminine, sense! One of the most delightful features of beauty gifts, at least from the point of view of the harassed shopper, is the range of prices. You can spend a fraction or a fortune; there are inexpensive versions of all the expensive things; and each in its own way spells Glamor.

An amphora in highly glazed pottery contains toilet water in a number of beautiful fragrances. $2.50.

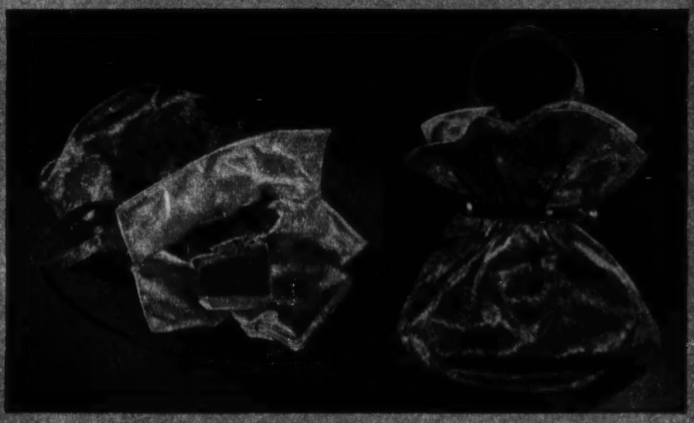
A traveling atomizer that foils leakage and evaporation of her fine perfumes. Good outer cases.

Below: "Billet Doux" sachets, quilted and sealed with contrasting bow. Three scents. $1.

By evening, a gold-clasped bag of quilted crepe; by day, an efficient manicure set complete with well made instruments. $3.

Here's glamor for you. Beautiful bath glorifiers, all done up in satin and lace. $3.

Two satin sachets topped with feather bouquets flank toilet water in gardenia, carnation, white lilac, or two exquisite blends. $3.



A fitted bag to carry when she dines or dances in splendor. Compact, lipstick, comb, mirror, and a change purse. In satin or faille, $32.50. In luxurious brocade, $35.

Left: Bath oil, body powder, cologne, and soap, all in the enchanting fragrance of apple blossom. $3.50.

Below: Beautiful bath preparations, pink and white containers on a hanging tray. $3.50.

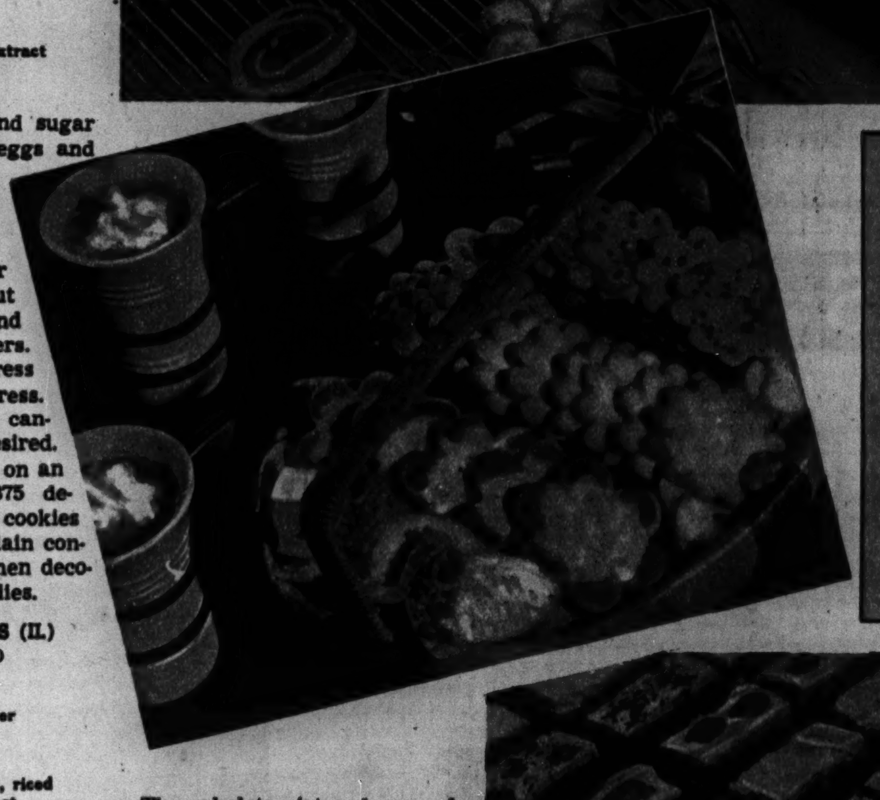
A quaint colonial sewing kit houses bath glorifiers scented with spice. The box is topped with a little red pin cushion. $1.

Cookies for Christmas

By MARY MEADE

ALL THE BIG and little tea parties, open houses, and over-the-coffee chats at Christmas time need little cookies or cakelets to make them pleasanter occasions. A cookie press or an assortment of tiny cookie cutters can transform plain sugar cookie dough into cute little fancy shapes, and assorted decorations can make them seem to have originated in several different batches of dough.

Here are two good basic dough recipes, with suggestions about variations.



Above: These are some of the pretty, crisp morsels which may be made from a batch of plain sugar cookie dough.

At left: These cookies were made with the second recipe in today's column—cups of hot chocolate go along with them.

Below: Strong coffee was used to flavor these cakelets and their frosting, and cups of coffee are good to drink with them.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES (I.)
(About five dozen)

1 cup shortening
⅔ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon lemon extract
3½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar thoroly. Add beaten eggs and extracts, beating well. Sift flour and salt together and add, mixing only enough to moisten the flour. For pattern cookies roll out dough ⅛ inch thick and cut with fancy cutters. For molded cookies press dough thru cookie press. Decorate with colored candies and sugars if desired. Bake about 10 minutes on an ungreased sheet at 375 degrees. Some of the cookies may be frosted with plain confectioners' sugar and then decorated with colored candies.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES (II.)
(Five or six dozen)

3 cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
3 hard cooked egg yolks, riced
½ teaspoon almond extract

Sift flour with salt and baking powder. Cream butter until soft and smooth, add sugar gradually, and continue creaming until fluffy. Beat eggs with riced egg yolks until blended, add flavoring, and stir into creamed mixture. Blend in dry ingredients. Turn out onto a lightly floured board and roll about ⅛ inch thick. Cut in various shapes and brush over cookies with slightly beaten egg white. Sprinkle with plain or colored sugar. Decorate some of the cookies with bits of candied fruit or chopped nuts. Bake at 400 degrees for 6-8 minutes or until delicately browned.

Either recipe may be used to make Christmas wreath cookies. Cut the dough into narrow strips and twist two of them together for each wreath. Join the ends, brush with egg white, and sprinkle with colored sugar.

The cakelets pictured are coffee strips. Here's how:

COFFEE STRIPS
(About 45)

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1⅔ cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup cocoa
⅔ cup strong, fresh coffee
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream shortening, add sugar, and cream until light. Add beaten eggs. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with the coffee to the creamed mixture, mixing well after each addition. Add vanilla. Turn into an oiled pan 15x9½ inches and bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes. Cool and frost with coffee frosting. Cut in strips an inch wide and three inches long.

COFFEE FROSTING—Combine 1½ cups sugar, 1 tablespoon light corn sirup, and ⅓ cup strong coffee. Cook slowly in a saucepan, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking to the hard ball stage, 254 degrees. Add ⅛ teaspoon salt to 2 egg whites and beat until stiff. Add sirup slowly, beating constantly until frosting is stiff enough to spread. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and spread. Sprinkle a third of the frosted cake with shaved chocolate, leave a third plain, and place pecans at intervals on the last third.

England's New Machine Gun

The Besa Is Efficient, Versatile

British tank corps gunners practice with the smaller caliber Besa machine gun. The weapon can be mounted also on a tank.

DEMANDS of the present war in Europe for a fool-proof weapon of small arms caliber, capable of delivering extremely rapid fire, have resulted in the invention in England and the adoption by the British army of a new machine gun known as the Besa.

This weapon, according to early reports, is adaptable to various uses and is particularly free of a number of faults found in similar type guns used by the British.

Armies of today possess mechanical means that allow them to move swiftly over long distances, thus making it possible for them to mass powerful forces quickly at a given point. By the aid of these mechanical means they can deliver lightning thrusts with armored spearhead attacks which concentrate such great pressure along a small front as to assure them a breakthru before the enemy can concentrate an equal force on the front to stop them.

Once thru the enemy's line, the army well equipped with mechanical means can fan out behind the defender's front and take him in the rear. In the actions of such swiftly moving forces the battle moves from point to point swiftly. Sectional fighting therefore rarely lasts very long, for the attack develops suddenly with great power, and unless it is halted with overwhelming fire the attackers swarm over the defenses in a matter of minutes, leaving isolated groups of defenders possibly still fighting, but scattered over miles of territory.

Warfare such as this calls for weapons which give to a few men the ability to deliver gunfire equal to that formerly possible only from many men with many guns. It demands weapons of rapid fire and in certain types of encounters rapid-fire weapons virtually as portable as the manually operated army rifle, which, because of the limited number of rounds it can load and fire in the short time that the action may last, has become obsolete. The extreme accuracy of the manually operated army rifle no longer is highly essential, since actions are not fought at great distances and with deliberation. For the fast and furious close-range engagements of present-day warfare concentrated fire power is more desirable, with every factor considered, than great accuracy.

The beginning of the World war in 1914 saw armies equipped with comparatively few machine guns, and these in general were of the so-called heavy type. As the conflict progressed the heavy machine guns rapidly increased in numbers. They were very effective; in fact, it might be said they were the supreme weapon of the war—at least of part of the war. But while they possessed some advantages, they also had their drawbacks. They could not be shifted from point to point handily. Their weight kept them from being substituted for the army rifle. They could not be carried in a rapid advance such as that of infantry troops "going over the top" to attack enemy trenches.

The need for a more portable rapid-fire weapon caused the British army to adopt the 28-pound light Lewis gun, the invention of Col. Isaac N. Lewis, an American army officer. This arm, operated by gas pressure developed in its firing, was supplied on a wide scale thruout the Allied armies. It could be fired from the hip, carried easily, and used from any position. The Lewis gun was an admirable weapon, altho, according to British arms experts, it had certain drawbacks, one of which was due to its large number of parts. From this multiplicity of parts, they point out, arose factors that often caused stoppage in action—stoppage that in some cases meant that the gun was out of action because of mechanical troubles at critical moments and could not be fired until the gunner remedied the defects.

The British, in seeking a new and lighter arm with fewer stoppage possibilities, selected the Bren gun, a Czecho-Slovakian invention. After several years of experiments with this weapon and consequent improvements they finally produced a 21-pound arm that met the need for portability, was of simple design, and free of almost all stoppages that could not be remedied in a few seconds.

The Bren is a gas-operated weapon. That is, the gas of the explosion of the cartridge ejects the empty shell, cocks the hammer, and throws a new cartridge into the firing chamber, firing continuously in this manner so long as the trigger is squeezed and the magazine contains cartridges. The Bren is an air-cooled weapon, provided with a spare barrel which can be put into place in a few seconds when the original barrel becomes too hot. The gun can fire four magazines of 30 rounds each in the space of a minute. It is controled from the shoulder in the manner of an ordinary rifle and usually in connection with a bipod rest. It also, however, is equipped to be used with a telescopic tripod which allows for mounting in the manner of a heavy machine gun. The telescopic tripod is provided with a graduated scale that permits the gun to be set to sweep a predetermined field of fire in the darkness. The tripod mount can be extended so that the arm can be used for antiaircraft fire. With the Bren gun and its tripod mounting vibrations are reduced to a minimum. Therefore, unless the gunner deliberately shifts his aim, the bullets follow each other truly. With the Lewis gun vibrations result in the bullets scattering over a fairly wide area. For this reason the British consider the Lewis still better for antiaircraft fire, since the scattering of its shots increases the chance of hits.

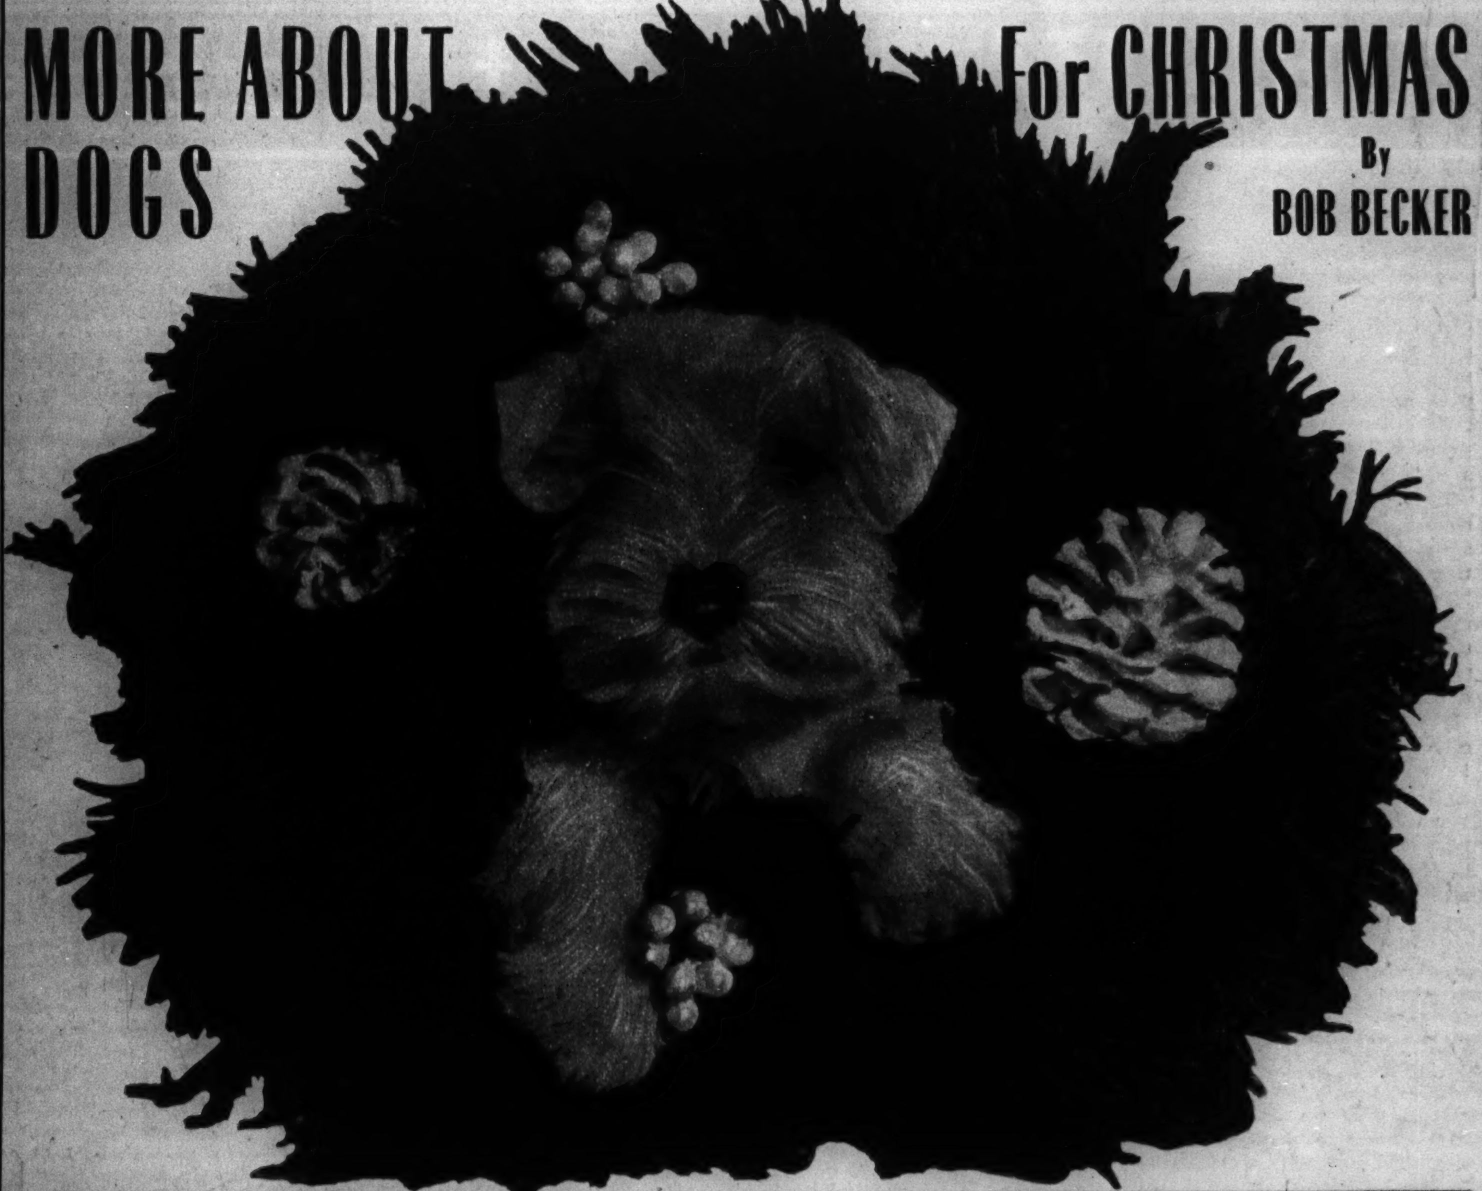
The new Besa machine gun is said to be a development of the Bren gun, being based upon the same principles. Adopted by the British army, it now is being produced on an increasing scale in several factories built especially for the purpose.

The Besa gun, judging from pictures of it and the meager information concerning it which has reached this country, is definitely a reversion toward the heavier type of weapon and consequently not intended to supplant the lighter Lewis or the lighter Bren. It is built in two different bores, 7.92 mm. (.312 caliber) and 15 mm. (.591 caliber). The smaller of the two calibers is slightly greater than that of the standard British rifle ammunition of .303 caliber, which, by the way, is the caliber of the Bren.

The Besa gun can be mounted in tanks or used on the ground. With the lighter model approximately 3,000 rounds can be fired in 30 minutes without changing the barrel. With the use of two barrels 7,000 rounds can be fired in the same period. Eight hundred rounds have been fired from the 15-mm. weapon in from 8 to 10 minutes with two barrels in use. In both models the cartridges are fed into the chamber from a web belt, in the manner of earlier types of machine guns. The 15-mm. gun fires a somewhat larger bullet than the .50-caliber American machine gun and should be effective as an antitank weapon against all but the most heavily armored tanks.

MORE ABOUT DOGS For CHRISTMAS

By BOB BECKER



SEALYHAM TERRIER—Small, mostly white, short-legged terrier with lots of personality. Originally used to go into the dens of badger, otter, and fox, hence has inherited great courage. Is affectionate, smart, and has a sense of humor.

Erroneously called police dog. Intelligent, with stable temperament. It is used as guide dog for the blind. Rather large, but a splendid companion dog.

GERMAN SHEPHERD

POODLE

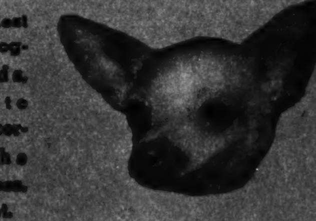
The standard poodle (not the tiny toy poodle) is gaining popularity. It has lots of courage and a keen brain, as proved in obedience competition.

The black and white spotted "coach dog" is affectionate, attractive, and even-tempered. Its short coat is an asset. Weighs 35 to 50 pounds.

DALMATIAN

Similar to the Airedale in temperament. This terrier has a red wire-haired coat and weighs 25 to 27 pounds. Courageous, distinctive, alert.

IRISH TERRIER



One of the smallest of all the 109 recognized breeds, weighing two to five pounds. Incorrectly called the Mexican hairless. An unusual pet.

CHIHUAHUA

A large, strong terrier with coat which varies from light to dark blue. Used for hunting in England. Has pluck but is gentle.

KERRY BLUE TERRIER

A small black and tan terrier of convenient size. Has good disposition, is game, and fond of children. Weighs about 20 pounds.

WELSH TERRIER

Primarily a stylish hunting dog, but any sportsman will back it for its ability to be a gentleman in the house and around children.

POINTER

A breed which is the favorite of the duke and duchess of Windsor. Small (13 to 14 pounds), very active, alert, and expressive.

CAIRN TERRIER

A clean-cut breed weighing about 62 to 68 pounds; has a short coat; is very agile, alert, intelligent. A good watchdog.

BOXER

One of the largest terriers. A good pet for children, because it loves play and has protective instincts. Weighs 35 to 45 pounds.

AIREDALE TERRIER

LAST CALL FOR PUPS

THERE ARE only a few days left for dog fanciers to pick out their Christmas puppies. Each year has seen a growth in the custom of giving puppies (or grown dogs) as Christmas gifts, because the value of a friendly, intelligent dog as a companion now is more fully appreciated by thousands of fathers and mothers.

Altho dog lovers may pick a pure-bred puppy from 109 recognized breeds which are of all sizes and have many different kinds of coats, fewer than a third of these breeds are known to the average American. The Sussex spaniel, Maltese terrier, and others may make delightful pets, but the public hasn't learned about them.

As Santa Claus gets ready to fill his pack we find that the cocker spaniel, Boston terrier, Scottish terrier, wire-haired terrier, beagle, and dachshund are among the 15 most popular breeds in the United States, as judged by registrations and the demand for them as pets. Right behind the first 15 we find another group of 15 that American dog fanciers like. They are illustrated on this page.

SCHNAUZER

There are three varieties—miniature, standard, and giant. The giant is classed as a working dog, the others as terriers. All are courageous, reliable.

ST. BERNARD

Friendly, intelligent, and possessed of a remarkable instinct for protection, guard, and rescue work. Bred for many years by the monks of Switzerland to rescue travelers.

ENGLISH SETTER

Known to every sportsman who thrills to the sight of a stylish gun dog. An amiable, even-tempered pet. Has beauty, style, and brains.

Before You Take That Snow Picture, Plan It!

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

YOU HAVE been missing a good bet if you have never taken snow pictures. Few subjects yield more striking pictures than snow, and few are simpler to photograph if you stop to think what you are doing and follow a few basic rules. The results you get will more than compensate you for braving the cold for a few minutes, or even a few hours.

Naturally the first requirement for snow pictures is snow. But once it has snowed, you should have no difficulty finding a wealth of picture subjects. The sparkling white coat of snow will make a new subject out of any outdoor scene you have photographed in the past, and it will lend a pictorial quality to scenes which would not be worth photographing without it.

But, judging by the snow scenes most amateurs snap, one general warning is in order. Do not limit yourself to picturing snow-covered landscapes or to snapping the more obvious snow scenes in your neighborhood. While these are fine picture material, they are apt to lack human interest. Remembering what is true of pictures in general, whether you take them in summer or in winter, on the beach or in your back yard, include people in them wherever possible, and try to capture action.

For every hundred snow pictures showing open landscapes, amateurs snap hardly two or three picturing winter sports, children playing snowball, people walking in the snow—not to mention such "unusual" subjects as a man working on his stalled car, people trying to board a bus in a blizzard, or a policeman directing traffic on a snow-covered intersection. Therefore you don't even need much imagination to take interesting and original snow pictures. What you need is just to observe your own impressions of things and to photograph whatever strikes you as interesting.

To get in your picture what you intended to photograph you must follow these few basic rules: Snow reflects a lot of light and is even brighter than it appears to be. Therefore beware of overexposing your film. If your subject is predominantly white, use a small lens stop and a fast exposure, especially on a bright day. Fast panchromatic films will give you good results, especially in combination with a red or orange filter, but if your camera is of the box type, or if the fastest speed on your shutter is only 1/100 sec., you had better stick to slower films; otherwise your pictures are apt to be overexposed, with the result that you will lose detail and end up with big blank white patches where snow should appear.

This is the trouble with most poor snow pictures. The snow in them shows just about as little texture and detail as the enamel of the kitchen sink. One of the reasons for this is overexposure. But there are others.

Whenever you want to show detail in snow—whether this detail consists of footprints, tire tracks, or the outline of one snow bank against the other—you can only do it when shadows are present in the scene. The only thing that gives a snow scene modeling are shadows appearing in the depressed portions of the subject.

Consequently the best time to take snow pictures is in the morning or in the afternoon, when the low sun casts heavy shadows. Whenever possible shoot from such an angle that your subject receives side lighting. Back lighting, in which the camera faces the sun, can also be very effective but is more difficult to handle. If you shoot against the light, always use a lens shade and be careful that no direct sun rays hit your lens, or your picture will be fogged and will show spots caused by flare.

But even if shadows are present in a snow scene, they will not always be visible in your picture, especially not when you are shooting on a clear day with a blue sky. The reason for this is that even the shaded portions of the snow reflect the blue color of the sky like a mirror. If you observe the shadows closely you will see that they are blue, not black.

It so happens that most films are very sensitive to blue light. The consequence is that the blue shadows record on the film just as strongly as the white highlights and that you wind up with a picture showing one blank white stretch. To avoid this and to get the desired effect you should use a filter. Yellow, orange, or red filters transmit more white light than blue. By holding back much of the blue they make the shadows appear dark, as you want them to appear, and your picture will have the desired modeling.

Always use a filter for snow pictures. A medium yellow will be best for all-around use. It will bring out the shadows and also darken the sky somewhat, so that it is separated from the snow and contrasts with the clouds if any are present. An orange or a red filter will strengthen this effect and in some cases give overcorrection, meaning that your shadows on the snow and your sky will go practically black, giving your picture a dramatic effect.

By avoiding overexposure, utilizing side lighting, and shooting with a filter to cut down blue light you will get technically good results.

Snow reflects so much light that this fast action shot could be taken at 1/880 sec. at f:8, using a medium yellow filter which cuts out half of the effective light. The filter darkened the sky and helped retain shadow detail in the snow.

Below: The only time you don't need a filter taking snow pictures is when you shoot at night. This picture required a time exposure of approximately 2 minutes at f:8, on a fine grain panchromatic film.

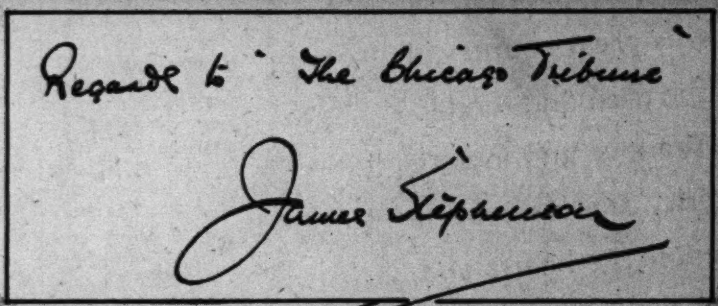
Match Your Handwriting with the Movie Stars'

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER

(Copyright: 1940: By Chicago Tribune)



THE IMPRESSION of quiet strength which James Stephenson gives on the screen is the real thing. One has only to look at his heavily penned, forceful handwriting to see that behind the rigidly controled pen there is deep feeling. That means firmness of character and strength of will. If you have friends who write like that you can turn to them in a crisis and they will be right there, dependable and with sustained strength and endurance.

I wouldn't want to get in Mr. Stephenson's way when he was on the warpath! He really means business when he gets under way. A few obstacles just add to the challenge. He doesn't always get up steam right away, because he has to take a bird's eye view of the situation before he makes up his mind, but when his mind is made up—look out! Give a person with this type of handwriting a job to do and give him a goal worth attaining and he will come thru on schedule.

Those short, stubby t-bars, so blunt on one end and sharply pointed on the other, indicate that Mr. Stephenson feels strongly, has decided likes and dislikes, and takes full enjoyment of the things which appeal to the five senses.

The underscore he uses is as full of confidence and poise as his signature. His capitals reflect his pride and dignity. If you make large capitals like this you can measure your ambition by the size. If you use an underscore you are indicating that you have attained a certain amount of confidence and assurance.

ROCKY THE STONE-AGE KID
by FRANK ENGLI
I WONDER WHAT ROCKY IS DOING IN THE ATTIC???
WHAT'S ALL THAT RACKET UP THERE, ROCKY, MY BOY?
BANG
I'LL BE DOWN SOON, MOM!
WELL, IT SURE SOUNDS LIKE YOU'RE GOING TO DROP THROUGH THE CEILING ANY MINUTE!
...BUT YOU STILL HAVEN'T ANSWERED MY QUESTION!
OKAY. I'M FINISHED!
FINISHED? WITH WHAT?
A LI'L SURPRISE FOR YOU, MOM! -CLOSE YOUR EYES!
SURPRISE? NOW DON'T YOU SCARE ME WITH ANYTHING!
MY! MY! BUT WHAT IS IT?
IT'S A CHAIR THAT ROCKS! -IF YOU WANT TO, YOU CAN CALL IT A "ROCKYCHAIR!"
SAY....THIS IS GRAND! BUT WHY DID YOU GO TO SO MUCH TROUBLE JUST FOR ME?
GOSH, I DON'T KNOW EXACTLY, MOM, BUT ALONG ABOUT THIS TIME EVERY YEAR, DEEP DOWN INSIDE OF ME, I JUST FEEL LIKE GIVING YOU SOMETHING NICE!
WELL, BLESS YOUR HEART!

TUNE IN WGN NEXT FRIDAY AT 7 PM (CST) FOR ANOTHER LEW LOYAL BROADCAST!

MY ESTABLISHMENT IS OFTEN USED FOR MEETINGS OF OUR OPERATORS.
SPLENDID— HE'LL BE HERE AT TEN— SHOW HIM IN AND DONT FORGET, WE ARE NOT TO BE DISTURBED!
I UNDESTAND— YOU SHALL HAVE ABSOLUTE PRIVACY
HIS EXCELLENCY IS COMING IN, MR.—
SO I SEE— EXCUSE ME!
YOUR EXCELLENCY, IT IS GOOD TO SEE YOU— WELCOME, APE!
HAS EKANS ARRIVED?
YES, YOUR EXCELLENCY, HE IS IN MY OFFICE — HE WASNT EXPECTING YOU UNTIL TEN O'CLOCK — COME, I WILL SHOW YOU TO HIM!
THE FOREIGN OFFICE RADIOED THAT YOU WERE TO—
YES, I HAVE IT— TWO MILLION DOLLARS FOR YOU TO USE FOR PROPAGANDA IN THIS SECTION
HERE IT IS — ALL IN AMERICAN CURRENCY
YOU ARE TO USE IT WHERE YOU JUDGE IT WILL DO OUR CAUSE THE GREATEST GOOD IN UNDERMINING AMERICAN DEFENSE PLANS
PSST!
NOW IM AFRAID I MUST GO, EKANS— IM EXPECTING A RADIO MESSAGE FROM THE FOREIGN OFFICE IN A FEW MINUTES

MR. ROTIART— MR. RO—
COMING, SERGIE!
FIVE MINUTES OF TEN * THE FRONT ENTRANCE OF THE ROTIART RESTAURANT
THIS WAY, YOUR EXCELLENCY.
SHOW US TO THE REAR DOOR, ROTIART. I PREFER NOT TO BE SEEN LEAVING THROUGH THE MAIN ENTRANCE
REMAIN HERE — I WILL PHONE SHORTLY WHERE WE SHALL MEET. WE MUST NOT BE SEEN TOGETHER IN PUBLIC
AS YOU WISH IT — I SHALL AWAIT YOUR CALL
SERGIE, HIS EXCELLENCY JUST DEPARTED BY THE REAR DOOR AND NOW HE ENTERS THE—THEYRE NOT THE SAME MEN, MR. ROTIART — I'M CERTAIN —
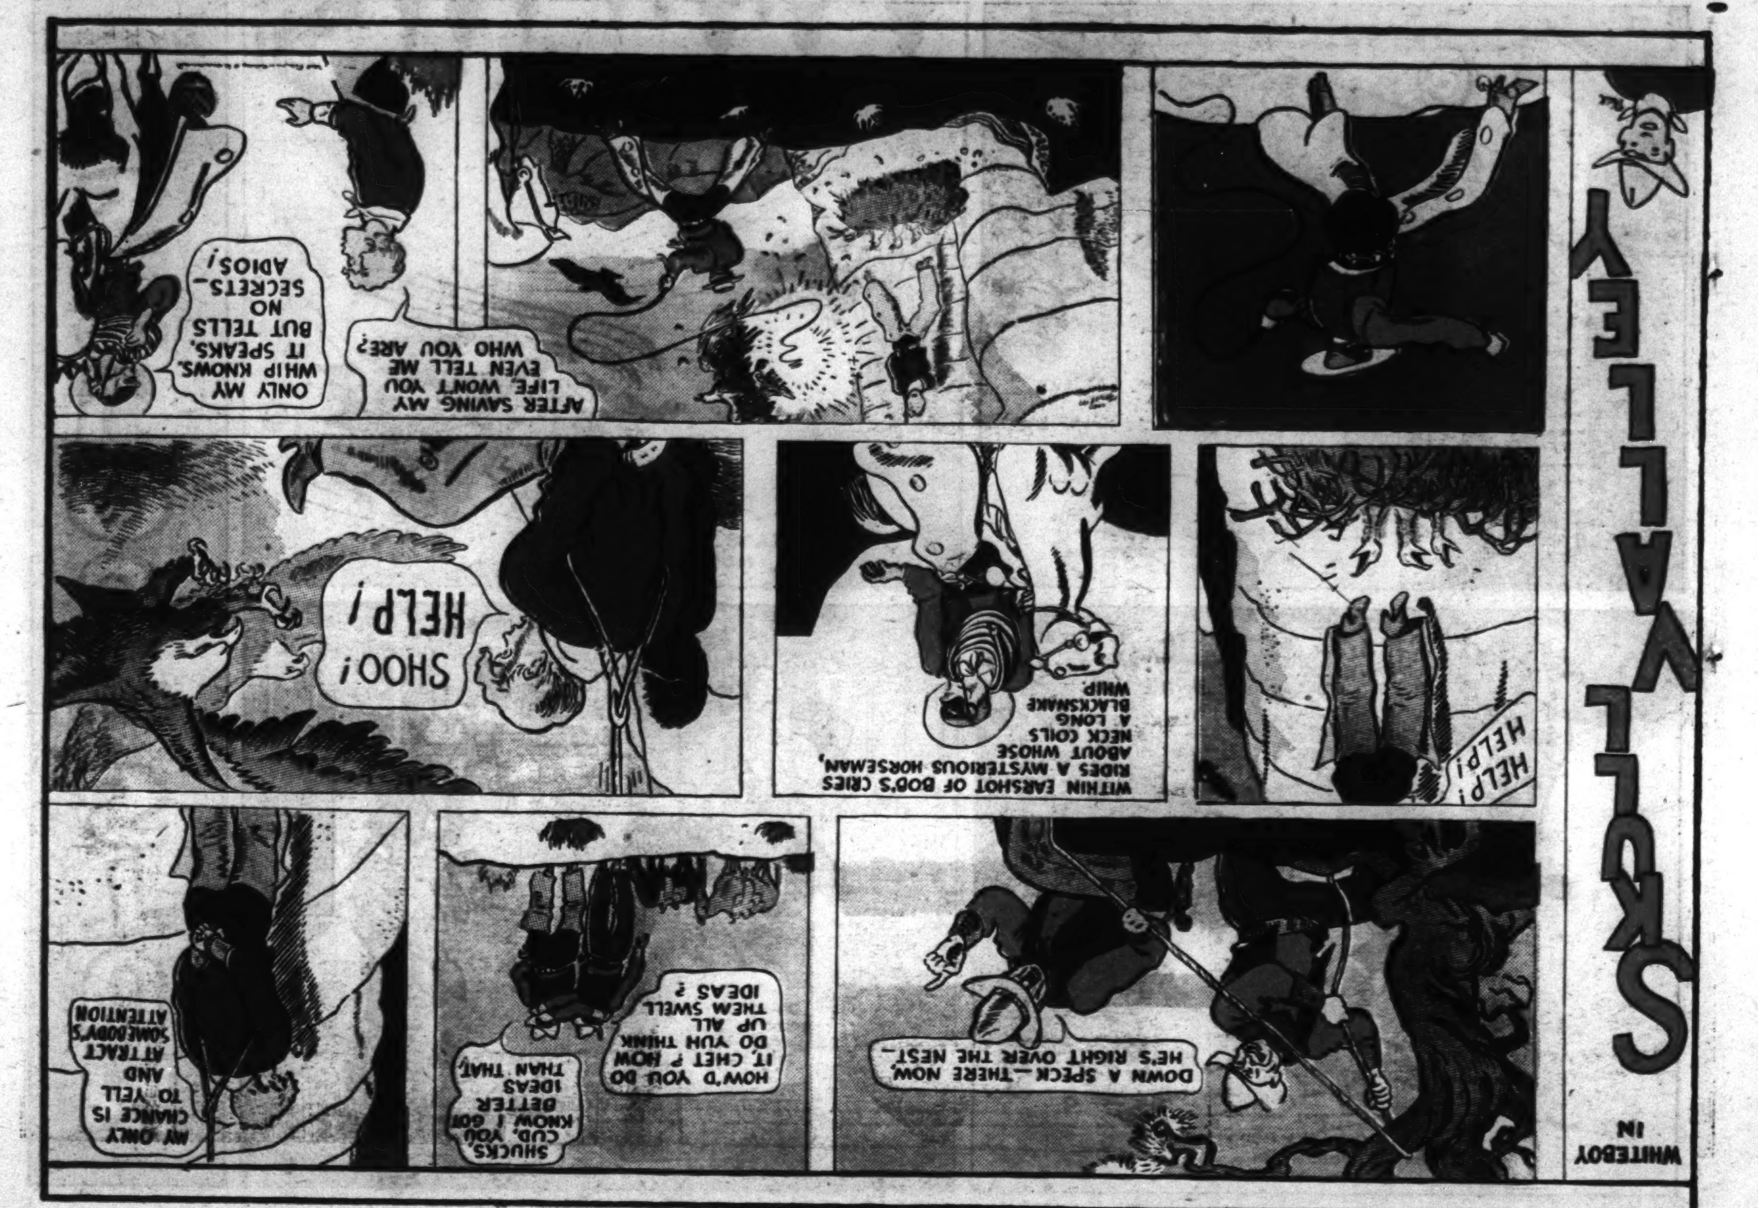
ARE YOU JOKING SIR? ONE MINUTE AGO YOU WERE WITH HIM AND LEFT BY THE REAR DOOR!
BACK DOOR? ARE YOU INSANE? ONE SIDE, IDIOT, I MUST SEE EKANS!
BUT, YOUR EXCELLENCY!
WELL, WHAT IS IT — ISNT EKANS HERE?
BECAUSE ONE OF THE PAIR IN HERE BEFORE HAD RUBBER SOLED SHOES
THEN THESE TWO ARE IMPOSTERS! I'LL CALL THE BOYS!
O.K. BOYS—TOSS THEM DOWN STAIRS WHERE WE CAN GIVE THEM A PROPER GOING OVER!
WHAT'S GOING ON HERE?
KEY FOR DECODING SECRET MESSAGE



WHITEBOY IN SKULL VALLEY
DOWN A SPECK—THERE NOW, HE'S RIGHT OVER THE NEST—
HOW'D YOU DO IT, CHET? HOW DO YUH THINK UP ALL THEM SWELL IDEAS?
SHUCKS, CUD, YOU KNOW I GOT BETTER IDEAS THAN THAT MY ONLY CHANCE IS TO YELL AND ATTRACT SOMEBODY'S ATTENTION
HELP! HELP!
WITHIN EARSHOT OF BOB'S CRIES RIDES A MYSTERIOUS HORSEMAN, ABOUT WHOSE NECK COILS A LONG BLACKSNAKE WHIP.
SHOO! HELP!
AFTER SAVING MY LIFE, WON'T YOU EVEN TELL ME WHO YOU ARE?
ONLY MY WHIP KNOWS, IT SPEAKS, BUT TELLS NO SECRETS—ADIOS!

THIS IS LOVELY— OLD LAW-AND-ORDER PAUL WHITE JUST HANDED THE GIRL ON THE HORSE A ROLL OF BILLS — THEN HE PRIED OPEN ONE OF THE SMASHED CAR DOORS AND TOOK SLAID AWAY WITH HIM! NOW THE GIRLS ARE ARGUING ABOUT THE MONEY!
US FOR THAT DOUGH!
THIS REWARD MONEY WILL BUY A NEW CAR FOR YOU— PLEASE TAKE IT.
HERE BOB WHITE'S HORSE, SOX, WANDERS UP WITH AN EMPTY SADDLE.
GRACIOUS, HERE'S SOX, BUT WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO BOB?
LET'S TAKE THE MONEY
NO, IT'S HERS.
SOMEONE IS COMING
I'M GOING TO PLAY SAFE AND HIDE THIS MONEY UNDER SOX'S SADDLE.
WHICH ONE OF YOU HAS THAT MONEY? FORK IT OVER THE OUTLAWS!
WE HAVE NOTHING BUT THIS WRECKED CAR, AND THERE ISN'T EVEN INSURANCE ON IT, EXCEPT FIRE AND THEFT!
CUD, PROP A MATCH AGAINST THAT GAS TANK— FIRE INSURANCE, HUH — WE'LL FIX IT SO YOU CAN COLLECT— THEN WE COLLECT
O.K.
SPANG! THE BULLET IGNITES THE MATCH AND PUNCTURES THE GAS TANK.
OH— MY DRESS IS AFIRE!
